BROWNSVILLE (Tex.) June 25. Gen. B. Lopez, commanding the frontier district between Matamoros and Nuevo Laredo, today ordered the Federal commander at Guerrero, Mex., opposite Zapata, Tex., to take the field with 200 men against the supposed revolutionary band under Gen. Francisco Murguia.

Orders of Gen. Lopez to the Guerrero officer were "to take no prisoners," it was learned. The size of Murguia's band is not known here, but it is believed to be co-operating with that under Gen. Pablo Gonzales.

Mr. Potter at present is living in a Westchester town. He and his wife, the second Mrs. Potter, will be strong witnesses for the defense when the presentation of its evidence begins, probably during the second week of July.

Unions Spurn Him, Re-Elect Gompers.

Sinn Fein and Pro-German Aids Are Repudiated by Large Majority.

Support of Notorious Consort of Bolo Pasha Killed Lewis's Chances.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER (Colo.) June 25.—Pres. Samuel Gompers, America's veteran union-labor leader, overwhelmingly defeating his first serious opposition since 1894, today was returned to office with his entire administration for another year by the American Federation of Labor.

This sweeping victory, the labor chief said tonight at the close of the federation's forty-first annual convention, demonstrated that the American trade-union movement "will not submit to dictation from the forces of corruption or greed—neither the Hearsts nor the Garys can chart our course or select our leaders."

MOVEMENT UNITED.

"Our movement is united. It is prepared to be aggressive in defense of the rights of the toilers. It will not be swerved from its course. It will be a sad day for the aspirations of the working people of our land when corrupt and intriguing interests can either divide our movement, change our course or destroy its leadership. The vote today has demonstrated to the world that we have not yet come upon that day.

"The whole work of the convention, the resolutions and declarations adopted, the policies indicated, mean for the future a united, progressive, militant movement, following upon a progressive, fruitful and militant past.

LIFE DEDICATED.

For myself, I may say that the work of the convention and the result of the election fill me with satisfaction, gratitude and pride, not for myself, but for our movement. I am proud of our movement and my life shall be given to it in the future as it has been for these many years. We are in serious times, but we face them undaunted and with confidence and courage."

The union-labor chief's forces made a clean sweep from the beginning, when President Gompers was returned to the presidency for the fortieth time by overwhelming John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers by a vote of 25,022 to 12,324.

WILD ENTHUSIASM.

The vote was taken amid scenes of wild enthusiasm, rivaling those of national political conventions. The galleries were packed with spectators. The convention floor was overflowing with delegates and their friends. Cheers and applause swept the auditorium at every vote.

Several attempts by the Gompers supporters to stampede the delegates for the veteran union-labor leader during the demonstration failed, as scores of delegates withheld their enthusiasm and remained silently in their seats, unmoved by the urgings of fellow-delegates.

This was the first time that Gompers had been seriously opposed since 1894, when he was defeated by John McBride, a mine worker, at a convention in this city, but he was returned to office the following year.

VERGE OF TEARS.

When his victory was announced, the union-labor leader, who is now 71 years old, could scarcely control his emotions and was on the verge of tears when he took his place at the rostrum to thank the delegates for their support and confidence, and declaring that "my election will bring no comfort to Gary or Hearst."

Lewis of the mine workers, arose from his place at the rear of the hall and declared in a stirring address that he "accepted the verdict of the American Federation of Labor without the slightest tinge of enmity in my mind," adding:

"I have used no dishonorable methods in my efforts to realize my aspiration for the presidency.

"I have not been the candidate of William Randolph Hearst. I do not know the man.

"I stand more than ever before with the great trade union movement of America and my voice and ability shall always be given to making the American labor movement greater than ever before."

He was given a tremendous ovation as he concluded his speech.

The official roll call showed that

LEAVES WITH HER RADIUM.

Mme. Curie Boards Steamer for France; Carries Sixty-five Degrees.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Accompanied by the gram of radium she received as a gift from the women of America, carefully packed inside of a mahogany casket lined with lead and steel, Madame Curie, the scientist and co-discoverer of radium, with her two daughters, boarded the Olympic today for France. While on her visit to the United States, Mme. Curie received honorary degrees from ten universities and colleges, making the total of such recognitions sixty-five.

OUR FORCES ON THE RHINE MUST SOON BE REDUCED, BUT DON'T WANT TO COME HOME.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—American soldiers on the Rhine don't want to come home. Many of them insist on re-enlisting and, as it is the policy of the War Department not to refuse re-enlistment of men with good records, the practice is proving embarrassing in the face of the absolute necessity of reducing the strength of the Army to the size decreed by Congress.

The number of officers in the American Army of Occupation has been reduced to that required for a force of about 7500 enlisted men, but the enlisted strength in Germany remains at about 12,000 men. The original intention was to have an enlisted strength on the Rhine of approximately 8000.

Secretary Weeks explained today it was expected that the enlisted force on the Rhine would be reduced to about 7500 by July 1. Those who desire to return are for the most part soldiers who have married German women and who do not care to re-enlist. There has been an epidemic of these marriages.

DENBY'S TRIP TO COAST.

With Secretary Fall Plans to Come West in August Then Go to Alaska.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Plans are now being developed so that Secretary Denby of the Navy and Secretary Fall of the Interior Department will jointly inspect the southeastern coast of Alaska, the government railroad there and the coal mines developed under government supervision.

The tentative plan is for the two secretaries to go to Alaska from Seattle by the battleship New York the latter part of July or the first of August and make a careful check-up of the government railroad, the coal mines and the harbors, all of which equally interest the Navy and the Department of the Interior. Both the railroad and the mines are under the jurisdiction of the Interior Department and their main use is to furnish coal for use of the Navy.

TO VISIT PARKS.

Following the Alaskan trip it is probable that the war craft will return to Seattle in order to permit Secretary Fall to complete his inspection of the reclamation projects in the Northwest and also the national parks of the country.

Secretary Denby contemplates continuing on the New York to inspect Pearl Harbor and all the other naval establishments of the Hawaiian group, together with the destroyer force and other naval ships which will then be there.

From Honolulu Secretary Denby, according to the present plans, which are more or less tentative, will continue to San Pedro, Los Angeles and San Francisco, from which point he will return to Washington, having visited Portland on the way to Seattle, thus completing his inspection of the naval needs of the Pacific Coast.

WILL GO TO YOSEMITE.

Until the two secretaries meet at Seattle it is planned that Secretary Fall will inspect the Grand Canyon National Park and the projects of the Southwest and arrive at Los Angeles shortly after the fifteenth of July. From Los Angeles it is proposed to take the Secretary by motor through the Yosemite, the big trees, Lake Tahoe, to San Francisco.

From there he will visit Crater Lake in Oregon and a number of the reclamation projects of the Northwest. Following his visit to Alaska he will complete his inspection trip and return directly to Washington.

COHAN SAYS GOOD-BY TO BROADWAY.

Retires After Twenty-five Years on Stage Because of Actors' Closed-Shop Policy.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—George M. Cohan said bood-by to Broadway tonight. For the last time he appeared in "The Tavern" at the Hudson Theater, and the Friars and all the rest of the theatrical folk and friends of the famous actor were there.

Retiring after twenty-five years on the stage because of the closed-shop policy of the Actors' Equity Association, Cohan today wrote his farewell to friends, as "dear old friend Broadway."

"Just a few words before I leave. Thanks a thousand times for all you've done for me and mine," he wrote. "I've certainly enjoyed my visit and I intend to tell the folks back home all about the good time you gave me and how much I appreciate your many kindnesses.

"I don't suppose the folks will know me back home, now that my hair is gray. I was a blond when I first met you. Do you remember how I used to look? The hat cocked on the side of the head, the plaid vest and the cream-colored dancing shoes. And, oh, yes, the switch cane!

"Take good care of the children of the theater while I'm away, kid, and don't let them play too hard and tire themselves all out. In case they break the toy, the closed shop, and start crying, take my advice, Broadway, and don't scold them too hard.

"In the meantime, good-by Broadway, take care of yourself."

JUSTICE CONVICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, June 25.—William H. McGannon, former chief justice of the municipal court, was found guilty of perjury tonight by a jury. McGannon was charged with giving perjured testimony in his trials for the murder of Harold C. Kagy, of which he was acquitted.

Judge Allen sentenced McGannon to an indeterminate sentence from one to ten years.

WILSON THE FIRST UNDER NEW RULING.

Former President Admitted to Practice Before District of Columbia Court.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Former President Woodrow Wilson was admitted to practice today before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. A special session of the court was held for the occasion, in the chambers of Chief Justice McCoy. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Chief Justice briefly welcomed Mr. Wilson to the membership of the bar.

The admission of Mr. Wilson is the first under the new rule of court, by which former Presidents and Vice-Presidents, who are lawyers, may be admitted without application or other formality.

Shortly before noon Mr. Wilson's automobile drove up to the entrance to the ground floor of the Courthouse, accompanied by Bainbridge Colby, his law partner, and former Secretary of State, and Joseph Tumulty, his former secretary. The former President walked the short distance to the elevator, which carried him directly to the chambers of Chief Justice McCoy. The ceremony and reception of Mr. Wilson was brief.

Several Stabbed in Reformatory Riot by Wamen.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARYSVILLE (O.) June 25.—A number of prisoners and attendants at the Ohio reformatory for women here were stabbed and beaten today as a result of a riot designed, according to officials, to effect the escape of twenty-five prisoners. Three employees were severely cut with butcher knives in the hands of the inmates. Two inmates are in the hospital.

Sheriff Collier and a deputy were called to aid the reformatory officials in subduing the rioters, three of whom escaped, but were later apprehended.

The trouble is said to have started over inmates obtaining tobacco, one of them being punished for the offense.

Two Hundred on Freight Headed for Wheat Fields.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURG (Kan.) June 25.—Two hundred men, many of them hanging on cattle cars and riding the bumpers, were aboard a Kansas City Southern freight train when it arrived today. The train crew said the men, many of them believed to be striking dockworkers from gulf ports, forcibly boarded the train at Watts, Okla., last night, some of them saying they were en route to the Kansas wheat fields.

Upon the request of peace officers most of the men left the train here. They were given breakfast by the Salvation Army and a hastily formed citizens' organization. At noon only a few of the men remained in town.

URGES LIBERTY FOR NURSES IN TRAINING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—There is a serious shortage of nurses in the hospitals which might be overcome if the novice nurses are allowed more liberty and amusements during the rigid training period, Dr. Adelaide Brown, San Francisco, told the annual hospital conference of the California League for the Conservation of Public Health today.

"Young women are not entering the nursing profession in any great numbers, due to the isolation compelled by their training and the strict routine," she said.

MARY WINS HER FIGHT.

Decree in Divorce Held Legal.

Court Files Opinion in Which He Says Attorney-General is on Wrong Tack.

Decision Will be Appealed to Higher Tribunal, is Threat of Official.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINDEN (Nev.) June 25. — The decision of District Judge Langan today in upholding the divorce of Mary Pickford and Owen Moore, motion-picture stars, in March, 1920, is to be appealed to the State Supreme Court by Atty.-Gen. Fowler, the Attorney-General announced. He filed a list of exceptions to the decision preparatory to instituting a formal appeal.

The action attacking the divorce was brought by the Attorney-General on the ground that the laws covering divorce had not been properly lived up to by the principals.

In his decision Judge Langan held that the laws confer upon the Attorney-General no authority to institute an action for the setting aside of divorce decrees. The judge ordered the service of summons upon the interested parties quashed, and sustained the answers of Miss Pickford's counsel to the Attorney-General's complaint.

COURT IS SUPREME.

The court, and not the Attorney-General, is the representative of society and the State in divorce cases, the decision held. The judgment in the divorce action is the best evidence of the legality of the action and cannot be contradicted, it continued.

The allegation of fraud made by the Attorney-General cannot be made the basis of depriving the parties of the decree, and neither the State nor the Attorney-General is aggrieved. The findings of the court as to residence, which were resisted by the Attorney-General on the ground that the residence period of the principals in the State was insufficient under the law, are final, and even if fraud had been shown the Attorney-General is estopped from acting, the decision said.

Summing up, the decision said that the complaint showed no cause of action, and as plaintiff is not an aggrieved party, no publication of summons could be legally made, and dismissal of the complaint was the only action that could be taken.

CHARGED CRUELTY.

Miss Pickford was granted her decree here March 20, 1920, by Judge Langan and, in a short time, married Douglas Fairbanks in Los Angeles. Testifying at the trial, Miss Pickford said she came to Nevada Feb. 15, 1920, for the benefit of her health. She charged Moore with desertion and cruelty.

Moore was not present at the hearing and did not contest, although on the day before he was served with the summons in Douglas county, in which Minden is located. Miss Pickford testified she did not know Moore was in Nevada at the time. Following the divorce both left the State.

Nearly one month later, on April 16, 1920, after Miss Pickford and Fairbanks were married, Fowler filed an action here, asking that the decree be set aside "in the interests of the State of Nevada." He charged Moore and Miss Pickford with fraud and collusion, declared Judge Langan had no jurisdiction in the case, as both principals resided in Los Angeles, said the decree was colorable, said the principals held the Nevada court in utter contempt, and charged that the marriage of Miss Pickford and Fairbanks was part of a fraudulent plan concocted by the defendants.

MOORE'S ACT ATTACKED.

Moore, he alleged, came to Douglas county solely to submit to service of the summons. The Attorney-General's action was predicated, he declared, on the principle that the State reserves interests in all divorce cases.

Attorneys for Miss Pickford answered the Attorney-General's charges and asked that the suit be set aside. They asserted the Attorney-General had no authority under Nevada laws to bring his action, and declared that if the principle on which the State's suit was predicated was sustained, the Attorney-General could review all divorce cases tried in Nevada. The defense counsel said no one case could be found as precedent for Fowler's action. The right of review, which the Attorney-General said he held, was attacked.

The State, it was claimed, was Tacoma Patrolman Wants No Money for Capture of Notorious Bandit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CENTRALIA (Wash.) June 25.—Patrolman Louis Sonny, who placed Roy Gardner, escaped mail bandit, under arrest a week ago, stated today that any reward he received will be turned over to Mrs. Gardner, who is in California.

"Mrs. Gardner needs the money and I will turn it over to her," Sonny said.

The patrolman expected to get only $50 for making the capture.

KALAMAZOO (Mich.) June 25.—Making a funeral pyre of a kerosene-soaked brush pile, Henry Papper, 70-year-old farmer, after saturating his clothing with oil today, crawled into the pile. Lighting it, he burned himself to death. He had been despondent because of ill health.

"CLANSMAN" IS BARRED FROM CITY.

Prosecutor Issues Order Terminating Showing of Griffith Film Here.

D. W. Griffith's "The Clansman," the film internationally famous as "The Birth of a Nation," has been banned by the office of City Prosecutor Widney, and showing of the feature will be prohibited in Los Angeles in the future, according to a notification received yesterday at the Garrick Theater, where the picture play has been running for the last fortnight.

Mr. Widney was out of the city and could not be reached last night, but the order, according to Chief of Police Pendegast, was in all probability issued because of protests against the showing of "The Clansman" which have reached the City Prosecutor, the Police Chief, the Mayor and the Police Commissioners from various societies interested in the advancement of colored people. The Police Commissioners last Tuesday debated whether the film might endanger racial feeling here.

Because of the action of the City Prosecutor's office, said D. H. Chapman, manager of the theater, last evening, the run of the feature will be discontinued with the closing performance tonight, though it had been billed for the rest of this week. Manager Chapman yesterday hurriedly booked Mary Pickford's latest picture, "Through the Back Door," for presentation beginning tomorrow.

SUNDAY POT ROASTS WILL BE CHEAPER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—Good pot roasts and boiling beef should be available to the consuming public at the lowest price in ten years, according to announcement made by Armour & Co., Chicago packers, today.

"It ought to be possible for consumers to obtain good pot roasts at 10 to 12½ cents a pound at any retailer's," the announcement said.

Gas-pipe Campaign on Open Shop.

Independent Workers Are Victims of Assault in Bay City Strike.

Attempt Made to Dynamite New Federal Bank is Frustrated.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Fresh violence today marked the open-shop campaign in San Francisco's building industry.

W. H. George, spokesman for the Builders' Exchange, charged that one of the exchange's guards had been "beaten up" on a nonunion excavation job in the Presidio. George said the man had been assaulted by union sympathizers who struck him with a gas pipe.

Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson said he had charges of kidnaping by union men under investigation. According to a statement given Matheson by Nicholas Dykeman, 366 Herman street, two nonunion roofers working on a building at Twenty-sixth avenue and Cabrillo street, were "persuaded" to quit work by union men and that they then ran away from the place. They were followed in an automobile, overtaken and brought to the Building Trades Temple, Fourteenth and Guerrero streets, in order to get them to join the Roofers' Union.

TWO MEN ESCAPED.

Outside the Building Trades Temple the two men escaped from the automobile and again ran away. Dykeman denied that either of the men had suffered violence, but admitted there had been a fight between union and nonunion men on the Cabrillo-street job. He said he had gone there in the automobile with several other members of the Roofers' Union.

Daniel Chickering, 1334 Golden Gate avenue, and John Nickerson, rancher of San Juan, San Benito county, arrested last night on charges of George K. Steele, watchman, that they tried to hire him to destroy a thirty-ton derrick at Sixth and Hubbell streets, and to place dynamite under the engine [illegible] equipment being used in the construction of the new Federal Reserve Bank, today were arraigned on conspiracy charges before Police Judge Sylvain Lazarus. Their cases were set for trial Tuesday. Bail was fixed at $1000 in cash or $2000 on bond.

Steele, according to Detectives John Palmer and Fred Bohr, who made the arrest last night, claims that Nickerson, some days ago, promised him $100 if he would pour sulphuric acid on the guy cables of the hoisting apparatus used in unloading structural steel from flat cars for the Williams Construction Company. Steele also told the detectives, they say, that he later found a bottle of acid where Nickerson, he alleges, told him it would be placed. Both men were employed at the SOCIALISTS HIT SOVIETS.

Refuse to Affiliate with Russian Reds; Sam Gompers is Scored.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, June 25.—Refusing by 35 to 4 to affiliate with the Third Internationale of Moscow, the Socialist party today voted in its annual convention against international relations and for the next year at least will pursue its course alone.

The vote came after Victor Berger, Morris Hillquit, Algernon Lee and other leaders had denounced the soviet government as the murderers of the Socialists of Russia and as a "wrecking crew" bent on the destruction of Socialist parties.

The action followed three hours of heated debate during which Chairman Hillquit threatened to clear the galleries when Communist sympathizers started a demonstration. Unlike the last two conventions, which have expressed sympathy with the Bolshevik aims and sought an international relationship, this year's gathering showed scant patience with the Extreme Left Wing.

OPPOSES DICTATORSHIP.

"I want no dictatorship," Mr. Berger declared. "I have had the dictatorship of Burleson, the dictatorship of Wilson and the dictatorship of Palmer. That is all the dictatorship I want for the rest of my life."

The convention voted down all proposals for foreign affiliations, including a motion to join the Internationale at Vienna.

The Extreme Right not only controlled the day in the field of international relations, but made a clean sweep of permanent organization, including a majority of every committee.

ATTACK ON GOMPERS.

G. A. Hoehn bitterly denounced the Russians for appealing to American workers to quit the Socialist party and join the Communists and also attacked Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"There is a man running for re-election now at Denver who is going hand in hand with the soviets in their efforts to destroy us," he said. "Samuel Gompers is attacking us from one side and the soviets from the other."

The national committee reported the party membership has fallen to 17,000, a decrease of 10,000 from the high mark of last year.

The convention decided to send a telegram to Eugene Debs, in Atlanta penitentiary, expressing sympathy of the party.

CURB STOCK MARKET TO GET ROOF.

End of Outdoor Life is Marked by Wild Scene Saturday.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—The New York curb market today ended its outdoor life.

When the noon hour came, the babel that has marked the curb's operations on Broad street died to a murmur after a final roar. Monday the curb will have a roof over its head.

But the final roar was unprecedented. Brokers multiplied the shouts, the furious wiggling of fingers, the waving of arms, the swinging of caps and the mad milling that have made the curb seem more like a band of deaf mutes than a business body.

Up into the air went scores of vari-colored caps and bizarre jackets—curious habiliments by which brokers, perched beside telegraph wires in windows above, had been able to tell their representative from the other fellow's.

Nobody agrees on the date when the business of dealing in unlisted securities on the curb started, but 1873 marked organization of the association. Its members transacted business in rain or snow, sleet or sunshine.

RAIL PROFITS DECLINE; COSTS STEADILY CLIMB.

Government Control Mismanagement, High Cost of Labor and Decreased Purchasing Power Responsible.

BY JULIUS KRUTTSCHNITT,

Chairman Executive Committee of the Southern Pacific.

[Weekly Review, June 11.]

The railroad inquiry now being conducted by the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce has served to focus attention anew upon railroad problems. Why have costs risen to so high a point that even under the increased rates granted last year the roads are not making money? Why did traffic decline so sharply late in 1920 and in 1921? Are the railroads' troubles due to inefficiency? What are the prospects for lower rates? These are questions to which the Senate committee is seeking answers. The public is equally interested. It would require a volume to reply in detail to all of these questions, but I am willing to try to answer them briefly on the basis of testimony I have given before the Senate committee.

The main trouble with the railroads is that their revenue has not kept up with their expenses. Other industries raised their prices as costs went up. The railroads under strict regulation were made to wait, and when the 1920 increase in rates was granted, further increased costs and the price of disorganization under Federal control absorbed the larger revenue.

OPERATING RESULTS.

Doubtless the summary of revenues and expenses of the large roads for the years 1920 and 1919, respectively, issued by the bureau of statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission, February 28, 1921, as well as the general disappointment as to the net results of operation in 1920, aroused anxiety. Doubtless also the higher level of transportation charges put into effect in August, 1920, and in the months following, coming as it did at a time of great industrial disturbance and readjustment when prices were falling and the purchasing power or the purchasing inclination of the consuming public was substantially reduced, increased this anxiety and was thought to impose the duty of a thorough study and understanding of the situation and of a comprehensive inquiry as to what bearing, if any, the present level of transportation charges has upon the existing business depression.

The summary of revenues and expenses shows that the operating revenues were for

Difference	$1,041,338,541

being thus greater in 1920 than in 1919, and that the railway operating expenses, taxes, and rents were for

1920	$6,163,138,341
Difference	$1,495,364,210

being this greater in 1920 than in 1919. The statement further shows that after making allowance in each year for railway tax accruals, uncollectable railway revenues, equipment rents and joint facility rents the net railway operating income was for being thus smaller in 1920 than in 1919, although the gross railway operating revenues were $1,041,338,541 larger in 1920 than in 1919.

1920	$62,264,421
1919	516,290,090

This difference in result being therefore caused by the marked disproportion of railway operating expenses as between the two years, we may for the present lay aside the question of revenues and come to the consideration of the operating-expenses account.

In order, however, to understand the problem, and properly to apportion the responsibility for the result, it must be appreciated that, except as either is affected by bad management, the railway operating revenues and more than 64 per cent of the railway operating expenses, being the labor costs—and in 1920, in addition, a very substantial part of the cost of materials and supplies which were purchased by the Railroad Administration during Federal control, but used by the railroads at the prices paid or contracted by the government to be paid—are fixed by the government; in other words, that the government prescribes the charges from which the operating revenues of the carriers come and likewise fixes the wages which constitute more than 64 per cent of the operating expenses, and that the price of the necessary materials and supplies which the carriers must have are fixed either by the government, as above stated, or by economic forces beyond the power of the carriers to control.

The 64 cents out of every dollar of operating expenses was paid for labor at prices fixed by the government; 15 cents out of every dollar of operating expenses was paid for materials and supplies, at prices fixed by the government; and 3.5 cents out of every dollar of operating expenses for the year 1920 was paid for other expenses incurred by the government in the first two months of 1920; or a total of 82.5 cents out of every dollar of operating expenses for the year 1920 was paid out at prices directly fixed by the government itself.

The remaining materials and supplies used during the year 1920 were purchased by the carriers at prices fixed by general market conditions and beyond their power to control, costing 15 cents out of every dollar of expense. In other words, prices fixed by the government or by market conditions cover 97.5 cents out of every dollar of operating expense.

The labor costs to the carriers of class 1 were actually greater in 1920 than in 1917 by more than 115 per cent, and if the increased scale had been in effect during the entire year 1920 instead of eight months only, the increase would have been 128 per cent.

It must be noted that during the same period the gross revenues of the carriers increased less than 54 per cent.

It will be noted also that since the government took charge of the labor costs by the Adamson law in 1916 the labor costs have been increased by government action by $2,229,639,957, the total for 1920 being $3,698,216,351; and that before the government took charge the entire labor costs amounted to $1,468,676,394.

It will be observed that the total amount paid to labor during the year 1920 of $3,698,216,351 is very nearly sixty times $62,264,421, the amount of income yielded by the railroad properties to their owners for the purpose of meeting fixed charges and dividends.

As a whole the operating expenses, taxes and rents of the railroads for 1920 exceeded the 1919 expenses by $1,495,364,210. Fuel cost $196,429,000 more and the single item of ties represented in 1920 an increase of $28,112,000 over 1919. This is not the whole story, but it shows, I think, where the railroad revenue went.

As to efficiency, the best evidence of this is that in 1920 the railroads performed the greatest transportation task in their history. They moved more freight and passengers, loaded their cars more heavily and moved them farther per day. That it cost too much to do this was due, as shown, almost entirely to causes beyond the railroad managers' control.

AS TO FREIGHT RATES.

A widespread propaganda is being carried on to arouse public sentiment against existing freight rates, whereas the fact is that even since the rates have been advanced the cost of transporting commodities is far less than the toll taken by the commission merchant and the retailer for buying and selling them. Consequently people are misled, and conclude that high rates have stopped the movement of a large amount of freight and that the railways would make more money if they would reduce the rates and thereby revive the traffic. There is the strongest reason to believe that the very great reduction in traffic has been due almost entirely to general business conditions which are world-wide in their effect and which would have come if there had been no advance in freight rates.

Lessened demand from Europe, the fall in bank clearings, depression in the textile industry, increase in commercial failures, decreased construction—all dating from the early summer of 1920—show that a period of stagnation was setting in long before freight rates were raised.

As to the relation even of the higher rates now in effect to the value of commodities transported, the following table is illuminating:

	1914.	1919.	1920.	1921.
Average commodity value per ton of freight originated	$56.00	$119.00	$143.00	$93.00
Average freight charges per ton originated	2.00	2.90	2.83	3.54
Percentage charges to value per cent.	3.6	2.4	2	3.8
Increase in cost to consumer over 1914		63.00	87.00	37.00
Increase in freight charges per ton over 1914		0.90	0.83	1.54

It will be observed that the percentage of freight charges to value in the early part of the current year is almost exactly the same as it was in 1914.

The decline in business and the failure of many commodities to move is not due to higher freight rates. The volume of traffic increased substantially for some time after August 26, when the new rates became effective, but the fall in prices (deflation,) the result of a growing world-wide inability to buy owing to impoverishment—a natural consequence of the war—began in May and was well advanced on its downward course before August 26.

The fall in traffic undoubtedly would have taken place had freight rates remained as they were prior to Sept. 1, 1920, or even if they had fallen, as is actually the case with ocean rates, because traffic has fallen in the principal countries of Europe as well as with us. There may be cases where existing freight rates restrict movement, but in general, business has been checked by the fall of purchasing power of the nations of Europe, which have been bled white by the costs of the war and whose inability to purchase has affected the markets of the United States.

The trouble with our railroads has been intensified by the results of twenty-six months of an experiment in government ownership and operation. The word "ownership" is used advisedly, as the Federal Railroad Administration from the beginning treated the railroads as if they were absolutely owned by the government and turned them back to their owners in a substantially depreciated physical condition and helplessly bound in improvident agreements, in the making of which their owners had no voice.

The present problem is not a question of revenues adequate to cover operating expenses, taxes, fixed charges and a reasonable return to shareholders, as much as one of corporate life and death, and life and death to every industry in the land. Poor service, no matter how low the rate, is expensive, and increases the cost of everything. The price of good service is negligible when compared with the price of poor service, and if it is desired to reduce the cost of transportation and the costs in all lines of business, it is necessary to support the railroads in their efforts to bring about better transportation conditions.

"TIMES" FIGHT SOUVENIR IN ROTOGRAVURE NEXT TUESDAY

The best obtainable set of photographs of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, taken a few days ago in their respective training camps, will be issued as a special rotogravure supplement to each copy of The Times in the street edition tomorrow night and in all regular editions Tuesday morning.

Graphically depicting the work of the two men in the wind-up of their training-camp activities, this rotogravure page of carefully selected pictures will supply an interesting and a practical means for reaching your own conclusions as to the probable result of the championship fight July 2.

Some of the pictures were posed in order that each fighter could be seen in his best attitudes, while others were taken during regular training-camp routine when neither fighter could give a thought to the cameraman.

The rotogravures will be printed on one side of a calendared sheet of paper twenty-two inches long and sixteen inches deep. Hang it on the wall or place it on display in downtown windows. And, in order to make certain that you will get one of these splendid supplements, order your copy of The Times now from your news dealer.

Aviator Dead; Another Hurt in Plane Fall.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, June 25.— One man is dead and another is in a serious condition at the Camp Meade Hospital following the fall of an airplane at Logan Field, Dundalm, today.

Lieut. John F. Bayo of Barretsville, Md., who was making his first flight as a guardsman, is dead. Private E. H. Norton, the passenger, is expected to recover, Army physicians said. Officers said the crash was due to atmospheric conditions.

GRANT WAR RISK DIRECTOR.

GOMPERS AGAIN A. F. L. CHIEF.

only five organizations voted solidly for the mine workers' leader. They were the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, International Association of Machinists, Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Tailors' and Draftsmen's Unions.

The mine workers' delegation split their vote—Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district; Robert Harlan, president of the Washington district, and Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas district, United Mine Workers, casting their total votes of 1596 for Gompers.

Lewis, who, as a delegate, held 593 votes, did not cast his ballots.

SUPPORT FAILS.

The railroad organizations which were reported to have backed the Lewis boom failed to support him, two of the largest unions—electrical workers and railway carmen—voting solidly for Gompers. The building trades unions and a majority of the metal workers' organizations also supported the labor chief.

J. Mahlon Barnes of Chicago, president of the Cigarmakers' Union, of which Gompers is a member, cast his sixty-eight votes for Lewis.

The election of Gompers brought to a close one of the hottest political campaigns ever waged in the history of organized labor. The campaigning had gone on relentlessly since the convention opened and at times proceedings on the floor of the convention were interrupted by the electioneering.

Charges and counter-charges were hurled back and forth by both sides. Early in the campaign reports were published that certain anti-Gompers interests were operating among the delegates with a $100,000 "slush fund." Efforts to bring about an investigation on these charges failed. At no time, however, did these charges involve the Lewis supporters as they were all made against persons outside the ranks of organized labor.

CINCINNATI SELECTED.

William J. Spencer of Washington, D. C., secretary of the building trades department, and James J. Forrester of Washington, were elected fraternal delegates to the British trade-union congress. Peter J. Brady of New York, who was nominated, withdrew his name.

John O'Hara of Danbury, Ct., was selected as fraternal delegate to the Canadian trades and labor congress.

Cincinnati was selected for the site of the next convention over Fort Worth, Tex., by a vote of 22,482 to 14,221.

represented at the trial by the court, and the court's action in granting the divorce was final. They also held that the divorce was legal in every way; that the residence requirements had been lived up to, and that there was no collusion between Miss Pickford and Moore.

VIEW OF LAWYER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Commenting on the affirmation of Mary Pickford's divorce decree, Gavin McNab, her chief counsel in the action, said:

"The action of the Attorney-General of Nevada to usurp the name and functions of the State against an individual, was the first of its kind in the history of jurisprudence. It was an act of oppression directed against a woman arbitrarily selected on account of her distinction.

"It was in theory and practice an attack on institutional government. The court's decision has vindicated the law."

Pair Reticent.

Mrs. Pickford-Fairbanks was returning to her bungalow on the Brunton lot when she was asked for a statement on Judge Langan's decision. She had been working all day on one of her productions, and said she was quite tired. She referred all questioners to her lawyers. Aside from adding that she was very happy, she had nothing more to say.

Her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, was across the street at his own studio. With a group of kiddies he was leaping over a hurdle. He remarked that he knew nothing about any divorce case. Nor did he ever hear of such a town as Minden, Nev. He volunteered the information that he was happily married and would continue to remain happy. Then he made another leap over the hurdle and disappeared around the corner of a building.

UNIONS USING THUG TACTICS.

BLOCKS SABOTAGE PLOT.

Chickering today said he was there to "get the names and addresses of nonunion men employed and to try to persuade them to quit." He said he had been a member of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, but was not at the present time. Captain of Detectives Matheson declared his belief that the arrest of the two had "frustrated a campaign of sabotage."

The detectives declare that Nickerson and Chickering went to Steele's house at 4230 Twentieth street last night to urge speed in the job he claims to have pretended to have undertaken. The detectives say that concealed in a dining-room of the Steele home they overheard Nickerson urge Steele to hurry with the alleged work of destruction. They state also that they heard Chickering tell Steele that he would be paid $200 if he placed dynamite in the boilers of the new Federal Reserve Building. The arrests followed.

The men responsible for the crippling of the steamer Creole State will be brought to San Francisco and prosecuted in the Federal courts on a charge of sabotage, according to William Kincaid, manager of operations for the United States Shipping Board. These men are being held in prison at Manila, according to a cablegram which Kincaid received this morning. The message contains a full report of the damage done to the steamer, which is the property of the United States Shipping Board, but is being operated by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company under charter. The message said:

"The Creole State arrived at Manila Monday morning, June 20. All auxiliary pumps and both forced-draft fans were out of commission. Both generators were burned out, both main engine crankpin bearings burned out during the voyage. Repairs are being rushed; expect to sail June 27. At sea June 10, Oiler Joseph Wing, found with emery powder in his possession, was put in irons and imprisoned here on arrival. He has confessed, implicating three others. A thorough investigation is in progress. Those guilty will be returned to San Francisco for trial."

Kincaid says that the crime of sabotage against government property will call for a severe penalty.

BOGUS BOND PLOT NIPPED.

charge disguised himself as a Franciscan monk in search of alms and finally discovered Resentini, the painter, drinking with boon friends.

The lieutenant called on him in the name of the law, to accompany him to the police station. When he reached there he confessed he knew something about the counterfeiting, but that another painter could enlighten the police further. This friend proved to be Carlo Pezzala, who had turned his studio into an up-to-date typographical office, with noiseless machines and many bronze and zinc plates. This friend told the lieutenant that the bonds were first photographed by one man and then taken to Della Vecchia, who engraved the plates, while the printing was done in his studio.

The seals, the printing press, paper and plates having been found, the next task was to find the photographer and the heads of the gang. In an effort to satisfy the police the painters decided to assist them in getting onto the track of all the others involved. They accompanied the police to the photographer, and by no sign or word did they betray the fact that the police were with them. Thinking that the visitors were friends and interested in the counterfeiting scheme, the photographer proudly showed his modern apparatus, his plates, the $10,000 bond, and when he had finished, the police arrested him.

BONDS ARE FOUND.

Though they had found the seals and machines they had not yet obtained possession of the $1,400,000 worth of counterfeit bonds. Without these their work was almost useless. Pressed for the name of other accomplices, the painters mentioned Celeste Peliaghi, a polisher of bricks; Cesare Galli, owner of a silk factory, and his partner, Carlo Meschia. The first visit was to Celeste, who was surprised to see the police. The house was searched thoroughly and the bonds found in a specially prepared niche. There was found the $1,400,000 worth of beautifully engraved bonds, each one of the value of $10,000.

LEADER ARRESTED.

The last man to be arrested was the leader and originator of the plot, Cesare Galli, who now owns a silk factory worth, in the material contained there alone, $400,000. When arrested Galli made a full confession. He said that for many years he had been working hard to regain the self-respect lost when he counterfeited government bonds some years ago. He had strived to rehabilitate himself, but was continually pursued by a longing for great wealth. Last year he thought out a great scheme which consisted in buying realty bonds, counterfeiting them and selling the counterfeits or using them for borrowing money.

Irish Murders are Approved by De Valera.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DUBLIN, June 25.—After Eamonn de Valera, Irish Republican leader, had been arrested Wednesday night and brought to the Portobello barracks here, in which is quartered the regimental mess of the Worcertershire Regiment, whose youngest subaltern was shot in the Dublin Mountains a week ago, Gen. Boyd, commanding the Dublin district, visited De Valera and endeavored to induce him to disapprove such acts as the shooting of the subaltern.

Reports of the interview allege De Valera declared he would repudiate nothing and nobody, but notwithstanding this attitude he was released.

Today De Valera was seen walking in the streets of Dublin.

HEARTY WELCOME TO JAP PRINCE PLEASES.

NIPPONESE PRESS IMPRESSED; BELIEVE ENGLISH VISITS TO HAVE GOOD EFFECT.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, June 25.—The hearty welcome given Crown Prince Hirohito in England and France was widely commented on by the Japanese press and has made a profound impression on the people, who are convinced that the European tour is a splendid education for the future ruler. Newspapers also believe that the visit to England will have a favorable effect on the renewing of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Discussing the alliance, the Yomiuri Shimbun thinks English opinion wants renewal, but only in such form as will cause no suspicions by the United States. The Yomiuri thinks that conditions are such that the Anglo-Japanese alliance can only continue in existence so far as it is not contrary to the inclinations of the United States. It suggests that the regions in which the peace is to be maintained by the Allies should include the Pacific, in addition to the Far East and India, so that it may be indirectly made clear that Japan has no ambition to dispute the mastery of the Pacific and no territorial design on the Philippines and other American possessions.

The Yomiuri argues that the clause about the common conduct of war in a certain emergency should also be struck out.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR FARMERS.

Every Section is Invited to Inquiry Meeting.

Will Have Chance to Tell Their Troubles.

Conditions Are Admitted to be Alarming.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Every section of the United States has been asked by C. S. Barrett, chairman of the National Board of Farm Organizations, and president of the National Farmers' Union, to send representatives to Washington to attend the hearings before the Joint Congressional Commission of Agricultural Inquiry, which open here July 11. Every farming interest will be represented.

IMPORTANT MATTERS.

Mr. Barrett, in his call, says that other matters of the utmost importance to agriculture will be taken up at the meeting. He intimates that the farmers will protest against insidious attempts to destroy the usefulness of certain governmental organizations, which are serving well the farming interests.

In granting the hearing the commission recognized the fact that agriculture was entitled to the first consideration. Action was taken at the request of the national board of farm organizations and affiliated bodies. In his statement, Mr. Barrett says:

"Hearings by the Joint Congressional Committee of Agricultural Inquiry will open at 10 o'clock Monday morning, July 11.

"It is imperative that you report at 1731 Eye street, headquarters of the National Board of Farm Organizations, not later than 9 o'clock on the same morning.

TELL YOUR STORY.

"Come prepared to tell your story briefly, but fully, omitting no important detail. I need not tell you we must avoid speechmaking or taking up the time of the commission with irrelevant matters.

"The commission will hear facts, but will not be interested in theoretical discussions. It will hear constructive suggestions, but will not be interested in personal hobbies. It will hear testimony, but will not be interested in essays."

Here are other and very important matters about the National Farmers' Union and affiliated bodies to be discussed. Some of these demand immediate attention.

CONDITION ALARMING.

It is no secret that the condition of the country is alarming and that certain influences are at work to destroy the usefulness of such governmental organization as may be depended upon to do effective service in the interests of agriculture.

These matters will be considered, and in considering them you will have the support of other powerful farm organizations. Your mission here will be a duty alone, each immensely important.

On what is done here may depend the successful issue of tremendous problems.

It is very necessary that you know your subject well before you appear before the commission.

Gather all facts concerning farm conditions, transportation facilities, efforts by huge selling agencies to embarrass co-operative organizations by refusing to trade with them and all other matters which may have a bearing on the question, "What are the causes for the present condition of agriculture?"

ASSEMBLE PROBLEMS.

Get together in groups, discuss among yourselves the problems peculiar to your respective communities, mobilize your information and select your spokesman or spokesmen. Be sure that the man who speaks for you enjoys the confidence of his State or community and is fully qualified to give evidence on the matters that he will briefly discuss before the commission.

Call to the attention hearings before Agricultural Inquiry Commission.

Avoid extravagant statements. The facts are sufficient. They will need no dressing up or garnishing. The stories of agriculture reaching us from every section of the country indicate that conditions are going from bad to worse. Be in a position to be specific on this matter and picture conditions just as they are.

The cotton men of the South should at once proceed to gather information. There is abundance of material, but it should be collected and dissected, boiled down and prepared for submission to the commission.

SHOULD TELL WHY.

Potato men of New England, who are now using potatoes for fertilizer should be in a position to tell why this is happening and how they are faced with ruin because of an economic condition which makes an accepted human necessity of little or no value to themselves while it is necessary for the man in the city who wants potatoes to pay big prices.

The fruit growers of California, the citrus fruit men of Florida, the corn and wheat men from the sections which produce these commodities and all leading farmers from everywhere, should be here.

WILL GET TRUTH.

From their lips the commission will get the truth. It will be hardly necessary under such circumstances to go into canned and musty records except, of course, where such corroborate the difficulties which now exist. The living, breathing, pulsating evidence will be laid before that distinguished body.

It ought not be difficult for the farmers who give testimony to name the persons and institutions who have contributed to their undoing and also have caused more than 5,000,000 men to lose their employment.

It ought to be comparatively easy to name the time when they had been grossly discriminated against by financial and transportation agencies and also to give the names of these agencies.

Come prepared to tell these things. The country wants facts. The country wants to know who is guilty of profiteering and who or what agency deliberately planned a system of deflation which cost agriculture approximately $7,000,000,000 and brought want and bankruptcy to millions of our people not directly engaged in agriculture

MIDDLE WEST NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

INDIANAPOLIS, June 25.—Approximately 100 Indiana manufacturers indicated their willingness to exhibit their products in the proposed Made-in-Indianapolis industrial exposition, the week of October 10.

Mrs. Ernest R. Biddle and daughter Maxine of Cincinnati, formerly of Indianapolis, are here for a few weeks, visiting with Mrs. Biddle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Merriman, Sugar Grove avenue.

Mrs. Morris Lichtenstetter and children and Miss Stella Michelson of Chattanooga, Tenn., are visiting Mrs. Milton Horn, North Illinois street, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin.

A possibility that the old library building, housing the headquarters of the Indianapolis school city, at Ohio and Meridian streets, may be sold, was indicated during a special session of the Board of School Commissioners.

ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Severe damage in the northwestern part of the city and in sections of Illinois directly across the river from North St. Louis was reported as a result of the rain and electrical storm which swept over Missouri and Illinois Thursday. Electrical disturbances in the atmosphere pitched the extreme western part of the city and portions of St. Louis county into darkness.

Mrs. Kenneth F. Burns of Washington Boulevard, with her family, have gone to Hyannisport, Mass., for the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. E. R. Kroeger and Miss Beatrice Kroeger have gone to Harbor Beach, Mich., for the summer. Miss Eleanor Kroeger will leave next week.

Mrs. Mary E. Dillen, Marcus street, and Mrs. P. M. Igoe, Northland street, have left for California.

Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk has announced that he had requested the police department to call the attention of automobile owners to the fact that many private driveways for garage purposes did not comply with the city's ordinances, and that prosecutions would be started against all persons who had evaded the law by laying steel aprons over the curb lines.

ST. PAUL.

ST. PAUL, June 25.—The provision of 1921 good roads legislation, which permits reimbursement of municipalities for money paid out for permanently improving the highways described in the Babcock good roads amendment, is declared to be unconstitutional by the assistant Attorney-General.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Irvine of Summit avenue, have moved to Manitou Island, where they have taken the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Skinner for the season.

Preliminary orders for the paving of Ivy street from Arcade street to Orange street, and Duluth avenue, from Orange street to Maryland street, have been approved by the City Council.

Mrs. Addie Downing and little daughter, Evelyn, of Winnipeg, are the guests of Mrs. Downing's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Konantz of Goodrich avenue.

KANSAS CITY.

KANSAS CITY, June 25.—Secretary of State Becker has completed the count of referendum signatures on Gov. Hyde's consolidation agricultural law, the budget law and the workmen's compensation measures. He found the signatures enough to submit each referendum in November, 1922.

Big reductions in State taxes are provided for in bills with amendments approved by the Senate Committee on Ways and Means. Several of the bills were prepared by the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. J. B. Sampson and Miss Edith Sampson will leave July 1 for New York. They will sail July 6 for Paris to visit Mrs. Sampson's son, Maj. C. L. Sampson.

Mrs. Anna Lewis of Oklahoma City, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Spellman, left last night for California.

Mrs. B. F. Deatherage and Mrs. Sallie Deatherage Morrison left today for California.

DES MOINES.

DES MOINES, June 25.—Iowa Farm Bureau Federation officials deny the statement sent out from Chicago to the effect that the Iowa organization would join with eight other States in the formation of a gigantic purchasing pool to buy coal direct from the mines.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes and son, Clark, accompanied by Mrs. Barnes's mother, Mrs. Nichols, will leave next Tuesday for a six-weeks' stay in Syracuse, N. Y.

Arrangements are being made to care for 10,000 persons in Des Moines during the National Educational Association convention, which starts its general sessions here on July 4.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. P. McCormick are spending two weeks at Lake Okobiji, where they have rented the John Wallace cottage.

Mrs. A. A. Sumner, a resident of Des Moines for fifty years, died Thursday at her home, 1919 East Grand avenue, at the age of 70.

OMAHA.

OMAHA.—June 25.—As a part of its work to encourage the growing of strains of small grains the State College of Agriculture extension service is inspecting fields in forty counties.

Construction of temporary frame one-story buildings to house about 400 high school of commerce students will begin this week at Thirtieth and Cumming streets at a cost of $100,000.

Lion Bonding Company investors lose all the money they put into the firm, and policy-holders will probably receive less than 50 cents on the dollar, C. B. Young, State Insurance Commissioner, announced. Amos Thomas, local receiver, confirmed the statement.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Dinan left today for Spirit Lake, Iowa, where they will spend two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker C. Davis and daughter Betty have gone to Los Angeles, where they will reside.

MILWAUKEE.

MILWAUKEE, June 25.—A building permit was issued yesterday to the M. Tullgren & Sons Company for a thirty-apartment building at 6 Prospect avenue, to cost $150,000, after the building inspector had refused on Tuesday to issue a permit.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield H. Cameron and family are occupying their country home on the River Road, where they will spend the summer.

Misses Mary DeVine and Marian Kennedy have returned from California, where they spent the last eight months.

"We have nothing to conceal and will gladly welcome any investigation of our affairs," declared Walter H. Carlson, president of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, in reply to a petition presented to the City Council by Attorney E. H. Hibbard, asking an investigation into the organization's affairs.

DETROIT.

DETROIT, June 25.—A wave of incendiarism is spreading over Michigan, Col. R. C. Vandercook, director of public safety, told the administrative board today. He said reports from such fires are coming to the various posts of the State police with unprecedented frequency.

Investigation of the wreck on the interurban line near Chelsea Saturday night, in which five persons were killed and twenty injured, resulted in the dismissal of two D. U. R. employees.

Mr. and Mrs. Armin Bickel and daughters, Gretchen and Jean, are leaving Monday for Mackinac Island, where they have taken a house for the summer.

MINNEAPOLIS.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 25.—More than 500 dozen roses of 250 varieties are in bloom this week at the rose gardens at Lyndale Park. The display, according to J. A. Ridgeway, secretary of the park board, is one of the finest on exhibition for many seasons.

G. W. Morris and daughter of this city are visiting in Chicago.

Dr. G. E. Beery of Minneapolis is spending some time visiting in Washington.

The Misses Katherine H. Wood and Maude C. Wood, Fifth avenue, Southeast, sailed Saturday for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Antwerp. Mrs. Charles M. Starr, Arthur avenue, Southeast, was also a passenger on the Finland.

HOOVER OPPOSES EXPORT FINANCING.

FEARS UNITED STATES WILL FAIL IN ANY UNDERTAKING; FAVORS PRIVATE ACTION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover opposed the Norris bill authorizing the formation of a government $100,000,000 corporation for the financing and marketing of exports of farm products today before the Senate Committee on Agriculture. Mr. Hoover said that, while he sympathized with the purpose of the measure, he hesitated "to suggest or approve any plan that would involve the government further in any undertaking which might result in failure and which should be left to private business."

Mr. Hoover suggested, however, that it might be feasible to broaden the scope of the War Finance Corporation somewhat. Under the terms of the Norris bill the proposed agriculture export corporation not only would aid in financing exports, but would act as a selling agency, finding markets for farm products abroad.

The Secretary of Commerce cited the Shipping Board as "a terrible example of the failure of attempted government operation." He said that work of the nature proposed should be left to private business as much as possible.

One of the chief difficulties in making such a corporation a success, Mr. Hoover said, was the problem of finding men to take charge of it who had had sufficient business experience. He said that a man capable of earning $100,000 a year in private business should be in charge of such a corporation in order to insure its success.

"It is hard to induce a man capable of earning a salary of $100,000 a year to make the personal sacrifice necessary in order to direct the activities of government enterprise such as is proposed here," said Mr. Hoover. "It is easy to secure the services of a $5000-a-year man, but hard to get one of the other kind."

Mr. Hoover said that a man like Julius H. Barnes, former United States Wheat Director, would be needed in order to make the corporation a success.

EARLY REVISION OF TAXES IS PROMISED.

HOUSE COMMITTEE WILL GET BUSY IN JULY, SAYS CHAIRMAN FORDNEY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Giving assurance to business men that there will be no delay in enactment of a revised tax law at this session of Congress, Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, announced today that hearings would be begun by the committee soon after the middle of July.

"I want the country to know that we shall take up the revision of the revenue laws just as soon as the tariff bill is passed by the House," said Mr. Fordney. "I know people have been getting uneasy because we have been working so long on the tariff bill and have had little time lately for the revenue measure. However, we expect to introduce the tariff bill the middle of the coming week and to put it through the House by the end of the week.

"I believe that consideration of the tariff bill on the floor will not take more than ten days or two weeks. I hope it will be passed by the middle of July or in any event by July 20. Immediately after that the committee will begin hearings on tax legislation. An announcement will be made later as to the date. The committee will be glad to hear all who wish to present their views."

ALLEGES SOLDIERS MADE DRUG ADDICTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.) June 25. Charges that three Montana soldiers sent here for treatment for nervous disorders had been returned drug addicts, made by R. J. Molumby, commander of the Great Falls (Mont.) American Legion Post, were today denied by Dr. E. M. Bracken, medical officer in charge of the United States Public Health Hospital.

The charges, made last night by Mrs. Molumby in Great Falls, according to reports, were based on an investigation conducted by the speaker. The Great Falls Post, according to reports, were based on an investigation by the State Executive Committee.

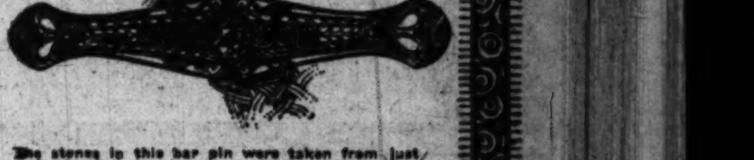
See How Daintily Your Old Jewelry Can Be Remodeled

Has it occurred to you that it is no longer fashionable to mount diamonds in yellow or green gold? It is a fact. The sway of platinum is undisputed — and rightly so, for no other metal so enhances the beauty of the gems.

For years Davidson's has made a specialty of remodeling old-fashioned jewelry into beautiful modern styles—and because we have specialized in this work, we have built up an enviable reputation for both quality and price.

Why not bring your jewels in and let us show you while you wait into just what attractive forms we can transform them. This designing service is free. Come in any time and welcome.



The stones in this bar pin were taken from just such old style jewels as are pictured below. The transformation was done in our own shops and the price was very reasonable. YOUR OLD JEWELS CAN BE MADE AS BEAUTIFUL.

President Valentine Guest of San Joaquin Supervisors.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 25.—Upon the invitation of the Supervisors' Association of the San Joaquin Valley, a conference was held with the representatives of the Automobile Club of Southern California and the California State Automobile Association at Bakersfield yesterday. The Automobile Club of Southern California was represented by its president, W. L. Valentine, and the northern body by Sec.-Mgr. Watkins. Supervisors from practically all of the counties in the central portion of the State were present.

The meeting was presided over by Supervisor Jorgensen of Fresno county, who outlined the purpose of the conference in a brief statement in which he expressed the hope that the two automobile clubs which had done so much for the furtherance of the good-roads movement in California, and the Supervisors of the various counties, might more closely cooperate in their endeavors, the result of which would be beneficial to the taxpayers of the State.

PLANS OUTLINED.

In responding to this expression on behalf of the Supervisors, Mr. Valentine gave the assurance that the policy of the Automobile Club of Southern California was clearly outlined as follows:

The completion, at as early a date as possible, of all the highways promised by the State of California.

The building of highways of such material, foundation, quality, width and surface as would provide the best highways in the Union.

The preservation of highways and bridges by the adequate regulation of traffic, including the limitation of loads.

Constant and efficient maintenance work to be done on all highways heretofore or hereafter constructed.

Mr. Valentine further stated that the program thus outlined had been submitted to the entire membership of the Automobile Club of Southern California and that the returns thus far received indorsed the club's policy as outlined by its board of directors by a vote aggregating 99 5-6 per cent.

MILLIONS SAVED.

On behalf of the northern club, Mr. Watkins called the attention of the Supervisors to the earnest efforts put forth by both of the automobile clubs which resulted in the saving to the counties of several millions of dollars annually in the payment of interest on State highway bonds, the campaign for which was almost entirely conducted by the two clubs and which was favorably acted upon at the election two years ago.

Supervisors Johnson of Kings county and Wagy of Kern county responded to the remarks of the Automobile Club representatives, calling attention to the differences which resulted from the recent session of the Legislature and expressed the hope that in the future the Supervisors might work hand in hand with the might work hand in hand with the result that beneficial and necessary highway legislation could be adopted.

ANOTHER ANGEL TO ROOSEVELT CLAIM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLINTON (Ind.) June 25.—Mrs. Emma R. Burkett of Hillsdale, Ind., admitted she had no claim on the Theodore Roosevelt estate while confined in the Jerseyville (Ill.) jail in 1919, according to a telephone call here purporting to come from P. M. Hamilton, prosecuting attorney there.

The telephonic communication held with a newspaperman, Mrs. Burkett, it was said, admitted she wrote a note and forged the name of S. M. Reddish of Jerseyville, to it. The face of the note was for $1800, and she said it was an old note and that several years' interest was due. She recently claimed $60,000 and interest from the Roosevelt estate, declaring the former President had indorsed a note for that amount.

MANSLAUGHTER CASE DROPPED BY STATE.

MRS. ORTHWEIN FREE; ZEIGLER'S FATHER SEEKS THE FATAL REVOLVER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—Mrs. Cora Orthwein's "affair" with Herbert P. Ziegler came to an end today, when Prosecutor Heth asked the court to order the original indictment against her, charging manslaughter, not to be pressed. This was done and the jury which acquitted Mrs. Orthwein on the murder charge then was dismissed.

Peter Ziegler, father of the slain man, furnished the final thrill for the courtroom fans today. Immediately after the manslaughter true bill was dropped, he appeared before the Judge and asked that the death revolver be given to him.

"It belonged to my son," the old man said, as he stood before the Judge with the bloodstained coat of Herbert Ziegler under his arm.

Judge Wilson did not hesitate in denying the request. "This weapon," he said, "has done enough mischief. It has already figured in a suicide and a homicide, the latter because a public official released it and presented it to your son. The court will order the weapon impounded and destroyed. It will figure in no more tragedies if I can prevent it."

The pistol was found beside the body of a man who had committed suicide, and Coroner Hoffman gave it to Ziegler, who, in turn, gave it to Mrs. Orthwein as protection against burglars.

Mrs. Orthwein announced she was going to the country for a long rest. She did not disclose her destination.

ALBANIA'S COMPLAINT CANNOT BE HANDLED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

GENEVA, June 25.—The Executive Council of the League of Nations decided today that it was not in a position to deal with the complaint of Albania against Greece and Jugo-Slavia, demanding those nations evacuate territory claimed to be Albanian.

It ruled that as the Council of Ambassadors had the question in hand the League Council was incompetent to deal with it.

Another Bank Reduces Rate.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY, June 25.—Announcement of a reduction from 12 to 8 per cent in the maximum progressive discount rate for the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank July 1, was made today by Governor J. Z. Miller, Jr. The basic discount rate of 6 per cent remains unchanged.

PAPER STRIKE VERSION GIVEN.

International Company Tells Its Side of Case.

Fairness of Trade Agreements Placed on Trial.

Concern Made Every Effort to Avoid Trouble.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—The International Paper Company, in a statement today giving its version of the strike in its mills, asserted that "the practical value and fairness of mutual bargaining through trade agreements in this industry, are to some extent on trial, and arguments in their favor are not strengthened by the experience of this strike.

The company explained that to avoid a strike it had addressed three communications to its employees. The third was said to have contained a concrete proposition for resumption of operations, with a small wage reduction that would bring the scale down to that in effect in many large mills.

"The necessity for arranging for mutual bargaining was urged for the sake of preventing strikes, by reconciling differences by mutual agreement before, instead of after, the stopping of the machines," continued the statement. "There was no disguise of the company's expressed desire to bargain with its employees collectively, and the company's willingness for its employees to be members of trade unions was plainly stated.

NO COUNTER-PROPOSAL.

"The company asserted that at a conference this month employees had protested against any reduction in the wage scale which the company said was two and a half times as great as in 1915—but had made no counter-proposal.

"The officers of the trades unions proposed that the company should consent to arbitration of the wage scale and start the mills under the old scale," added the statement. "Inasmuch as the plan involved three arbiters on each side and an umpire and as the arbitrated scale was not to go into effect until the week following the delivery of the arbitrament, the company was obliged to reject it."

STATEMENT BY UNION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) June 25.—"It is not the desire of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers or their president to raise questions that might add to the unenviable position of that company at this time," said J. T. Carey, president of the brotherhood, when shown the statement of the International Paper Company, other than to say that the International Paper Company was invited by the unions to participate in conferences before the expiration of wage agreements May 1.

"At cessation of work the trades union representatives understood the International Paper Company to be a party to the group plan of dealing with the employees through the unions and after cessation of work in the several mills the union representatives were advised that the International Company had withdrawn from the group plan. Negotiations were continued with the manufacturers, however, and it was agreed that all questions as to hours of labor and overtime rates should be withdrawn by the group of manufacturers. The International Paper Company was not a party to this suggestion.

"This subject matter is being voted on today and tomorrow by the unions and if approved the international officers and delegates will meet at the papermakers' headquarters, Albany, Tuesday, to select their representatives on a board of arbitration."

SOME NATION MUST POLICE THE PACIFIC.

AUSTRALIAN PRESS DEVOTING MUCH ATTENTION TO AMERICAN ASPECT.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SYDNEY, June 24.—The Australian press, in commenting upon Prime Minister Lloyd George's recent speech before Imperial Conference in London, is devoting much attention to the American aspect on the disarmament question.

The Sydney Herald says today:

"Somehow the Pacific must be policed—either by the British fleet or by some other fleet which agrees to co-operate with Great Britain in bearing the burden of the police work.

"The whole empire desires sincerely to study the desires of the United States, but how far is America ready to contract a foreign association, either through alliance, arbitration or treaty with the British government or with any other power.

"An Anglo-American-Japanese naval agreement is a grand idea, but it argues abandonment by America of that nation's hitherto carefully preserved aloofness."

REYNOLDS PLANS TO URGE NEW VIEWPOINT.

CHICAGO BANKER DENIES THAT HIS IDEAS ARE IN CONFLICT WITH HERBERT HOOVER'S.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—George M Reynolds, chairman of the Continental and Commercial banking group, whose plea for the husbanding of America's resources for its own use enlivened the dinner given in Washington last Thursday by President Harding to Chicago and western bankers, intends to urge his viewpoint of this country's needs in the near future. Mr. Reynolds returned to Chicago today and intimated he will elaborate the views he expressed at the Washington conference for presentation to the American people, and especially the West.

At the same time Mr. Reynolds declared that neither in his address in Washington nor in his general views is he in controversy with Secretary of Commerce Hoover and certain policies of the Harding administration. He also declared he had no thought of antagonizing New York and eastern bankers.

"Some of the press reports of my remarks in Washington suggest that I rather swung a bludgeon," Mr. Reynolds said with a grin. "It is implied that I engaged in a controversy with Secretary Hoover and administration officials. Now, seriously, that wasn't the case. Mr. Hoover and President Harding and myself have always been on friendly terms. In fact, I believe the general ideas of Mr. Hoover and myself run along pretty much the same lines. It isn't fair to him to suggest that I attacked his policies, for I didn't.

"Outside of the impression that there was or is any controversy, I hold strongly to the views I expressed in Washington. I believe this country must look largely to itself for a return to prosperity—if we rely on rehabilitating Europe to solve our own troubles we may have to wait longer for prosperity than any of us desire. Of course, we want as large and profitable foreign trade as we can obtain and we want to do what we can for the rest of the world, but in neither case do we want to gain or do these things at the expense of our own country's welfare."

GIGANTIC SUM PAID DISABLED VETERANS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The government has made to date a total disbursement of $266,486,891 in meeting compensation for overseas men disabled by reason of wounds, injuries or disease incurred in the World War, and death claims of dependents, according to an announcement today by Director C. R. Forbes, of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

Disbursements for disability have aggregated $192,677,589.48, and death disbursements amount to $33,809,301.86. For May alone the total amount disbursed by the bureau for compensation purposes was $10,575,416, the monthly payments for disability compensation claims for that period amounting to $9,145,288, and the payments to the dependents of deceased soldiers amounting to $1,430,128. Between June 1, and June 15 the bureau mailed 221,612 checks to cover this disbursement to former service men.

Corn Enders

the old sort—and the new

Corns used to be treated by fakers. But science has found a better way to treat corns. And millions have adopted it.

The modern way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. A famous chemist perfected it. This great surgical dressing house prepares it.

It is folly to pare corns or to treat them in unscientific ways.

Blue-jay is applied by a touch. The corn pain ends instantly. Then the corn is gently loosened. In a little while it comes out.

Prove this tonight.

CRIMINAL GETS LONG SENTENCE.

Paris Court Makes Example of American Thug.

Plans to Check Outbreak of Crime Wave.

Yankee Gets Ten Years Solitary for Robbery.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, June 25.—Paris authorities decided to set a real example in punishment for crime on the part of foreigners in France when the case of Charles Russell, 24, of New Haven, Ct., came up before the Assize Court of the Department of the Seine here.

Russell staged an ordinary New York crime wave stunt in Paris and his fate of ten years in solitary confinement has been the subject of much comment in the Paris press as that which awaits any other foreigner who attempts to teach the French criminal element new modes in obtaining easy money.

In comparison with New York, even though misery among the poor exists here due to unprecedented prices, Paris is virtually crimeless. It is the boast of the French police that Paris criminals are always well in hand, and it is their intention to keep foreign elements in the same condition. It was not that Russell was an American that he received such terrible punishment for a common robbery with a blackjack. If he had been a Frenchman he would have suffered the same penalty, and perhaps worse. But heavy punishment is the reason that French criminals think twice before they use physical violence or resort to murder in robbery.

FELLS GIRL CLERK.

Some time ago Russell returned to France after being discharged from the American Navy. His war service had given him a knowledge of France. He took a room in a Paris hotel and, unable to find work, was eventually forced to leave. He pleaded that he had been eight days without food when he entered a small jewelry store at 356 Rue St. Honore with a piece of lead pipe concealed in a twisted newspaper. As many New York robbers have done for months he asked to see a ring. The clerk produced a tray of jewelry and Russell struck her down with his improvised blackjack. He then proceeded to loot the store and as he was about to leave the woman regained consciousness and screamed. He struck her again and again until she was quiet and ran from the door. A crowd had gathered, however, and he was caught.

SERVES AS EXAMPLE.

The crime left nothing to be desired in the matter of evidence. The French prosecutor pointed out that a foreigner living in France had transgressed French laws in a brutal way and that extenuating circumstances should not be considered.

Russell's crime is one of the first of its kind in Paris with which the French police and judicial authorities have had to deal without counsel from the American authorities. Its handling has served as an example for others, and with the publicity involved will doubtless allow Paris to live up to its comparatively crimeless reputation. In addition to spending ten years in solitary confinement the young American must bow to twenty more years' of police supervision if he remains in France.

While French and American universities are again beginning to exchange professors, matters of international cordiality might advance a step further and provide for an exchange of French and American criminal judges. The method of dealing with a typical New York crime in Paris might serve as a good precedent and bring good results.

HOUSE IN REVOLT OVER LEADERSHIP.

REPUBLICAN OUTLAW CAUCUS ASSAILS MONDELL—ELECT TEMPORARY OFFICERS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 24.—There were indications today that a crisis might be precipitated in the discontent in the House of Representatives over the majority leadership. Thirty-six Republican members of the House participated in an outlaw caucus held in the chamber of the House last night to consider the Tinkham legislation to enforce the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution giving votes to negroes. The conference was held in opposition to the wishes of Majority Leader Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, and despite his efforts to prevent it.

The outlaw conference elected temporary officers, excoriated Mr. Mondell and pledged itself to an organized campaign to force the Republican management of the House to on record one way or another in the matter of the Fourteenth Amendment.

That tendency toward insurgency against the party leadership was followed today by a virtual indorsement by seventy-five Republicans in the House who signed a petition for another party conference on the Fourteenth Amendment. Only fifty signatures were necessary to force the conference.

BROKER ON 'CHANGE SELLS NEW CLOTHES.

ACCEPTS BID OF $30 FOR NEW FLANNELS—MARCHES OFF IN GRASS MAT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 24.—One of the frolicksome young members of the New York Stock Exchange today appeared on the floor attired in a brand new suit of white flannels.

A crowd of brokers immediately started bidding on the clothes. One broker offered $10 and the bids increased to $30.

Then the member who wore the new flannels announced that he would accept the bid price, called on his fellow-members in the ring to witness that a transaction had been made and immediately divested himself of the garments. In a convenient grass rug he made his way to the dressing-room.

"A profit's a profit," he mused, "and that's certainly what I came to business for on a hot day like this."

NEWS AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 23.—Political and financial interests at the Capitol are anxiously awaiting the decision of Jonathan S. Dodge, newly appointed bank superintendent, on the application of the Bank of Italy for a charter to establish a branch bank in Sacramento.

The reason for this unusual interest is that upon Dodge's decision depends whether State Controller Chambers will resign. If the charter is granted Chambers will quit the office of Controller to become head of the branch institution here, but if the charter is refused he will remain in office.

And if he remains in office Chambers plans on running for Governor in 1922 on a platform of strict economy in State government. Consequently the politicians are wondering whether Dodge's decision will not put Chambers in the gubernatorial race next year or remove him as a possibility.

Dodge was freely mentioned in this part of the State as a possible candidate for Governor at the next election, but his appointment to the office of bank superintendent, which carries a like salary, removed him from the list of likely candidates.

Anticipating that the charter will be granted and Chambers will resign, the names of persons would like to succeed him as Controller already have been mentioned to the Governor's political advisers.

Among those mentioned are W. O. Welch, Tax Collector of Los Angeles; W. C. Neumiller, Treasurer of San Joaquin county, and Ed Kay, Assessor of Sacramento county.

Details of the Governor's governmental reorganization scheme passed by the Legislature are being worked out by the State Board of Control in preparation for putting it into effect next month.

Where the saving is to be made through the reorganization plan is puzzling many officials, as members of the administration forces declare it is not likely that many subordinates will be discharged when the change is made.

It is known, however, that W. S. Conger, formerly owner of a newspaper at San Bernardino, will lose his position as superintendent of Capitol Building and grounds. Under reorganization his department is made a part of the division of purchases and custody of the Finance Department and will be supervised by one of the members of the State Board of Control.

Accidental deaths from drowning have steadily decreased in California during the past three years, according to L. E. Ross, director of the bureau of vital statistics of the State Board of Health.

The record of the bureau shows that in 1918 331 persons lost their lives by drowning, while in 1920 the total had decreased to 253 deaths. Ross says the decline is due to more life guards at all the principal beaches and the fact that more people are learning how to swim.

Of the total number of persons drowned in the three years, 98 per cent were males. Proportionately there were more drowning deaths among the Japanese than any other race.

A conference between officials of the State Department of Weights and Measures and members of the Japanese Berry Growers' Association will be held in San Francisco in the near future to bring about closer observance of the law relating to the weight of berries sold in baskets.

According to Charles Hayden, Deputy Superintendent of Weights and Measures, 95 per cent of the violations this season have been committed by Japanese, and the largest proportion, he says, were committed by those operating in the Imperial Valley.

Dozens of ex-service men in all parts of the State are the Governor's office for ment as members of the Welfare Board, created by the Legislature to carry into soldier welfare largest list of applicants ing in view of the fact carry no salary.

FARMERS PRESS FOR NEW LAWS.

Congress Feeling Power of Agrarian Movement.

Extensive Program Outlined by Agriculturists.

Packer Regulation Only One of Many Measures.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The agrarian section in Congress, which is making the power of the farmers felt in national affairs as seldom before, has mapped out an extensive program of proposed legislation and is pressing for immediate action thereon.

The packer regulation bill, passed by both houses and soon to be sent to the President, is to be followed by the bill prohibitively taxing future trading on grain exchanges. This bill has been passed by the House and is now pending in the Senate.

The next on the program in the order of importance is the Capper bill authorizing associations of agricultural producers.

MEASURE EXPLAINED.

Explaining this measure, Senator Capper said today:

"Our system of marketing is the costliest and most inefficient in the world, for the reason that farmers are compelled to pay daily tribute to a group of men who render no service to either the producer or consumer. In a broad way this bill seeks to eliminate the speculative middleman and the unnecessary profit taker. Both political parties indorsed this measure in their national platforms, and all the farm organizations have memorialized Congress to pass it promptly. The bill also has the approval of Secretary Wallace."

Another measure on the program is the Capper "truth in fabric" bill, which provides for compulsory stamping of cloth and the identification of shoddy.

"Congress should act quickly on this measure," said Senator Capper. "We can do nothing in Washington that will be of such great assistance in saving the sheep and wool industry from extinction. Furthermore, Congress should protect the public from shoddy goods sold by deceit and misrepresentation. Ninety million pounds of shoddy are used annually in the manufacture of cloth, most of which is sold as pure wool to the public at profiteering prices."

COLD STORAGE BILL.

The bloc is also backing the cold storage bill to make available for use of the government a record of foodstuffs held in cold storage and the location of such cold storage warehouses, to require warehouses in which foodstuffs are held to be kept in a sanitary condition, and the foodstuffs so marked as to determine readily the ownership of and date when such foodstuffs were placed in storage. Senator Capper said:

"The limit of time for which food can be held in storage—approximately twelve months—is the period of a crop year, or the time allowed by nature for producing another harvest, and the advantage to both the producer and consumer in forcing on the market the foods produced each year will soon result in a constant flow through the channels of trade and eliminate price fluctuation which so often occurs after the producer disposes of his products to the middleman and he places them in cold storage to be released only when prices advance to the point fixed by him."

Senator Kenyon of Iowa has contributed to the program a bill providing for truthful label of paints, oils, turpentines and varnishes. The bill provides that there shall be shown the percentage of the various ingredients entering into the compositions.

FAVORABLE CREDITS.

Still another project is legislation to enable farmers to obtain credit on more favorable terms. The Kenyon rural credit and multiple insurance bill proposes to create two Federal corporations, a rural credit society and multiple insurance league. The rural credit society is based on the theory of a central bank with a branch for each State. Capital of $23,000,000 is to be furnished by the government without interest with a sinking fund. The capital of the branches, $2,400,000, is to be furnished by such of the large life insurance companies as accept the Federal charter. These branch banks guarantee against the loss of the government's investment.

"The purpose of the rural credit society is to standardize paper for a financial production in the open market and thus give the farmer access to the financial and industrial centers for the sale of such paper, whereas he is today restricted to the local deposit banks," said Senator Kenyon. "This would not only materially reduce the interest rate which the farmer would have to pay, but it would provide an organization or machinery for the capitalization of the actual tiller of the soil who possesses honesty, frugality, energy and farming experience.

"The purposes of the multiple insurance league are twofold, viz.: First, to furnish sound and economic insurance of every kind as security for the poor man who has accumulated no property to pledge for credit for agricultural production, and second, to act as a useful agency in the standardization of such farm credit paper."

MENNONITES SUED FOR HALF MILLION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WINNIPEG (Man.) June 25.—Suit for $500,000 against the Mennonites who were in negotiations for a block of land in the State of Mississippi will begin Monday in the Manitoba courts. Solicitors representing the Mississippi land holders notified the leaders of the Mennonites that the sum must be paid immediately. The basis of the suit is sums alleged to be due and owing for tracts of lands which the Mennonites, Mississippi land owners allege, contracted to purchase and for which they have not paid.

The Mennonites declare they will not pay and their defense will be that they merely took an option on the land and did not exercise it, permitting the option to lapse at the end of its stated period.

HUTCHISON IS OPEN CHAMPION.

Defeats Wethered in British Golf Play-off.

Takes Early Lead and Holds It All the Way.

Englishman Has a Tough Time With His Putts.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ST. ANDREWS, June 25.—Jock Hutchison of Chicago won the British open golf championship here today, defeating Roger Wethered, the Oxford amateur, in the play-off of their tie.

Hutchison won by nine strokes, covering the thirty-six holes in 150 to Wethered's 159.

At the close of the match Wethered smilingly advanced and congratulated Hutchison, who was raised shoulder-high and presented with the championship cup amid cheers.

MISSED PUTTS.

Missed putts by Wethered and wonderfully accurate pitches by Hutchison is briefly the story of the American's victory. Many times Hutchison played mashie shots up to 100 yards, which flew at a great pace toward the flag, to drop like a stone within a yard or two of the hole.

When Hutchison had victory safely in his grasp his game appeared to slacken.

Hutchison, who was three strokes ahead at the close of the first round of eighteen holes, which he made in 74 to Wethered's 77, led by nine strokes when nine holes of the second round had been played. Hutchison made these nine holes in 33, while the Oxford player took 39.

THE START.

The first hole was played in steady fashion and halved in fours. They divided the second in fives. Hutchison got a lead of two strokes at the third, where he holed out for a three.

Wethered, however, drew level at the fourth where Hutchison sliced his second over onto the new course and was bunkered on his third.

The players were all even at the fifth and sixth holes. Hutchison took the lead at the seventh, holing a ten-yard putt for a three to Wethered's four. The Chicagoan gained another stroke at the eighth and still another at the ninth.

AT THE TENTH.

Hutchison got another stroke ahead at the tenth where he laid a beautiful pitch shot a yard from the pin and was down in three to Wethered's four. Both players took fours at the eleventh and twelfth.

The Oxford amateur got a stroke back at the thirteenth, four to five, Hutchison pulling his second and being rather strong with his third. Wethered gained another stroke at the fourteenth, where the Chicagoan pulled his drive and landed badly in a hollow, taking five to Wethered's four.

The fifteenth hole was halved in four. Wethered recovered a stroke at the sixteenth, where Hutchison missed a yard putt, but dropped back at the seventeenth. At the eighteenth Wethered was put off his game by a dog chasing across the green and Hutchison ended the first round three strokes ahead of his opponent.

SECOND ROUND.

The first hole of the second round was shared in four. At the second hole Hutchison's drive was bunkered and he took three to the green. Wethered's short putt, however, hit back of the hole and both took a five. At the third Wethered missed a yard putt and fours were registered. At the fourth Wethered's second shot bunkered to the left and his third went to the right. He again missed the hole from a yard and had a six.

At the fifth hole Hutchison holed a thirty-yard putt for a three. At the sixth Hutchison placed a beautiful approach four yards from the pin and got another three. Wethered missed a two-foot putt at the seventh.

Wethered's putt stopped on the lip of the cup at the eighth. Both took threes. Wethered was just on the edge of the green at the ninth and Hutchison in the rough. The Oxonian failed to get a two while Hutchison holed a three-yard putt for a three.

They halved the tenth in four. At the short eleventh Hutchison was trapped to the left and took two to recover, registering a five to the Oxonian's four.

At the twelfth Wethered pulled his drive. Then he missed a two-foot putt and had to take a seven. Hutchison appeared to play this hole carelessly. He likewise missed a two-foot putt, taking five. On the thirteenth both were on the green in two and down in four.

On the long fourteenth the Englishman was bunkered and took seven. They shared the fifteenth in four.

On the sixteenth Hutchison missed a two-yard putt for a four, taking five to Wethered's four. On the next hole Hutchison was bunkered and took six, while Wethered had five. Wethered just missed a four-yard putt on the eighteenth for a three, while Hutchison took three putts and had five.

AMERICAN POLO TEAM WINNER.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HURLINGHAM POLO FIELD (London) June 25.—The American polo team defeated the Hurlingham four in an exhibition game here today by thirteen goals to five. The game took the place of the third international polo match which was made unnecessary by the American team winning the international polo cup in two straight games.

NORTHERNERS IN RARE FORM.

Multnomah Defeats Easterners by Seven Points.

Clubs See-Saw Back and Forth in Track Meet.

Contests Snappy, but No Records Were Broken.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 25.—Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland today won a dual track meet here from New York Athletic Club of New York, 59 points to 52. The New Yorkers will leave tonight for Pasadena, Cal., where they are to participate in the coming A.A.U. national met.

Donald of the New York Amateur Athletic Club, made a new western record in the 56-pound weights at Multnomah Field this afternoon in the dual meet between the easterners and the local athletes, setting a mark of 38ft. 7in. The former record was 36ft.

SEE-SAWED.

The two club squads see-sawed back and forth in the scoring with Multnomah jumping into the lead toward the middle of the meet when she made a clean sweep in the broad jump and cleaned up two firsts in discus and pole vault.

While no records have gone, the meet moved in snapy time and good speed and distance was made in all events.

Outstanding points winners for New York were Farrell, Wefers and McDonald, while Pope, Snook, Spearow and Jenne did great work for Multnomah. About 1500 people witnessed the meet.

The summaries follow:

100-yard dash—Eddie Farrell, New York, first; Max Snook, Multnomah, second; Bernie Wefers, Jr., New York, third. Time 10s.

880-yard run—A. B. Helffrick, New York, first; Lee Simms, Multnomah, second; Lincoln Adams, New York, third. Time 1m. 57 2-5s.

120-yard hurdles—Willard Wells, Multnomah, first; H. H. Meyer, New York, second; M. Webster, Multnomah, third. Time 16s.

Sixteen-pound shot put—Pat McDonald, New York, first; Gus Pope, Multnomah, second; Gap Powell, Multnomah, third. Distance 47ft. 10¾in.

440-yard dash—H. W. Ray, New York, first; M. Hollinger, Multnomah, second; Jack Sellers, New York, third. Time 50 2-5s.

Discus—Gus Pope, Multnomah, first; Arthur Tuck, Multnomah, second; Pat McDonald, New York, third. Distance 142ft. 2in.

Broad jump—Max Snook, Multnomah, first; Alvin Hall, Multnomah, second; Eldon Jenne, Multnomah, third. Distance 21ft.

Pole vault—Ralph Spearow and Eldon Jenne, Multnomah, tied for first; E. Frost, New York, third. Height 12ft. 4in.

220-yard dash—Eddie Farrell, New York, first; Bernie Wefers, Jr., New York, second; Al Grilley, Multnomah, third. Time 21 4-5s.

Five-mile run—Mose Payne, Multnomah, first; Harry Fleeter, Multnomah, second. Time 27m. 50s.

Special event: no New York entries and not counted in general score.

56-pound weight—Pat McDonald, New York, first; Powell, Multnomah, second; Walker, Multnomah, third. Distance 38ft. 7in. New western record. Former distance 36ft.

Special event not counted in total score:

220-yard low hurdles—Willard Wells, Multnomah, first; Vic Hurley, Multnomah, second; H. H. Meyer, New York, third. Time 25 3-5s.

One-mile run—Charles Irish, New York, first; Glen Walkley, Multnomah, second; R. Keating, Multnomah, third. Time 4m. 31 2-5s.

Javelin—Art Tuck, Multnomah, first; Eldon Jenne, Multnomah, second; Gus Pope, third. Distance 185ft. 6in. New Pacific Coast record. Not counted in final score.

One-mile relay—New York, first. Time 3m. 28s. New York team, Wefers, Sellers, Helffrich, Ray; Multnomah, Carlberg, Douglas, Sims, Hollinger.

High jump—R. W. Landon, New York, first; M. Webster, Multnomah, second; Ralph Spearow, Multnomah, third. Height 6ft. 3½.

TOMMY MILTON DOES SOME FAST STUNTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) June 25.—Tommy Milton of St. Paul, world's straightaway and speedway racing champion, today shattered several automobile dirt-track records at a speed program arranged in his honor by the Elks today. He drove a mile in 47 1-5s., shattering the previous best record by a fifth of a second; five miles in 3:38 4-5s; ten miles in 7:56 1-5s., and fifteen miles in 11:51 2-5s. All these figures are said to eclipse all previous marks.

GOLFER VON ELM WINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) June 25.—George Von Elm, Salt Lake City Golfer and Utah amateur champion, today won the Northwest amateur golf championship by defeating H. Chandler Egan of the Waverly Club, Portland, by 1 up.

PROUGH BLANKS VERNON TIGERS.

Slaps Them Down Without a Hint of a Run.

Locals Never Even Land on Second Base.

Bill Essick Has Faeth, but It Doesn't Help.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Only thing lacking to make it a perfect day, was four Vernon runs.

Fine assemblage of manhood and beauts, nice weather and a snappy pastime consuming less than an hour and a half. But there was no Vernon score to leaven the doings.

Before the prodigious pitching of Bill Prough, the tripe-eating Tigers were entirely remiss in their hitting, and the spotless Solons copped, 3 to 0.

READJUSTED.

Thus the league became readjusted, Sacramento easing back into second place, Los Angeles regaining the first division, and Vernon dropping one point behind. However, six of the teams are so closely bunched that these mutations are not much more important than the fluctuations of a dumb waiter.

Bill Essick had Faeth, but it wasn't quite strong enough. True Tony twirled well enough to win eight out of ten games, but the hired hands were feeble in front of Prough's well-nigh perfect performance. Getting a bingle off Bill was in the nature of a miracle, and performed only by Alcock, Edington and Hyatt.

In the process of losing a ball game and a piece of skin, the Tigers failed to reach second base. The keystone sack was as much of a mystery to them as the appendix was to our forefathers, and they didn't even put in a "Doc" Cook claim to it. They seemed to think that second base hadn't yet been thrown open to settlement. Usually, they squat all over this base in the course of an afternoon.

NOT A CHANCE.

However, the incident will be closed with the remark that when Prough is right and feeling his rolled oats, no team is going to win any batting diplomas.

Everything went well with the umps, and nobody was told that he could consider himself publicly reprimanded. The jassack incident appears to be over, with jassack brandy at a very low ebb. Everybody will now lay off the jassacking, and cultivate bonded relations with all foreign distillers.

The fourth witnessed the retirement of J. Carlisle Smith, due to an accident at third base, in which Fred Mollwitz was the skinner and Mr. Smith the skinee. C. Carlisle's hand was chewed by one of Mollwitz's bloodhounds, sliding into the base. For a time it looked like a fight to the death between the Smith and Mollwitz hounds, but J. Carlisle lost so much blood through his finger that his dogs became weak and anaemic. Anyway, Fred's hounds are so much larger, being No. 12s, and outweighing J. Carlisle's two pounds to the dog.

The mound became such a Miracle Hill under the healing feet of Prough that P. Samson Schneider was shorn of his strength while batting for Faeth in the eighth. Bob McGraw twirled the formal ninth round, when Sheehan walked and stole second, and picked himself up in time to score when Truck Hannah blew out a cylinder head. Truck squirted a tall, vicious throw off the bare hand of Charley Gorman, and both High and Chadbourne had to shag the ball.

Prough, not content with pitching the Tigers pale, drove in two runs. In the third he planted a single behind Orr's double. Ryan walked in the fifth, taking third on Orr's single. He was held there while Cook forced Orr, but scored on Prough's deep fly to High, who didn't waste elbow juice in a useless plate peg.

Ham Hyatt dug up a play on Charley Pick, which flourished in the Revolutionary days, and in so doing deprived the Sacs of a run. Charley walked, and Faeth threw to catch him off first. Pick got back to the base, but stepped off when Hyatt made a bluff to return the ball to the pitcher, and Ham jabbed the ball in his ribs. Mr. Pick was as embarrassed as a debutante who had stepped on a banana peel. Right after this, Mollwitz busted a double, and stepped on Smith's hand trying to make it a triple.

WERE INSPIRED.

In recapitulation, it seems the Senators were inspired and the Tigers lacked inspiration. The dog which inspired Vernon on Friday absented itself. This is an Airedale of the ostrich plume or Angora type. It is drab colored, and looks like an animated cluster of tripe which had been dragged through the rain into a dust storm. Let us hope that Bruno shows up today.

On the other hand, the laundry had been changed on the roof of the apartment-house overlooking the park.

All the didies had been reefed in, and a galaxy of snow-white shirts unfurled from the mast.

These clean shirts inspired in Bill Rodgers the noble thought of what soap will actually do, and from that moment the Senators were invincible.

With Kitty Brashear, Russ Hall, Carl Lewis and Charley Chech looking on it was like old home week. And then there was Paul Browning, who sold scorecards at the local yard when the hot dogs of today were mere pups. The days of veal are passed, and we have with us the sere and yellow sausage. Helen Wills in Hot Tilt Defeats Anna McCune.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, June 25.—William Johnston, former national singles champion, and present national doubles champion with C. J. Griffin, today went into the finals of the Pacific Coast championship tennis tournament, being held here by defeating Willis Davis, national clay-court champion, 6-2, 6-1 and 6-2. The match was the best played so far in the men's singles.

Johnston tomorrow will meet Roland Roberts, present Pacific Coast champion, who went into the finals today by defeating Ray Casey, the left-handed University of California star, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

In the men's doubles William Johnston and C. J. Griffin, national doubles champions, went into the finals by defeating C. LeCroix and C. Jensen of Alameda, 6-2 and 6-4.

Ray Greenberg and Frank Ragan of San Francisco also went into the men's doubles finals by defeating Spencer Brush of San Francisco and J. M. Evans of Oakland, 6-3, 6-3.

In the semifinals of the women's singles Helen Wills, Berkeley, went into the finals by defeating Anna McCune of Pacific Grove, 7-5, 6-1, in one of the best matches of the day.

Winifred Suhr of San Francisco defeated Miss E. Hillyard, 6-2, 6-4, and then went into the semifinals. Helen Baker then eliminated Miss

CARPENTIER WADES INTO HIS MATES.

Frenchman Lambasts His Sparring Partners for Five Rounds and is Full of Pep.

MANHASSET (N. Y.) June 25.—Taking his cue from the merciless sun, Georges Carpentier waded into two of his heaviest sparring partners and lambasted them for five rounds today. His smile was absent and he appeared to be working seriously.

Big Paul Journee, his broken nose and blacked eye, came out first. He worked alone for ten minutes while Georges punched the bag and jumped the rope. Georges vaulted into the ring and was sent immediately to work. The mask appeared to give Journee courage as he waded into the challenger.

PUNCHES BODY.

Georges contented himself with punching to the body. He hit Journee many times, but there was a noticeable checking of his blows. They were heavy enough, however, to start Journee puffing, and he rested while Chris Arnold, light heavyweight, worked.

Instructed by Manager Descamps to work fast and punch hard, Arnold did his best.

QUICK SHIFT.

But Carpentier's head bobbed so fast and his shift was so quick that the lad was unable to connect. After one round, Chris retired in favor of Journee, who, after attempting to find the challenger with his left, let Arnold come back again. The latter worked two more rounds, but was unable to land on Georges. When it was over Descamps patted Carpentier on the back and told him he was the next world's champion.

JACK WORKS AT HIS BEST IN THE SUN.

Dempsey Puts in Forty-five Minutes of Stiff Training Before Crowd.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) June 25.—After a twenty-four-hour lay-off to celebrate his twenty-sixth birthday, Jack Dempsey swung back into his training grind today, working forty-five minutes under a broiling sun and before foreign newspaper correspondents and 1500 other persons.

Dempsey perspired through ten rounds of actual work, although he only boxed six. He opened with a three-minute round of pulling the weights and then followed a round of shadow boxing. Eddie O'Hare, New York middleweight, stepped the first two rounds, but it was evident that the champion was pulling his punches.

FEINTS OFTEN.

Dempsey frequently feinted the fast-moving O'Hare into openings, but did not follow up his advantages except two or three times. In the second round, he drove a couple of heavy rights into O'Hare's body and crossed him twice with a one-two punch that shook the New Yorker. He also drove O'Hare into a corner just as the bell rang in the second and crossed him with a vicious right to the head.

Larry Williams, who faced Dempsey for the third and fourth rounds, boxed almost too cautiously to make the champion extend himself.

The titleholder boxed the last two rounds with Jack Renault. After cuffing the big Canadian heavyweight around he wrestled for a round with "Bull" Montana. He concluded with some calisthenics.

POLICE PUT CHECK ON BALL LOTTERY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 25.—Plans for the operation of a huge baseball lottery on the Pacific Coast and major league games, have been revealed, the police announced today, through the arrest of an unnamed person here and his alleged confession, giving details of the plan. Promoters of the scheme, officers said, admitted they had planned the lottery, but declared they had done no business. No arrests were made.

Further police investigation, it was said, led to the arrest last night of Louis Kush and R. S. Carver in connection with another alleged bookmaking scheme for the placing of bets on Pacific Coast League games.

MAY BAR FUTURE BOUTS IN MICHIGAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, June 25.—Gov. Groesbeck today directed Col. Roy C. Vandercook, State Director of Public Safety, to go to Benton Harbor several days before the lightweight championship battle between Benny Leonard and Sailor Freedman on July 4, and take charge of the situation. The action followed complaints to the Governor that boxing bouts had attracted an undesirable element into Michigan. It was understood here today that the Governor was considering the advisability of barring championship fights in Michigan in the future.

Maj. Kingscote is Winner Over Mavrogordato.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WIMBLEDON, June 25.—Maj. A. R. F. Kingscote of England defeated T. M. Mavrogordato, the British Davis cup tennis player, in the fourth round of the men's singles for the British open tennis championship here today in straight sets, 6-0, 10-8, 6-4.

Maj. Cecil Campbell of England defeated Andre Gobert, of France, in this round by 9-7, 1-6, 4-6, 4-2. The Frenchman retired in the last set, when the score was four games to two in favor of his opponent.

If there is time after the afternoon games, Miss Ryan, of California, coupled with Mlle. Lenglen, in the women's doubles, will play the winners of the doubles match in the previous round.

Zenzo Shimidzu, Japanese star, defeated Randolph Lycett of England in a hard-fought match that required sixty-four games. The score was 6-3, 9-11, 3-6, 6-2, 10-8.

The retirement of the French champion, Andre Gobert, was due to an injured ankle. Mlle. Lenglen of France and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California defeated Mrs. E. G. Parton and Miss D. Kemmis Betty, the English players, 6-0, 6-1.

senior 440-yard dash is going to know he has been in a real race.

The speckled Trojan stepped off 330 yards yesterday in 35s. flat, running with Purtell of U.S.C. and Shaw of Monrovia High School.

Purtell is a good furlong man, and his instructions from Cromwell were to run a 220 at his best gait—and beat Schiller. At the 220 finishing post, Schiller was ahead by some six yards, and lengthened this out to nine yards at the finish.

Schiller's record last year on the same track was 35 4-5s. for the 330. Yesterday's race just goes to show that "Spec" is improving live rare old wine. Cromwell is so optimistic over his charge's performance that he believes Schiller could just about equal the world's record if he made up his mind to do it.

There is one man here in the south the Athletic Club moguls would like to coax out of his lair to run in the quarter mile. Reference is made to Oxy Hendrixson of the University of California.

Hendrixson lives at Chino and is eligible to represent Southern California against the eastern runners in the approaching classic. He won the I.C.A.A.A.A. 440 in 49s. flat at Cambridge this year, and the field included the East's classiest runners.

For some reason or other Hendrixson refuses to run in the nationals. Dean Cromwell says Hendrixson told Delphey, the U.S.C. bread-jumper, who also lives at Chino, that he absolutely would not appear.

It would seem that out of loyalty to the south, Hendrixson would be glad to don the spangles in the national championships.

Bill Yount of Redlands yesterday showed that he is in great form to cop the high sticks in the juniors by dashing over the barriers in 15 2-5s., which, by the way, equals the national junior record. Before he started Bill said he had a sore back, but failed to run like a man with the lumbago.

For a small man Yount keeps his back straighter going over the sticks than most of the bean-pole hurdlers. His pick-up between hurdles is marvelous. Had he an Earl Thomson constitution there might be a different name on the record book.

Eugene Nixon had his Pomona-reared product, Charley Daggs, up for inspection, and Charley looked god after quite a layoff. He will confine his efforts to the senior events. The 220-yard is his race, but he may run the high timbers.

Bud Houser and Glenn Hartranft, the latter, by the way, to represent the L.A.A.C. instead of the Olympic Club, had another of their daily duels with the shot. Bud came out on top with a 45ft. 5in. poke, but the Stanford freshman was not far behind.

Bob Weaver, national president of the A.A.U., failed to get around to Paddock Field to watch the boys go through their stunts, sending word that he was busier than a man with a hare lip trying to make out his income tax. Weaver expects to wade through the huge batch of entries that have been pouring in on him, and give out the complete list in a day or so.

POLSON WEAKENS IN THE SEVENTH INNING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Polson, former Portland pitcher, started his first game for Salt Lake today in fine shape, but weakened in the seventh inning, and Oakland won 7 to 2. He and Krause had a pitchers' battle up to that frame, but the two walks and four hits that Polson then allowed, along with two errors by Jourdan, gave the Oaks six runs. Leverenz finished the game for the Bees. The score:

ABE ATTELL WINS HABEAS CORPUS CASE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Supreme Court Justice Donnelly today sustain a writ of habeas corpus sued out by Abe Attell, former pugilist, indicted in Chicago in connection with the baseball scandal of 1919. Attell was discharged.

Attell was released after his attorney read testimony of a witness at a former hearing, who said he had heard stories as to Attell's participation in the alleged conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series, but had not known Attell nor seen him until pointed out in court.

A motion to turn over Attell to two Chicago detectives, waiting to take him back to Illinois, was denied.

MRS. GEORGE LINEER WINS FIRST HEAT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DEL MONTE, June 25.—Preliminary heats in the girls' Pacific Coast 100-yard swimming championship were raced in the swimming meet here today. Mrs. George Lineer, formerly Miss Dorothy Becker of Alameda, won the first heat in 1:14 3-5s. and Olga Chapital of San Francisco won the second heat. Ernestine Renzel, San Jose; Hollis Hughes, Alameda; Dixie Hanchett and Hazel Coultis of San Francisco, also qualified for the finals of the championship race tomorrow.

Hollis Hughes again starred by winning the 50-yard breast stroke and medley race. The relay race was won by the Neptune team of Alameda over the All-stars.

How To Instantly
Have a Beautiful
Rosy Complexion

By The Famous Beauty Specialist
MAE EDNA WILDER

NEW YORK—"Hot sun, dust and wind are very trying on the complexion unless the skin is properly protected. The best way to protect the skin is to apply Derwillo and Liska cold cream," says Mae Edna Wilder, the beauty specialist. Derwillo in liquid form is famous the world over for the instant beauty it imparts to the skin and complexion. It stays on all day and you are not required to keep "touching up" as is always necessary when you use other face powders. Take it with you to the seashore, as a dip in the ocean, perspiration, hot sun and wind will not affect it. Thousands are using it in place of face powder. It instantly beautifies yet defies detection and it imparts that youthful appearance every normal woman craves. It makes the skin appear rosy white, smooth and velvety and eliminates tan, freckles, dark sallow skin just the moment it is applied. A single application proves it. Derwillo gives you a lovely skin everyone will rave about. Go out in the hot sun, wind and dust all day, when you return apply Liska cold cream (it's sanitary and the best.) then use Derwillo as directed and you will have the most beautiful, soft, rosy-white skin. A few applications of this combination will cure sunburn and make outdoor life a luxury. Get Derwillo and Liska cold cream and try them today; you will soon forget all other face powders or creams. If a clerk at any toilet counter tells you they cannot get them and offers you something "just as good" remember that is a false statement in order to persuade you to try a substitute on which they get a commission for pushing it. Every druggist can get Derwillo and Liska cold cream from any first-class wholesaler in the country or from the manufacturers direct. Derwilo and Liska cold cream are rapidly becoming a regular fad because there is positively nothing "just as good," better or just like it. Yes, they're absolutely harmless and a genuine tonic for the skin.

NOTE—A prominent druggist recently said, "Derwillo and Liska cold cream are having an enormous sale. They seem to satisfy everyone and we gladly refund the money to anybody they fail to please. We would not permit the use of our name if these articles were not as represented." Derwillo and Liska cold cream are on sale under a money refund guarantee at all toilet counters in this city, including The Owl Drug Company stores.—[Advertisement.

CHEMICALS AID PITCHERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Chemistry has been enlisted to aid pitchers in their efforts to stop the avalanche of heavy hitting in the big leagues.

A Philaphiphia scientist has invented a moist chalk-like substance which, rubbed on a brand-new ball, roughens the glossy surface and gives the twirler a firm grip.

The umpires, not the pitchers, rub this unnamed substance on the horsehide. The experiment was first made at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, a few days ago. It was tried again at the Yankee-Washington game yesterday, and Carl Mays, the New York pitcher, said:

"It's fine. It gives a pitcher a chance to throw a curve ball. I would have won five more games this year if we'd had it all along."

Walter Johnson of Washington also likes it. Umpires Nallin, Chill and Owens, who have coated the balls, said they would recommend its approval to the heads of the major leagues.

NEW YORK, June 25.—National League umpires have been instructed, before each game, to "rub up" in moist dirt at least two dozen balls for that day. This inexpensive treatment for increasing a pitcher's effectiveness, adopted after experiments with several other substances, has proved best, according to President Heydler.

He declared no kicks were being received from pitchers and added that no other means would be employed to doctor balls. He had heard nothing officially of the use of a chalk substance in American League games.

INDICTED PLAYERS ON TRIAL TOMORROW.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—The batting order for the trial of the eight former members of the White Sox and the professional gamblers, touts and "fixers" indicted with them in the conspiracy to "throw" the 1919 world series, was announced today by United States Atty. George F. Gorman.

Only fourteen of the alleged conspirators will be present when the trial opens Monday before Judge Hugo Griggs. Among those missing will be Attell, former pugilist, indicted as a "fixer." Justice Donnelly, of New York, has set him free on a writ of habeas corpus.

CYGNET IS WINNER OF THE SECOND LEG.

The Cygnet, skippered by Raymond Smith, won the second leg of the Frank Smith trophy, offered for one-design sloops of the Newport Harbor Yacht Club, in the race at Newport yesterday. The Cygnet's time was 48m. 2 1-5s.

The Nigger Boy, Capt. Sherman, was second, finishing in 51m. 1s. The Looee, Ingle Carpenter, was third in 1hr. 4m. The Wave and Tom, which started, did not finish.

The race was exciting and drew quite a crowd. Each sloop carried a crew of three persons. The third heat will be raced next Saturday.

JAILED AS DISTURBER OF GIRL OF FOURTEEN.

Charged with disturbing the peace of Loretta Barker, 14 years of age, of 424 East Twenty-ninth street, Nicholas Bulumko, 24 years of age, was arrested following a chase yesterday by police detectives from University Station. According to the police Bulumko followed the young girl and her mother about the streets. When the officers arrived on the scene, Bulumko fled but was later captured in his home.

"ISAIAH" IS EXHAUSTED BY LABORS.

"Miracle Man" May Take Short Rest; Many Hope for Cures by Faith.

Unmindful of the bitter attacks directed against him by Dist.-Atty. Woolwine and of the equally vehement defense by his thousands of supporters, "Brother Isaiah" continued his ministrations to the cripples and stricken on "Miracle Hill" yesterday.

Starting at 6 o'clock in the evening and continuing late into the morning hours, the white-bearded, white-clad man gave his treatments to the unfortunates who crowded every inch of space on the roughly built platform and who battled for hours and days to get near him in the hope that they would receive help.

More than 20,000 persons swarmed over the hill back of Lincoln Park during the day in the hope of catching a glimpse of the "Miracle Man" at work or a chance to get relief at his hands. In ambulances, in wheel chairs, on stretchers, in limousines and on foot they came. Hundreds have been there for days and some for weeks.

"Brother Isaiah" worked until 6 o'clock yesterday morning and again into the morning hours today. He is so exhausted by his work that he probably will take a rest of a day or more, beginning tomorrow, some of his assistants announced.

Among those who received treatment yesterday and last night were: Feliciano Ramirez, Bella Flora street, Los Angeles; Domitila Carillo, 115 Utah street; Hulda Bargas, 652 Tenth street, San Pedro, and Bert Rigden, 909 West Fifty-third street.

Ramirez, according to his story, was a sufferer from rheumatism. He said he felt better and walked off the platform. Carillo said he had suffered from rheumatism of the heart for four years, and could not walk. He was cheered by the crowd when he walked across the stage. Hulda Bargas, according to Brother Isaiah's assistants, had suffered for more than twelve years with hysterics and fits. She was in sobs when taken to the platform and was quieted down by the white-haired Isaiah. She left the platform saying she was greatly helped. The Rigden boy came to the platform with his left arm in a cast. He suffered from palsy and had practically no use of the arm. To the cheers of the crowd and the tears of his relatives he was anointed and with Brother Isaiah's help was able to move his arm slightly.

Threats of violence were chalked upon the sidewalk and on the steps in front of Dist.-Atty. Woolwine's home yesterday. These, the lettering indicated, were made because he assailed the "healer" as a "white-bearded fakir."

"I don't care if they want to kill me, but I do not want them to chalk up my sidewalks," was the only comment of Mr. Woolwine yesterday.

Argument Over Cigarette Ends in Use of Knife.

Culminating an argument over a cigarette, according to the police, Fay Emmons, aged 26 years, of 5862 Denver street, was last night slashed in the breast and arm with a large pocket knife by his older brother, Floyd Emmons, aged 36 years. Officers Holt, Farrant and Magness of the University division, responding to a hurry call to the residence of the brothers, found the younger man bleeding badly and weak from loss of blood. He refused to go to the Receiving Hospital for treatment and, after giving him first aid, Dr. A. A. Blatherwick of 6100 Moneta avenue was called and took charge of the case.

The elder brother, who had fled, returned, the officers said, and gave himself up. He was taken to the University Police Station, where he was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Driver of Auto Fatally Hurts Man; Dashes on.

An unidentified man between 65 and 70 years of age was knocked down and fatally injured on a street in Bell late last night by a Ford automobile, the driver of which failed to stop and render assistance. The injured man was taken to the Turner Hospital in Huntington Park, according to information at the Sheriff's office, where he died. The license number of the machine was 387-952.

TELEGRAPHERS' VICTORY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—The Order of Railroad Telegraphers won a victory before the Railroad Labor Board today when the board handed down a decision holding its previous decision to terminate its control over the national agreements on July 1 did not terminate the agreement of the telegraphers with the carriers.

ANHYDROUS SUGAR INVENTOR PASSES.

DR. ARNO BEHR ACCOMPLISHED FEAT WHICH CHEMISTS CALLED IMPOSSIBLE.

Dr. Arno Behr, internationally known for his inventions in connection with the starch and glucose intion with the starch and glucose industries of America; winner of the Perkins research medal, Jan. 22, 1909, "for distinguished service to applied chemisof Southern California for twenty-five years, passed away yesterday morning, in his seventy-fifth year, at his residence, 225 Grand avenue, South Pasadena.

Dr. Behr was born in Polompen, Germany, Aug. 14, 1846, and became a naturalized citizen of the United States in 1881. He was graduated from three universities in Germany, Tubingen, 1866; Berlin, 1867, and received his Ph.D. degree from Heidelberg in 1869. He came to America in 1874, identifying himself with Matthiessen and Wiechers Sugar Refining Company, Jersey City, N. J., for seven years and was superintendent of the Chicago Sugar Refining Company for eleven years.

From the refuse of the manufacture of starch and glucose from corn and finally invented many by-proucts and finall invented anhydrous sugar as a corn product, an achievement which chemists of the world had declared to be chemically impossible. Later in life he was for a number of years chief consulting chemist of the American Sugar Refining Company and has always been the warm, personal associate of Henry E. Niese, vice-president of that corporation.

Dr. Behr was known as a scholar, keenly posted on affairs of the world at all times and as a man of gracious temperament. He leaves a widow, Eva Moring Behr; two sons, Ernst E. Behr, Otho M. Behr and a daughter, Mrs. Rufus P. Spalding of Pasadena. Arrangements for the funeral await the arrival of Ernst Behr, who was in Salt Lake at the time of his father's death.

TELLS OF FIGHT FOR SUFFRAGE.

Young Tennessee Lawmaker Speaker at Picnic.

Societies Have Eventful Day at Sycamore Grove.

Four Thousand at Swedish Midsummer Festival.

The center of population of Los Angeles shifted to Sycamore Grove yesterday. Six picnics were the reason.

Tennesseeans flocked to the grove to meet one Harry T. Burn, youngest member of the Tennessee Legislature. The youth was most popular among the female of the species, for it was Assemblyman Burn who, at the age of 23, cast the decisive vote that caused the ratification of the Suffrage Amendment when the vote of the Assembly was tied. Though scarcely more than a boy, this lad from the hill country of Eastern Tennessee had by his single vote in the Legislature taken advantage of his greatest moment in life—"to free seventeen million women from political slavery," according to his own statement yesterday.

Assemblyman Burn told of the final battle for woman suffrage, which began last August, of the efforts of the opposition to coerce him and frighten him into changing his vote. He told how his opponents had threatened to ruin his political career and even invaded his home to ask his mother to urge him to change his vote.

MOTHER'S ADVICE.

"I knew that a mother's advice is always safest for her boy to follow, and my mother wanted me to vote for ratification," he said. So he voted as his mother desired him to do.

But Assemblyman Burn had a difficult time in making himself heard, for adjoining the Tennesseans 4000 persons of Swedish descent were holding their Swedish midsummer festival. Consul Eckdahl delivered the address of welcome. An orchestra furnished the music. Swedish songsters sang native songs. Addresses were given by Rev. Carl Antonson and C. Thurston. Athletic games, with the kiddies as competitors, were a feature of the program. And through the throngs elbowed a score of Swedish maids, attired in native costumes, selling votes for the midsummer queen, who was crowned later in the evening.

Georgia and Alabama folks joined hands in one big picnic, held in another section of the grove. For them the day was a peaceful one, folk from back home meeting beneath the gnarled sycamores to share their lunches and talk over old times while the children romped in the shaded vistas. Lunch was had in the open, and a few of the old-timers spoke.

Picnics were also held by several score members of the Los Angeles County Pioneer Society of the Bloomington (Ill.) Society, and of the Shenandoa (Iowa) Society. These three organizations gathered in various sections of the grove, where the day was spent in lunching on the grass, and in singing and competitive games.

RECREATION ROOMS FOR "GOBS" OPENED.

WOMEN'S OVERSEAS LEAGUE OPENS HEADQUARTERS FOR FLEET MEN.

Recreation rooms for the use of the men of the Pacific Fleet were opened yesterday on the third floor at 321 South Main street by the American Women's Overseas League. The new recreation quarters for the "gobs" were thrown open to all the fleet men in Los Angeles on leave and have been specially equipped for their comfort.

The league is working in co-operation with the Playground Commission. Among those assisting materially in the establishment of the rooms were Mrs. M. J. Connell and J. M. Danziger. The first open house began at 2 p.m. yesterday and the rooms were open until 10 o'clock, many sailors making their first acquaintance with their new Los Angeles "home" and their hostesses.

Cloudster's Load Proves Too Heavy.

A belated start because of heavy fogs and the discovery that the machine was attempting a flight with an overload prevented the successful "hop-off" of the Cloudster on a transcontinental trial trip from March Field yesterday morning.

Tired of waiting for more advantageous weather conditions Pilots Eric Springer and David R. Davis, who are to drive the big flight plane in an attempt to beat the present nonstop flight record, attempted to leave March Field at 9 o'clock yesterday. When they had made an unsuccessful effort to gain the proper altitude they came back to the landing field and made arrangements to lighten their load by reducing the quantity of gasoline in the tanks.

With a lighter cargo and favorable conditions of the weather the machine will make another attempt this morning, leaving the field, if possible, between 4 and 5 o'clock.

The flight is an attempt to make a cross-country trip to New York and to lower not only the nonstop record, but several time marks for long flights. The flyers hope to make the Atlantic seaboard in less than thirty hours.

GUESTS AT BANQUET.

Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Men Honor Contest Winners.

Two hundred employees and officials of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company attended a banquet last night in the auditorium of the new company building held in honor of the winners of the insurance writing contest held in May. Two and a half million dollars in new business was written in that month. The force was divided in two teams, "Old Timers" and "New Comers," and the latter won by a margin of $75,000. The dinner was given by John Newton Russell, Jr., the local manager. The "New Comers" were led by Fred F. Burgess and the "Old Timers" by Charles L. Lewin.

Net for Alguin will be Spread Across Border.

Police detectives headed by M. B. Leon yesterday failed to find any trace of "Little Phil" Alguin, accused as the slayer of Detective Sergeant Fitzgerald, although the officers continued their search of the city for the wanted man. According to the police, Alguin has fled the city and is now in Mexico.

Persons who know Alguin yesterday informed the police that he has been sene just across the border below San Diego. Chief Pendegast yesterday announced that a police officer will be sent into Mexico in an effort to locate the fugitive.

CUT GAS PRICES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana today announced readjusted prices on gasoline which showed an average reduction of 2 cents a gallon effective at once. The retail price in Chicago has been 22 cents a gallon. The readjustment took place, according to the announcement, throughout the company's service which includes eleven States in the Central West.

UNION MEN TO RETURN TO VESSELS.

Masters, Mates and Pilots Agree to Resume Work on Shipping Board Craft.

Following the lead of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, which day before yesterday entered into an agreement with the United States Shipping Board, whereby the marine strike was declared at an end, the Masters, Mates and Pilots of the Pacific agreed yesterday to go back to work on Shipping Board vessels.

The latter organization ordered its men back to the ships without an agreement with the Shipping Board, this action being taken following the giving up of the strike by the engineers yesterday. Union engineers and mates will now man all Shipping Board vessels under the new scale of the board, which provides for a flat cut of 15 per cent in wages and elimination of practically all overtime.

Shipping Board vessels are still on the unfair list with the Sailors' Union, the Marine Firemen's, Oilers' and Watertenders' Union, and the Marine Cooks' and Stewards' Association, agents for the unions stated yesterday, and members of these organizations will not be permitted to return to the Shipping Board vessels until an agreement is reached.

Neither the mates, the engineers nor the nonlicensed seafarers have reached any agreement with private steamship owners, and all privately owned vessels operating under the new scale of wages are still affected by the strike. Opinion in shipping circles is divided as to the prospects of an early settlement with the private companies.

Coastwise oil tankers, lumber carriers and passenger and freight steamers are still operating with nonunion crews. Whether or not union marine engineers and mates will serve on Shipping Board vessels with nonunion seamen and firemen, in case the latter unions decline to enter into an agreement with the Shipping Board and continue to remain on strike, could not be determined yesterday.

Only one vessel tied up in Los Angeles Harbor by the strike will be able to sail following the agreement reached with the engineers and mates. The Shipping Board freighter Wallingford, which has been tied up here since May 4, awaiting a crew before sailing for Valparaiso, will now be supplied with officers. Several big oil tankers will remain tied up until an agreement is reached between the unions and the companies owning the vessels.

OSTEOPATHS EXPECTED TO SELECT LOS ANGELES

STATE ASSOCIATION'S HEAD SAYS NATIONAL CONVENTION MAY BE HELD HERE.

Dr. Emilie V. Sutton of San Francisco, newly elected president of the California Osteopathic Association, announced last night before her departure for her home in San Francisco, that an invitation had been extended to the National Osteopathic Association to hold its convention next year in Los Angeles. The national organization meets in Cleveland on July 25, this year. Dr. Sutton stated that she is confident that Los Angeles will be selected as the 1922 meeting place.

Following the convention next year, if it is held in Los Angeles, it is the plan for the 2500 delegates to visit the Yosemite Valley. This will be an inducement for the eastern osteopaths to come West, she said.

The California Osteopathic Association held its twentieth annual convention in Los Angeles all last week and 500 osteopaths from all sections of the State as well as some from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona and Nevada were in attendance. Besides Dr. Sutton, other officers elected for the coming year were: Dr. L. R. Daniels of Sacramento, vice-president; Dr. C. V. Rowlingson of Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Stewart J. Finch of Pasadena, president of the advisory board for the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, with Dr. Arthur T. Seymour of Stockton, vice-president of this body, and Dr. Winifred W. Jenney of Long Beach, its secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Gladys Morgan of San Diego, the outgoing president, presided over the sessions last week.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen: Just a line to express my appreciation of the excellent service being rendered by the two Ever-Ready Automatic Hot Water Heaters that you installed for me. These heaters are on the job twenty-four hours every day, giving us plenty of hot water, the cost of which is amazingly small compared with other heaters I have in use. I shall be glad to say a good word for the Ever-Ready to any one you may refer to me.

Yours very truly,

Laughing in His Sleeve
"I was told nothing but an operation would help my stomach trouble, and was getting ready for the operation when a friend advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The first dose helped me. I am now as well as ever in my life, and am laughing up my sleeve at the doctors." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

NOTABLE LETTER.

Many congratulatory communications, voicing an assurance of hearty co-operation, have come from all sections of the Southland. One notable letter from a prominent retired New Jersey business man, Wesley Van Emburgh, follows:

"Secretary of All-Year Club,
"Los Angeles, Cal.

"Dear sir: Noting the article in one of the daily newspapers relative to an advertising campaign to be launched for the purpose of calling attention to the wonderful summer climate of Southern California, and having spent a good part of many summers here, as well as in other States, I desire to say a word or two on the subject.

"That you have a summer climate throughout all of Southern California far superior to any I have lived under cannot be gainsaid. I have spent months in the White Mountains of New Hampshire and Vermont, in the Adirondacks of New York, in Florida, among the lakes of Michigan, Atlantic City, Coney Island, Long Beach, N. J., and numerous other places advertised as having ideal climatic conditions during the summer, but have yet to find any other place equal to Southern California in the summer time, and whenever away from here in the summer I always long to be back again. Many residents of the Middle West and Eastern States have been misled regarding Southern California's climatic conditions. I was until I learned the truth for myself. If people would take the trouble to peruse the meteorological charts furnished by local weather bureaus, they would soon become enlightened on this subject and could judge for themselves.

"As I say, for a summer climate, Southern California comes nearer being ideal in this respect than any other place coming under my observation. Even after an unusually warm day, which all places in the United States experience at times, when the thermometer has climbed in the nineties, the coolness of the late afternoons and evenings here is refreshing. PEERLESS FILM TRIO TIRELESS.

Doug, Mary, Charlie Work Like Time Clock Punchers.

Business Brain Under Curls of "America's Sweetheart."

Chaplin Late to Bed, Late to Rise, but Snappy.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

Around the clock with Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks really means around the time clock! For all of them, especially Douglas and Mary, work as if they punched it.

People usually think that the size of a salary is in opposite ratio to the amount of work one does, and judging by that standard Douglas, Mary and Charlie oughtn't to do any work even if they want to. They should be "happy-go-aisy, too dom'd lazy to ate their tay!" But the contrary is true.

Miss Pickford and Messrs. Chaplin and Fairbanks each makes a million dollars a year, roughly speaking. Roughly speaking is right, isn't it? Rough on the rest of us poor grubbing human beings, isn't it?

A million dollars a year means around $20,000 a week, and that's about $3000 a day, which is over $200 an hour, for eight hours, or about $50 a minute. So by the time Mary has walked from her stage to her dressing-room, she has earned $50, and when she's put a bit of make-up on one of her eyes, she's earned another $50 or $100.

Mark Twain once said that when he was worth a million dollars he was going to have an alarm clock to ring at 5 a.m., was going to hire a husky prize-fighter to call him to get up, and then he was going to wake up, tell the fighter to go to h—, and then turn over and go to sleep again. But these three stars keep right on working.

INSEPARABLE PALS.

It's quite impossible to tell the round-the-clock story of Doug. and Mary separately, they're such inseparable pals. Even if one goes on location to work, the other usually manages to go along. Yet anybody who looks on Mary Pickford as a mere echo of Doug., or as any sort of clinging vine, is mightily mistaken. She's as much of an individual as he is.

"Douglas is an early riser, and everybody in the house, guests and all, have to get up when he does," explained Mary Pickford the other day.

Then Doug takes his exercise and cold shower, and the two breakfast together at 7:30 a.m. Both are always at their studios around 8:30 a.m., and are ready for work at 9, when everybody else arrives.

Both work all the morning like beavers, taking scenes, after short conferences with their directors, Fairbanks with Fred Niblo, and Mary with Al Green and brother Jack Pickford.

Then sometimes Doug has his cowboys in for lunch with him, in which event a joyous and rather loud time is had by all. Spike Robinson and Bull Montana are often among those present, and they are as funny as a couple of vaudeville comedians all the time. These festivities usually occur when Mary happens to be working away somewhere on location, when Douglas finds it impossible to be with her.

LUNCH HOUR SACRED.

But usually luncheon hour is sacred to Mary Pickford and business. The two stars, with their business managers and associates have lunch in the pretty little Japanese lunch room, which is a dainty bungalow offering a quaint comparison to the haphazard outdoor surroundings of sets, cowboy rough riders, stables, automobiles and rambling frame buildings.

At lunch, letters are opened and read, and business is discussed. This cannot be very good for digestion, one would say, but it is doesn't appear to disturb Mr. Fairbanks any.

Mary is never behind her husband in understanding of business affairs. She and her mother are partners, you known, in the picture business, with herself and brother Jack as stars, and the running of such a business entails untold detail, with every angle of which Mary Pickford is familiar.

An artist isn't supposed to know anything about business. But don't you run away with that idea about Mary Pickford. She's one of the shrewdest and best informed business women in the country. Those baby curls on her head cover a very big and active brain.

They're really an odd and amusing looking pair at lunch, these two, at present—little Mary in her velvet Fauntleroy suit and her long, yellow curls, looking like a very proper little boy guest of the athlete, and Doug in his picturesque swashbuckling D'Artignan outfit—espe-

RUSH TO GET DISPLAY SPACE AT TRADE FAIR.

Manufacturers, Jobbers by the Hundred Will be Represented in First Industrial Exposition.

While scores of manufacturers and jobbers scramble for choice display space, the Chamber of Commerce is completing arrangements for its first big industrial trade exposition. This will be the first annual market week of industrial Los Angeles—a gigantic trade expansion show to be held August 15 to 20, inclusive.

The exposition is to take place in the new $1,000,000 unit of the Los Angeles Wholesale Terminal, a steel and concrete structure seven stories high, containing 350,000 square feet of floor space. It is located on East Seventh street, near Central avenue. All the funds derived from the sale of exhibision space will be expended among the trade lines represented at the show and will be expended for advertising space in trade journals representing their respective lines.

Efforts are being made to make this the greatest thing of the kind ever held west of Chicago. Last year's industrial show brought 1100 buyers to this city to look over local products, and place their orders for fall and winter goods. This year thousands of buyers from the twelve Pacific States, Mexico and the Orient are expected. Hundreds have already signified their intention to attend the exhibition.

With this exposition Miss Los Angeles will make her debut as a fellow-member of the great trade marts of the world. The slogan of the fair is "Business and Pleasure" and thousands of advertising stickers, "To Los Angeles, 'Business and Pleasure,'" have been distributed. The show is to be an amalgamation of the old home products week display, the buyers' week of the furniture dealers, the trade excursion of the garment dealers and all the other industrial features of the year. They are all being brought together under one roof and arranged in sections.

Every available inch of floor space will be taken, from present indications. More than 1000 different products from 3300 factories in this city will be on exhibition. Jobbers of eastern lines and branches of factories located in other cities will be given an opportunity to show their lines. The general outline of the exposition takes on angles of the old sample fairs of Europe.

The purpose of the exposition is to draw buyers here from all the Western States as well as from Mexico, Hawaii and the Philippines, to look over the products made in this city. The show will be open for buyers from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day, and for the general public from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. Headquarters for the consuls and vice-consuls of the Latin-American countries will be established on the first floor of the exposition, where they can readily be found by merchants from Mexico, Central America and other Latin countries. Interpreters will be available at all times.

One of the most interesting exhibitions will be a display of building materials, made by the various building-material interests of the community. During the week a build-your-own-home campaign will be in progress, and those who are interested in home-building will be able to obtain volumes of information there, and can even order their materials direct from the dealers. This exhibit will embody full lines of samples of all products that go into the making or a home.

The list of exhibitors who have already contracted for display space,

JONES WILL STRIVE FOR EFFICIENCY.

Hopes to Give City Best Police Administration of Its History When Chief.

"I have but one purpose, to increase the efficiency of this Police Department," said Charles A. Jones, named as the next Chief of Police by Mayor-elect Cryer.

"I know the material is there and I am going to do it. I am inclined to be somewhat enthusiastic, for if there was ever a time for a man to make good, it is now. I have every confidence in Mr. Cryer, and I think he has confidence in me. We have an understanding, and it is up to me. If there is any blame to come, it is to fall on my shoulders.

"The Chief of Police is going to assume full responsibility for the Police Department. I have neither a friend to reward nor a foe to punish. There will necessarily be some changes, because we have to get down to business. I am going to take charge with an absolutely free hand, to enforce the laws, all the laws. I know the personnel of the department, and I know there is plenty of good material.

"By proper organization and cooperation in the department results can be obtained. I am going to endeavor to give Los Angeles one of the best police administrations it has ever had."

Mr. Jones, now a detective-sergeant in the department, stated that he had not gone into the appointment of his private secretary, nor would he be able to state at this time what changes he intends to make in police administration.

DREADNAUGHTS COMING TO DOUBLE NAVY FORCE.

When Monster Oil Burners Are Based at Harbor Personnel Will Jump by Thousands; Fleet Listed.

More than 1000 naval officers and 20,000 men will be stationed at Los Angeles Harbor on the fourteen superdreadnaughts of the Pacific Fleet as soon as the oil-burning warships of the Navy are combined here within the next few months, fleet officers estimated yesterday.

With the arrival of the eight oil-burning dreadnaughts of the Atlantic Fleet and the putting into commission here of the new battleships California and Maryland, the naval personnel at the harbor will be practically doubled. When the coal-burning battleships Texas, Arkansas, New York and Wyoming go East to join the Atlantic Fleet, 287 officers and 5519 men now stationed here will depart.

It is estimated that the number of officers and men stationed at Los Angeles Harbor at present is around 14,000. Ships now based here include eight dreadnaughts, several cruisers, repair ships, fourteen submarines and a fleet of auxiliary vessels. About 1500 officers and men are stationed at the submarine base.

The Pacific Fleet will be considerably more powerful than that of the Atlantic, when the redistribution is made. The oil-burning ships are to be centered on the Pacific Coast and the coal-burners on the Atlantic, in order that they may be nearer the source of fuel supply.

Under the reorganization plan, battleships to be added to the Pacific Fleet are the California and Maryland, now being completed, and the Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Utah. Ships now here, and which will remain, are the Tennessee, New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho. The coal-burning battleships Texas, Arkansas, Wyoming and New York, are to go to the East Coast.

Rear-Admiral Edward W. Eberle, who will take command of the Pacific Fleet next week at San Francisco, was one of the proponents of the plan for the basing of the oil-burning ships on this coast, although Admiral Hugh Rodman, retiring commander-in-chief, originated it.

Los Angeles Harbor will continue for an indefinite period to be the permanent base for the superdreadnaughts of the Pacific Fleet, and the majority of the repair and train ships of the fleet will be based here. The majority of the 120-odd destroyers of the fleet will continue to be based at San Diego.

The personnel of the superdreadnaughts of the fleet that are to be based here permanently, is as follows:

Charges Under New Law Pile up Many Years.

Irvine B. Brown and Joe Hill were held to answer yesterday by Justice Follette on four counts of a complaint, for which, if they are convicted on all counts, will imprison them for nearly the rest of their lives. They were held on two counts of a new law for burglary with the use of a high explosive, nitroglycerine, carrying a penalty of from twenty-five to fifty years in prison for each offense, and two counts of burglary, each carrying a penalty of from one to fifteen years.

The two are accused of burglary on May 8 with explosives, of the store of Louis Marmer, 4200 South Central avenue, breaking the safe open with nitroglycerine, and with using explosives on two safes of the Coca-Cola Bottling and Distributing Company, 1334 South Central avenue, on May 14. Burglaries of the warehouse of the Western Hay and Grain Company, 302 Macey street, on May 22, and of the California Machinery & Supply Company, 1811 East Seventh street, on the 9th inst., are also charged. Much loot is said to have been obtained in each case.

The court fixed bail, pending trial in Superior Court, at $15,000 for each defendant.

STAR TRINITY IS TIRELESS.

Close-ups Show Mary, Doug, Charlie as Demons for Hard Work.

cially when the two begin talking American business.

BOOST EACH OTHER.

It's interesting to hear the two speak of each other.

"Mary is the mother of us all," said Douglas, "even of her own mother."

"Doug is brilliant," said Mary, the other day. "I'm just a plodder."

Yet, despite all the cares of business and artistry, Mary manages to find time to study French, and is now, her teacher tells me, quite conversant with the language. She reads and understands the spoken language well, but is just a bit afraid to talk much to strangers, though she does chatter along with her French teacher and with Douglas, who is likewise studying the language.

After lunch, which usually consumes an hour or an hour and a half, especially if some of the United Artist officials happen to be present with weightly business questions to be discussed, Mary goes over to her studio at the Brunton lot—she usually drives over, though it's only across the street from Doug's studio and the lunch room, because she doesn't think it seemly for her to be trotting about in the Fauntleroy duds.

As we were walking the other day from Mary's pretty bungalow on the Brunton lot, to her stage, a young workman accosted us, addressing Mary.

"That serum you got for my sister is helping her an awful lot," said the boy with worshipful eyes.

GIVES HELPING HAND.

"I'm glad," said Mary simply. It seems the boy's sister was suffering from goiter, and Mary had seen to it that the girl got treatment. I don't know whether that sort of thing is a part of the day's routine with Mary usually, but I suspect it is.

Douglas and Mary usually stop work with the 5 o'clock whistle, go into their projection rooms with their directors to see the "rushes," and then they go home to dinner, at 7, after which they usually see a picture in their own projection-room at their Beverly Hills home.

"Usually the picture is a travelogue," said Mary. "The travelogues are educational as well as being restful and taking us out of our everyday humdrum lives."

Sometimes Charlie Chaplin, who is a great pal of Fairbanks and Miss Pickford, joins them at dinner, and in viewing the picture. Charlie, in fact, nearly always shows them his pictures before the world gets a peep at them.

Then Douglas's French teacher comes, and sometimes Mary sits in with Doug on his lesson, but more often, thoroughly tired from the day's grind, she goes to bed.

On Sundays they read, loaf, and go swimming in the swimming pool at their home. They don't find it convenient to go to the beach or even auto driving, as they are recognized and fairly mobbed with the public's attentions. When they go to the theater, they usually sit at the back of the house, where they can see the show without being seen.

PLAN TOGETHER.

"We always discuss business, stories, details of acting and production together," said Mary.

But despite her busy life, Miss Pickford finds time to supervise the education of her little niece and namesake, and little Mary is nearly always on the set with her nursery governess when the star is working.

Occasionally both work at night, especially of late, but no matter how late they labor, they are always at the studio in the morning bright and early.

When working on location, Mary has a dressing-room on wheels which accompanies her. Here she makes up, reads, and discusses stories and action with her directors.

If young girls work on her exterior sets, Mary always sees to it that they are properly cared for. On one occasion the girls were supposed to be attending a summer lawn party, when in reality the weather was cold and the grass damp. Mary insisted that the girls in their organdie frocks be provided with blankets from her own prop department, on which they might sit during the intervals between scenes.

Charlie Chaplain works in an entirely different fashion. He is a late riser and usually has breakfast in bed. Then he comes down to the studio and usually talks over his scenes and ideas with his company, managers, actors, everybody frequently sits in on the conclaves. These conclaves are informal, however, and take place on the set usually. But before the discussion takes place Charlie usually wrinkles a bit over the day's action.

CHARLIE "SWEATS BLOOD."

"I usually sweat blood when I first come on the set and see all those people," declared Charlie to me. "Ideas are fugitive and elusive things, and to track one down is strenuous mental exercise. Don't talk to me about inspiration. Let's speak rather of perspiration."

It must be remembered that Charlie is three people—author, director and star. The author has the first innings. Charlie the author is always in search of new ideas, new gags. When he arrives in the morning he is likely to go about moodily by himself for an hour. Or sometimes he kids about, playing with the dogs on the lot, of which there are half a dozen, as Charlie always adopts all the ki-yis which work in pictures with him.

Then, when an idea strikes him, he mulls it over a little, and then, becoming all animation, dashes over to the set to talk it over with his company—Manager Alfred Reeves, players and everyone, and then, having held rehearsals and planned the afternoon's work, he goes to lunch, returning full primed for an afternoon's hard work.

And when he does get started working, how he does work! He labors so fast and so brilliantly that the ordinary mind can hardly keep pace with him. His ideas are wonderfully clean-cut, and he won't stop making a scene until it suits him. While to the rest of the company a scene may be right, he frequently sees something wrong with it. He is patience personified in this, despite his usual restless brilliancy. He will work until the daylight fails, as he hates artificial lights, and refuses to have them installed in his studio.

In retaking a scene, says Mr. Reeves, it is always found that Charlie was right. He always makes two laughs grow where one grew before, or he makes a little laugh into a big one.

PERVERSE HABIT.

He has a rather mischievously perverse habit, has Charlie, say his professional associates, of loving to find a corner of the set that hasn't been properly finished, and insisting on its being finished and working in that corner. No other place will do.

When he takes a vacation, he sometimes goes fishing at Catalina, where he is a member of the Tuna Club, but oftener he takes solitary motor trips through the hills, planning new stories and new ideas.

His manager, Alfred Reeves, lives with Charlie in the big house in Hollywood, and his account of trying to anticipate what Charlie will do at dinner time is amusing. The comedian keeps the cook and the butler in a constant daily ferment as to whether he's going to keep his date to dine at home or whether he will go to some cafe for dinner.

Often Chaplin, with some congenial friend, will go slumming down in Chinatown or in Mexican town, where they will dine at some funny little joint, and Childs has also known Charlie on many occasions. He is always seeking ideas and types.

However, this seeking of ideas after work is fairly subconscious for the most part, as usually he's a gay nighthawk, and the brightest member of any bright party he may join. He likes the company of clever women, and frequently he sups with Florence Deshon or most often with May Collins, his reputed fiancee. Miss Collins often, chaperoned by her mother, spends the evening at his home, and here, too, gather clever writers like Rupert Hughes, Edward Knoblock, Gouverneur Morris and others.

READS HEAVY STUFF.

Charlie's reading is of a heavy sort. He never goes in for comic weeklies or light literature. The books he reads are works on psychology, philosophy, sociology and history, and when he finds anybody to discuss these with he is a happy man. In fact, he'll stop any time in the midst of planning a gag to talk ancient philosophy with you!

Sid Grauman is a great friend of Charlie's, too, and often Charlie joins Sid in the latter's midnight vigils at the theater when Sid is rehearsing or trying out new acts, and often as late as 3 o'clock in the morning the two wander into some downtown open-all-night cafe, where they kid, play practical jokes on each other, or discuss business and artistic matters.

Charlie loves impromptu, informal calls and visits with his friends, but he hates cut-and-dried interviews and calls.

CLEVER MIMIC.

Charlie is a great mimic, and often entertains his friends with impersonations of stage folk, people about town, public characters and folks he has met.

Charlie is clever at sleight-of-hand tricks and he feels a boyish annoyance if anybody gets the best of him at this sort of thing. One night at a dinner party Max Linder was doing a trick with matches. He watched carefully, and while none of the rest of us could tell how the trick was done it wasn't five minutes until Charlie himself was doing it.

Take him all in all, Charlie belongs to the Sleep-Haters' Club, but he's a standing argument against the old saw that "Early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise." For he's all three, I'll tell the world!

WATER SUPPLY SHUT OFF.

A complaint reaching County Health Officer Pomeroy that the water supply of a subdivision near San Gabriel has been threatened by stopping the pumping of any more water from a well which supplies the community, has been referred to the Supervisors for action. It appears from the complaint that the electric power had been shut off because of a delinquent bill amounting to $124.

Dr. Pomeroy asks the Supervisors to pass an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for any person or private corporation to shut off water pending litigation or any dispute that may arise with lot owners. He also has asked the State Corporation Counsel to investigate the incorporation of so-called mutual water companies who, by failure to pay power bills, endanger water supply.

The complaint to Dr. Pomeroy came in this instance from J. H. Massey, who stated that he had a verbal agreement with the tract owner to furnish them with water. This was done until last Monday, when the Edison Electric Company shut off the power, thereby stopping the pumping of water from a well.

It is also complained that an attempt is being made to force lot owners to buy shares in a mutual water company. This is denied.

NEW MARSHUTZ STORE ALONG LATEST LINES.

The time-worn word "dark room," associated for many generations with the conventional optical establishment, is doomed to disappear. Modern optical science has discovered that it is no longer necessary to sit in a mysterious black-walled room while undergoing an examination of the eyes.

The best type of modern refracting room, with the newest precision instruments and sanitary equipment, has been installed in the Marshutz Optical Company's new branch store opened yesterday at 518 West Sixth. Store No. 1, which will be continued in its present location at Seventh and Broadway, is to be refitted along the lines followed in the Sixth-street store.

E WOMAN BEHIND CRYER.

All that college is being applied for their those children do her infinite credit—a boy of 9, Edward Gay Cryer, slender and studious, an avid reader, a little chap who dotes on heathen mythology and takes the children's "Book of Knowledge" to bed with him, reads the "Oz" books and Andersen's "Fairy Tales" with pop-eyed excitement, and graduated from the Presbyterian Sunday-school last week, proudly bringing home his prize Bible. And a little golden-haired, blue-eyed girl of 6, Catherine Christine, who bids fair to be an artist—loves drawing pictures and portraits of her dolls.

WELL-BEHAVED OFFSPRING.

They are so well-behaved that I surmised she must be a good disciplinarian.

"Well, I try to be. Moral suasion first, and when it doesn't work, something more forceful," she laughed.

A perfectly good slogan for a mayor, you will observe. And, as every woman knows, the most successful men owe so much to the influence of their wives. Ask Barrie.

Mrs. Cryer is a good housewife, but has not permitted house-cleaning to become an irksome passion. A little wholesome dirt has no terrors for her. Thus Eddy and Cathy suffer all due cleanliness for school and formal occasions but are permitted to get joyously dirty between whiles.

But she likes to cook and has an entirely sympathetic respect for George E. Cryer's passion for pie. She has studied his gastronomic penchants with fidelity—he likes plain roasts and vegetables, lots of gravy—and pie. Always pie! And, as every woman knows, there is always hope for a man who likes pie. Beware of the man who doesn't like pie.

Mrs. Cryer's pet recreation is reading, and the book section of the Friday Morning Club receives her most faithful attendance. But she still admits a preference for Sir Walter Scott; she can't find a modern writer to displace him in her heart. And she declines to commit herself in her preferences for modern writers — I suspect her of being just old-fashioned enough to consider most of them "a little coarse."

SEWS AS DUTY.

She doesn't like sewing the least little bit in the world, but does all the mending with stern dutifulness. And George does make such dreadful holes in his socks. Most energetic, worth while men do, you know. I have always maintained that a fellow who can keep his socks unholey never gets anywhere. But, thank goodness, he doesn't twiddle his buttons and they stay put with commendable conservatism. Fidgety men always lose their buttons.

Mrs. Cryer says she can't make a speech and never wants to. One speechmaker in the family is enough. She admits that a great deal depends upon her in the matter of George's speeches. When she gives him a good, digestible dinner, with a light, flaky pie, and keeps the household cares well in the background, sees that he has plenty of clean shirts and collars and darned socks, keeps a watchful eye on the clothes brush and shoe blacking, and such basic causes of marital tribulation, he just shines in brilliant oratory. But otherwise—oh, well, you know how it is! But, now that he is dining out so much—well, you mustn't ask her to take all the blame—if any.

HERO TO MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Mrs. Cryer was Isabel Grace Gay before her marriage and her mother, Mrs. Gay, is a frequent visitor. And that is another feather in our new Mayor's cap—he has acquired a most successful mother-in-law. She holds the very highest opinion of George. As husband, father, lawyer or Mayor, she declines to believe his equal exists. And when a man can be a hero to his mother-in-law he may be said to have achieved the ultimate glory.

He has but one fault in her estimation and that is a fault replete with virtue. He gets such wicked holes in his pockets, and sometimes disastrously—losing the automobile key, for instance, when time is short and little Edward will break his heart if he is late for school. Little Edward, by the way, has to go to school over a mile away because there isn't one in his neighborhood. Mrs. Cryer does hope that the Mayoral influence runs to erecting new schools where they are urgently wanted.

HOLES IN POCKETS.

But as regards the holes in George's pockets—this is really a virtue, it appears, because it indicates that his hand is frequently in them for purposes of generosity and that he keeps his money loose in them instead of in a purse. And every wife knows that the man who cautiously keeps all his money in a purse and picks out the coins and bills with careful precision—well, he doesn't get so many holes in his pockets, but——

It is quite obvious, therefore, that our new Mayor's home life is nicely designed as a haven of sympathetic domesticity in which he is the supreme lord, aided and abetted by a considerate and loving consort. Everybody at home thinks father the most wonderful man in the world.

She's Mayor-Elect's "Better Half."

TOLD WIFE NOT WORTH SCRAP.

Marine Recounts Return to Home and Finding of Beautiful Party.

George A. Horton, a marine, told Judge Summerfield yesterday that when he was working at night in a munitions factory he returned home earlier than usual and found his wife, Anna Mae Horton, having a "beautiful party." He said he saw a light in the house and found his wife, another girl and two men there. The condition of things did not impress him favorably.

"I wanted to fight the men," he declared, "but the man with me said the women were not worth it and to let them go. I told them to get dressed and get out. The next day my wife packed all her things and left."

Judge Summerfield held there was no proof of desertion without corroboration. Mr. Horton said he would search for the man who had been with him. Until he produces this man the case will stay off calendar.

URGES HUNT FOR SLAYER OF HER SON.

Mother of Man Believed Murdered in Arizona is Seeking Vengeance Here.

Determined to avenge the death of her son, Mrs. K. J. McLennan again yesterday conferred with Maj. Thomas O. Osborne, local British Consul, about what steps she can take to aid the investigation into the death here several days ago of Robert McLennan, Santa Fe conductor, who was mysteriously shot at his home in Winslow, Ariz.

This was the second visit Mrs. McLennan has made to the British Consulate and yesterday she discussed in detail what evidence she has in her possession that may assist in the inquiry. No definite decision regarding any possible action was reached, it was understood.

Maj. Osborne explained that the local Consulate has no actual jurisdiction in the case since the crime, if it were one, was committed in Arizona. The local office, however, is willing to co-operate in any way it can to aid the McLennan family, who live in Canada. Another conference tomorrow has been arranged at which time the whole matter will be taken up in more detail.

The death of McLennan has remained a mystery because it has not been determined whether the gunshot wounds which caused his death were from an assailant's weapon or whether they were fired by himself. The Coroner's office, after an investigation, left the case an open question. All of the victim's friends and relatives, including his widow, who was seeking a divorce at the time of the shooting, are firm in their belief he was attacked and that he purposely withheld the name of his murderer.

NEW "HELEN AND WARREN" STORIES.

POPULAR AUTHOR WILL VISIT ITALY TO OBTAIN NEW SETTINGS.

In a personal letter to The Times, Mabel Herbert Urner writes, "We are sailing the first of July for Italy, where I expect to get some exceptional stories of 'Helen and Warren' in Florence, Venice and Rome."

This will be interesting news to "Times" readers, nearly all of whom follow the series week by week in the Times' illustrated magazine.

In private life, the author is Mrs. Lathrop Colgate Harper, wife of a distinguished bibliographer, who himself enjoys an international literary reputation. She reveals, in a recent interview, in Editor and Publisher, the painstaking method by which "Helen and Warren" stories are produced.

"Each story is rewritten from six to eight times—a laborious eliminating and condensing process. Before the final copy is made, every word is challenged; every sentence reduced to its most economical and effective phrasing. I write full and then cut. Put in the detail, then take it out. And curiously much of the atmosphere of what is taken out remains. To keep the dialogue crisp and natural, my stenographer reads each speech again and again. I use no incumbering 'he said' or 'she exclaimed.' When necessary to designate the speaker, always a more pictorial or suggestive word can be used, as 'he ridiculed,' 'she evaded,' 'grumbled Helen,' 'rebelled Warren.'

WILL TOUR ALASKA.

Under the direction of D. F. Robertson the following will leave Los Angeles on July 8 for an extended tour of Alaska: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Haggarty, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Whittier, Mrs. Ben Scott, Dr. and Mrs. J. K. Carson, Misses K. and A. Carson, Mrs. E. M. Wilson and daughter, William Llewellyn and party, Mrs. J. A. Campbell, Miss Alice Campbell, Miss Alta Gaynor, Miss M. Burger, C. B. Grimes, A. W. Rhoades, Mrs. C. M. Reinbold and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stavinow and Miss E. Stavinow. The party will go by automobile and rail to Seattle and thence to Alaska via the Inside Passage.

IN THE NECK.

A girl is suing for $35,000 damages because her neck was singed by a curling iron in a beauty parlor. No one blames her. Nobody seems to want the scorched neck of a chicken.

TAKE ANOTHER VOTE.

Looks as if we would have another State vote on prohibition. There are enough signatures on the referendum petitions to hold up the Wright enforcement bill until a popular vote can be taken. At almost every election the matter of prohibition is before the people in some form. Usually prohibition gets the worst of it in the balloting, but a direct yea-and-nay line-up on the amendment itself has never been possible. That is why the wets refuse to stay dead.

GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Pasadena has ambitious plans for her golden jubilee. The city will be fifty years old in 1924 and is planning an almost continuous celebration for that eventful year. For fifty weeks of her fiftieth year there will be some special allurement for the mind and interest of her people. Pasadena at 50 looks like a bride in her orange blossoms. She will always be young and clean and glamourous. If she starts out to make a fete day of a whole year she will command the attention of America. The preliminaries may well be a part of the spreading of the gospel that Southern California is Forever Land and that all her seasons are divine.

A SLUMP IN MORALS.

The only lady police captain in captivity declares in a convention of reformers that since women have been made politically equal to men their morals have slumped. Instead of raising men to their own moral standard they are adjusting themselves to the lower level of the sterner sex. It isn't exactly polite for a lady to say that men have always had lower morals than women, but this one says so and adds that the women are coming down the ladder of virtue and morality instead of going up. The lady police captain says, however, that this may be but the swing of the pendulum. It will reverse itself and then the women will take the men with them to higher and better things—whatever they are. This may not be such a rotten world, after all.

STOPPING THE FIGHT.

Dr. Wilbur Crafts, that grand old reformer, is determined to save Georges Carpentier from the coarse hands of Jack Dempsey. The Secretary of State is apparently powerless to comply with Dr. Crafts's request and stop the fight and so the reformer says he will seek the courts. He warmly asserts that no State has the power to legalize so brutal a spectacle as a prize fight and he is now seeking some Federal or other judge who will grant him an injunction by which he may jump into the arena and save this unnecessary shedding of French blood. It is quite possible, however, that if the good doctor reached the ringside for the preliminaries he might become so interested as to forget his injunction. We hasten to assure the amiable reformer that Mr. Carpentier is at least a perfect gentleman and that no brutality will be tolerated.

FREIGHTS AND FRUITS.

The railroads are arguing that there should be no reduction in transcontinental shipping rates because, in spite of the advance at the time of the war, the shipments are increasing. Thus far this year the shipments of fruits, vegetables and perishable stuff are reported to aggregate 367,000 cars against 309,000 in the same time last year. If the California rancher or orchardist is sending more stuff East than he was last year it should be a sign that he is not suffering much because of the freight rates. That is the argument of the railroads, but the fruit grower knows quite well that it is not sound or good. He has had to ship in order to dispose of his crop, but instead of taking the usual profit on volume of business he has virtually operated at a loss. The water haul by way of Panama offers a prospect of gaining a margin which rail shipments do not now permit.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME.

There are over seven million families in America who own their homes. It is a fine thing to realize that the proportion of home owners in Los Angeles is greater than in any other large city of the country. There must be something in the climate. At any rate, after a man has lived here for a few months he develops a sort of passion for owning a home. In times past it was made a rather easy process for him; but even when it is more difficult and requires a larger investment he is still tackling the venture with enthusiasm. As America becomes a nation of home owners it gets away from the propounders of Socialism and other scarlet vagaries. It is because Los Angeles is a city of home owners that it is also the citadel of industrial liberty and the open shop. Here a man thinks more of his home, his family and his work than he does of a walking delegate.

The government is going to run a costly research department at Leland Stanford University to show people what to eat. What would be more to the point would be to run a night school to show how to get something to eat.

CONCERNING ADMIRAL SIMS.

Are we to understand that, while Admiral Sims, the outspoken sailor, is officially reprimanded, Col. Harvey, the effervescing Ambassador, is not? That, because one has offended the hyphenated faction of Sinn Feiners, who shout and shriek their indignation and specialize in noisy and belligerent disapproval, the admiral must be humiliated and publicly admonished that their vengeance may be appeased, but the Ambassador, who has merely been offensive to his own unhyphenated countrymen (who, no matter what their regrets, hold their peace and endure with calm dignity) can escape the fruits of his indiscretion with impunity?

Is this good Americanism? Is this administrative justice?

The Times unhesitatingly declares that Admiral Sims should not have been offered upon the altar of hyphenated malice.

Admiral Sims may have been indiscreet. He is a sailor distinguished in the service of this country. He is not an orator, not a lawyer, not a professional politician. But he is a man of whom his country is proud, who has risen to his high office by virtue of his merit, his seamanship, his naval knowledge and efficiency. And whatever he said about the treason of the Sinn Fein Irish before the English-speaking Union in London was spoken from the depths of his feeling in a matter that vitally affects the welfare of his country. He told of things he knew of his own knowledge. He wasn't guessing, surmising, imagining. He had been there, he had seen and known these things whereof he spoke—and he spoke for himself, not for his country.

And he told the truth. There has been no disavowal of his statements. He has spoken and written of them before in this country where his views and sincere anxieties on this question were well known to the people and the administration. It may not always be discreet to tell the truth, but when any but a professional orator feels deeply upon any vital question, they are not apt to be overdiscreet in expressing themselves on the subject.

Naturally, obviously the truth in this case has been peculiarly offensive to a faction whose national loyalty is divided and whose chief claim to consideration is their ability to make much noise, clamor ferociously and make themselves troublesome and offensive for anyone who dares defy them. The truth is always objectionable to bullies and bullies have but one way of answering it—abuse and violence.

But is this the faction that governs these United States? Are the loyal millions of straight, law-abiding Americans who fail to shriek their views at a discount in their own country? Is Sinn Fein to be accepted as the voice of America because it is the loudest, harshest and most blustering? Is every honorable and efficient officer in the service of this country to maintain his prestige only at the pleasure of these hypherated brawlers, only so long as he fawns upon and flatters them and blinds himself to their disloyal excesses? Is he? Does service in the United States mean service to Sinn Fein agitators and their misguided sympathizers?

Or does it mean fearless service to the best interest of Americans, with honor and appreciation? No matter what the indiscretion in the public utterances of Admiral Sims, in his capacity of one of America's fine body of naval men, there could be no possible excuse for offering him public humiliation to oblige a faction who would rush this country into war with its own kin, sacrifice it upon the altar of an age-old controversy that does not concern us, for the sake of a melodramatic sentimentality that is exploited out of all proportion to its merits. Because, out of a full heart, he has spoken the burning truth about a menace that is gaining all-too-serious proportions in his beloved country, which he sees and knows from bitter experience, he, forsooth, is publicly chided, while the real enemies of the country are petted and condoned.

We have heard so much of the other side of this controversy, and if the only way the people of America can acquire just a glimmer of the true state of affairs is through the "indiscretions" of some of its ablest servants, then God bless those indiscretions and the fearless loyalty that inspires them!

If Admiral Sims had been a sleek politician, if he had been a polished and discreet orator, if he had been an ambitious lawyer, we might never have heard the burning truths he enunciated, for he, too, might then have had a cozening ear for the plaudits of the hyphenates. But he is a plain-spoken sailor at the head of his chosen profession, who knows naught but honorable service to his country, and the hyphenate's vote means nothing to him. He knew the truth and dared to tell it—and it is for the telling that he pays. The official reprimand is for telling—there is no official denial of the truth of his statements, no reassurance that these things were not so, that the grewsome treacheries he has made public were a figment of his imagination. If the administration could do that, if it could disavow these dread statements and prove them false, then, indeed, might admonition and reproof be a light punishment. But the administration cannot do this—it has only reprimanded a brave and honest sailor for his frankness, his fearlessness, his indiscretion in telling the truth.

And once more we ask, is this Americanism? Is this the reward America offers for honest enlightenment, passionate patriotism?

THE MAN AND THE JOB.

The appointment of Gen. Charles G. Dawes to the newly created office of Director of the Budget is one calculated to inspire both hope and confidence. The hope is that a definite program of economy and retrenchment will be provided and there is confidence that Gen. Dawes will work with sincerity to that end. It might be said that Gen. Dawes's picturesque and insouciant profanity got him this job. The splendid way in which he meant it when he told a man to go to Hades inspires the belief that he might be equally direct and emphatic when "the interests" undertake their raids on the treasury. The Director of the Budget must be a man who can say "no" and Gen. Dawes can pronounce the word with a set of double-decked expletives that make it understandable for miles. Furthermore, he is intensely loyal, immensely capable and genuinely conscientious. He doesn't want the place, but he considers it an opportunity to be of further real service to the country and he honors the draft. The country is to be congratulated. Gen. Dawes may not make himself popular with official Washington, but that need not and will not worry him.

WHOM THE GODS WOULD DESTROY.

W. R. Hearst has suddenly discovered that Sam Gompers is unscrupulous and that he has been exploiting labor for thirty years for his personal aggrandizement. About the same time Gompers learned to his amazement that Hearst is a poltroon and a demagogue of doubtful loyalty, that he has been engaged for a quarter of a century in exploiting labor and fomenting discord. Hearst is now advising the labor unions to get rid of Gompers, while Gompers is warning the unions to beware of the insidious propaganda appearing in the Hearst newspapers.

Pity the poor labor-union dupes who are now forced to witness the harrowing spectacle of their twin idols descending from their pedestals and fighting each other with stink pots, like Chinese warriors. The temple still stands, but the gods are overthrown. If Gompers is a charlatan and Hearst a knave, isn't it advisable to give a closer examination to the principles of labor-unionism which Hearst and Gompers have been jointly espousing? When prophets are proven false the cult they have been preaching can hardly escape suspicion.

The Times has known all along that Hearst was a faker who exploited union labor to build up the circulation of his newspapers. And it notes with some amusement that Gompers (Hearst's former apologist) has just found it out. The head of the American Federation of Labor is now telling truths about the head of the Hearst syndicate that he denounced as false when they appeared in the columns of The Times. He is now belaboring Hearst over the shoulders with the cudgels he formerly used to defend him. We are believers in the adage, "Truth will out," but it sometimes issues from unexpected sources.

It is also amusing to read in the Hearst papers charges against Gompers that appeared in the columns of The Times twenty years ago. Hearst has discovered that his co-idol has not only feet of clay, but the ears of a fox and "the odor of a skunk." The Times never went quite so far. It inclines to the belief that Gompers is neither as good nor as bad as Hearst has alternately represented him to be. We have never attacked his personal integrity, but have denounced some of the principles that he has espoused, notably his preachments in favor of the closed shop, of picketing, of the secondary boycott and his advice to his followers to violate court injunctions. We repeatedly commended his patriotic attitude during the war. Hearst formerly found that Gompers was always right; he now finds that he was, and is, always wrong. Such a reversal of judgment smacks more of pique and interest than of candor.

Gompers has made out a better case against Hearst. He has eschewed fulmination and confined himself more closely to facts. He has exposed Hearst's betrayal of the labor unions after making common cause with them, his disloyal utterances and those of his publications during the war, his alliance with the Sinn Feiners and his attempt to cause a diplomatic rupture between this country and Great Britain, his pro-German and anti-Ally attitude before, during and after the war.

As one reads those charges made by Gompers the wonder grows, not that they are made, for they are a mere recital of facts of common knowledge, but that Gompers should have just fulminated them. Belated twinges of conscience may have occasioned the outburst; and it is just possible that Hearst's denunciation of Gompers may have something to do with it. Whatever the cause, it is apparent that the game of "You scratch my back and I'll scratch your back" is over. Things have gone ill for Hearst and he puts part of the blame on Gompers. The American Federation of Labor is wobbling and Gompers attributes its instability partly to Hearst. Some of the most influential leaders of the federation have been indicted, not only for robbing their unions and blackmailing employers, but for robbing the mails. Morals and morale are both lacking and Gompers apparently thinks association with Hearst is in part the cause of this delinquency. The squabble reminds one of two partners quarreling over the affairs of a bankrupt concern.

Of course, Hearst's sympathies were with the Sinn Feiners, and there is no occasion for Gompers to be surprised at that. The Sinn Feiners were on the same side as Hearst. They gave the German cause mutual support, and Gompers seems to be about the only person in the country who was not aware of it all along. The North of Ireland was intensely loyal to the Allied cause during the war. It made a greater contribution of men and service and suffered comparatively greater losses than almost any other land engaged. Ulster possesses but one-fourth the population of the island of Ireland, yet ten of Ulster's sons sleep on the battlefields of France and Belgium for every one from the south of the island. While there was a loyal minority outside Ulster there were more slackers in the South of Ireland than in any other part of the British Empire. Gompers denounces Hearst because he is a Sinn Feiner, and Hearst denounces Gompers because he is not. On this issue the sympathies of The Times are frankly with Gompers.

The Times confesses its surprise that Gompers should be telling the truth about Hearst, and that Hearst should be telling the truth about anything. Again we become aware of the vanity of modern progress; for was it not written more than 2000 years ago. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad"?

STRIKE INSURANCE.

One of the regular overhead charges in connection with the building industry in the East is strike insurance. The various contractors all had to pay it on most of last season's jobs in New York and Chicago. This was nothing more or less than graft on the part of labor-union leaders. It might range from a few dollars to $100,000 or more, according to the prominence or demands of the grafters. The workers themselves were the tools in the game. They did not know of it, neither did they derive any profit. In fact, they were losers because they would frequently be thrown out of work in order that the leader might show his strength and authority. Another group of eighteen labor-union leaders have just been indicted in Chicago. These are the smaller fry. They shook down contractors for sums ranging from $600 up to $12,000. That brought them into the piker class. But there was graft in practically every building enterprise.

COUNTY COSTS—HOPE FOR TAXPAYERS.

There is a marked contrast between the financial condition of the government of Los Angeles county and that of the State. While State finances are badly involved, and the cost of State government is rising like smoke on a clear day, there is a surplus of more than $4,000,000 in the county treasury and an excellent prospect of a lower county tax rate this year.

Such is the difference between business methods and political methods in the conduct of government. The Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county has not degenerated into a political machine. Its members are not playing politics, but are tending to the actual business of the county. Their budget is made up not for the purpose of rewarding the faithful, but to effect economy in government and make the burden of the taxpayer as light as possible.

Eight years ago the same machine that now has control of the State government succeeded in electing a majority of the Board of Supervisors. The extravagance at Sacramento was duplicated in the county building. Despite a sharp increase in assessed values and a boost in the county tax rate, the fiscal year 1916 ended with a deficit of more than $1,000,000. The taxpayers of Los Angeles county arose in their wrath and cleaned out the ring in control. Business men were elected to the board and a policy of efficiency and retrenchment was inaugurated. That $4,000,000 surplus and the prospect of a lower tax rate are the results. The Times respectfully suggests that while Gov. Stephens is in the city he should make a study of the county government of Los Angeles. He might learn some things that would save the citizens of California several million dollars a year.

WESTWARD THE STAR OF EMPIRE.

During the past decade, and more particularly since the war ended, the eyes of the world have been focussed upon the Pacific Coast. The star of empire is slowly but none the less surely taking its course westward and the wise men of the East are following its leadership.

In every business and financial review increasing space is being devoted to the remarkable achievements of the Sunset Coast, and especially Southern California, for it is no idle boast to say that over this favored section the star shines more brilliantly than elsewhere, because the statement is susceptible of proof by statistical application.

A Los Angeles banker, addressing a convention in Idaho the other day, declared that it is natural to assume that the Pacific is destined to become more and more the trading ocean of the future and that in this trade the entire West will find its destiny.

A sign of the times and a certain harbinger of the new day is the growth of what may be termed thinking at large. Provincialism is falling away from our shoulders to be replaced by the ermine of a knowledge which is power.

The tremendous resources of Southern California; her fruits and other products of the soil which provide the funds with which to drive the wheels of industry and automobiles are no less potent now than they have ever been, but our vision has been broadened and we are seeing beyond our own orchards and vineyards into the far market places of the world.

Ships from our own harbor are carrying our flag and our goods into foreign lands and bringing back the treasures of the Orient and the South Americas and the islands of the sea. We are learning that it is better to manufacture than it is to import, and we are finding ourselves financially.

California no longer looks to the eastern centers for money with which to carry on our development, and just as the factories on the Atlantic seaboard turn to the Mississippi Valley and the intermountain country for their raw materials, so we must look to our own slope for the materials to make possible a great Pacific trade.

What, then, is the great need of the hour in the furthering of the hand of destiny? To The Times it seems as though much of the secret is bound up in the one word "cooperation." It is the watchword of the new era. It is in the mouths of all thinkers called upon to express their thoughts for the benefit of others. Co-operative marketing is a demonstrated success in this community. Co-operative financing as outlined by the American Bankers' Association and expressed in the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation will open the foreign trade lanes as soon as it begins to function. Co-operation, equity, determination, sanity, ships and, of course, money. These six, and the greatest is co-operation.

"For centuries," the Los Angeles banker already quoted, told his audience, "there has been a westward movement of people, first across Asia and Europe, then across the Atlantic and at last across the American continent. Today the people of California, Oregon and Washington face the birth-place of the human race across the Pacific, for here the end of the pilgrimage of the peoples reaches its beginnings and in this ocean, during the next century, will develop a far greater trade, both as to value and as to volume, than that built up in the Atlantic during the centuries gone by. In this trade the intermountain country will have its part, and as a result the products of Idaho and Montana, of Nevada and Utah, Arizona and New Mexico will find new markets toward the west—a market which will be in all probability far greater than the market of the Eastern States to which you now look. It is a partnership in the developing of this new trans-Pacific market that California, Oregon and Washington must offer to the States lying this side of the Sierra Nevadas."

Is this a dream? Perhaps, but the history of the world shows that, though dreamers are ofttimes broken on the wheel of national service, the dreams which they dream live after them and become the realities of succeeding generations.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

WAR IS OVER.

The war is over and I feel that the world should know it; for profiteers still harshly steal the savings from a poet. How easily the prices rose in times of war and terror, when we were swatting brutal foes, convincing them of error! As patriots we stood the gaff and took the deadly bitters, thought prices would be shorn in half when we had whipped those critters. The war is over, but the cost of many things is booming, and all our wages we exhaust in ultimate consuming. How easily the prices slid until they reached the ceiling, when Wilhelm waved his iron lid and all the world was reeling; as easily they should come down, since now the war is ended, and Wilhelm's lost his valued crown and had his bucksaw mended. I'm taxed too much for this and that, for which and those and t'other, for catnip for my sacred cat and stogies for my brother. The war is over and from woe to normalcy we're beating, but progress is so beastly slow we think we are retreating. Progressive merchants wisely strive to sell things cheap and cheaper, but profiteers are still alive and make the prices steeper. WALT MASON.

A Superior Court judge announces that he will discard his coat while on the bench during the summer months.

Theoretically, it should not, but in practice it does make a great difference. Taft says the gown and wig for judges are much more impressive and lend greater prestige and dignity to the court. The British still insist upon this garb both for judges and counsel.

And just at present the law needs all the prestige and dignity it can encompass. Shirt sleeves don't help it any. Perhaps His Honor could be persuaded to adopt a light alpaca coat. Or does he favor shirt sleeves for the officers of the court, the jury, plaintiffs, defendants and witnesses as well? If not, why not?

Sir Gordon Hewart has aroused the British press to shockful cognizance of the fact that divorces in England have increased from 348 in 1915 to 2351 in 1920. England's population is nearly 40,000,000. And still Los Angeles is a triumphant rival, with less than 1,000,000 population. They do seem to get so heated over trifles over there. We are not bragging, you understand, but when one American city famous for its sunshine can put it all over a whole country famous for its fogs in little matters of this kind—a forty-to-one superiority, as it were, we do seem to have some claims to special distinction.

Bless her dear platitudinous heart! But we regret to remind the lady that if Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst were membership censor she could never be a member of the Friday Morning Club. Mrs. Tolhurst scorns platitudes. Which reminds us. We wonder whether Mrs. Tolhurst voted for Mrs. Trewhella for vice-president of the district federation?

Certainly none but model gowns should be elected to political office. And, dear lady, won't you tell us the secret of the stimulant some of our male politicians use?

The Young Men's Club of Evanston, Ill., has adopted resolutions imploring the girls not to chew gum or adjust their stockings in public. They are also urging the stores to keep their shades down while draping the more intimate garments on the wax figures in the windows.

One likes to hear of such ultra refinements in a young men's club. It is so obvious that they have pure, unsullied minds.

On the other hand, we would be inclined to make a concession in favor of the girls adjusting their stockings if they need it. There is something most unsatisfactory about a neglected stocking oozing down over a shoe. And she may not have happened to shave her legs that day. Art is entitled to some consideration.

They are forming a bald-headed club in Los Angeles, and only men who have lost their hirsute charms will be admitted. And we are told that "It has been formed for the sole purpose of getting together men of Southern California to work for the welfare of the State."

Which, of course, is a mean slap at the hairy fellows.

"Banquets will be held every month, followed by theater parties, and all theaters will be notified to reserve the two front rows."

This sounds a perfectly satisfactory way of working for the welfare of the State. Even a chap with a few hairs left on his head might be able to achieve it. Exacting, of course, and demanding, above all, a cool head. But we have always understood that it was brain work and responsibility that induced baldness. How noble therefore for the shorn lambs to undertake further heavy duties and responsibilities of this nature!

Midnight marriages, we are told, are all the vogue in Redlands. The "high-noon" stuff is getting passe. All the same, the hours between midnight and dawn are inherently immoral, devoid of all sense of propriety. Ask any nice-minded person. The only reputable activities between those hours are walking the floor with the baby or sitting up with a sick friend. In really respectable communities those hours are dedicated to ghosts and burglars and hurry calls for the doctor. So we do hope it's all right. We wouldn't like to see Redlands do anything rash.

RECORD CHURCH MEETING SEEN.

Congregationalists to Open Convention on Friday.

Nine Hundred Delegates to Attend the Sessions.

Noted Speakers to Discuss Problems of Religion.

The largest gathering in the history of the Congregational Church and one of the most important religious meetings ever held on the Pacific Coast will begin here on July 1, when the national council of the Congregational Church in America will open its eight-day biennial convention.

The sessions, most of which will be held in the First Congregational Church, will be presided over by Henry C. King, president of Oberlin University and national moderator of the organization.

Six thousand congregations and a membership in excess of 800,000, will be represented by the 900 delegates, most of whom will arrive on a number of special trains which will reach this city Thursday evening and Friday morning.

The Southern California Congregational Conference will have charge of the entertainment of the council. A local committee, of which Dr. C. S. Patton is chairman, and Dr. G. F. Kenngott is secretary, is making the arrangements for the gathering, a feature of which will be the attendance of 120 missionaries, who will come from foreign fields to be present at the deliberations.

OUTSTANDING ISSUES.

However, the convention will take on more than denominational importance because of the fact that church unity and Christian internationalism will be the outstanding issues of the meeting. This is given emphasis by the fact that the opening address of the council, which will be delivered by Dr. Patton at 4 p.m., Friday, will make, as the keynote of the sessions, a challenge to a world program in which all Christians will be invited to have a share.

Dr. King, who gained an international reputation as a result of his work as the head of the government's educational work in France, will respond in an address, which will ring with the breadth and fervor for which he is known.

The third speaker during the opening day will be Dean C. R. Brown of Yale University. The moderator for the coming biennium will also be elected at this meeting.

On Saturday the question of the Congregational World Movement and of religious extension in foreign lands as a part of an international policy will be considered.

INDUSTRIAL PROBLEM.

Following the communion service on Sunday morning, Dr. A. H. Atkins of Detroit will deliver the council sermon. During the afternoon a prominent business man and a prominent labor leader will present their views of the industrial problem. At the evening session President Barrows of the University of California will make the principal address.

The experiences of various pastors in practicable evangelism will be given at the meeting Monday morning, when the speakers will include Dr. R. E. Brown of Waterbury, Ct., and Dr. W. H. Day of Bridgeport, Ct. During the afternoon all of the delegates and those who came with them to attend the sessions will be taken on a drive through the orange belt to Pomona, where President Blaisdell of Pomona College will hold a reception in their honor.

During the remaining days of the meeting the Pilgrim memorial fund, the educational society, and the home extension group will be discussed by leaders in these various phases of work.

RELIEF REPORT.

The report of Dr. J. L. Barton, who served as head of the Armenian-Syrian Relief, which will be made toward the close of the sessions, is expected to be one of the events of the meeting, holding out as it does the promise of new light on the vast tragedy of the Near East.

Other prominent speakers will be: Prof. L. A. Weigle of Yale University; Prof. A. Rugh of the University of California; Dean E. I. Bosworth of Oberlin University; Dr. John Gardner of Riverside; Rev. H. P. Judd and Rev. A. W. Palmer of Honolulu; Dr. O. A. Petty; Dr. C. S. Carter, chairman of the national executive committee; Dr. S. Beardsley, former moderator, and Messrs. Oscar E. Maurer; J. P. Huget; D. J. Cowling; W. N. DeBerry and C. H. Wilson.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK.

Hermosa Beach to Hold Independence Day Celebration.

Gov. Stephens will be the speaker at the Fourth of July celebration at Hermosa Beach. The day's program will open with a band concert at 10:30 a.m., and the Governor will deliver his address at 11 o'clock. An invocation will be offered by Rev. Dr. Howe of Hermosa Beach. The celebration is being arranged under the auspices of the Hermosa Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The afternoon program will include a list of "home town" sports, including sack, three-legged, potato and fat men's races. There will be the usual pie-eating contest and a black-and-tan jazz vaudeville entertainment. This will be followed by water races.

At night there will be street dancing on Pier avenue, with fireworks completing the day's program.

Negotiations are now being carried on for the detail of one or more warships from San Pedro to Her-these days in the summer when the heat is actually oppressive, nor do you have long spells of burning and exhaustive days, such as is experienced in the far eastern States and in many parts of the Middle West. When some of my relatives and friends back East have been complaining of the excessive heat, of suffocating and sleepless nights caused by the humidity there, I have been enjoying this balmy climate in the open air and sunshine and at nights resting serenely under a light covering, while in those places the only comfort is under an ice-cold shower.

SAN BERNARDINO IN LINE.

San Bernardino county was added yesterday to the outside communities which have indorsed the All-Year Club movement. Daniel H. Jones, of the executive committee of the club, met yesterday with the directors of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce and secured a thorough indorsement of the chamber for the three-year advertising program. Judge Rex B. Goodcell, president of the chamber, stated that San Bernardino county could be counted on to raise this quota. The Big Bear Valley interests are going to give $1000 a year of the San Bernardino county quota. Dr. Baylis, owner of Pine Crest at Big Bear, stated that this subscription could be definitely counted upon and that he himself would guarantee it.

Files Motion for New Trial in Lips Case.

A motion for a new trial was filed by Attorney Paul Schneck in Judge McCormick's court yesterday in the case of Walter Lips, deputy Sheriff and former Fire Chief, convicted of bribery in the Furey case. The motion will be argued tomorrow. The usual technical grounds are set out in the motion. It is believed that if a new trial is denied, Attorney Schenck will appeal from the verdict of the jury.

Mr. Lips was convicted of accepting a bribe from Joe Furey, Texas bunko man, who disappeared from the custody of Lips and Anderson after Mrs. Furey turned over to her husband $10,000 she had taken from a bank, according to the testimony. Furey was arrested in Glendale by the two deputies. Anderson accompanied Mrs. Furey to the bank where the money was on deposit, she declared.

Motor Freight Test Case Due for Hearings.

Transportation interests in the State will take a very lively interest in the case before the Railroad Commission in San Diego tomorrow, and in Los Angeles Tuesday, which is to determine the jurisdiction of the commission over certain so-called nonutility or mutual motor freight lines; the case at issue on the above dates being that of Harry N. Blair against the Truck Owners and Shippers, Inc., a motor-freight line operating between Los Angeles and San Diego.

The Southern Pacific will be represented by its legal department from San Francisco, and practically all of the other steam and electric lines within California have intervened in the matter, which is viewed by them in the nature of a test case to determine the jurisdiction of the commission over mutual organizations doing business competitive with public utilities.

VENICE TO RIVAL CONEY.

New Pier and Amusements to Add to the Beach City's Attractions.

With the building of the new pier and the scores of new concessions and amusements at Venice that resort will soon be running Coney Island a close race for position as the world's greatest amusement center. Already some of the best-known amusement men of the East have taken space on the pier and have started the construction of rides that have been seen nowhere on the Pacific Coast.

Prior & Church, pioneers in the amusement world and designers of some of the greatest rides in America, now have four of the biggest thrillers in Venice, the Race Thru the Clouds, the Big Dipper, the Mill Chutes and the Bobs. The Bobs is their newest and most original ride. Each car seats only two persons. There are nine cars in a train which careens around the sharp turns and dashes down the dips at a breath-taking rate.

Another new amusement on the Venice pier is the Dodge 'Em. This ride consists of a number of round cars propelled by trolleys connected with a charged steel ceiling. Each passenger guides his own car and tries to avoid bumping into the other cars. Although the cars are equipped with steering wheels it takes a great deal of practice to learn how to steer and the cars are likely to turn in any direction except the one desired by the passenger. In connection with the Dodge 'Em is the Gad-About, which is operated on the same principle.

The new Zig Zag is another thriller. It is located at the entrance to the pier next to the Big Dipper and throws the passengers around like cracking the whip. Seventy-two passengers can ride on this contrivance at one time.

CAFE TO OPEN.

The new Ship Cafe, operated by J. M. Covington, is to open on Tuesday and, it is said, will be the most beautiful and modern cafe on the Pacific Coast. It is located next to the Bobs, across the pier from the ballroom, and has a large automobile parking space.

The Venice plunge is a very popular place for those who enjoy swimming. Surf and plunge bathing are both indulged in freely at Venice and each week a special diving and swimming exhibition is put on at the plunge.

A much praised utility is the tram-car service between Venice and neighboring beaches. These tram cars are operated by electricity and run on the ocean-front walk.

The longest miniature railway in the world is at Venice. The little train is pulled by a tiny locomotive which is a replica of the large ones. The train runs through the residence district and over the canal bridges of Venice.

The Venice ballroom, just completed at a cost of more than $500,000, is considered the most complete and luxurious ballroom in America. With its beautiful loges, commodious balconies, private ballrooms and banquet rooms and a $60,000 chocolate garden this ballroom offers superlative attractions to the dancers.

Boating and canoeing on the canals is a favorite form of recreation and the long motor-boat ride around the canals is very popular.

PREPARE CONCESSIONS.

The Steeplechase and Over the Falls are now under construction and will be two of the biggest attractions on the pier. Other amusements now in operation are the Airplane Raid, the Kentucky Derby, the Yacht Race, Dart the Dart and a great many other concessions and games.

What are said to be the largest and most complete billiard parlors and bowling alleys on the Pacific Coast are soon to be opened in the Howse Building at the entrance of the pier.

The children as well as the grown-ups are well looked after. There is a Baby Bank where mothers may leave their little ones in the care of capable nurses for the day. Every Saturday afternoon a free party is given at the ballroom and all the children are invited to dance and have a good time. The beach is said to be one of the safest on the Pacific.

When Venice celebrates the opening of the pier on July 1, 2, 3 and 4 the visitors will find plenty to keep them amused.

LURED BY SOUTHLAND.

Dr. L. C. Audrain, Noted Physician of Mexico, to Live in Los Angeles.

Dr. L. C. Audrain, who, as head of the entertainment committee, received the members of the local Chamber of Commerce at Mazatlan during their excursion to Mexico, is coming to Los Angeles to live. Mrs. Audrain arrived in this city a few days ago to settle in her home at the Murray Apartments, 1026 Orange street.

While at Mazatlan a number of Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce members, including President Weaver, were entertained at the home of Dr. Audrain. There the only hospital between San Diego and the Panama Canal is located. Wounded soldiers and sailors were received there during the war.

Mr. and Mrs. Audrain will make their home in the United States after a nine-year sojourn on the west coast of Mexico.

CREDIT MEN TO GATHER.

Pasadena Business Leader Will Be One of Principal Speakers.

E. M. Hitchcock, manager of the Pasadena Merchants' Association, will speak on "The Relation of Industrial Progress and Policy to Retail Credit" at the June meeting of the Retail Merchants' Credit Association on Tuesday evening, at 741 South Broadway. Other speakers will be: H. Victor Wright, S. E. Edgerton and H. L. Rhodes. President W. W. Weir will preside.

COSTS LESS TO LIVE, DIE HERE.

Local Burial Expenses Are Lower Than in East.

Large Decrease in Outlay Shown in Past Year.

No Funeral Trust Here, Undertakers Say.

Having been convinced that it is cheaper today to live in white-spot Los Angeles than in any place in the United States, now come the funeral directors with a contention that "it is cheaper to die" here than it is east of the Rockies.

A number of undertakers were questioned about this final outlay and a marked reduction in costs was noted.

"Los Angeles is a conservative community," said Fred E. Pierce, president of Pierce Brothers. "Prices of funerals were never raised here to the extent that they were in the East, but even at that the cost of burial has been reduced at least 20 per cent since the peak of last year.

"The public is still putting the soft peddle on burial expenditures, and, I suppose, as in many other things, is waiting for cheaper prices in so far as it possibly can," laughed this gentleman, who for twenty years has been a funeral director here.

"The cost of burial is a difficult thing to discuss, for it is a matter that rests almost entirely with those bereaved, but it is a fact that it is becoming cheaper to die.

SENTIMENT PLAYS PART.

"Sentiment plays such an important part in this business that I do not see how we can discuss it," said J. W. McKellar. "The more sentiment that is developed among people the better the people are as a community. However, it is true that it is much cheaper to die now than it was last year, and it costs less here than in the East, with the added advantage that the expenditure is undoubtedly greatly postponed in Los Angeles."

A carefully compiled table of the total cost of handling 665 burials in 1915 showed an average of $99.44 per body, as against an average of $182.02 per body for the same number in 1920. For the first three months of 1921 the average is $169.39.

Three items in connection with the 665 burials are as follows:

	1915.	1920.
Merchandise	$13,860	$34,786
Wages	20,961	52,481
General expense	17,510	31,000

During the war silk plushes more than doubled in cost. Today they are sliding back to normal. Casket hardware increased from 200 to 300 per cent, and now all hardware is dropping in price. A large factor in funeral expense is automobile equipment and maintenance. The reduction in the cost of these items, together with general expenses, which are naturally being curtailed under general conditions, explain the marked lowering of costs.

COST OF GRAVES.

A plot for one casket, and carrying with it perpetual grass maintenance, can be had in cemeteries for from $30 to $75, according to location. Cripts in mausoleums cost from $300 to $500.

"The mausoleums have not yet been brought to a basis where they reach the larger body of the population," said one funeral director yesterday. "It is to be hoped that further developments will bring in the plain, ractical mausoleum that will be within the means of the general public, for it is clearly the most sensible method of providing final resting places. But here again, sentiment enters into the case and there are many thousands of people who believe in the grass plot with surrounding trees and flowers in the bosom of Mother Earth."

It was learned that records show that fifteen years ago there were ten cases of burials in the "potter's field" to one case of today.

During the peak of luxury prices there were caskets of cast bronze placed on the market which sold as high as $5000, but their sale was limited to eastern fields. Chicago is said to have headed the list for high cost of burial during the peak price days.

NO TRUST HERE.

Los Angeles is one city that is entirely free from the so-called undertaking trust, for while there is an association of funeral directors here, prices play no part in agreements, according to facts learned yesterday. The one item of preparing a body for shipment is perhaps the only exception, as all establishments charge approximately $50 for this service.

"Probably there is no business in which the merchant is placed in a more trying position than the funeral directing business," said a director. "The public generally does not understand that we are very often called upon to handle funerals at an absolute loss and that the average firm does not attempt to make any profit from the burial of children and poor people. We have to figure on the bulk of business for a given year which is quite a different problem from other lines of business. I am glad to discuss it, and I see no reason why the public should not be posted on the cost of dying as well as the cost of living."

NOWHERE in Los Angeles may you have greater enjoyment and thorough satisfaction in eating than at Gus Mann's Pot and Spigot Grill, 611 South Spring.

SIGHT-SEEING TRIPS

Through Southern California

UNIQUE PICTORIAL JOURNEYS—NEW FEATURE FOR "TIMES" READERS

Beginning today, the Rotogravure Section of the Sunday Times will take readers on a sight-seeing trip through Southern California, visiting a different community each week and showing the most interesting sights and objects in each locality.

Today's "trip" is to Santa Ana, the lively and picturesque county seat of Orange county. In the center of the page (turn to Rotogravure Section) you will see a reason why it is safer to speed through Santa Ana via The Times than by automobile.

Next Sunday, readers of The Times will be taken sight-seeing in Long Beach. When completed the series will form a pictorial summary of the Wonderland, the first literature of its kind produced in Southern California.

RURAL ROUTE CARRIER.

Examinations under the Civil Service Commission will be held in this city, Inglewood, Pomona and Santa Monica on July 23 to fill the position of rural mail carrier at Inglewood, and to determine the fitness of applicants to fill other vacancies which may later occur in the rural mail service in this county. The salary is $1800 annually for a rout of twenty-four miles, with an additional allowance of per annum for each fraction thereof twenty-four miles. women are eligible for tions.

ARMY OF WORKERS.

There are in Los Angeles more than 800 workers of the Crippled Children's Guild, who have at heart the welfare of crippled children and who work entirely without compensation, and pay their own expenses incident to that work. The Los Angeles Orthopedic Foundation was incorporated by a group of business men to administer the affairs of the institution without compensations of any kind and the large staff of physicians and surgeons gratuitously and gladly give their knowledge and service toward this worthy cause of crippled children.

TOO MUCH WED, SUITS CHARGE.

Three Spouses Demanding Annulments on Same Complaints.

Three spouses filed suits for annulment yesterday, the ground in each case being a former marriage still in force.

Elizabeth M. Cobb declared hat when she married William Maddox he had a wife, B. A. Maddox, still legally bound to him.

Cleesa Inez Bunce married Elvin T. McIntosh before she was legally separated from Vern C. Bunce. She stated she believed she was free to marry Mr. McIntosh, but discovered her error after becoming Mrs. McIntosh.

R. H. Rowe, alias William R. Sullivan, alias Bartholemew Sullivan, was a married man when he took Frances F. Woodman for a bride, Jan. 15, 1920. She brought suit under the name of Woodman.

ASKS HEALTH DEPARTMENT MERGER HERE.

Municipal League Urges Union of County and City Milk-Test Services.

The executive committee of the Municipal League yesterday made public a recommendation that the proposed consolidation of the city and county health departments be hastened. As a first step toward the consolidation, the league urges that the milk-inspection service of the city and county be united. The report of the executive committee of the league is as follows:

"There is spent nearly $500,000 a year for health service throughout the cities and county of Los Angeles.

"Thirty-three distinct cities in this county are going their respective thirty-three ways in the handling of health problems, which are to a great extent common to all of them and should be handled as such.

"The health service in most of the thirty-three cities is under the control of a part-time health officer, who receives for his services on the average about $35 per month, and whose chief concern, necessarily, with such small remuneration, must be for the building up of his own private practice. Some of these health officers are even laymen without an appreciation of the importance of reporting contagious diseases or of quarantining them.

"There is considerable overlapping of service and friction, due to the divided authority and responsibility of the various health officials. For example, in the matter of milk inspection, the city of Los Angeles, which has by all odds the best equipment for this work, while it may bar inferior or defective milk products from Los Angeles, cannot require the cleaning up of a dairy outside the city limits or prevent the inferior products of such dairy from being shipped into other cities or portions of the county, and cannot thus prevent the spread of typhoid or similar diseases from the unsanitary dairy through the county, and thence indirectly into the city of Los Angeles itself. In this way, a lot of work and money spent for the protection of health in our own city must go to waste.

"The same difficulties are in the way as to the inspection of other food products."

The report was signed by Dr. A. B. Newkirk, vice-chairman; Dr. E. S. Merrill, chairman subcommittee, and Anthony Pratt, secretary.

The city and county health officers, Drs. Powers and Pomeroy and Dr. True, in charge of the health work of the Board of Education, had attended conferences of the committee.

AMERICAN PARIS IS URGED HERE.

City Should be as Beautiful as French Capital.

Journey to Europe Convinces Angeleno of Needs.

Los Angeles Famous World Over as Cinema Center.

Returning from a trip to England, France, Italy and Switzerland, as well as through the principal eastern cities of this country, Allen T. Archer, one of the leading insurance men of the city, yesterday, in an interview, urged the people of Los Angeles to support the efforts of the City Planning Commission to develop Los Angeles into one of the world's most beautiful cities.

"Speaking just as a layman and not setting myself up as a city planning expert," said Mr. Archer yesterday, "I was struck throughout my trip by the importance given in all of the cities I visited to the subject of task of guiding the growth of these municipalities along under comprehensive plans worked out by unselfish, disinterested commissions and boards, which had only in mind the making of their cities more beautiful in every way than they could be made were they permitted to grow in haphazard fashion.

MORE BOULEVARDS.

"All agree that Los Angeles needs more boulevards and great traffic arteries connecting the congested section with the outlying districts. The City Planning Commission here has been actively at work planning these highways and the citizens should become interested in this work and assist in putting through these projects before it is too late. Philadelphia, for example, is building, under the guidance of its local commission, a great boulevard from the business section to Fairmount Park. It will be necessary to tear out great business blocks to do this work. Here in Los Angeles we can avoid this costly making over of the city by supporting plans for these absolutely necessary projects, which are being submitted from time to time by our own City Planning Commission.

NATURAL ADVANTAGES.

"Los Angeles, because of its natural setting, can become one of the world's most beautiful cities if every citizen will take an active interest in the work, and because we are just getting into our stride as a world city we can avoid the costly mistakes of the older cities.

"I found thousands of Americans enjoying themselves in Paris, and there, were a great many Californians there. Paris attracts the visitor, for one reason, because it is one of the world's most beautiful cities. New buildings cannot be built there unless they meet with the approval of the local art and planning commissions, which, if necessary, alter the proposed plans to fit in with the surrounding buildings and streets.

"Likewise, Los Angeles, with its climate and its mountains and seashore, can continue to attract increasing thousands of visitors and permanent residents if we take steps to make our city more convenient as well as more interesting from the artistic standpoint. There is a saying that every lamp post in Paris is a work of art, and this is true.

SAME CHANCE HERE.

"Los Angeles can be made equally attractive if we guide and shape its development and private and city improvements along artistic as well as utilitarian lines. The same conditions I find in Paris exist in other European cities where city regulation of city growth is taken as a matter of course, and as a result Americans go to European cities because life there is pleasing.

"Throughout the eastern cities of this country much attention is being given to the constantly increasing seriousness of the traffic regulation and control problem. It is being solved elsewhere by underground tracks and subways for street-car service through the congested sections of the cities. In Boston, for example, the ordinary sized and variety of street cars are run through subways in the downtown section. The people of Los Angeles, in my opinion, should begin to think right now of subways as a means of handling the congested street problem, due principally to the extraordinarily large number of automobiles in use here in proportion to the population. Los Angeles must come to subways sooner or later, in my opinion, and the sooner the better.

ON WORLD MAP.

"One feature of my trip which pleased me was the fact that when I met business men abroad and told them I was from Los Angeles, they all knew about our city. In other words, we are on the world map. And do you know the one phase of our activities here which has given Los Angeles world-fame? It is the motion-picture industry. We, who live here at the doors of the motion-picture plants, are not apt to appreciate the importance of this industry to Los Angeles. When I would say that I was from Los Angeles, almost the invariable reply would be, 'Why, that is the city where the motion pictures are made.'

"Commercial aviation has become a daily part of European life and business men ride to and from London, Paris, Brussels and other cities there just as we take a train here when we desire to go to San Francisco or Chicago. With the wonderful climatic conditions existing here, Los Angeles has a great opportunity to lead the United States, which has lagged far behind the other countries in the development of commercial aviation."

Mr. Archer left Los Angeles on April 15 and returned last Thursday.

HELD ON CHECK CHARGE

Former Police Officer In Jail, Unable to Raise Bond of $3000.

Accused of passing two checks aggregating $3200, for which he is said to have not had sufficient money in the bank, N. H. McLean, said to be a former police officer of Vernon, was arrested yesterday by Constables Thomas and Hayes and Deputy Stensland. It is charged McLean gave the checks to John Jarmuth. The defendant was arraigned before Justice Baird and committed to the County Jail in lieu of bail of $3000. His hearing was set for Wednesday.

SAXON DUPLEX

Greatly Reduced Prices

$400 to $500 less

New Sales Records Established Every Day

Saxon-Duplex sales are increasing every day.

The whole country just seems to have instantly become conscious of what a wonderful quality car the Saxon-Duplex is—particularly at the greatly reduced prices.

Last week I told you why I had picked and was proud of the Saxon-Duplex.

I told you I was staking my entire reputation on the wonderful performance of this really remarkable automobile.

Since last week's advertisement scores of people have come to my salesroom to see—and seeing were convinced.

Those who were in the market for a car bought immediately.

Many others made deposits for future delivery.

In most cases one examination—one demonstration was enough.

Many bought without even a demonstration. Their belief in my reputation—in my word was very, very gratifying.

Words are futile things. Yet the very "words" I published last week got an instant response.

After all "printed words" are the only means I have of rapidly telling everyone—you—why I am heart and soul back of the Saxon-Duplex.

I am back of it because the men back of it are true and tried motor car builders.

I am back of it for I know that every piece and part of the Saxon-Duplex is the best the world's market offers.

I am back of it because I know motor car design and construction and the Saxon-Duplex is far in advance of any other popular priced job in America.

I am back of it on account of the almost miraculous motor performance. It is the smoothest medium priced job on wheels.

I am back of it because of its exclusive Romon chassis lubrication system. Just flip a lever and oil is spread to twenty-eight chassis bearings. Done before your speedometer can clip off five yards!

I am back of it because it has a frame twice as deep as usually found on competitive cars.

I am back of it because the rear springs have a double absorption action.

And when it comes to looks—well—it is the snappiest design you've ever had a glimpse at. Low—snug—graceful—smart—with gentility designed into every line.

Come in and take a good long look.

I dare you to bring your wife or daughter!

STAGE SET FOR HUGE SPECTACLE.

Sky Carnival, Rodeo, Historical Pageant, Electrical Parade, First Showing of Bible Film, Mardi Gras, Street Fiesta for Veterans' Memorial.

California's greatest spectacle, embracing a cast of 10,000 actors and performers, including a sky carnival, rodeo, gigantic historical pageant, electrical parade, the first showing of the magnificent sacred film, "The Visualized Version of the Bible," Mardi Gras and street festival, takes place next Saturday, Sunday and Monday at Burbank.

This patriotic undertaking, for which a grand stand seating 25,000 persons will be completed tomorrow and for which more than 200 acres of ground will be required, is designed to raise funds with which to build a Memorial Hall for the veterans of all wars and as an armory for California National Guard troops.

It is by far the most pretentious Independence Day celebration planned by any city of the West and has the active support of government, State, county and municipal officials as well as many patriotic organizations, such as the American Legion, G.A.R., Red Cross, Spanish War Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, Boy Scouts of America, Actors' Equity and Community Service Singers.

Charles H. Kline, president of the Burbank Memorial Association, declared yesterday that more than 150,000 persons will attend the six big performances that are to be given in the twenty-five-acre arena, July 2, 3 and 4. Associated with Mr. Kline in the association are T. C. Ostrander, F. B. Scribner, Hugh R. Pomeroy, L. B. Taylor, William Coryell, R. O. Church, C. W. Anderson, Margaret D. Yale, Raymond Wells and Dr. A. E. W. Yale.

SOUTHLAND CO-OPERATES.

All of Southern California is co-operating to make the event the great success that is merited by its patriotic nature and by the mammoth program that has been arranged under the direction of leading citizens of San Fernando Valley.

As emphasizing the fact that this is in no sense a community affair—that it is in reality "California's Greatest Spectacle"—an advisory committee was formed with the following members: Henry W. Wright, formerly Speaker of the Assembly and now a member of the Board of Supervisors; Frank Meline, real estate man; H. Clay Needham of Newhall; W. A. Blanchard of the Blanchard Lumber Company; Congressman Lineberger; James J. Jeffries, formerly heavyweight champion of the world; William S. Hart, motion-picture celebrity; Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, R. M. Renfro, Sylvester L. Weaver, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; Col. Andrew J. Copp, Jr., and others.

Through Federal action troops from Fort MacArthur, bluejackets from the Submarine Base and four battalions of the California National Guard will hold a military pageant as a part of the big Burbank celebration. Adjt.-Gen. Boree will come south to review the troops and Gov. Stephens has been invited to deliver his Fourth of July address before the vast gathering.

TROOPS ORDERED.

Col. Widmire, Chief of Staff of the Ninth Army Corps, authorized the sending of Federal troops to the Burbank encampment a few days ago and Capt. Chauncey Shackford of the Submarine Base, has ordered eight squads of bluejackets there.

There will be two American Legion bands, one from Hollywood and the other from Glendale, while Col. Hatch of Fort MacArthur, will send the post band and a color guard in addition to the soldiers.

To accommodate the thousands who will go to Burbank from all sections of Southern California, an enormous tent city, occupying fifteen acres, will be erected this week, affording temporary housing for 10,000 or more persons. There will be a big playground for children, chaperone tents and nursery arrangements. Also free camping ground for automobile parties and a forty-acre auto park in charge of American Legion men.

National interest attaches to the colossal airplane meet and sky carnival for this promises to be the greatest event of the kind ever held in the United States.

AIR PROGRAM.

The air program will actually open a day in advance of the big celebration, for the secretaries of 100 Chambers of Commerce in Southern California and many prominent citizens are to be carried to the grounds by airplane from many points within a day's flight of Burbank.

Three hundred and fifty planes will participate. On Friday the pilots will leave for the various points at which they are to pick up the secretaries. They will carry these passengers from such distant points as San Diego, El Centro, Redlands, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Ana, Bakersfield and Santa Barbara.

The list of pilots entered in the sky carnival includes the names of practically all of the big men in the game in the West. The Aero Club has not only given its indorsement to the meet, but is co-operating to the fullest extent in having all of the entrants lined up for next week.

This event has double importance, for in addition to the pleasure and excitement it will provide, it is designed to impress upon the public the fact that commercial aviation is an accomplished thing in the development of community life and will also draw to the attention of the various chambers of commerce and city officials the necessity of providing suitable landing fields with facilities for commercial aviation.

CARNIVAL TO OPEN.

Next Saturday the sky carnival will open immediately above the arena. The planes will first pass over in battle formation flying as they did in France during the World War. They will break up in groups and separate, machines engaging in mimic conflict, portraying some of the big maneuvers executed in the war.

Then all of the planes will retire from above the field, save two. These planes will circle low while a passenger is being transferred from one ship to another, showing this daring stunt can be done without landing. This will be one of the most spectacular numbers of the air program and will be followed by the passenger demonstrating how it is possible to walk upon the wings of a plane while it is in flight. There will also be acrobatics from a rope ladder suspended from an airship.

A plane will then climb to an altitude of several thousand feet above the arena and the passenger will disembark by parachute, dropping gently to the ground while the plane circles back to the landing field.

Another plane will mount into the air lanes and perform daring stunts, showing the ease with which an airplane may be handled and also demonstrating how flyers escaped from dangerous positions during the war. This flyer will show the famous barrel roll, the Immelman turn and loop, the tail spin, nose dive and many other hair-raising maneuvers.

AIR RECONNAISSANCE.

The closing air event Saturday will be a reconnaissance movement by all the planes. They will first come over in formation. When a bomb is exploded from the ground, designating to the fleet that danger has been sighted by the watchers, the planes will break into scouting parties, moving from formation positions in all directions to hunt the enemy. This is one of the most interesting movements to behold from the ground.

After dark on July 4, the planes will give a patriotic parade. One plane will mount to a great height and, with fireworks streaming out behind, will perform all sorts of acrobatics. This will be the closing air thriller.

When it is said that the sky carnival is but one of a dozen features of equal interest and importance, it is seen on what a gigantic scale the celebration has been planned.

The Actors' Equity Association of America, Hollywood branch, will put on a historical pageant surpassing in mass production and beauty of costuming anything of the kind ever witnessed here. It has been given the title, "The Building of an Empire," and was written from historical works by Frank A. Newburg and Jack Connolly, members of the Actors' Equity.

ENORMOUS CAST.

There will be a cast of 2000 persons in this spectacle alone. The production will cover twenty episodes of California history, beginning with the time of the aborigines and coming down to the present. It will depict the coming of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo and party, Portola and his soldiers, the Franciscan Fathers, led by Junipero Serra, the Russians, headed by Count Nicolai Petrovich Rezanof; Gov. Echeandia and followers, Gov. Victoria and follows, Gov. Alvarado and followers, John A. Sutter, Lieut.-Col. John C. Fremont and soldiers, Kit Carson and guides, William B. Ide followed by Merritt and Semple, Gen. Vallejo, accompanied by his brother, Capt. Vallejo and Col. Prudon; Gen. Philip Kearney and soldiers, James W. Marshall and gold diggers, Commodore John D. Sloat and marines, Commander-in-Chief Flores and Commandante Andres Pico with aides, Forty-niners, pony express, stage coaches, Civil War veterans, under Fighting Joe Hooker, Col. Roosevelt and Rough Riders, Disabled Veterans of the World War, American Legion, National Guard and Federal troops with United States bluejackets.

RODEO ON PROGRAM.

On Saturday the preliminaries of the $10,000 rodeo will be held, with 500 western contestants entered. This thrilling feature is under the direction of Curley Eagles and Cy Jones. A herd of wild, unridable horses has been gathered for the competition. These animals are on the ranch of Bob Anderson, above Newhall. There will be Indian fighting, trick riding, lariat work and all of the stunts that go with a Wild West show.

The finals of the rodeo and awarding of $10,000 in cash prizes will be held Monday as a part of the safe and sane Independence celebration.

The first showing of the sacred film, "The Visualized Version of the Bible," is promised for Sunday. The first two episodes are to be shown on six enormous screens, set at points in the arena where they will afford the vast audience a clear view of the picture.

The picture is later to be shown throughout the civilized world.

Every Southern California county has been invited to participate in the picturesque electrical parade which is to be held next Saturday night in the arena. Floats from 2000 communities have been entered, including the beach cities, San Fernando Valley towns and many of the more distant points.

EXPERT IN CHARGE.

The floats have been limited in size to from four to ten feet so as to keep the entire parade within the large arena inclosure, if it is possible to do so. Mrs. Dorothy Shindler, regarded as one of the best versed authorities on the Pacific Coast in pageantry of this kind, is in charge of the event, which will appear on the program as "La Fiesta."

That the visiting delegations from distant cities, going to the celebration to participate in the electrical pageant and other events, may be sheltered and protected during the three days' celebration, separate tents have been provided for them and their chaperons. All of the floats will be drawn by persons instead of by horses or motor vehicles.

There is to be a big Midway in the grounds, with shows of all sorts. The Midway will be unique and picturesque. All of the buildings housing concessions have been built in adobe, mission style, and the great wall of the arena has also been built in the same style.

GREAT FESTIVAL.

Fourth of July night there will be a great Mardi Gras and street festival, in which the thousands of visitors will take part. All persons joining in these festivities are expected to be costumed. Prizes will be awarded to those in the most attractive, comical and grotesque apparel.

All roads leading to Burbank have been placarded with guide signs reading, "Follow the Star to Burbank," so no motorist can go wrong. The Pacific Electric will put on extra car service and there will be ample bus service from the various car lines so as to bring people direct to the grounds.

"California's Greatest Spectacle" gives every assurance of being all that the Burbank Memorial Association says of it.

Cartwright Law May Mean Jail in Milk Cases.

Steps were taken yesterday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Powell to cite the fourteen milk companies, indicted by the grand jury for violation of the Cartwright Act in restraint of trade, to appear in Judge Reeve's court on July 5 to answer to the charges. Mr. Powell pointed out that a separate offense is committed for each day's violation of the law. In cases of individuals indicted, a jail sentence is part of the penalty and Mr. Powell said he would seek to have such sentences inforced in case of convictions.

It was pointed out by the prosecutor that a violation of the Cartwright Act by a "principal, manager, director, agent, servant or employee," or a person employed in any other capacity by such companies actually violating this law is punishable by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $5000, or by imprisonment of from six months to one year in the County Jail, or by both a fine and imprisonment. Such a penalty could be inforced for each separate offense, Mr. Powell stated.

JUSTICE McREYNOLDS TO MAKE VISIT HERE.

FORMER ATTORNEY-GENERAL WILL ARRIVE THURSDAY; TO ADDRESS LAWYERS.

Former United States Attorney-General, now Justice James Clark McReynolds, of the United States Supreme Court, is to arrive here Thursday to visit his brother and family, Dr. R. P. McReynolds of 18 Berkeley Square.

The justice has been a frequent visitor to California for some thirty years or more. He is enthusiastic over golfing, swimming and motoring, and so finds in California the ideal opportunity for rest, recreation and exercise in the open air.

During his stay here this time, Justice McReynolds has consented to give an informal address before the Bar Association, and will speak on the subject of "Practice Before the Supreme Court." Extensive preparations are being made for his reception.

ANNULMENT GRANTED.

Woman Freed from Man Who Wed Her Before Legally Free.

Mrs. Carrie Hornibrook Withrow was granted an annulment of marriage from La Verne Withrow, in Judge Walton J. Wood's court yesterday. The ground was that Mr. Withrow had married her while the interlocutory decree granted in a former marriage was in force.

A letter from Mr. Withrow to his wife was offered in evidence, one paragraph reading:

"I know, dear, that I am to blame for everything, and I will accept my punishment like a man and try to live the right kind of life in the future."

The letter also stated Mr. Withrow was willing to remarry her, adding:

"I am willing to do that yet, dear. Without you it will be mighty lonesome. Believe me, sweetheart, I will always love you."

INJURED BY BLAST, WOMAN LOSES SUIT.

Mrs. Grace L. Aikins was injured when a piece of cement was blown through the window of her apartment by a blast of dynamite, while excavation was being made for a building at Fifth street and Grand avenue. She sued the Central Garage Company, owners of the building, and J. A. Hill, in charge of the excavating, asking $10,000 damages. In Judge Monroe's court yesterday the case was dismissed as against the Central Garage Company, and a verdict found in favor of Mr. Hill.

But the importance of the islands was slight until one of them, Catalina, became a resort for tourists and, says the Mexico City Post, "this land is owned by an American who has built a palatial mansion on it." The reference is to William Wrigley, Jr., whose only interest in Mexico is that a certain unmasticatable substance grows there. Mr. Wrigley's improvements have delighted tourists and disturbed fish for several years now.

BUT FOR PROHIBITION.

But Mexico's amour propre probably would not have been piqued to the point of action in this matter if it had not been for prohibition in the United States. For, under Mexican rule, there probably would be as many American bartenders employed on each island, as there are in Tijuana and Juarez.

Officials in Washington are much perplexed about the matter. Already there are some very puzzling boundary disputes with Mexico; in one, Mexico lays claim to a portion of El Paso, Tex. These claims are due to the caprices of the Rio Grande, which was a part of the boundary, but which has performed its function as such very poorly in some parts by changing its bed over night and then often moving it back again. For a time international lawyers failed to keep an eye on the Rio Grande, and there is no clear record of where the river has been bedding. The Mexican claim to the islands off California, however, is based more on history than geography. It is contended that the islands went to Mexico when Spain recognized Mexico's independence, and that they were not included in the job-lot of territories the United States got for $15,000,000, after Gen. Scott had taken Chapultepec.

Pursuing the Mexican logic, it would not be remote if Spain should get Santa Catalina, Farallones and the rest. For if the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo fails to hold, the Spanish recognition of the independence of Catalina, Farallones, etc., may not stand; in which case the islands would revert to Spanish rule, and there is little difference between a Mexican "cantina" and a Spanish "cantina."

Prior right, also, might cause—if strict justice were done—a reversion of the islands to aboriginal inhabitants, if any could be found, and since these probably took the land from some prehistoric species, in due course the islands would revert to the sea gulls and fish, to which teetotal inhabitants of the United States government could raise no objection.

WILL HONOR UNCLE SAM.

Twenty-two nations will pay their homage to America at an elaborate Independence celebration to be staged by the Gamut Club the first week in July. According to Secretary McCollum, it will be one of the most representative international gatherings ever held in the city to commemorate this country's freedom.

Invitations have been extended to nineteen consuls, some of whom represent two nations, and practically all of them have accepted. The affair will have all the color and character, it is said, of a diplomatic conclave.

Expansive decorations in keeping with the spirit of the occasion will be installed in the clubrooms. The event will be started with a banquet. This will mark the first public appearance of L. E. Behymer, the club's president, since his recent illness. In addition to the consuls, a limited number of other guests will be invited.

Hans S. Linne, director of the California Opera Company and also a director of the Gamut Club, willl be in charge of the patriotic musical program to be rendered after the banquet. A program of brilliance and merit, contributed to by some of the city's most popular artists, is promised.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY FOR AMATEURS
By Ira W. Wolfe

WIRELESS CLASS.

The following is a complete outline of the instructions used by the United States Navy in its electrical school at the navy yard, New York, for the purpose of training the boys to become wireless operators. Each unit of study is numbered and the complete reference of the study is given below. Please follow the outline very carefully. The writer will be very glad to answer any questions and describe special apparatus if requested by the readers. To receive prompt attention please address Ira W. Wolfe, 1331 West Seventy-first street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Ira W. Wolfe

STUDY UNITS.

The following are the study units for the wireless class, first week:

1. Study and practice continental code, published in previous article.
2. Study wave motion in air, water and ether.
3. Study electric oscillations and electric waves; how produced and detected. (All these were described in previous issues of this paper with illustrations, Figures 1 to 12, inclusive.)
4. Study low-frequency alternating currents, single and polyphase.
5. Study capacity.
6. Study inductance.
7. Study the effect of capacity, inductance and resistance on an alternating current system.
8. Study the induction motor.
9. Study the alternating current generator, single and polyphase.
10. Study transformers.
11. Study and describe the motor generator used in connection with wireless sets. Make diagram of connections.
12. Study rotary and other interrupters.

The references to study for first week's work are:

1. Waves and ripples in air, water and ether, by J. A. Fleming.
2. Wireless telegraphy, its history, theory and practice, by A. F. Collins.
3. Alternating currents, by S. B. Thompson.

Pertinent questions on first week's work:

1. Explain wave motion, ether waves, wave lengths, wave velocity, wave frequency, amplitude, energized wave trains, oscillation.
2. Describe production of wave trains, wave energy.
3. Distinguish between wave velocity and wave train velocity.
4. Why does a wave train break?
5. What is a ripple?
6. What is the difference between a wave train and a ripple?
7. Explain reflection and refraction of ripples and waves.
8. Why are alternating currents used in wireless telegraphy?
9. How are very high voltages obtained?
10. What is an alternator?

HEADS OSTEOPATHS.

Dr. L. R. Daniels, Sacramento, is Made President of Association.

Additional business sessions of the California Osteopathic Association were held Friday morning, and Dr. L. R. Daniels of Sacramento was named the president of the association for the coming year. Dr. Stewart J. Fitch of Pasadena was elected president of the advisory council to the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons. Other permanent officers for the State association are: Dr. Emily V. Sutton of San Francisco, vice-president, and Dr. C. V. Rowlingson of Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer. Post graduate and clinical conferences were held at the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons yesterday, thereby completing the program of the week.

ALIENS MUST REGISTER.

Subject to Arrest and Imprisonment if Unable to Show Certificate.

Within a month from next Thursday every male alien between the ages of 21 and 60 must register, according to a digest of the alien registration law as given out yesterday by County Registrar Lyons, who is in charge of the work in this county. Registration clerks will be on duty at convenient places in the city and county and will give to those qualifying for them certificates of registration. These certificates must be kept constantly on the person of those registered, who will otherwise be liable to arrest and imprisonment.

If an alien fails to pay his tax before Dec. 1, 1921, it will be increased by 50 per cent. Continued failure to pay the tax will subject an alien to the seizure and sale of his personal property.

THREE PARTIES SEEK VICTORY IN GLENDALE.

FIGHT HINGES UPON "BLUE LAW" AND CEMETERY EXTENSION ISSUES.

Three active parties in local politics are enlivening Glendale with their claims for preferment at the municipal election to be held there Tuesday.

Outdoor activities began late Friday when decorated floats made their appearance and street corner speeches and precinct organization meetings were started by the Glendale Better Council Campaign Committee, which is leading the fight against Sunday closing and the extension of the cemetery, now outside the city limits, to cover a portion of the urban territory of South Glendale.

The candidates of the Better Council Committee pledged against blue laws and cemetery extension, are W. E. Anderson, S. A. Davis, C. E. Kimlin, William C. Mabry and Spencer Robinson.

The Municipal League ticket, which has been accused of favoring the Sunday closing, and has refused to deny or affirm the charge, is composed of the following: W. B. Kirk, C. H. Muhleman, H. W. Yarick, Anna Bartlett and Howard Walker.

The Good Government League ticket includes D. W. Stephenson, A. H. Lapham, and accepts Messrs. Davis, Kimlin and Robinson, who are fusion candidates on two tickets.

The Better Council Committee took the field for the avowed purpose of defeating Messrs. Stephenson and Lapham, the former, because of the introduction of the cemetery ordinance, and the latter because his work compels him to be absent from his home city a large portion of his time.

STANDARD NON-SKID
30x3½

Ford and other light car owners can now buy a tire of recognized standing and quality at a price that Firestone knows is the greatest value ever offered to the motoring public.

Cords At New Low Prices

Firestone Non-Skid Cords also are offered at lower prices: 30x 3½, $24.50; 32x4, $46.30; 34x4½, $54.90. Tire Repair men, who judge values best, class the Firestone Cord as the sturdiest carcass made. The tread justifies the name "Non-Skid." It is not merely a pattern but a scientifically constructed non-skid with angles and contacts which give real effectiveness in holding the car against slipping or skidding. Its extra thickness where the wear is most severe gives many extra miles of service. Forty-seven high-grade car manufacturers now use it as original equipment.

Go to the Firestone dealer. He offers you greater protection and economy at a time when protection and economy are demanded as never before.

LAYING STONES OF HOLY CITY.

Greater "Pilgrimage Play" is Now Preparing.

New Wealth of Atmosphere for Spiritual Drama.

Research Proves Strength of Bible Chronicle.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

In the midst of the Hollywood hills Mexican laborers are slowly laying the stones which mark the stairway to Pilate's house. They are preparing the pillars of the temple, and the rock of Gethsemane. The hilltops send forth the shaft of the yucca marking the passing of spring. Cream-colored walls fade into the perspective of green and brown landscape, framing its beauties, modulating its outlines, suggesting the approach of thousands of invaders of the silent verdant countryside.

The setting of the "Pilgrimage Play."

A little distance from the natural amphitheater is a white Castilian house. It lies on the edge of the roadway traveled daily by thousands of busy wayfarers and pleasure-seekers, who cross and recross from the city to the valley beyond, and from the valley to the city.

The home of Mrs. Christine Wetherill Stevenson, founder of the play.

In the patio that adjoins the dwelling all is preparation. Chairs are covered with silks, linens and rough camel's-hair garments. There are strange vases and water jars—lanterns of curious design and more curious execution, saddle bags and baskets, beads, silver ornaments and strange headdresses—oriental, remote, exhaling the past even in the freshness of their beauty.

The new "atmosphere" of the play.

A girl was posing for a picture as I entered the patio. They had wound a silken scarf about her head, a kaffiyeh, I believe it is called. They crowned this with the rough circlet of coins, which is at the same time an adornment and a dowry, for the Jewish maiden. On her head they placed a water jar.

One could see her quaver a bit beneath the weight, which was a new experience for the Occidental woman.

"I feel like I have the whole city of Jerusalem on my head," she said, smiling. And then while she held the jar the photograph was snapped and the ordeal was over.

The costumes, which I had seen, the little enterprise of "making up," the activities on the hillside beyond were all part of the program, now begin carried out by Mrs. Stevenson for a "Pilgrimage Play" presentation, beginning July 11, greater by far that which attracted and held throngs with its sipirtual beauties last summer.

This is the second season for the sacred drama of The Christ. It is a season of renewed endeavor and heightened aspiration. From Henry E. Herbert, who portrays the Savior, to the least member of the mob, each person in the company is giving of his or her best, not for material gain, but through the love for the sublimity of the message, the work of art and the inspiration. Each has left the influence of the founder, whose efforts and whose thoughts have always energetically centered on the drama, its meaning and its future.

SEEKING THE SOURCES.

On the close of the last season, Mrs. Stevenson decided that she would seek the impulse of her art at the fountain whence it sprang. For which reason, she sailed last October for Europe and the Holy Land. She spent six months in the

THEIR FIRST FILM TOGETHER.

And Wallace MacDonald and Doris May are Not Married in it Either, Although Very Much Wed in Real Life.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

Here they are, bride and groom! It's the very first picture they ever worked in together — and they haven't a single scene together! In fact, each is married to somebody else in the picture, and they don't even have a flirtation.

A cruel fate, I'll tell the world!

I'm talking about Wallace MacDonald and Doris May, and the picture is Maurice Tourneur's "Foolish Matrons," which goes on at the Symphony today.

In this picture, which as it happens, seems like a good lesson to young married folk. Miss May is driven down the wrong path by the coldness and cruelty of her husband, while Wallace MacDonald is driven to his death through the selfishness of his wife.

Of course, Wallace vows nobody in the world could possibly treat the sweet little Doris May that way, and Miss May feels equally sure that no woman with a speck of soul could be so heartless to the noble Wallace MacDonald.

A few years ago I had an interview with Doris May, I remember, and here's what I recorded:

"Doris May has attained the ripe age of 17 years and the firm conviction never to marry."

Needless to say, she hadn't met Mr. MacDonald them. He was her very first sweetheart, in fact; though, alas, due to the cruel exigencies of art and the irony of fate, Wallace wasn't the first man who kissed her. That was Charlie Ray—and she says she felt terribly about it at the time, as though the whole studio must be thinking that she was a dreadful woman.

Doris May did hold to her non-marital resolution—for almost two years!

Now she is the wife of Wallace, and they are keeping house in a pretty apartment in Culver City, where they spend their evenings drawing plans for the new home they are going to build on one of their Hollywood lots.

The apartment is cosy and prettily furnished, a special feature being a piano lamp and some nice rugs and pieces of furniture bid in by Mr. MacDonald at the Actors' Fund Festival not long ago, while it's sure to strike you what a nice collection of picture Mr. MacDonald has. Pictures, indeed, are his hobby, and he owns sixty-seven very choice ones, many of which are packed away until the new house is finished.

IDEAL ROMANCE.

The love affair of Miss May and Mr. MacDonald is perhaps the most ideal I have ever known of. Let those who scoff at picture folk hear of these two well-bred young people.

Miss May met Wallace at a dinner party at the Hollywood Hotel, when Agnes Johnston and Frank Dazey announced their own engagement. Doris didn't like men in those days—leastways, she only approved of the old ones. She suspected all the young ones of being deep, dark devils. She had been reared in a convent, and was afraid of men—exactly like a little girl in comic opera and the novels.

But those picture folk are quick workers, and when Wallace took Doris in to dinner, one of the first

"THE LAMPLIGHTER" AT THE HIPPODROME.

Shirley Mason, the diminutive Fox star, will be seen at the Hippodrome, beginning today, for three days, in "The Lamplighter," one of the best vehicles, which Miss Mason has yet appeared in.

Travato, the eccentric and humorous violinist, will headline the vaudeville show. He is said to be one of the greatest musical attractions in vaudeville.

Robinson's Baboons are vaudeville's greatest collection of simian actors and comedians.

Eddie and Grace Parks present a bungalow of beauty ballads and bunk, and Charlotte Quorth offers syncopated song studies.

Herman and Ergotti present a snappy pot pourri of novel versatilities.

POLO TO START SERIAL.

Eddie Polo will start work immediately at Universal City on another serial. This time it is "The Secret Four," a story by Anthony Coldewey, based on the oil game. The star will be supported by Kathleen Myers. Doris Deane, who has just finished an interesting role with Frank Mayo in "The Shark Master," and other screen favorites will be added as production progresses. Albert Russell will direct.

"OVER THE HILL" TO WITHDRAW SOON.

Owing to public demand, "Over the Hill" will be shown for one more week.

The coming week will be the very last opportunity for seeing this great masterpiece of the screen. Although the last week was announced last Sunday, there has been such a heavy demand from persons who have not yet seen the play that William Fox arranged an extension of one more week in the local run. The next six days, however, should be taken advantage of, owing to the fact that "Over the Hill" will not be shown here again for more than a year.

"Over the Hill" has made a phenomenal record here. Everywhere it has shown people have flocked to see it. In New York it is now playing in the forty-fourth week, having broken every record for a motion picture in this great theater city.

The final performance in Los Angeles will be given next Saturday night.

"LESSONS IN LOVE."

Attractive Triple Bill Offered at Kinema This Week.

The biggest cinematic amusement bill in its history is billed for the Kinema the coming week. The presentation will be the first of "unit programs," comprised of individual features combined into a harmonious whole.

Constance Talmadge in her latest First National attraction, "Lessons in Love," heads the new presentation.

This is said to be the most sparkling comedy in which Connie has appeared in some time. She is supported by Flora Finch (of old Vitagraph-John Bunny fame,) Kenneth Harlan, Florence Short, James Harrison, George Fawcett and others of note.

The story has to do with a winsome young heiress, who insists on running her estate herself, and who gets into most serious scrapes when she begins to teach love to her admirers.

Second feature on the new bill will be the Los Angeles debut of the Royal Purple Syncopated Orchestra, under the direction of Ted Henkel, believed the highest type of modernist musicians. The engagement of this aggregation is considered a distinct scoop for the Kinema.

Third feature of the bill will be the most thrilling single-reel subject ever screened, Lyman Howe's "Ride on a Runaway Train," while Lyons and Moran supply the boisterous fun with "Roman Romeos;" their latest two-reel laugh fest.

Miss Stella Hymson, lyric soprano, returns as soloist for the week, and the "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" as overture.

DANCES IN PICTURE.

Freddric KoVert, the dance artist, has been engaged by Realart for a special feature in a new film production, work upon which began last week. KoVert's latest creation, "The Firebird," which he has just finished costuming, will be his contribution to the picture.

DEDICATED TO BETTER HOMES

The Real Test of Value in Furnishing the Home

To do the thing that is right—quietly, unobtrusively—is but a natural act in perfect accord with the purpose and dignity of this institution.

The California Furniture Company was the first home furnishing institution on the Pacific Coast to revise its prices for the benefit of the public to conform with the new low levels.

Every piece of furniture, every item of furnishing for the home, in this establishment is a true barometer recording normal price levels.

A proper valuation is placed on every article here with no preconceived idea of making an apparent reduction to inveigle the public into buying. When these prices are changed to reflect the immediate market it is done without loud acclaim of sacrifice.

And the value placed on every article in this one-price institution represents present intrinsic worth and carries with it no premium for the exclusiveness and distinction to be found here.

As a matter of principle—as a duty one owes to oneself—or even just to satisfy a natural curiosity—before making a purchase of house furnishings of any nature, it is suggested that first a comparison be made with the values to be found here.

Upon the result of such comparison the California Furniture Company is content to abide.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

On Child's Body For Three Months. Itched Awfully.

"My child was just full of pimples for three months. The pimples were large and red and were scattered all over her body. They itched something awful. I tried all kinds of things but nothing did any good. A friend told me to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I did and they healed my baby in less than two weeks." (Signed) Mrs. E. Tebaldi, 1427 Sherman St., Alameda, Calif., July 28, 1920.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap and occasional touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soften, soothe and heal. They are ideal for the toilet, as is also Cuticura Talcum for perfuming.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden 43, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The Order for Her Picture.

I say what Cromwell said,
(Smile, gray-haired sceptic, if you think me bold)
And that Italian count whose hair was red—
His great will would not have it painted gold.

No, I am brave, not vain;
Braver than he of Macedon, since I
For Vanity's slight sake would hardly stain
Art and the awful future with a lie.

You know that hand whose pride
Within its hollow held one world, afar
Reaching for others, raised itself to hide
On pictured brows the glory of a scar.

But paint me as I am,
Whatever shape or color you may see;
And do not fold the white fleece of the lamb
About the yellow lioness, for me.

Ay, as I am. And then,
No matter what you on your canvas find,
It will not shrink before the eyes of men;
It shall be truth—unless your soul be blind!

—[Sallie M. B. Piatt.

Eastern Landscapes.

Up to the present, landscape has been the chief "output" of the painters of Southern California, though there are now lively signs that a fine balance will soon be struck, and that the portrait and figure painters are coming into their own.

But the interest in landscape has not been confined to California. Though very modern in its fullest development, it flourishes apace throughout the world, and the finest landscapes ever painted have come from our eastern States—and some, too, from those of the West. America, indeed, has doen more than any other country in landscape.

Comparisons are by no means always odious, and therefore California landscapists and lovers of landscape painting are rejoiced when they hear that landscapes from elsewhere are on exhibition in Los Angeles. Such expositions are becoming more and more numerous, with the result that we are "learning a lot." As all of life—and also all of art—is a lesson in understanding and appreciation, we may thankfully consider ourselves lucky.

A very attractive little exhibition of works by eastern painters, most of them New Yorkers, is now on view in the Kanst gallery. Though small, it is good throughout. Some of the names on the list are famed on two continents. A few will probably live.

They are not large canvases, but to my way of thinking all the better for that. One may con a very big lesson from a very little book. Witness the New England Primer, which taught patriotism, and helped much toward building up a great nation. A small picture may—and often does—hold all the essentials of great art.

William Keith wasn't an easterner, except in his earlier and obscurer days, so we will turn to him first. Here are three examples of his work, two painted in the period before he turned to glooming forest shades. The other, "In to the Storm," is of the forest. The two were painted in the open, depicting the hills and mountains of California, and give us many fine and rather cold grays. "Into the Storm" is typical, a splendid example of the many "Keiths" that brought their author fame and fortune. The sky is darkly threatening, and past oaks blown by the strong wind, a solitary rider is making his way toward the usual patch of light on the horizon. Strong contrasts effectively handled by a master somewhat prone to formulas.

Whether Emil Carlsen is now of the East or the West I cannot say. His "Summer Clouds" is a poetical and decorative thing, very lovely and tender in its expression. The rack of clouds is piled against a blue sky, a slender tree is set in the foreground.

The recent death of that most poetical of landscape painters, J. Francis Murphy, gives added interest to anything from his brush that may be shown. "The Wood Lot" is an exquisite example, truthful and simple, beautiful in tone. A few scattered logs on a slanting meadow, a tree or two, a brooding sky—that is all—yet it is a poem of nature.

Elliott Daingerfield's two landscapes I do not car for. His schemes of color seem to me too arbitrary, and he gives no quality to his landscape forms, they mix and blend, and are without substance. The effect is that of a painting on porcelain.

A picture of distinction is D. W. Tryon's "Autumn Evening," a line of denuded trees seem like a colored mist against a very cool bluish sky and the hazy blue of distant landscape. Though small, the canvas has a sort of classic perfection and completeness.

Frank Ballard Williams is like a strayed reveller from halcyon gardens of Watteau and Fraginard, though, being modern and American, after all, he sings his love ditties "with a difference." Three beautiful ladies are seen in his canvas, "Where the World's Forgotten," and their gowns and their garden are so full of rich and subdued color, so far removed from the jazz of today, that they make us glad—and sad. Would that we, too, for the nonce, might loll in luxurious ease where the world's forgotten!

The fine simplicity of Bruce Crane's "Northern Twilight" is admirable. Ruddy brown marshes reaching toward a yellow sunset sky of October and a most tenderly painted distance. A lovely little landscape, and a truthful. Truth and tenderness are also found in G. H. McCord's "Autumn," the meadow to the right stretching upward toward a twilight sky, the row of willows to the left showing ruddy tones.

Julien Dupre's "Haying" is thoroughly characteristic, from the well-drawn figure, instinct with action, of the woman at work to the cold green tones of the landscape and the cold blue and white colors of the sky. In harmony with these tints are the blue and pink and plum-colored clothes of the sturdy peasant worker.

Always an artist in mosaics, Childe Hassam does not depart from his method in his charming little picture of "The Village Church." (Mr. Kanst and I gave the canvas this unpicturesque title; the canvas had none at all.) The village is set on a wooded hill, overlooking a broad channel or river, and we see the shore line on the opposite side. The colors are placed like jewels, clean and sparkling. The drawing is excellent—more meticulously correct, indeed, than in many of Mr. Hassam's pictures.

From Paul Dougherty, that superb painter of the sea in its more perturbed moods, we have two pictures, "Sunrise After a Gale" and "Leaping Waters," both very good indeed. In both the tumultuous waves have the beauty of crushed beryl, the foam is like crushed pearl. In "Sunrise After a Gale" the sky shows the delicate flush of an opening flower with streaked petals. In "Leaping Waters" the rock forms are as magnificently modeled as the waves.

There are three paintings from the brush of W. Granville Smith. The finest of these, "The Red Mill," was recently shown at the National Academy. The red building and another smaller building are seen against a vast sky of brooding blue and under yellowing elms. The technique is suave with feeling. "The Boat Landing, Belleport, R. I.," is also very attractive, the landing reaching out into green waters and toward white sails silhouetted on the sky. "Autumn Landecape" calls for no particular comment, it lags far behind the two pictures already mentioned.

On the whole, an interesting exhibit—don't you think?

The Ghisi Collection.

An event of unusual interest to the art lovers and connoisseurs of Los Angeles is forecast in the return of Guiseppe Filippo Ghisi, after an extended trip abroad.

Although Mr. Gishi has made a yearly pilgrimage to Europe in the interests of the Ghisi and Berry studios, this particular trip is of significance, in that it was undertaken in a wider sense, and only after Mr. Gishi, through his contact with the people of Los Angeles, felt assured that the city could support a gallery given over to the exhibition of the beautiful from every land.

The trip was for the purpose of fulfilling certain commissions for California art collectors. That Mr. Ghisi purchased many beautiful and interesting objects of art, soon to be placed on exhibition, he does not deny, and this exhibition bids fair to be one of significance in the growth of Los Angeles as an art center.

In the course of his travels Mr. Ghisi visited Paris, Berlin, Leipsig, Dresden, Haida (the center of the old Bohemian glass industry, and now a part of Czecho-Slovakia,) Vienna, Venice, Milan, Florence, Genoa, Barcelona, Madrid, Valencia, Seville and many other smaller cities, each important for some phase of ancient or modern art.

A truly romantic feature of his trip was the discovery that in a number of the old shops of the continent there is evidence that many of the choicest pieces of tapestry, antique furniture and statuary, long cherished by the old families of Europe as heirlooms, are finding their way into the market.

This interesting discovery led to the unearthing of many pieces which in reality should be preserved by the most famous museums of the Old World. As an example, Mr. Ghisi returned with two torchieres of most unusual beauty which came direct from La Capponcina, the villa of D'Anunnzio, the soldier-poet of Italy. This disintegration of many of the most historic families of Europe, through the exigencies of war, has made the collection of such pieces possible.

In Italy were obtained some rare tapestries as well as some notable examples of early Italian chests, and of particular interest to those who favor the Spanish, there will soon be placed on view chests from Spain, as well as a number of exquisite examples of out-of-door fountains and pieces for the patio, sun porch and garden.

While in Paris, in the effort to obtain a certain type of tapestry for one of his clients, Mr. Ghisi stumbled upon a rare specimen of blue tapestry of the reign of Louis XIV. The price asked for this piece was so large that Mr. Ghisi called upon one of the most famous connoisseurs of France for his opinion. This step almost lost him the tapestry. It was so perfect an example of its period that Mr. Ghisi was glad to pay the premium demanded and invoked by its existence becoming known. Of course, the price of such a tapestry is almost prohibitive, but it will be exhibited in the fall at the Ghisi and Berry salon, and afterward may be loaned to the Otis Art Museum for study by the classes attending that institution. It is believed that there is not another tapestry of this nature in the United States.

It is interesting to note that in the newly created nations of the continent there is a strong revival of the ancient pottery industry, which has made certain districts famous in the past. In Vienna Mr. Ghisi obtained some of the original creations of artists famous in the potting of vases, jardinieres, etc. These pieces cannot be duplicated, as Mr. Ghisi has obtained the only designs extant.

As for choice chinaware, most of the famous factories of Europe are again in operation. We may therefore expect very soon a marvelous exhibition of recent designs of wedgewood, mojolicas, etc.

Mr. Ghisi looks upon Los Angeles as the coming center of things artistic in the United States. When seen yesterday he said: "I have long felt that Los Angeles, with its rapidly growing population, almost all of true American ancestry, is the cultural center of the United States.

"Things of beauty need not be things of great expense. Beauty is that which satisfies something within us that calls for a true blending of line or color. That the generations before us evolved things of exquisite beauty cannot be denied. They had more time for the development of the beautiful.

"But here in California, with natural beauty all about us, we have more of the true appreciation of things beautiful than elsewhere in the United States. For this reason I have endeavored to bring to the people of this, my adopted city, those subjects which have delighted the soul of the artist for many generations. Some of these objects are, of course, only for the very wealthy, but this is not true of the greater part of my collection, which will be appreciated by those who see these exquisite articles."

After the complete arrival of his unusual collection, Mr. Ghisi plans a preview by the curators of the various art museums of the State, after which the public will have the opportunity for formal inspection. In the meantime, as various portions of the collection are arriving daily, the public is invited to inspect them before they are formally exhibited.

Arts and Crafts Exhibit.

The exhibition of arts and crafts, held under the auspices of the Art Teachers' Association of California in the print room at Exposition Park, is so diversified—there are sixty-two exhibits in all—that it cannot be reviewed in detail.

However, a few of the exhibits

ST FILM TOGETHER.

ge he asked her was: "Are you ed?"

She thought Wallace rather nice after all, even if he did ask sudden questions, and he certainly looked handsome in his uniform, because he had not yet been discharged from the Army.

However, she wouldn't let Wallace take her home that night.

"I had a chauffeur at the studio and I always had him call so that if anybody asked to take me home I could have the excuse that my own car was at hand. Wallace wanted to, but I said I was afraid to send my chauffeur home because he had a bad temper."

After that night Wallace telephoned every day, but she didn't go out with him—no, sir—not until Saturday night. Thus were two perfectly good Orpheum tickets wasted, which Wallace had bought on the certainty that she would accompany him Friday night. Saturday night he did manage to persuade her to go to the theater with him.

Every day since, and that was over a year ago, they have been together, except when one or the other was away on location. Then they wrote to each other, telephoned or telegraphed.

But they never went out together much, used to spend the evenings at Doris's home, where she lived with her mother and kid brother. There they read together, or Miss May entertained Wallace with the piano. She is a remarkably brilliant musician indeed—began studying when only 3½ years old, and had intended going on the concert stage. In fact, at seven years of age she accompanied Kubelik in two performances. She says she cannot remember when she couldn't read music.

"The longest time we were separated was the several weeks I was in New York working in 'Foolish Matrons,'" declared Mrs. MacDonald the other night, as she sat curled up in a big chair in her pretty little living room, while Mr. MacDonald helped himself serving us with the refreshments. Yes, he eats them himself because he isn't worried about getting fat, being one of the thin kind, but his little wife denies herself such temptation with Spartan self-control, for she is the round sort—liable to assume more curves at any minute.

"During that separation, every time anybody came to the door, I was sure it was a telegram saying something had happened to Wallace. I finished work one night at 11 o'clock, and I took the train home next morning.

"Goodness, no! I didn't kiss him until ages after I first met him."

In fact the first kiss didn't happen, it seems, until May 5, Wallace's birthday. Which does seem reasonable, when you come to think of it.

They had the good old "understanding" for a long time—you know, the season when young folks ardently keep dates to commemorate them, as for instance, "the very first day he took me to the beach," etc., and during which period they talk about what they're going to do when they're married—to somebody else—trying to convey the idea that the thought of marriage to each other is the thing furthest from their minds.

It was Christmas Eve that Wallace got courage actually to propose.

AN ODD PROPOSAL.

"He came wandering in, limping, with a cane, trying to make me think he was hurt. He got my sympathy, and inside ten minutes he was saying, 'Will you marry me?' Then he suddenly got well, and when he went away it was without the cane."

Mrs. MacDonald has the hardihood to declare she was astonished at the proposal. But that when she saw the diamond ring he had right ready with him in his pocket, she began to believe he meant it.

They wanted to be "different," these two, so they got married at 4:30 in the morning. The day was May 5, Wallace MacDonald's birthday. They were wed at a Catholic church in Hollywood, by a priest who was a friend of MacDonald's and then they went to their wedding breakfast. No, not at the Ambassador or the Alexandria. At [illegible], in Hollywood. Because it had romantic associations, that being the very first place they had ever dined together.

And what do you think they had for their wedding breakfast? Ham and eggs—and champagne!

Then they drove up to Santa Barbara for a few days, after which they came home in order that Wallace might begin work in a new picture for which he had been engaged.

Some day these two want to have their own company, like Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. Only they want to put on drama, not comedy, but in the meantime they are both playing leading roles in all-star productions.

In some ways they have had parallel careers. Both had to go against parental objections to enter theatrical life. MacDonald's parents are farm people in Canada; he ran away from home and was on the stage for six weeks in Winnipeg before he had courage to write home what he was doing.

Doris May was always a child of imagination, and always loved romance. She used to put herself to sleep when a very little girl, wondering who her real parents were and how she had been stolen away from them, and when she grew older she and the other girls in the convent used to imagine themselves movie brides with picture stars as husbands. It may please Carlyle Blackwell to know that he was honored by having Doris May take his name. MacDonald began his film career as a Keystone policeman. Miss May got her's by doubling for Mary Pickford in "The Little American" in water scenes.

"I didn't know whether I could remember how to swim or not, because I hadn't done it for two years," said Miss May in recounting the experience, "but I asked a man in the company if a person ever forgot how and he said he guessed not. That's all the assurance I had that I wouldn't sink. Of course, they thought I could swim, yet watched me carefully. It was a pretty shivery bit of business, diving off that raft into the cold water in the dark at San Pedro."

After that Miss May played small parts for a while, but not for long. She was soon engaged by Thomas H. Ince to appear opposite Douglas MacLean, during which engagement she became very popular throughout the country.

These roles, however, gave her little chance to show that she could really act. In fact, it wasn't until [illegible] made the shrewd guess that she was really a talented girl [illegible] that she had a chance to show what she could do.

And it is said that both MacDonald, who has been playing leading roles ever since he came back from the war, and his wife, do the best work of their careers in "Foolish Matrons."

Good luck sign for both! And may the four-leaf clover stuff continue in their young lives!

BARRIE AND THE MODERN TENDENCIES.

Actors Who Have Interpreted His Many Difficult Roles.

An actor's great ambition fifty years ago, even twenty-five years ago, was to play a Shakespearean role—preferably Hamlet or Othello, if the actor was a man, Juliet or Lady Macbeth if a woman.

But other times, other ambitions. Of late, many of our most talented actors have turned with wishful eyes toward the refined subtleties of J. M. Barrie, who, at first glance, seems to offer no tangible drama in his highly original plays, but who, it has been discovered, gives a great deal of it. So difficult is it rightly to place original genius in thought and expression.

Maude Adams began the seemingly hazardous experiment of playing J. M. Barrie as early as 1907, when she essayed, with triumphant success, the role of Lady Babbie, in "The Little Minister." C. B. Clarence, in the English provinces, played Gavin Dishart, the little minister himself, and later, in London, created roles in "The Will," "The New Word" and "A Kiss for Cinderella."

But to return to America. William Admirable Crichton." In 1904 was that of the clever hero in "The Admirable Crichton." In 1904 Ethel Barrymore acted in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire." John Barrymore was in the cast with her. In Barrie's curtain-raiser, "Pantaloons," John Barrymore was Clown and Lionel Barrymore was Pantaloon. In 1915 Marie assumed the chief role in the delightful one-act comedy of "Rosalind." And now Ruth Chatterton is playing the title role in "Mary Rose."

Miss Chatterton has had notable predecessors in Barrie plays, and she bids fair to rank with the best of them.

DOUGLAS McLEAN ON THE POWER OF MUSIC.

Douglas McLean, who takes the leading role in "The Home Stretch," showing at the De Luxe Theater today, is fond of music, and, moreover, bases his delight in it on considerable knowledge.

It is his belief that motion pictures have done more to stimulate a love of good music than any other form of public entertainment. He declares that people living in the most remote hamlets in America are beginning to have a liking for operatic airs of a high class—and all because of the "incidental" music that goes with pictures.

"I venture to say that the effect of motion-picture music will be felt by the present younger generation," he avers. "Fathers and mothers are becoming familiar with 'Trovatore,' 'Lucia,' and the music of Wagner in the picture houses. They become interested in certain musical selections, they want to know all about the composers, and then they make the final step—they consider the advantages of a musical education for their children."

Where there's music in the air, some of it is sure to be wafted into the home.

GATHERS TROUSSEAU IN FIVE MINUTES.

Viola Dana, as the dainty bride of "There Are No Villains," a Bayard Veiller production, in which she soon will be seen, hustled her wedding garb together in five minutes, while working on one of the stages at Metro's Hollywood studios.

It wasn't that Miss Dana's tailors were on a strike. The requirements of the story, as prepared by Mary O'Hara from the story by Frank R. Adams, called for a wedding outfit that could be hurried together without the heroine leaving the room in which she was standing.

"Sounds impossible," said Mr. Veiller, on perusing the 'script.

"But it's simple enough to a woman," said the versatile Viola.

Whereupon she yanked a lace curtain from its place and formed it into the veil, without which no wedding ceremony would be complete. Its mate soon became the bridal train, a wreath of velvet flowers from a floor lamp shade soon circled her brow, while a cluster of paper flowers—whisked from a vase on a side table—became the ever-present bridal floral piece.

"And who'd ask for a prettier bride?" demanded Gaston Glass, the bridegroom.

PAULINE FREDERICK WILL HAVE OWN RODEO

Pauline Frederick, screen star, is to give a rodeo at her estate in Beverly Hills, July 10, for the benefit of the children of the Orthopaedic Hospital of Los Angeles. Included among those taking part will be Will Rogers, Tom Mix, Ben Turpin, Macklyn Arbuckle, a famous roping team from Buffalo Bill's old show, Virgil, the mule which played with Mary Pickford in "Through The Back Door," and other stars who will furnish as much of a kick as Virgil.

Miss Frederick has leveled a large tract of land adjoining her residence, and is having it made into a fine tanbark riding ring, as large as that in the famous Madison Square Garden, in New York. Here all the cowboy stars of the films will do their stunts.

There will be races in which the winner will be the man who can ride the length of the ring, dismount, duck for an apple and mount with the fruit in his teeth, then race back to the starting point in the quickest time.

Many other novelties are being planned by Miss Frederick.

As many of the kiddies in the hospital-school, who are able to move, will be given free admittance. All the proceeds will go to the school.

"THE ARK ANGEL."

Gladys Walton Starring in Story of Fishing Industry.

"The Ark Angel," a colorful narrative of the West Coast fishing industry, starring Gladys Walton, is now filming. Maj. David Kirkland has been engaged as director by Irving G. Thalberg, general manager of Universal.

"The Ark Angel" was written by Hamilton Thompson as an original scenario, and purchased as particularly adapted to the abilities of Miss Walton. Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor, assigned the continuity to Doris Schroeder.

Jack Mower, who has recently been seen in prominent roles, has been engaged to play opposite Miss Walton in the principal masculine character. The remainder of the supporting cast includes Rex Rosselli, Anna Hernandez, C. B. Murphy, Frances Hatton, William Welsh, Alida B. Jones and the Countess de Cella.

GARETH HUGHES FEATURED.

George D. Baker has assembled his cast for "Garments of Truth," his second production to be filmed by S-L Pictures for Metro. Heading the players is Gareth Hughes, who will star in this Freeman Tilden story. Mr. Hughes also was featured in "The Hunch," Mr. Baker's first production. Ethel Crandin will play opposite Mr. Hughes. John Steppling will enact the part of a small town mayor in the picture. Graham Pettie, who first came into prominence through his excellent work in "The Right of Way," as the fanatical old tailor, also will have an important role. Margaret McWade, who is well known on both the stage and screen as a convincing character actress, will be seen as the mother of the hero. Walter Perry will enact an important comedy character. Frank Norcross, Harry Lorraine and Frances Raymond also have been selected for the picture.

AUTHORESS VISITS STUDIO.

Fannie Heaslip Lea, whose work is known to readers of Good Housekeeping, Woman's Home Companion and Saturday Evening Post, was a recent visitor at Realart studios, and may as a result become interested in writing for the screen. The writer was on her way home to Honolulu from a visit to New York and a conference with her publishers. She admits having been asked by several producing companies to consider writing for the screen, but has been too busy with her magazine work to go into the matter. Fannie Heaslip Lea was personally conducted through the studio by Bebe Daniels, and was greatly interested in every detail of picture-making as explained by the pretty star. She was a member of a party including her husband and young daughter, and several of their Los Angeles friends, under the guidance of Don Francisco, president of the Los Angeles Ad Club and vice-president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

HAMPTON TO CONVENTION.

Benjamin B. Hampton, independent film producer, left last week for Minneapolis to represent California producing interests at the national convention of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, to be held at Minneapolis this week. Mr. Hampton wired Sydney S. Cohen, president of the association, his acceptance of the invitation to make one of the principal addresses. He was accompanied East by his personal representative, K. H. Young. Hundreds of exhibitors from all over America will attend the session.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment, even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels while the sides are covered with old, hard matter which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat.) When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as Adler-I-Ka, acts as follows:

It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and [illegible] bringing out foul matter [illegible] the system for months and [illegible] else can dislodge. Misses Shafer and Grant are among the young society girls taking an active interest in the performance of Ruth Chatterton in "Mary Rose" at the Mason, Tuesday evening, for the benefit of the Child Welfare League Auxiliary. Mrs. Kaltenbach and her two children, Suzanne and Charles, Jr., of Cranford, N. J., were much-feted visitors while guests of Mrs. Kaltenbach's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Telfair Creighton. Miss Cornell's engagement to Hiram C. Hazen was announced last week. She is a great-grand-daughter of Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell University. Mrs. Miechell is a recent bride of San Francisco, who, with her husband, Lieut. Ralph Miechell, U.S.A., is spending part of her honeymoon here and being much entertained.

Each was handsomely inscribed. The Ebell Club sent gold coin purses, each holding $50 in gold. The Friday Morning Club sent a handsome gift. Mrs. Charles H. Toll, its president, and Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson, president of the Ebell Club, were among the prominent guests there and Harry Haldeman represented the Uplifters.

Standing with Mr. and Mrs. Warde were Mr. and Mrs. William Crane, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in November. Mr. Crane is as well known as a comedian as Mr. Warde is as a tragedian.

Some of the other well-known folk, among the hundred there included Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Shepherd, Bishop and Mrs. Bertrand Stephens, Rev. and Mrs. William K. Cornett, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. James Neill, John Corwin, Mr. and Mrs. Haldeman, Miss Virginia Woods and many others.

Engagement of Interest.

The nicest surprise society had during the week, was the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evans Wells of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace Wells, and Donald B. Parkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Parkinson of Canyon Crest, Santa Monica. None but relatives and one or two intimate friends had the least inkling of the romance. No date has been set for the marriage, which will unite two of the most prominent families in the city and two of the most popular of the younger set.

Have Gone to Squirrel Inn.

Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. R. D. Shepherd, Mrs. Homer Laughlin and Mrs. Charles Jeffras left Thursday evening for Squirrel Inn, where they expect to stay ten days. Several of their friends will go up to spend a day or so with them before they return.

Miss Lobingier to Entertain.

Miss Gladys Lobingier is to be hostess at a luncheon on Tuesday in honor of two brides—her cousin, Mrs. Eugene H. Blanche of South Pasadena, but formerly of Tacoma, and Mrs. William B. Hubbard, who came here recently from Santa Rosa.

It is also to be in the nature of a farewell to Miss Lobingier's friends as she is to leave shortly for New York to attend a French school on Riverside Drive. She will spend a short time at Balboa Beach before her departure.

Among the guests expected are Misses Mary McMillan, Ellen Andrews, Lura Hodge, Harvie Wallis, Byrd Wallis, Mary Allen, Margaret Bruntan, Mildred Bruntan, Elinor MacCormack, Ruth Andrews, Irene St. Pierre, Helen Mosher, Marjorie Davie, and Mmes. Frank S. Hodge, Charles T. Sturgeon, John R. McCoy, Leon Dean Godshall, Frank Boswell, Thomas A. Ormiston, Joseph A. Howee, Edward P. Clark, Bert H. Leonard, Alford A. Watson, Robert P. Miller and Garreston Dulin.

For Younger Set.

Miss Cosette Cooke, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Cooke was a charming hostess on Monday when she entertained thirty-five of her school friends at Marlborough at luncheon at the Los Angeles Country Club. The big, round table was centered with baskets of pink roses and delphinium. Miss Cooke has just finished her junior year at Marlborough.

Places were arranged for Misses Adele Smith, Winifred and Virginia Martin, Hortense McLaughlin, Margaret Barnard, Geraldine Goodwin, Elizabeth Taylor, Helen Thompson, Alice Palmer, Mildred Titcomb, Catherine Cannon, Gwendolen Parish, Rose Skinker, Lucia Turner, Mabel Warner, Jane Lawler, Dolly Green, Katherine Reynolds, Genevieve Maier, Leontine Bayer, Betty Bettingen, Jane De Van, Dorothy Williams, Catherine Cheney, Marie Haggarty, Elizabeth Sherlock, Dorothy Lillian Welborn, Agnes Smith, Evelyn Brown, Harriet Andrews, Dorothy Keefe, Helen Seeley, and Inez Macondray.

At Super-Dance.

Another charming affair in honor of Miss Nanette Francisco and her fiance, Herbert McGaffey was the supper-dance at which Miss Mary Elizabeth Boyle entertained at the Los Angeles Country Club for 150 of the younger set.

The clubhouse was a garden of flowers. The fireplace was screened with pink roses, gladioli and other summer blooms. The card rooms were done into little sweet shops which the dancers patronized continually. Nearly every other number was a favor dance. Mr. and Mrs. J. Bond Francisco, parents of the honoree, and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Boyle, parents of the hostess, received with the young folks.

At Attractive Tea.

Miss Caroline Eshman also shared honors with Misses Katherine Adams and Anita Kerr at a beautifully appointed tea that Miss Elswood Chaffey gave on Friday at her home in Brentwood. Seventy-five girls graced the affair and with masses of mixed spring blossoms and wearing gay-colored crisp organdies made a most fetching picture. Miss Adams has just returned from Smith College, while Miss Kerr is just back from Stanford. Mrs. W. W. Kerr, Mrs. A. M. Chaffey, Misses Suzanne Weed, Aurgena Carpenter, Elizabeth Bohon, Katherine Chaffey and Beatrice Ward assisted the hostess.

Mrs. Bryant's Tea.

Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant entertained a company of young folk yesterday afternoon at a charming tea given in honor of Miss Caroline Eshman, who is leaving Tuesday for Europe. She will not return to Los Angeles until Christmas as she will stop in New York upon her return to America and begin her second year in a girls' fashionable school there.

Miss Pendleton.

Miss Albertine Pendleton is planning to go to Mirimar the middle of next month to spend ten days with Baron and Baroness Alfred de Ropp, who have taken a cottage there for the summer.

For a Bride-elect.

Miss Adele Vance who is to marry Barrett Cosby on July 1, was inspiration for a delightful luncheon at which Miss Helen Carden, who is to be bridesmaid, entertained on Thursday at the Mary Louise. Columbia and Ophelia roses and gladioli centered the table and a miniature bridal procession marched about the flowers. Places were marked for Misses Blanche Young, Catherine Clarkson, Mary McCan, Marie Edmonds, Mary Louise Shabaram, Mary Belle Chapman and Ruth Bacigalupi and Mmes. Gerald Staley, Donald Keeler, Lincoln J. Carden and Champ S. Vance.

A miscellaneous shower followed and later the guests were assembled at the Morosco Theater at a box party.

Mrs. Barrett to Entertain.

Mrs. Alexander B. Barrett is to entertain at a large garden tea on next Wednesday in honor of her mother, Mrs. Robert P. McJohnstone. A coterie of prominent matrons and a bevy of girls are to assist.

For Miss Burleson.

Miss Emma Kyle Burleson was the motif for a delightful luncheon at which Mrs. C. Q. Stanton was hostess on Friday. The table was adorned with pink roses and places marked for fifteen guests.

Miss Jones's Luncheon.

Miss Winifred Jones of Glendale gave a smart luncheon on Wednesday in honor of Miss Nanette Francisco, financee of Herbert McGaffey. The table was banked with pink sweet peas, maiden hair ferns and delphinium.

Miss Jones anticipates a happy vacation and is leaving on July 20 for Denver to visit Miss Esther Rogers, daughter of Judge Rogers, who has a winter home at Brentwood. She will remain in Colorado three weeks and then go on to Allenhurst, N. J., to visit Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman at her beautiful summer home.

At the luncheon there were places for Misses Helen Iten, Mary Elizabeth Boyle, Gwendolyn Longyear, Wilma Botsford, Amelia Hogan, Lois Finnegan, Ruth Mabee, Charlotte Grinnell, Mrs. Keel Pulliam and Mrs. Frank Casey.

For Miss Cavers.

Miss Marjorie Cavers, who has just come with her father from Omaha, Neb., to reside in Los Angeles, was cause for a very enjoyable dinner dance at which Dr. and Mrs. Titian Coffey entertained in the Cocoanut Grove at the Ambassador. Covers were laid for eighteen. Mr. Cavers has bought a house on South Normandie avenue.

Lovely Wedding.

One of the charming home weddings of the past week was one at which Miss Margaret Brown and John Hauerwaas, son of Mrs. Lucie Hauerwaas, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Roy Brown.

The house was decorated throughout with pink roses and gladioli, with white flowers on the altar.

The bride, who is a beautiful girl, wore a gown of white satin and lace with a veil of lace with orange blossoms and brilliants fastening it to her coiffure. Miss Evelyn Brown was maid of honor and Miss Elaine Brown bridesmaid. Both were in pink organdie. Mary Evelyn Lillard and Mary Elizabeth Roberts, wee cousins of the bride, in frocks of blue organdie, were ribbon bearers. Kenneth Dulin was best man and Mr. Brown gave his daughter in marriage. Rev. Huntington of St. John's Episcopal Church officiated. A buffet supper was served after the ceremony. The couple will sail on Wednesday for Honolulu. They will be gone a month.

Burgner-Eiler Wedding.

Miss Margaret Burgner of this city was a lovely picture when she became the bride of Ben Harrison Eiler of Kansas City at a wedding ceremony at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Burgner of Western avenue, on Wednesday evening.

The house was handsomely decorated. The bride was gowned in white satin and rose-point lace, made with a court train. Sprays of orange blossoms held her veil in place, and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Kathryn Burgner was maid of honor and wore orchid tulle and carried a sheaf of pink roses. Ruth Margaret Jones, was a quaint flower girl. Dr. Harry Van Fleet was best man. Mr. Burgner gave his daughter in marriage.

An altar was built of pink and white flowers and was illuminated with tall candles.

At the reception following the ceremony Mrs. Burgner was assisted by Mrs. Charles Randolph Jones, Miss Marjorie James, Mrs. M. J. Henchey, Mrs. Judson Rives, Mrs. Frank Ewins, Mrs. Seward Moses and Mrs. W. L. Kilgore. Upon their return from an extended honeymoon trip the couple will reside in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Morgan's Tea.

Mrs. Cosmo Morgan was hostess at a cosy tea on Wednesday afternoon.

For Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Clarence Williams, wife of Admiral Williams, was inspiration for a charming luncheon on Wednesday at which Mrs. Fred Baker was hostess. Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson and Mrs. W. I. Hollingsworth gave a luncheon for Mrs. Williams on Tuesday.

Back from East.

Mr. and Mrs. George I. Cochran and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Davis have returned from a six weeks' visit in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Lombard.

Friends of Harry Dana Lombard will be grateful to learn that he is much improved in health and that he and Mrs. Lombard will be returning to Los Angeles in about

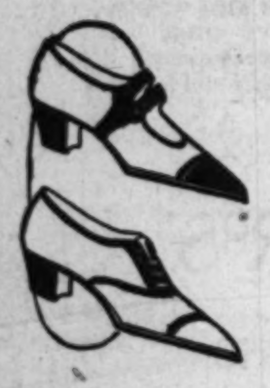
The Clearance of Women's Footwear

Brings Two Notably Low Prices

6.45 ---- 5.65



Two important sources contribute to this event—namely, the large special orders placed at lowest prices for shoes of Hamburger quality and secondly a THOROUGH clearance of our own regular stocks!

Womne's Sports Pumps and Oxfords 6.45

Six styles—equally good and thus offering individual style in individual comfort choice!

With summer, 1921, established as the greatest sports shoe season in years, you could hope for nothing finer in clearance values.

Included are white nubuck with trimmings, white nubuck one-strap sports pumps, trimmed—genuine white reignskin oxfords and two-strap trimmed sports pumps. Think of the tremendous importance of being able to buy them at only 6.45. All sizes collectively.

Women's Summer Footwear 5.65

Broken lines of white kid opera or strap pumps—white nubuck oxfords and the like—all very much higher in price originally, many of them now offered at cost and below.

Brown kid or calf 1-strap semi-sport pumps with light weight soles and 1½-inch military heels. Also brown kid 1-strap dress pumps with leather Louis XV heels. We know of a certainty that enthusiasm will surround this splendid value group. All sizes collectively.

Monday's Values in Silks!

Clearance Prices of Genuine Marvel!

Yard Wide Chiffon Taffetas, 1.55

A very desirable quality we can recommend unhesitatingly for general wear! And notwithstanding the low price, the color range is complete!

40-Inch Crepe de Chine, 1.25

A firm quality such as women would select at the regular price for dresses, blouses, lingerie, etc. Complete color range. Excellent value!

40-Inch Morning Glory
40-Inch Printed Radiums } 1.95
40-Inch Cheney Foulards

A classic group of favorites—at a price that is positively less than cost to us! Scroll, conventional and floral designs, principally in dark street colors.

40-Inch Black Chiffon Velvet, 2.95

A limited quantity at less than half its regular worth. Soft and lustrous—always a favorite of fashion. Even if one did not intend using it until Fall, the saving warrants the purchase now!

Cream Woolen Fabrics, 2.95

32,000 yards of high grade cream woolens—such as make most effective summer sports costumes and skirts. A fractional price like this should mean heavy buying, for such favorites as these are included:

54-Inch Cream French Serges
54-Inch Cream Tennis Serges
54-Inch Cream Coating Chevrons
54-Inch Cream Cheviots
54-Inch Pastel Broadcloths

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Tub Fabrics—Extra!

Six items featured for Monday at prices which cannot fail to create a sensation—values you have not dared to hope for! Another instance of Hamburger leadership.

Corded Madras, 25c

A quality that up to the minute this goes to press has been selling at a much higher price. 32 inches wide—and a bevy of excellent patterns suitable for men's shirts and women's wear! Also 32-inch white mercerized madras at the same price.

Imported Poplin, 1.00

"Soisoline" it is called—a richly mercerized English poplin that is selling today in New York at double this price. The finest material you can buy for shirts, dresses, etc., where silk luster and durability are desirable. 38 inches wide in 15 approved shades.

Imported Organdy, 65c

A value that deserves the busiest organdy selling Los Angeles has seen! Permanent finish—45 inches wide—a superb color range—and the summer fabric of greatest demand!

Printed Voiles, 35c

Perfectly woven and 38 inches wide! So much in demand that, at higher prices, it has "walked out." Checks in the most favored shades. Just arrived—purchased especially and marked at approximate cost for Clearance Sales.

Imported White Skirtings, 75c

Just half of the prevailing price. Fashionable in the extreme for skirts and sports costumes—36 inches wide—in effective stripes, plaids and checks.

Areoplane Linen, 50c

An especially fine quality just arrived, and into the July Clearance it goes at this most magnetic price. Linen that has met every requirement of the nation in time of war and with no end of uses. Yard wide, natural shade.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Clearance Prices on Linens and Bedding Are Mere Fractions of Value!

Imagine!—All Linen Pattern Cloths, 4.69!

Home Wedding.

Miss Thelma Moseley and Walter David Pratt of Long Beach were married at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Flora Alexander of 824 Ingraham street, Los Angeles, on Friday by Rev. E. Sinclair Smith, pastor of the Congregational Church at Long Beach. Miss Inoe Fletcher was maid of honor and Frank B. Alexander was best man, while Betty Ruegg was flower girl. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Mosley of Long Beach. Her father gave her away. Only relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. The couple will be at home after the middle of next month at 226 North Catalina street, Redondo Beach.

Off to the Orient.

Mrs. W. G. Lane and daughter, Miss Wilma Lane, of 803 Bushnell avenue, Alhambra, sailed on the 23rd inst. for a trip to the Orient and will stop in Honolulu, Japan, China and the Philippine Islands. They will return in the fall.

Told at Luncheon.

At a luncheon given by Mrs. Henry Ranney Adams of 4018 South Normandie avenue, announcement was made of the engagement of her sister, Miss Mary Rettig Miner, and Luther Martin. Among the guests were recent graduates of the Girls' Collegiate School, classmates of Miss Miner.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Stoneham gave a beautifully arranged dinner party at their home in celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Stoneham. The table was decorated in a floral design representing a rainbow and a pot of gold. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Newman, Mr. and Mrs. George V. Ducker and children, Miss Sarah Stoneham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gilbert and children and the great-great-grandchildren of the honor guests, Mary Sarah and Ada Charlene Gilbert.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Mayme Prigg Burriss and Samuel Asbury Walsh, son of Mrs. A. N. Walsh of 1011 South Bonnie Brae street is made. The bride-elect is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. F. F. Prigg of Hutchinson, Kan., who are now touring the United States and Canada, but who expect to arrive here in the fall, when the wedding probably will take place.

Touring Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Fraser are touring Canada and will return by way of Chicago.

Have Gone to Washington.

It is with regret that friends said good-by to Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner and her children, Miss Lucia Turner and Burnett Turner, who left Wednesday for Washington, D. C., to reside to be near Mrs. Turner's sister, Mrs. Sydney Ballou, wife of Judge Ballou. Mrs. Turner and Miss Turner were extensively feted before leaving.

For Bride-elect.

Miss Louise Spaulding and Douglas Malin of Long Beach were married on the 21st inst., at Calvary Presbyterian Church. A few days earlier Mrs. Frank N. Horn of Hollywood gave a charming tea in the then Miss Spaulding's honor, having as guests Mrs. S. J. Spaulding, Mrs. J. H. Malin, Miss Vivian Kline, Miss Florence Keck, Mrs. F. S. Berberry, Mrs. Ruby Rossbach, Mrs. William Pease, Mrs. A. L. McGue, Mrs. H. D. Henderson, Mrs. Roy McLean, Mrs. Fred McPherson, Misses Phillis Summers, Lilly Mead and Edith Story.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. George Roper announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Madalyn Roper, and E. A. Dean of Waco, Tex., at a tea which she gave in honor of her niece, Mrs. Paul Renton, Jr., a bride from Beaumont, Tex. There were forty-eight guests. The couple are to be married in Kansas City on July 21, at the home of the bride-elect's uncle, John Woodhead, vice-president of the Indemnity Insurance Company.

House-Warming.

In the nature of a house-warming was the musicale at which Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Croner of 4626 Findley avenue, entertained last evening for a company of fifty.

Picnic Party.

Mrs. Albert Pappeiner and Mrs. Lawrence Ott were hosts at a very enjoyable picnic party and luncheon at their beach cottage at Hermosa on Tuesday. It was in honor of Mrs. Edward T. Higgins, who is leaving shortly with her children to spend the summer in Chicago. Other guests included Mmes. Arnold Burkelman, M. J. McGarry, Charles T. Forbush, L. Vollmer, Henry W. Caystile, William O'Meara, William T. Summers, Richard Troeger, William J. Dreen and one or two others.

House Guests.

Former Senator and Mrs. Henry M. Hurd of West Sixth street, have had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Benson of Placerville. Mr. Benson is the deputy County Clerk of Eldorado county. He and Miss to spend their honeymoon. They on the 10th inst., and came here Helen Jenkenson were married there motored to all points of interest in the Southland and left for their home Friday.

June Wedding.

A simple June wedding took place Wednesday noon at the Church of the Messiah, when Miss Hazel Montgomery became the bride of Cecil Elvin Storm. The bride, who is a popular member of the Theta Sigma Phi Sorority, wore a dress of peach-colored taffeta and white organdy, with an orchid-colored hat and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Molly Peck was the maid of honor and wore a jade dress and transparent hat and carried a large bouquet of Cecile Brunner roses and maiden hair fern. Floyd Storm, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The bride's father, J. Howard Tone, gave her in marriage. The church was beautiful with ferns, palms and flowers massed about the altar. The relatives and close friends of the couple attended the ceremony, after which the bridal party and relatives of the bride and groom were assembled at a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride at 1267 West Twenty-second street. The tables were attractively decorated with pink roses and bluebirds. The bridal couple will spend their honeymoon at Monterey.

On Vacation.

Dr. Marietta H. Bewley, 222 North Vendome street, is taking a two weeks' vacation visiting relatives in San Francisco and Lodi. She will return about the first of next month.

For Texas Folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weatherly gave an enjoyable dinner party at their home in honor of Mrs. Lyda Sullivan, Miss Bessie Jackson and F. Schermerhorn of Fort Worth, Tex., last Wednesday evening. Music was the diversion after dinner. Other guests were Mrs. Lee Carter, C. Fant, Mrs. Caroline Howlett, Preston Fant and Miss Marion Howlett. Miss Jackson and Mrs. Sullivan will return to Texas next Saturday.

Weds Chicago Girl.

Los Angeles friends of Wilfred H. Regelin of Glendale, son of W. C. Regelin, Chicago banker, are much surprised at the announcement of his wedding yesterday to Miss Marguerite Elaine Martin, also of Chicago.

Miss Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Martin now residing in Sierra Park, and the marriage is the culmination of a romance started three years ago. Due to Mr. Regelin's injuries, received while in the air service in France, the engagement was not announced until recently. Mr. Regelin has now recovered and is associated with Dwight F. McKinney in the management of Daily Doings Publishing Company. The bride is a talented dancer and appeared in several benefit productions in the East.

The wedding was at noon, yesterday, at the home of the bride's parents. After a short honeymoon the couple will receive their friends at their new home at 505 West Patterson street, Glendale.

At Big Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Braly are enjoying a bit of recreation at their summer home on Fisher's Point in Big Bear Valley and have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Herman Janss.

Wedding Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Otis announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mildred Otis, and Frederick J. Gorham, which took place last Friday in this city. After July 1 the couple will be at home at 4506 West Seventeenth street, Los Angeles.

For Summer.

Dr. and Mrs. James T. Fisher, Misses Josephine and Katherine Fisher and Master Richard Fisher have taken the Belt villa on the lake near the Tavern at Big Bear Lake and all except Dr. Fisher will remain there through July and August.

Dance and Garden Party.

Miss Viola May and Miss Dorothy Burnell were hostesses at a charming dance and garden party at the home of the former's parents.

SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. George May of 228 South Wilton Place. Forty-five of their schoolmates were there. Colored lanterns were placed in the garden and an orchestra played dance music.

At Luncheon.

Mrs. Walter Clifford Burke gave an enjoyable luncheon at the Mary Louise Tea Room in honor of Mrs. Otis Neible of San Francisco, Miss Marion Clifford of Brockton, Mass., and Miss Helene McCombe of Los Angeles. Plates were arranged for ten. Mr. and Mrs. Burke, who are from Cincinnati and New York, are planning to reside here permanently. Miss McCombe entertained the group at the Orpheum following the luncheon.

To Unite Pioneer Families.

The marriage of Miss Mary Alice Devin and George Lawrence Ott, which is to take place Tuesday at St. Paul's Catholic Church, will unite two pioneer families of Los Angeles, the grandparents of each having come to this city in the sixties. Miss Devin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frances Devin and is a graduate of Los Angeles High School and Normal. The church will be decorated in pastel shades of pink and blue. The bride will wear a gown of white satin trimmed with rose point lace and pearls, and a veil of Brussels net. Miss Mabel Smith will be bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink silk with silver lace and hat to match. The bride-elect's sister, Miss Eleanor Devin, will be flower girl and will wear a dainty pink organdy frock.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ott of 2920 Van Buren Place, and is a graduate of Manual Arts High School and of Notre Dame. He is a young architect. He served in France with the One Hundred and Fifteenth Engineers and after the armistice, attended an art center in Paris. Mr. Ott will be attended by his cousin, Leo Ward, as best man. The ceremony will be performed by the groom's brother, Rev. Frances Ott. Afterward a wedding breakfast will be served at the bride's home to immediate friends and relatives, following which the couple will leave for an extended trip north.

At Luncheon.

Mrs. Mary Griswold and Mrs. Thomas Walker of San Fernando entertained a party of old college friends Saturday with a charmingly arranged luncheon, at the home of the former on Maclay avenue. The guests were all members of the same sorority, Delta Gamma. The table decorations carried out the colors of the sorority, pink, blue and bronze. A crystal basket filled with the Los Angeles roses, blue delphinium and golden poppies formed the centerpiece. The place cards were decorated with quaint figures in old-fashioned costumes. After luncheon the guests enjoyed college reminiscences and singing sorority songs. Mrs. E. R. Bradley, who is a member of the Verse Writers' Club of Los Angeles, read several original poems, which added to the pleasure of the afternoon. The invited guests were: Mrs. Tyler Parker, Mrs. N. G. Felker, Mrs. Ellen Thorne, Miss Helen Parker, Mrs. E. R. Shrader, Mrs. Helen Rice, Miss Frances Tarr, Miss Bertha Green, Miss Laidlaw, Mrs. E. R. Bradley, Mrs. Mary De Grave, Mrs. Rachel Gogswell, Miss Bertha Rose, Miss Lillian Williamson, Miss Martha Arnold, Miss Lulu Chafin and Mrs. Lillie Sigler Botts of Little Rock, Ark.

Out-of-Town Society.

PASADENA.

One of the most attractive home weddings of the June season was that of Miss Helen Shelmerdine Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Graham of Altadena, to Stuart Churchill Smith, son of Judge and Mrs. Grant Horace Smith of San Francisco, which took place last evening. The wedding was held at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of relatives of the bride and bridegroom and a number of intimate friends, Rev. Arthur O. Prichard officiating. The bride's party included Miss Suzanne Graham, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Miss Muriel Colgate of New York, and Miss Doreen Lyon of Redlands, as bridesmaids. Edward S. Graham, Jr., acted as best man, the ushers were Mr. Edward L. Center of Pasadena, and Mr. Frederick E. Garner of Los Angeles. The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with duchess point lace, a family heirloom, and carried white roses.

Another charming June wedding of the week was that of Miss Viola Nichols and Arthur Hamilton, which took place at the Universalist church Wednesday evening. Rev. Carl F. Henry was the officiating clergyman. The bride's sister, Mrs. Karalyn Moorhouse was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Bertha Haig and Miss Louise Johnson, who were her classmates at college. Paul Geohegan was best man. A reception followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride at 146 North El Molino avenue.

Miss Harriet James of Los Angeles, and Edward Simmons of Altadena, were married Wednesday morning at the First Methodist Church, Dr. Merle N. Smith, pastor, performing the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frona James of Los Angeles and the bridegroom the son of J. L. Simmons of Altadena.

Mrs. G. F. Foster of Pasadena has returned from Europe and is making her home at the Maryland. Mrs. Foster had planned to reside several years abroad, but found conditions over there so unfavorable that she returned.

Another of a series of summer dinner-dances was held at the Hotel Vista del Arroyo last night, attended by many members of visiting and resident society.

Miss Helen Kemp, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Kemp, and Benjamin E. Richardson of Los Angeles were married Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, 1900 North Marengo avenue. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Leona Kemp. Gilbert Merritt of Long Beach was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will make their home in Long Beach.

Two plays were given in a garden setting at the home of Miss Eleanor Bissell, 572 Prospect Boulevard, Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Smith College endowment fund. Dr. Richard Burton of the Drama League of America gave a short address before the plays.

Miss Ann Thompson, pianist, gave a recital at the Vista del Arroyo Thursday evening.

Miss Alice Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wood, 429 North Mentor avenue, and Arthur E. Morse were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. H. Hutchins of the Lake-avenue Congregational Church performed the ceremony.

A party including Mr. and Mrs. Paul Honsberger, Mrs. F. B. Wetherby and Miss Wetherby left this week for New York, where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ladd Gifford on a trip to Europe.

WHITTIER.

Whittier has been crowded with interesting events the past week, many of social interest and many of a semisocial and educational interest. The commencement exercises at the high school had its round of attractive affairs, the outstanding feature from a social standpoint, and aside from the graduation exercises themselves, was the presentation of Shakespeare's immortal "Midsummer Night's Dream," by the senior class, at the high school quadrangle, Tuesday evening. Miss Laura Frankenfield, director of dramatic art at the school, coached the cast and received generous praise for the excellence of the production. There were fifty people in the cast and the principal parts were taken by Miss Evelyn Lofland as Titania, Miss Miller, Oberon; Miss Corrinne Hollingsworth, Hermia; Miss Marion Smith, Helena; Leonard McCorkindale, Bottom; Charles Fueller, Lysander; Roy Votaw, Demetrius, and Tristram Coffin as the Duke of Theseus.

One of the most delightful affairs of the social season was the double wedding which was celebrated at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Osborn, at Montebello, Wednesday afternoon, and which was attended by fifty friends from Montebello and Whittier, the Osborns having been Whittier residents for a number of years before moving to Montebello and both the brides being students at Whittier High School and popular among the young people at the Quaker town. The wedding was an al fresco affair, the garden having been screened in with palms and pink hydrangeas. The bridal party, while plighting their marriage vows, stood within a natural floral bower upon a fragrant carpet of pink rose petals. The ceremony uniting Miss Ruth Osborne and Donald Sutherland and also Miss Marjorie Helen Osborn and Irwin Bowerman was read by Rev. C. E. Hanna of the Presbyterian Church, Whittier. The wedding march was played by Miss Elizabeth Morris. The brides were attractively gowned in pearl white satin with Georgette draperies and each wore a necklace of pearls. Their bridal veils were held in place by a circlet of natural orange blossoms and each carried a shower bouquet. A sumptuous supper was served in the garden following the ceremony and the congratulations. The honeymoon will be spent at Big Bear Lake.

The Friends Collegiate Alumni banquet given in the tea room of the Friends Church, Tuesday, was an event of widespread interest, for there were representatives from the Friends colleges from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific Coast and from Canada to the Mexican border. Dr. Harry Noble Wright, president of the local college, presided as toastmaster and responses were made by Dr. Thomas Newlin, former president of Guilford College at Guilford, N. C., and also former president of Whittier College; Dr. J. J. Mills of Pasadena, former president Earlham College at Richmond, Ind. Greetings were read from far-way friends, namely Mrs. Mattie E. Moore, who is now in Canada; Dr. Asa E. Woodard, Indiana, and Everett T. Scott in South Dakota. There were representatives at the banquet from the Friends colleges at Haverford, Pa.; Wichita, Kan.; Oskaloosa, Iowa; Earlham College at Richmond, Ind.; Penn College at Oskaloosa, Iowa; Friends University at Wichita, Kan.; Guilford College at Guilford, N. C.; Pacific College at Newberg, Or.; Friends College at Wilmington, O., and Whittier College at Whittier, Cal.

In compliment to Mrs. Elizabeth Cliff of San Diego, Mrs. Hattie G. Shipe entertained Tuesday with an attractively appointed luncheon at her home on Olive Drive. Mrs. Cliff is leaving this week for her home in the southern part of the State after a visit of several weeks with her two sons and their families, Rev. and Mrs. George B. Cliff and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Cliff.

Mrs. Walter J. Zachau entertained at her home, 206 North Comstock avenue, Monday afternoon, in celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of her attractive little daughter, Miss Marie. After interesting outdoor games on the lawn, luncheon was served, the piece par excellence being the big birthday cake aglow with the soft light from ten pink candles. The guests were Rose Mary and Kathleen Pierck, Mildred and John Gallagher, Bobby O'Neal, Louise Hodgins, Dorothy Grimes, Dorothy Dorland, Mary and Dorothy Coffman.

Members of the Linger Longer Club spent the day happily at Long Beach, Wednesday, entertaining with a picnic dinner on the beach.

GLENDALE.

S. P. Woodsum of Long Beach was the honor guest at a dinner party Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank L. Fox, 345 North Kenwood street. The occasion was his 76th birthday anniversary. Guests included relatives from Redlands, Los Angeles, Long Beach and Glendora, covers being placed for fourteen.

Monday Mrs. E. W. Kinney and Mrs. C. E. Norton entertained the directors of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Kinney, 123 West Elk street. Floral decorations and table appointments were of pink and white. Covers were laid for Mmes. Charles E. Hutchinson, Charles H. Temple, Mabel F. Ocker, Walter Stamps, Mabel Rudy, A. M. Hunt, John Robert White and the hostesses.

Mrs. Ralph L. Webster entertained with a luncheon party and musicale in honor of Misses Irene and Allegra Lehow of Carbondale, Colo. The guests included Miss Lyda McCoid of Whittier, Mrs. Frank Thomas of Hollywood and Mmes. Jordan S. Neel and Frank Webster of Glendale.

Miss Mayme Lee Evans, sister of W. E. Evans, is a guest at her brother's home, 333 North Orange street. Mrs. Evans is recovering from a recent illness and expects to go to her beach cottage at Hermosa, the first week in July.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Bosserman, 614 South Central avenue, entertained with a dinner party at the Ambassador Hotel last Sunday, in honor of Miss Katherine Adam, who is the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Colin Cable of 505 South Columbus avenue.

SANTA ANA.

"June weddings" have been the rule in Santa Ana in recent weeks and several brilliant ceremonies occurred within the past few days, uniting popular and well-known young people. June is essentially the bride's month, and Santa Ana is furnishing her full quota.

Miss Nellie Blanche Martin of Hemet became the bride of Thomas Carlton Garnett of Santa Ana, at a quiet home wedding, only immediate relatives and friends being present, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Eisele.

At an impressive church wedding at high noon, Miss Mildred Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Strong, was united to Charles O. Tracy, a reception being held afterward at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony occurred at the Spurgeon Memorial M. E. Church, South, with Rev. William Jay Richards officiating.

Miss Esther Cleary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cleary of Santa Ana, was claimed in marriage last Sunday by Dwight T. Hayden of Pomona, where the ceremony was performed.

The First Methodist Church was the scene of a brilliant wedding ceremony when Ralph E. Barnard, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Barnard of Los Angeles, claimed as his bride Miss Thelma Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Price of Santa Ana. Mrs. Walter Brewer of Los Angeles sang and dainty little Nancy Emily Moore of Fullerton sweetly sang "I Love You Truly."

Miss Helen Garstang, popular and well-known Santa Ana girl, became Mrs. Somerville Thomson, at a simple wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garstang. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Thomson of Villa Park, where the young couple will be at home on their ranch after July 1.

Santa Anans were also interested in the marriage of Miss Anna Marie Chuml of Santa Ana and George Irving Linn of Merced, which was solemnized in the Mabel Shaw Bridges Hall of Music at Pomona College, the Rev. W. E. Crabtree of San Diego officiating.

A surprise wedding of the past week was that of the Rev. Delmar E. French of Santa Ana and Miss Clara R. Moore of Phillipsburg, Kan. The Rev. Harcourt W. Peck officiated, the ceremony taking place at the First Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Wardlow, just returned from their honeymon, were complimented with a 1 o'clock dinner last Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wardlow, relatives and close friends being among the invited guests.

As a pleasant farewell to Mrs. T. P. Kingrey, who was leaving for a three-months' trip to Kansas, Mrs. Charles F. Mitchell entertained members of the O.P.Q. Club Tuesday afternoon, a two-course luncheon being served to Mmes. T. P. Kingrey, Charles Johnson, Maude Lash, Grace Lowman, Charles Darnell, D. W. Hamilton and Frank Cannon.

Plans for the annual picnic, to be held June 28 at Bixby Park, Long Beach, were laid at the last meeting of the year of the Santa Ana Woman's Club, held at the home of Mrs. R. Ruth Tiffany. Mrs. Pyle and Mrs. Kryhl furnished the program for the day.

BELLFLOWER.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pennington entertained on Saturday afternoon and evening at their home, west of town, the members of the Charles Wesley Chapter of the Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Los Angenes. A very pleasant time was enjoyed and at 6 o'clock a delicious supper was served. The long evening was spent in games and a short business session was held. At a late hour the guests departed, voting Mr. and Mrs. Pennington as the very best of entertainers. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cromer and daughter Emily, Fred Subith, Miss Anderson, Mrs. McLain, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Muir, Dougal Dollar, Miss Evelyn Thorne, Roy Parker, Roy Kerr, Miss Coates, Miss Thompson, Miss Schultz, Robert Pritchard, Wesley Smith, Mr. Welch, Mr. Riley, W. N. Perry of Artesia, Margaret Clay, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Darr, Mrs. Cairns and son Jack, Miss Demis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Eckles and daughter, Mr. Johnson and several others.

EAST WHITTIER.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gartin and son Lotus, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Rowe, have returned from a pleasant outing at Big Bear, where they were the guests of Nicholas Hugo and his daughter, Miss Thelma, at the Hugo mountain cabin. While at this popular summer resort they spent some time fishing and in mountain climbing to near-by points of interest.

Many East Whittier people are interested in the work of the Teachers' Training School at Huntington Park and among those to attend the commencement exercises at the school for Christian workers were Rev. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Farquhar, Rev. and Mrs. Richard Haworth, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Campbell, whose son, Henry Campbell, was one of the graduates; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Baldwin, Mrs. Blanche Ford Pickering and two daughters, the Misses Geneva and Pauline.

The call of the countryside appeals to many these early summer days and among the latest to respond were the members of the "Bound to Win" class of the local Sunday-school. They motored to Orange County Park, where the picnic facilities are most engaging, and enjoyed a picnic supper in the open Thursday evening, returning home by moonlight. Mrs. N. H. Carye, the teacher, accompanied the class.

Miss Elizabeth Otis is the guest of her cousin, Ashton Otis. Mrs. Otis has been spending the winter on the Coast and expects to leave soon for her home in Poplar Ridge, N. Y. She has made many friends while in the Golden State who wish her a safe journey and hope for her return.

The Friends mission in Honduras is to have a printing press, the gift of the Woman's Missionary Society of the East Whittier Friends Church. When the ladies met at the home of Mrs. Frank Kenworthy on Russell street, Thursday afternoon, the thank offering boxes were opened, and after informally discussing the uses for which the money might profitably be spent it was decided to purchase the printing press.

CORONA.

Another June wedding was that of Tuesday afternoon when Miss Ethel Chaney became the bride of Mr. L. O. Brand, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Chaney, at 1028 Park avenue, Rev. I. A. Engle, pastor of the First Methodist Church officiating.

Entering on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by her sister, Miss Helen Chaney, the bridal couple took their places in a flower-bedecked corner of the parlor where the ceremony took place. The bride was handsomely gowned in white beaded crepe de chine and presented a perfect picture. She carried a bride's bouquet of Cecile Brunner roses and ferns, tied with white satin ribbon.

Just before the ceremony, Miss Dorothy Tuthill of Riverside sang in a beautiful contralto voice, "At Dawning," accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Marion Tuthill.

Following the congratulations of the friends and relatives refreshments of ice cream and cake were served after which the bridal pair left for Riverside and then to the beaches, to be gone a week.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Chaney and is a graduate of the Corona High School. She is a great favorite among a large circle of friends.

Mr. Brand is a member of the R. M. Browning Company of this city and is a successful business man, having moved here from Riverside some time ago.

Miss Leslyn MacDonald entertained at her home Wednesday evening in honor of a number of her friends, many of them being members of the senior class of the Corona High School, of which class she was a member.

Diversions of the evening were dancing, games and music. The rooms were prettily decorated with the class colors of orange and green. Refreshments of punch and wafers were served.

Those present were the Misses Elizabeth Clark, Martha Hudson, Erna Marzinke, Gertrude McNeil, Marion Gleason and Viola Peeler, and Messrs. Claire Clipper, Joe Lowery, Herbert Smith, Jack Fitch, David May, Harold Marsden and Edward Reid.

LA HABRA.

Exposition Park, Los Angeles, was the picnic ground chosen for the annual getting-together of families living in Madison county, Illinois, on Sunday, to enjoy an elaborate luncheon and talk over old times. The party included Mr. and Mrs. John Leuhm, who were the first to locate in La Habra; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Launer and son Glen; Miss Flora Leuhm, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Leuhm, Mr. and Mrs. John Leutwiler and family, Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Launer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ridgway, Mrs. Jennie Kneier and Joe Kneier and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Leutwiler.

Before leaving for an all-summer visit in Wisconsin, their home State, Mr. and Mrs. W L. Rhodes were tendered a farewell reception and musical evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Linsdell on Florence street Tuesday evening.

The anniversary of a June wedding of forty years ago was fittingly celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George LeFever on Whittier Boulevard Wednesday evening, the honorees being Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Bemis of Yorba Linda, parents of the hostess. The dinner party with its array of handsome gifts was a surprise to them, and they were also pleasantly surprised by the reading of a poem written by the host for the occasion. The table was centered by a pretty arrangement of pansies and fern, and the rooms tastefully decorated with pink roses and Shasta daisies.

The ladies of the Busy Needle Workers spent a delightful afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Little Thursday. The hostess served an attractive luncheon after the sewing hour, at which one of the chief topics discussed was the annual party for husbands of the members. A lawn party and supper at the N. M. Launer home was decided on for Saturday evening.

One hundred guests witnessed the pretty wedding ceremony uniting Miss Mabel Carrick and Thomas Young Tuesday evening at the Methodist Church, Rev. H. H. Stranberg of Los Angeles officiating. Mrs. Thomas Warne of Whittier sang "O Promise Me" and "Sweetest Story Ever Told." The bride was attended by Misses Alta Canfield and Miss Pearl Phillips, and the groomsman was Ralph Kirchener. Elmerine Hains and Winifred Sutton attended as flower girls and Clayton Partridge was ring bearer. Ushers were Misses Fern Canfield and Margaret Jones, Edmond Canfield and Alfred Kniss.

A short reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carrick, after the ceremony and refreshments were served to a few friends. The young couple are spending their honeymoon in the northern part of the State.

The beautiful ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Frantz was the meeting place on Saturday of the members of the Velada Club for the final evening of cards for the year. Tables were placed for progressive five hundred and winners of high score were Mrs. Edgar Leutwiler and E. L. Leuhm. Second prizes fell to Mrs. Claude Ridgway and Frank Lightfoot. The hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Leora Espolt of Whittier, served attractive refreshments.

RIVERSIDE.

The eighty-seventh birthday anniversary of Mrs. Jessie Woodman, who was born in London when William IV. was England's King, was an event of the week which was made the occasion of a reunion of the members of the Woodman family. Forty-five persons, representative of four generations, were grouped about the picnic tables at Fairmount Park, where the anniversary festivities were carried out. The cutting of a large birthday cake was made a pleasantly ceremonious feature of the affair. Preceding the supper, the guest of honor "held court" in a rocking chair under one of the patriarchal trees of the park. The gathering brought together relatives of the family from various parts of the State.

Two of the members of the choir of the Grace Methodist Church, Miss Annie Ellen Robinson and John H. Simonson were united in Marriage Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Robinson, 595 East Ninth street. The ceremony, witnessed only by the immediate relatives, was performed by Rev. A. W. Cummings, pastor of the church.

Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Kirchhoffer entertained at supper Wednesday evening in honor of the vestrymen and their wives, the affair being held in the rectory of All Saints Episcopal Church.

Miss Harrett A. Stevenson of Pasadena, and Casper Grenfelt of Los Angeles, were married at noon Wednesday in the St. Cecilia chapel of the Mission Inn. Accompanying the bridal pair were A. Stevenson and Rev. Carl F. Henry of Pasadena, the latter reading the marriage service.

Miss Dorothy Kennedy, formerly of this city, and Elmer E. Horsley, well-known young business man, were united in marriage in the Church of the Angels in South Pasadena, the first of the week. The news was received here with interest by the members of the younger social set.

Announcement was made this week of the approaching marriage of Miss Ula Kitchen, talented musician and composer, and Ray H. Wolfe, a local newspaper man, son of a former editor of the Greeley (Colo.) Tribune, founded by Horace Greeley. The marriage will be solemnized on June 30.

VAN NUYS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cates of Leesdale street entertained at their home Tuesday evening with a family dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. U. J. Russell and daughter and also Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lawson. Mr. and Mrs. Russell recently motored to Van Nuys from Corcoran and intend to make their future home here.

Monday evening a party of enthusiastic young people from the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church motored to Santa Monica. They roasted wienies and toasted marshmallows and enjoyed a delightful evening.

The O. D. O. Club of Van Nuys closed its club year with a picnic in the South Hills.

One of the recent social events was the party given Friday evening by Stanley Petit of West Gilmore street for a number of his friends. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing, and delicious refreshments were served.

The beautiful home and gardens of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Ely on West Sherman Way was the scene Wednesday evening, June 16, at 8 o'clock, of one of the most brilliant social events of the season, when 100 guests attended the wedding of Miss Ruth Ely and Mr. Ernest Gibson of Van Nuys. Rev. Warren Elsing of the First Presbyterian Church officiated.

FULLERTON.

A June church wedding which created much interest was that of Miss Charlotte Fine to Joseph Daniels, Jr., which was solemnized in the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening in the presence of numerous friends and relatives, Rev. H. B. Clark officiating. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Marcy as best man and matron of honor, Fern and Dawn Marcy acting as flower girls. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Little Bear Lake to spend their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Clever and son Raymond attended the wedding of Miss Helen Kemp and Mr. Benjamin Richardson of Long Beach at the home of the bride's parents in Pasadena Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McBride have terminated a ten days' visit at the home of their sister, Mrs. J. C. Sheppard, and returned to their home at Hermosa Beach.

Mrs. Florence Wishard, accompanied by Misses Florence and Helen Wishard, motored to San Francisco Tuesday and after a visit with friends there, will continue to Denver, Colo., to visit Mrs. Wishard's daughter, Mrs. Alice Whitaker.

On last Wednesday evening Miss Margaret Beck and Harry Ustick were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on Ellis Place. 1000 Men Will Buy Wonderful SHIRTS on Jacoby Day at 98c —Not in years have we seen such good shirts as these sold at anywhere near such a low price and it wouldn't be possible even now were it not for the fact that the manufacturer sent us a great lot of shirts which he called "seconds" at much less than their worth. To these shirts we have added a great many shirts from our higher priced lines which have become soiled from being on display. Among them are shirts of Jap Crepe, of Corded Madras and of high grade Percales in a wide range of colorings, all sizes.

1200 Pairs Men's Thread Silk Sox 39c

—Just for fear that you think we have made a mistake let us repeat "1200 pairs Men's Thread Silk Sox, 39c pr."

KIPLING FILM IN NEW YORK.

"Without Benefit of Clergy" Shows at Capitol.

"Sowing the Wind" also Among New Features.

First British Paramount Production Appears.

BY HARRY CARR.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 25.—This was a notable week on Broadway with long-anticipated pictures at nearly every film theater.

The first Rudyard Kipling's production was shown at the Capitol; Anita Stewart's feature from the famous old melodrama, "Sowing the Wind," at the Strand; the first of the British pictures to be made in England by Paramount, at the Rialto; W. A. Brady's film version of his melodrama "Life" was at the Rivoli.

"Golem," a story of Jewish oppression and legend, made in Germany, was at the Criterion. Malcolm Strauss's film venture "Twice Born Woman," telling of Mary Magdalen was at the Hippodrome, turned into a picture house for the engagement.

Strictly speaking "Without Benefit of Clergy" is not the first Kipling story to be filmed. "The Light That Failed" was made some time ago.

However, James Young's version of "Without Benefit of Clergy" is the first real effort to put Kipling on the screen with the earnest co-operation of the author. Kipling is said to have designed the sets and written the continuity, and was represented by an agent during the entire filming.

It is, therefore, a picture that any fair-minded critic must approach with hesitation.

"Without Benefit of Clergy" is almost universally recognized as one of the finest stories ever written in any language. It will live as long as there are printed books. It is imperishable. It glows with the light divine. No one will ever be able to tell it again. Not even Mr. Kipling. It was a spark of genius and sparks can't be made prisoner and they can't be warmed over.

I have read "Without Benefit of Clergy" at least 100 times. I dare say that Mr. Young, the director, has read it quite as many. It is no doubt a part of his life as it is a part of mine. It means a certain definite thing to him; it means something entirely different to me. No two readers probably have seen it the same in their eager imagining. Mr. Young has put the story on the screen as he saw it in his imagination.

Looked at from any standpoint it is an interesting and important picture. The measure of its merit, however, is this: I would gladly read the story 100 times more; but I would not care to see the picture twice.

Although Mr. Kipling himself selected it, "Without Benefit of Clergy" is not very well adapted to the screen. There is not enough action or suspense.

Not being a literary murderer the director couldn't change the story. His only recourse, therefore, was to make the most of the atmosphere and color and mystery of Indian life.

Mr. Young did this with considerable success although it seemed to me that the picture was a little disappointing in this regard.

Many of the sets were charming and great pains had been taken to reproduce India correctly and with sympathy. But the streets did not look "lived in."

The sets seemed to be sets, and the extra people in the streets seemed to be extra people. To me the story lacked richness of incident and there were too many close-ups in front of bleak gray "flats" with the people doing nothing.

At the same time the story was intelligently and interestingly told. The incident of the cholera epidemic was particularly well handled.

Virginia Brown Faire was a capable and sympathetic Ameera, but sometimes she was fair and sometimes she was dusky. She seemed to wear all shades and varieties of make-up, from mulatto to lily white.

Thomas Holding was satisfactory as the Englishman who loves Ameera.

A BATTLE ROYAL.

I approached "Without Benefit of Clergy" with some hesitation, but I fled from Anita Stewart's "Sowing the Wind" without hesitation. It is a god-awful piece of work, with scenario writers, photographers, actors and directors apparently in a furious contest as to which could do the worst. The race ended in a dead heat and honors—or dishonors—about even.

Sidney Grundy's old melodrama from which the picture was made was a virile and stirring story of a man's past rising up to smite him. He finds that the actress whom he regards as an adventuress in pursuit of his adopted son, is his own daughter.

In the picture they never seem to get around to the story. For some extraordinary reason the scenarioists missed the whole point of the drama by apparently making the sinful mother, Baby Brabant, the one who was sowing to the wind, minimizing the part of the old man, who, of course, was the central figure of the stage play.

Miss Stewart's screen version seemed to consist mainly of close-ups. Miss Stewart and Miss Myrtle Stedman, both "acted" all over the place.

Miss Stedman and the word "restraint" are evidently not on speaking terms. As Baby Babrant, a wicked lady, she had so many contortions, one feared that she might come apart if it got any worse.

The direction of the picture was silly and exasperating. It was full of punk would-be dramatic thrills in which agitated ladies fall in faints through the curtains and where wicked mothers are giving toasts to something frightfully naughty when the innocent daughter appears on the stairway.

There is one of those evening parties where the guests never seem to do anything but stand in bunches waiting for one heroine after another to appear on the stairway and horrify them. God was good to a certain type of motion-picture director when he permitted stairs to be invented.

The photographer of "Sowing the Wind" seemed to be blissfully indifferently to the simplest and most fundamental laws of composition.

ANNIVERSARY WEEK.

Orpheum Celebrates Tenth Birthday With Proper Eclat.

Of course Singer's Midgets remain another week at the Orpheum, headlining the bill for anniversary week, which begins with the Monday matinee of June 27, ten years since the new house opened.

Anniversary week has always been marked by a special show of unusual quality, and this year, while the week begins a day late—the actual date being June 26, Sunday—the week will be made memorable just the same, for no other attraction quite compares to the Singer Midgets in amplitude, resources, variety and interest.

The program will be varied, of course, but in the main the features, as disclosed the past week will be shown in their entirety.

The feature act in-coming is offered by June Elvidge, the erstwhile picture star, who has returned to the dramatic field in a thoroughly fit and unusual playlet, "The Crystal Gazer." It is a sumptuously set affair, laid on the desert, wherein Miss Elvidge appears in disguise as a daughter of the burning sands. There is a clever plot interwoven into the play, which has a surprise finish. The act is by Albert Cowles, writer of "Under Orders" and other successes.

The Marmein sisters, Irene and Miriam, and David Schooler, are united in a unique featured act. The two girls are superb dancers, and Mr. Schooler is a pianist of parts, and the combination is, therefore, unusual and artistic.

"The man you all know," James B. Donovan—also called "the king of Ireland," and Miss Marie Lee, the dancing butterfly, come also as a feature number, offering "Doing Well, Thank you," which is a mere title for merriment. These two veterans of vaudeville have long been strangers here and are assured of a fine welcome.

Sampson and Douglas combine to proffer "The Life of the Party" in song and patter; Ann Butler and Hal Parker have a skit, "Don't Make Me Laugh;" Connelly and Frances will present some fun and music, and Van Horn and Inez, on skates, will do some whirlwind work.

COMEDY ENTERPRISE.

Upon his return from New York this week Louis J. Gasnier, to whom Jimmie Adams has signed his services for a long period, announced a change in production plans for his Glendale studios. Arrangements have been consummated whereby Mr. Adams will no longer be identified with Mermaid Comedies, with which he has been featured for the past year, but hereafter will be starred in a new series of two-reel features by the company bearing his own name and known as Adams Comedies. This series of pictures, eight in number, will be released on the Educational Film Corporation program.

BALLET DES ARTISTES.

New Pantages Brightened by Bevy of Dancing Nymphs.

A whole troupe of Terpsichore's priestesses will "trip the light fantastic" at the New Pantages next week, for Edna Rigdon's nymphs are headlined in the Ballet Des Artistes, a gorgeously staged cycle of interpretative dances.

That thorough Thespian, Thornton Flynn, promises another of his delightful vocal contributions, and Tracy, Palmer and Tracy are reputed to be sure-fire with their melange of music and merriment.

Two good fighting names are those of Leonard and Willard, and with a punch to their songs and a kick in every line of their chatter they stage a battle of wits that always goes over to a knockout.

The Ambler Brothers scramble through a routine of equilibristic feats, and a very particular surprise act promises another flock of thrills.

Alice Joyce is starred in "Her Lord and Master," a production that is well worth notice in the Pantages series of first-run super-features.

WHAT TALES TITLES TELL!

"Those who want a movie censorship are not those who attend movie theaters," declares Tod Browning, the director. "Their opinion of a picture's morality is often formed from its title, and their opinion of picture players' morality from certain 'inside dope' scandal papers. Then they pick up some film publication and read innocent items so they sound like this: 'One Week of Life with Pauline Frederick;' 'Sick-a-bed with Wallace Reid;' 'Are All Men Alike with May Allison;' 'Why Trust Your Husband with Eileen Percy;' 'What Women Will Do with a Special Cast;' 'Dangerous Business with Constance Talmadge;' 'Scratch My Back with a Special Cast;' 'Behind the Door with Hobart Bosworth,' and comment 'What terrible things these pictures are.'"

"THE CLANSMAN" TO RUN ANOTHER WEEK.

"The Clansman" enters its third and final week at the Garrick today, having shown to packed audiences, in spite of the fact that it has been exhibited scores of times here.

Los Angeles fans will never have another opportunity to witness D. W. Griffith's big spectacle. This is positively the last time it will ever be shown here. The exchange which is handling the film has made this announcement.

The picture will be flashed on the Garrick screen for the final time next Sunday.

COUNTRY COMEDY AT MILLER'S THIS WEEK.

Now in its second week at Miller's, "Down Home," based on the story of "Dabney Todd," by F. N. Westcott, is registering high with photoplay fans, and the thrills, romance and laughter running through the production make it popular with all classes.

With the characteristic humor of David Harum, "Down Home" also carries the thrills and laughter that was not present in the early version of the well-known book of David Harum.

Mary Pickford is also on the program at Miller's this week in a one-reel production taken in 1909, with Irvin V. Willat, the director of "Down Home," as her leading man.

This picture, taken twelve years ago, is conclusive evidence of the advance made in motion pictures during the last few years. It was originally a serious drama, but today it is a comedy with laughs from start to finish.

Music appropriately selected completes the program.

"ZIGZAG TOWN" AT CAPITOL THEATER.

If you can find your way through the bewildering maze of high-powered divertissement of Ed Armstrong's "Zig Zag Town" production, the newest offering of the Baby Dolls at Gore's Capitol next week, you will get the gold-embroidered curtain rope, according to the stage hands, who have been working night and day on what they believe to be the most ambitious offering yet staged at the Capitol.

Armstrong promises at least seven different specialty numbers on the new bill, with the corps of Baby Dolls in the peppiest line-up of dance and song numbers yet conceived. There will be a massive setting, which is to hold a number of scenic surprises.

The cast of principals has been especially rehearsed in the new parts, and it promises a perfect characterization.

Manny King, Irene Brooks, Rooky Lewis, Violet Mansfield, Billy Riddle, Nan Keyes and others will be seen.

On Tuesday night the Capitol will stage movie night, while on Friday night the chorus girls' contests will be held.

MALATESTA AS BOOTBLACK.

Fred Malatesta is glad that he will be able to get away from his villaining and play a new role. He has been the villain so long that no one suspects him of being anything else. Now, however, he is to portray Dick, the Italian bootblack, in Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

"PARDON MY FRENCH."

Vivian Martin and Ben Turpin at the California.

"Pardon My French," a new Messmore Kendall production, released by Goldwyn and starring Vivian Martin, is one feature of the program opening at the California today.

The story deals with a young actress out with a road company, which, in the usual manner of such companies, goes broke, leaving everybody stranded, including the heroine, Polly, played by Miss Martin.

It is said to be a real Vivian Martin vehicle—light, entertaining, amusing and with dramatic and breath-holding passages. It is the kind of story which Miss Martin has made peculiarly her own on the screen, half comic and half dramatic, and it is certain to increase the already wide popularity of the star.

And even if the various situations in this comedy were not funny enough by themselves, the job would be completed anyway by the witty subtitles written by Irvin S. Cobb.

The other feature of the new program is Ben Turpin's first Associated Producers' release, "Love's Outcast." Turpin's security at the head of the screen's comedy performers is sufficient to justify every expectation of a huge success in this, the first of a forthcoming series of "Ben Turpin Specials," produced by Mack Sennett.

An excellent all-star comedy cast is cleverly disposed in the leading roles and includes, besides Ben Turpin, the star, as "a ladies' man;" Dot Farley as his wife; James Finlayson, as an innocent detective; Kathryn McGuire, Phyllis Haver, Mildred June and other beauties as plot participants and witnesses; Kalla Pasha as a jolly tar, and Albert Cooke as a "dry" courtroom attache.

The orchestra will offer for the overture Verdi's brilliant "Il Trovatore," and other features will include a clever stage number.

LEAD FOR MISS COMPSON.

Will Carleton has been engaged to play opposite Betty Compson in her second Paramount starring picture, to be started shortly under Penrhyn Stanlaw's direction. This is "The Woman in the Case," by Clyde Fitch, scenario by A. S. LeVino. Mr. Carleton has appeared in Paramount eastern-made productions and had a number of years' experience on the stage in legitimate drama and as leading baritone in big musical shows.

NEW PLAY WITH ROBERT EDESON.

Early Premiere of Comedy, "Peter," Programed at Majestic Theater.

A definite cast is given plans of Thomas Wilkes, the theatrical producer, for further new presentations in Los Angeles through the announcement that immediately following the revival of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," which opens today, Robert Edeson will be starred in a new play at the Majestic Theater.

This is a comedy, entitled "Peter," by Marion Wightman. It tells the story of a college professor who suddenly wakes up to the fact that he has been living off the fortune of his wife for a number of years and that consequently he is not master in his own house. His efforts to extricate himself from the predicament furnish the plot.

Mr. Wilkes regards the new play as the most promising attraction he has yet announced as a part of his production activities. Mr. Edeson will be supported by members of the Majestic Stock Company, excepting Edward Everett Horton, who will be on his vacation at the time.

"Pilgrimage Play" Soon to Open Here.

Henry E. Herbert,
Who will again portray The Christ role this season.

LAYING STONES OF HOLY CITY.

Far East, most of the time in Jerusalem and its environs.

But besides that she visited Egypt and India. In these other countries she traced to their sources influences on the life of Palestine, and relationship, important because of the invasions of the warlike hosts.

She found in the tombs of kings in Thebes carvings showing costumes similar to those now worn in parts of the Holy Land. In India she discovered strange resemblances in the craft and art works to those which she found about Jerusalem. Thus did she arrive definitely at the cosmopolitan character of the life in the metropolis of the Jews in the period of the divine drama.

With this established Mrs. Stevenson says that she can proceed to enlarge both the variety and the coloring of her presentation. She has, however, been careful to eliminate anything that is in the least doubtful in authenticity.

Still she feels justified in using a wide range of provincial and national coloring to add richness to the pageant drama. She went beyond the limits of bazaars and shops in the cities to obtain her costumes. She traveled to the unvisited towns and even the mountain fastnesses to purchase from the people the clothes they themselves wore.

REAL NATIVE APPAREL.

"Most of these costumes I bought right off the people's backs," she said. "I have every assurance that they are virtually the same as those that were worn in the time of the Christ. In the out-of-the-way places the styles never change.

"Even in Jerusalem itself some of the people still wear caps similar to those which were shown on the walls in the tombs at Thebes. These were reputedly the garb of the Jewish prisoners captured by the Egyptians. Strange to say, in Jerusalem they are worn by people who declare that they are not of the Jewish race, and, in fact, persecute the Jews.

"Every step that I took convinced me of the authenticity of the biblical narrative as a chronicle. It is remarkable how things check up. When Christ speaks of John the Baptist, he describes him as a man who was not wearing soft garments. When I was in the Holy Land I found that the camel's hair garment was the one naturally worn in the desert, and it was but logical to assume that this was the type worn by John in the desert.

"Christ himself wore a head-dress. It is thus that we shall show him in this year's production. He used the kaffiyeh and the abaye" (the scarf and the ornamental headpiece like a crown) "which is still worn."

In detail the "Pilgrimage Play" will undoubtedly be a revelation. Each minute change has been carefully weighed in Mrs. Stevenson's mind. She has accepted nothing either in costume, manner or custom, which could not be thoroughly substantiated. She conducted her researches historically and archaeologically, and found that at every point she was but proving the beauty and the reality of the spiritual drama as told in the Bible.

I would hesitate to give a record of the stuffs, the trinkets, the jewels, the beads, the furnishings which she obtained during her stay in the Holy Land. Too, it would be difficult to describe them in detail.

What strikes you as particularly unusual among the assortment is, of course, the rich coloring. There is one garment that is a flame of orange, shot through and through with a fiery pomegranate red. Mrs. Stevenson told me that a boy had showed her a flower whence the dye emanated—a flower that grows on a tree similarly to the purple jackarandas now in bloom here. It flares orange and red like the wonderful silk to which it gives its lifeblood.

There is one garment worn by the women of the desert that is five yards long. Five yards long! Imagine it! It looks like a dress for a giantess.

But, of course, it is formed into a sort of balloon-like blouse, which is full not only above the waist but below as well.

Then there are the marvelous head-dresses, woven of threads and holding possibly a hundred coins. These are collected from childhood as the dowry of the woman for her marriage. She always carries her dowry with her. It represents her jewelry.

There is a sort of large collapsible brass lamp which will probably be used in the garden of Gethsemane scene; there are marvelously wrought saddlebags that look like they might have been the work of the American Indian; there are straps and carriers, ornamented with shells from the Dead Sea; there are mystic batiks from Bokhara, Tyrian purple cloth, blue beads that are used to adorn donkies and children alike, and there are embroidered garments that are as heavy as the weight of years that hang over all these relics and reproductions of relics, which are to help visualize the great era of the Christ drama.

APPRECIATE CLARK GIFT.

In consideration of a contribution made to aid the needy musicians of Austria, a letter of thanks was received at the offices of the Philharmonic Orchestra yesterday from Carl Maria Haslbruncy, president of the Society of Austrian Musicians. The letter states that the donation was, according to the wishes of the donors, spent to relieve the neediest cases, and that a list of beneficiaries will be sent in the near future. "The sum of 60,000 Austrian kronen has been set aside to serve as the founda- of the 'W. A. Clark fund,' which we will supplement from time to time," the letter continues, "for the use of future cases in need of relief, so that your excellency's name and the memory of your good deed may live forever among Austria's musicians."

Gayne Whitman,
leading role in "Three Faces East" at the Morosco Theater.

EE FACES EAST" ATTRACTIVE AS EVER.

"Faces East" enters the week with today's matinee at Morosco.

The powerful mystery drama is a big drawing card. The affords a wonderful two hours to persons who like and suspense. You will grip in excitement during the scene. This is one char of every audience who seen the piece.

The play is from the pen of An Paul Kelly and is regarded as of the best dramas of the past

Mann and Gayne Whitman leading roles. They are admirably supported by the regular Morosco favorites.

The next attraction at the Morosco will be "A Tailor-Made Man," a screamingly funny comedy.

"SYNCOPATED WEDDING" BURBANK ATTRACTION.

Jazz and ragtime are invading the ranks of the Hi Jinks Revues Company at the Burbank.

The coming week is to be especially lively, according to announcement. "A Syncopated Wedding" is the new music show.

This is the production which upset one of the biggest road-shows' calculations in the East, when the Hi Jinks Revues played in opposition to the said show, and ran away with the honors.

The most massive and elaborate staging and costuming of the new play promise entertainment of the highest quality.

Al and Loie Bridge, featured principals, have an apparently inexhaustible supply of material. Nothing is ever repeated by the Hi Jinks Revues. Whenever a new show is announced every detail is changed. Costumes, songs, dances, specialties, settings, etc., are never the same.

The principals included in the cast are Jeso Phillips, Jean Darby, Olga Brooks, George Clark, the Kemball Four, Mayzee Weldon, and of course, that "young old couple," Al and Loie Bridge. And the most beautiful and bewitching chorus in captivity adds luster to the bill.

Announcement is also made that for one week only, beginning with the new production on the stage, Jackie Coogan, in "Peck's Bad Boy," will be added to the Burbank program.

ASSISTANCE LEAGUE HELPS.

For her current production starring Claire Windsor Lois Weber needed a structure of the Spanish type, and the Flintridge County Club fitted the description to the "T." But Flintridge is an exclusive organization, and not particularly desirous of having a movie company around. Somebody told Miss Weber's location manager of the location bureau maintained by the Assistance League, a charitable organization, and as a last resort Robert E. Wells, general manager, was appealed to. It took about eight minutes, elapsed time, for Wells to point out that a handsome rental fee could be charged for the use of the club building, which would be turned over to children's charities, and the trick was done.

Vera Vaughn,
In "War is Hell" at Broadway Pantages.

"WAR IS HELL" AT BROADWAY PANTAGES

"Oklahoma Bob" Albright's Broadway Follies will all be transformed into pretty senoritas for the coming week's presentation of "War Is Hell," at the Broadway Pantages.

Frank Samuels has decided upon Sonora, Mex., as the most appropriate place for a musical comedy demonstration of the historical remark he has selected as the title for his comedy.

This being a musical comedy war, the hades of the simile will naturally be a musical comedy hell, and a musical comedy version of Mexico is also in order. Therefore, instead of scowling Aztec generals in poncho and sombrero, the dashing leaders of Samuels's revolutionaries will be uniformed a la Tango, and instead of the dark-skinned peoncitas familiar to travelers in Obregon's country, the senoritas will be the chic, pretty and graceful barefoot dancers of Mr. Albright's Follies chorus.

There will be neither trenches nor training camps, but a few pretty Red Cross nurses are promised.

EN DISHABILLE.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" to Show at the Majestic.

Comedy in its lightest form will be the attraction at the Majestic, where, beginning this afternoon, Thomas Wilkes will present that frolicsome farce, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," by C. W. Bell and Mark Swan.

Of all the pajama plays this one is perhaps the liveliest and funniest. It is all about a young wife who falls in love with her husband because she believes he has been a veritable Romeo with women in his day.

Her husband, however, is an innocent simpleton whom the swish of a skirt fills with trepidation, but he is compelled to sustain his wife's illusion. In order to do so he enters into a conspiracy with the aid of a friend that nearly proves his undoing. He betakes himself to a lonely wayside inn in company with another man's wife, and before long other women appear—more than he had ever dreamed could appear in one place—and the developments that ensue provide action enough for a two-family house.

In the role of the "other woman," Mary Newcomb will have a splendid opportunity to display her talent as a comedienne. Supporting her will be Franklin Pangborn, Alice Elliot, Sara Sothern, Fred F. Cummings, Marie Curtis, Forrest Seabury, Henry Hall, Harry J. Leland, Vivian Moore, Hazel Buckham and Stanley Taylor.

PLAYING OPPOSITE WILLIAMS.

Fritzi Ridgeway is playing opposite Earle Williams in the Vitagraph production, "Bring Him In." The Williams company is still at Lake Tahoe, where exteriors are being made.

"TOO MUCH SPEED."

Wallace Reid in a Motor Comedy at Grauman's Tomorrow.

Wallace Reid, in "Too Much Speed," a tale of adventure and action, with Wally in the role of a daredevil driver, divides prominence on Grauman's program, opening Monday, with Grauman's presentations, chief of which is "Xochitl," a phantasy in which twenty dancers and artists, marvelously costumed, will appear amid gorgeous scenery.

Written especially for the screen by Byron Morgan, author of "The Roaring Road," "Excuse My Dust," and "What's Your Hurry," all automobile stories and three of Reid's most successful features, "Too Much Speed" carries the young star, as a demon racer, through punch episodes and action galore.

"Too Much Speed" is a typical Wally Reid picture from start to finish, and is said to be his most successful vehicle to date.

Agnes Ayres is the leading woman. In addition, the cast includes Theodore Roberts, Jack Richardson, Lucien Littlefield, Guy Oliver, Henry Johnson and Jack Herbert.

Frank Urson directed and C. E. Schoenbaum is the cameraman.

An atmospheric musical score will accompany "Too Much Speed," "Xochitl" and the other features. The orchestra numbers will be played by the Grauman orchestra, and the organ selections will be rendered by Henry Murtagh.

Thomas Meighan, in "White and Unmarried," will be seen today for the last times.

READS FOREIGN PLAY.

Hedwiga Reicher gave a reading of David Pinski's play in one act, "Bathsheba," recently at the Elks' clubhouse. The reading was preceded by a short lecture on Pinski, "The Man and His Works," of which Miss Reicher gave a vivid and interesting description.

WANTED PROP BUNGALOW.

Harry ("Snub") Pollard was put to a hard test in gallantry the other day. Some newlyweds wanted to buy the bungalow constructed for his new picture comedy. The bungalow, set between some permanent homes, with its attractive lawn and gardens, big trees and inviting look, was just what a young couple had set their hearts upon—so Pollard was told by the insistent bridegroom. Firmly and sadly he had to inform them it was "only a picture house and would soon be torn down."

DIRECTOR MEETS STAR.

Al Christie has arrived in New York, according to a telegram to his brother. En route East he met Douglas MacLean at Atlanta, Ga. McLean was making a personal appearance at the Howard Theater. Doug prevailed on Christie to join him in a double act at the picture house, and presumably they got away with it, because both are still going good, outside of Atlanta.

Vola Vale,
In principal feminine role in "Someone in the House," to show at Tally's.

ANOTHER CROOK PLAY.

"Someone in the House" to Show at Tally's Tomorrow.

A short story from the pen of Larry Evans formed the foundation for the stage success, "Someone in the House," which has been picturized by Metro, with Edmund Lowe as the star. The picture will be shown at Tally's tomorrow.

A society crook, polished in all the ways that appeal to life in "high society," works his way into the confidence of the beautiful daughter of a wealthy family and schemes to betray that confidence in procuring the famous Brent diamonds. Everything works with machine-like accuracy until love intrudes and the "polite" crook finds his path of crime becomes a road of mystery.

All those tense situations which make a mystery drama strongly alluring by their powerful bid for the unexpected have been preserved in the picture, it is said, and clearly bring out the atmosphere of the unusual which runs through the drama.

Besides Lowe, as "The Dancer," there are Vola Vale, Edward Connelly, Henry Miller, Jr., and other well-known stage and screen actors in the cast.

Mr. Tally is offering as a special added attraction what is probably one of the most remarkable novelty features of its kind ever made, and so far as records show, the first one ever attempted. It is a romantic photodramatic sketch woven around such great musicians and composers as Godowsky, Rachmaninoff, Leo Ornstein, Zimbalist, Alma Gluck, Rosa Ponselle, Mana Zucca and one or two others. These artists actually appear on the screen in their respective roles.

A specially arranged musical score accompanies the feature, and Rubinstein's Concerto in D minor is the piece de resistance offered by the solo piano, orchestra and organ. The concerto figures prominently in the musical drama.

POLLOCK COMEDY.

Clune's Broadway Will Offer "Such a Little Queen."

"Such a Little Queen," Channing Pollock's successful comedy, in which Elsie Ferguson made a hit a few years ago, has been turned into a clever screen vehicle.

Constance Binney will star in it at Clune's Broadway this week. The role of Anne Victoria, queen of a mythical kingdom, is said to be well suited to this demure little actress.

The play deals with the fortunes of the queen of a petty kingdom, who, when her throne totters and revolution disrupts her little country, flees to America with her dog and her bird and her very much bejeweled crown, but with no practical assets. After starving in royal dignity in a dingy New-York flat for a few months, she goes heroically to work in a Wall-street office, where she meets a man who is a real prince and loves her.

The decorations worn by the star, as the little queen, are genuine decorations bestowed at one time or another upon various persons by various monarchs of old Europe, in the days when monarchs were more in vogue than they are now in the Old World. These decorations, which are the property of a New York collector of antique jewels and art objects, were borrowed for Miss Binney's use in this picture.

Miss Binney is supported by excellent actors—Vincent Coleman, Frank Losee, Jessie Ralph and others.

"Such a Little Queen" is a comedy of youth and love in Arcady and promises to be good entertainment for picture lovers.

"THE KANGAROOS" AT EGAN LITTLE THEATER.

"The Kangaroos," the newest Victor Mapes mystery play, begins its second week at the Egan Little Theater on Monday night.

The farcical comedy is proving one of the best magnets Frank Egan has yet tried out here, and Oliver Morosco, who expects to present it to Broadway, New York, is greatly encouraged by the reception it has been given by Angeleno audiences.

The play is well saturated with laughs, giggles, guffaws and chuckles, while an element of mystery gives it the thrill of melodrama.

Olga Gray Zacsek is seen as a feminine Sherlock Holmes, Neely Edwards and Russell Simpson furnish unlimited comedy and others in the cast are Kathleen Kirkham, Margaret Davis, Martha Mattox, Lincoln Stedman, Charles King, George Clare, Alice Clare and Edith Fassett.

"BEARDED LIKE A PARD."

Tony Moreno, Vitagraph star, is raising a prodigious growth of whiskers for his next picture.

Betty Compson,
In screen revival of "The Miracle Man" at the Alhambra.

"THE MIRACLE MAN."

The memory of the late George Loane Tucker will be paid fitting tribute at the Alhambra this week, where "The Miracle Man," the noted director's masterpiece is being shown.

"The Miracle Man," originally released by Paramount a trifle over two years ago and featuring Thomas Meighan and Betty Compson, at present independent stars, has created film history and has an unrivaled record for success in the history of the silent drama. Everywhere it has been shown, a few cities of the civilized world have not offered it for review, it has been given most enthusiastic acclaim and its story is as entertaining and inspiring today as ever.

Adapted to the screen by Mr. Tucker from George M. Cohan's dramatization of the original Frank L. Packard story, "The Miracle Man" unfolds with extraordinary human appeal a story of three crooks who sought to swindle the public out of a fortune, using a blind healer as their foil. The opening scenes of the picture show the brilliant leader of the crooks, assisted by a beautiful girl, and "the frog," who could disjoint his body as he willed, planning on taking up their activities at the small village in which the aged blind man was creating a sensation by his many wonderful healings by the laying on of hands.

Arriving at the home of the old man the crooks prepare for a golden harvest and pose as relatives and his business representatives. Their outward tenderness covers their mercenary aspirations, but gradually the faith of the wonder worker converts them to his cause and their sudden change of heart makes possible one of the most stirring and unusual climaxes ever given a screen play.

Lon Chaney is cast as "the frog," Gene Dumont plays the part of a "dope" and Joseph J. Dowling is seen as "the miracle man."

"FOOLISH MATRONS."

Tourneur's New Picture at Symphony has Strong Cast.

On the question of what constitutes marriage and the right to happiness, Donn Byrne wrote his novel, "The Foolish Matrons," and from the novel Maurice Tourneur has evolved a motion picture that is the chief attraction at the New Symphony today.

Subtly has the director blended the laughs with the tears and woven into the picture brilliant bits of biting satire. Yet, underneath it all runs an undercurrent of powerful drama.

There is no single featured player in the production. Rather, there are six of them, all well known in the film world, and under the guidance of Maurice Tourneur and Clarence L. Brown they have perhaps excelled themselves.

Hobart Bosworth, Charles Meredith, Wallace McDonald, Kathleen Kirkham, Doris May and Mildred Manning constitute one of the strongest casts that Tourneur has ever offered in a single production.

Three separate stories are woven into "The Foolish Matrons," yet each of the stories is dependent upon the others. The narrative deals with three different couples thrown into a whirlpool of New York's busy life, and their weaknesses and virtues are contrasted strongly.

A special score and prologue have been arranged under the direction of Tourneur for the presentation of the production at the New Symphony.

"WOMAN GOD CHANGED" REMAINS AT RIALTO.

After prompting extensive discussion in local church, legal and official circles over many of its passages within the past fortnight, "The Woman God Changed" begins the third week of its engagement at Grauman's Rialto today.

Much of this laudatory discussion has centered on the happenings in the lives of the two principal characters in this beautiful story after they have been cast up on a desert isle, the victims of a shipwreck, the man, an officer of the law, the woman, his prisoner.

Their strange marriage and their ultimate return to the United States—and justice—form a network of action which accounts for the reception of this photoplay locally and which eclipses the interest aroused by the original novel.

Robert G. Vignola directed, and in the cast are Seena Owen, E. K. Lincoln, Lillian Walker, Henry Sedley, H. Cooper Cliff, Paul Nicholson, Joseph Smiley and Templer Saxe.

The desert island location scenes were filmed in the Bahama Islands.

The Rialto program is rounded out with a series of presentations by Sid Grauman, most prominent of which is his atmospheric prologue to the feature, "Moonlight Even on Tahiti."

Men by association in large masses, as in cities, improve their talents, but inspire their virtues; strengthen their minds, but weaken their morals.

Here is the answer to what every woman wants to know, and every man thinks he knows about married life!

If you suppress the exorbitant love of pleasure and money, idle curiosity, iniquitous pursuits and wanton mirth, what a stillness there would be in great cities.

As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman;
Though she bends him, she obeys him;
Though she draws him, yet she follows;
Useless each without the other!

KIPLING FILM IN NEW YORK.

"Without Benefit of Clergy" Shows at Capitol.

"Sowing the Wind" also Among New Features.

First British Paramount Production Appears.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 25.—This was a notable week on Broadway with long-anticipated pictures at nearly every film theater.

The first Rudyard Kipling's production was shown at the Capitol; Anita Stewart's feature from the famous old melodrama, "Sowing the Wind," at the Strand; the first of the British pictures to be made in England by Paramount, at the Rialto; W. A. Brady's film version of his melodrama "Life" was at the Rivoli.

"Golem," a story of Jewish oppression and legend, made in Germany, was at the Criterion. Malcolm Strauss's film venture "Twice Born Woman," telling of Mary Magdalen was at the Hippodrome, turned into a picture house for the engagement.

Strictly speaking "Without Benefit of Clergy" is not the first Kipling story to be filmed. "The Light That Failed" was made some time ago.

However, James Young's version of "Without Benefit of Clergy" is the first real effort to put Kipling on the screen with the earnest cooperation of the author. Kipling is said to have designed the sets and written the continuity, and was represented by an agent during the entire filming.

It is, therefore, a picture that any fair-minded critic must approach with hesitation.

"Without Benefit of Clergy" is almost universally recognized as one of the finest stories ever written in any language. It will live as long as there are printed books. It is imperishable. It glows with the light divine. No one will ever be able to tell it again. Not even Mr. Kipling. It was a spark of genius and sparks can't be made prisoner and they can't be warmed over.

I have read "Without Benefit of Clergy" at least 100 times. I dare say that Mr. Young, the director, has read it quite as many. It is no doubt a part of his life as it is a part of mine. It means a certain definite thing to him; it means something entirely different to me. No two readers probably have seen it the same in their eager imagining. Mr. Young has put the story on the screen as he saw it in his imagination.

Looked at from any standpoint it is an interesting and important picture. The measure of its merit, however, is this: I would gladly read the story 100 times more; but I would not care to see the picture twice.

Although Mr. Kipling himself selected it, "Without Benefit of Clergy" is not very well adapted to the screen. There is not enough action or suspense.

Not being a literary murderer the director couldn't change the story. His only recourse, therefore, was to make the most of the atmosphere and color and mystery of Indian life.

Mr. Young did this with considerable success although it seemed to me that the picture was a little disappointing in this regard.

Many of the sets were charming and great pains had been taken to reproduce India correctly and with sympathy. But the streets did not look "lived in."

The sets seemed to be sets, and the extra people in the streets seemed to be extra people. To me the story lacked richness of incident and there were too many close-ups in front of bleak gray "flats" with the people doing nothing.

At the same time the story was intelligently and interestingly told. The incident of the cholera epidemic was particularly well handled.

Virginia Brown Faire was a capable and sympathetic Ameera, but sometimes she was fair and sometimes she was dusky. She seemed to wear all shades and varieties of make-up, from mulatto to lily white.

Thomas Holding was satisfactory as the Englishman who loves Ameera.

A BATTLE ROYAL.

I approached "Without Benefit of Clergy" with some hesitation, but I fled from Anita Stewart's "Sowing the Wind" without hesitation. It is a god-awful piece of work, with scenario writers, photographers, actors and directors apparently in a furious contest as to which could do the worst. The race ended in a dead heat and honors—or dishonors—about even.

Sidney Grundy's old melodrama from which the picture was made was a virile and stirring story of a man's past rising up to smite him. He finds that the actress whom he regards as an adventuress in pursuit of his adopted son, is his own daughter.

In the picture they never seem to get around to the story. For some extraordinary reason the scenarioists missed the whole point of the drama by apparently making the sinful mother, Baby Brabant, the one who was sowing to the wind, minimizing the part of the old man, who, of course, was the central figure of the stage play.

Miss Stewart's screen version seemed to consist mainly of close-ups. Miss Stewart and Miss Myrtle Stedman, both "acted" all over the place.

Miss Stedman and the word "restraint" are evidently not on speaking terms. As Baby Babrant, a wicked lady, she had so many contortions, one feared that she might come apart if it got any worse.

The direction of the picture was silly and exasperating. It was full of punk would-be dramatic thrills in which agitated ladies fall in faints through the curtains and where wicked mothers are giving toasts to something frightfully naughty when the innocent daughter appears on the stairway.

There is one of those evening parties where the guests never seem to do anything but stand in bunches waiting for one heroine after another to appear on the stairway and horrify them. God was good to a certain type of motion-picture director when he permitted stairs to be invented.

The photographer of "Sowing the Wind" seemed to be blissfully indifferently to the simplest and most fundamental laws of composition.

ANNIVERSARY WEEK.

Orpheum Celebrates Tenth Birthday With Proper Eclat.

Of course Singer's Midgets remain another week at the Orpheum, headlining the bill for anniversary week, which begins with the Monday matinee of June 27, ten years since the new house opened.

Anniversary week has always been marked by a special show of unusual quality, and this year, while the week begins a day late—the actual date being June 26, Sunday—the week will be made memorable just the same. for no other attraction quite compares to the Singer Midgets in amplitude, resources, variety and interest.

The program will be varied, of course, but in the main the features, as disclosed the past week will be shown in their entirety.

The feature act in-coming is offered by June Elvidge, the erstwhile picture star, who has returned to the dramatic field in a thoroughly fit and unusual playlet, "The Crystal Gazer." It is a sumptuously set affair, laid on the desert, wherein Miss Elvidge appears in disguise as a daughter of the burning sands. There is a clever plot interwoven into the play, which has a surprise finish. The act is by Albert Cowles, writer of "Under Orders" and other successes.

The Marmein sisters, Irene and Miriam, and David Schooler, are united in a unique featured act. The two girls are superb dancers, and Mr. Schooler is a pianist of parts, and the combination is, therefore, unusual and artistic.

"The man you all know," James B. Donovan—also called "the king of Ireland," and Miss Marie Lee, the dancing butterfly, come also as a feature number, offering "Doing Well, Thank you," which is a mere title for merriment. These two veterans of vaudeville have long been strangers here and are assured of a fine welcome.

Sampson and Douglas combine to proffer "The Life of the Party" in song and patter; Ann Butler and Hal Parker have a skit, "Don't Make Me Laugh;" Connelly and Frances will present some fun and music, and Van Horn and Inez, on skates, will do some whirlwind work.

COMEDY ENTERPRISE.

Upon his return from New York this week Louis J. Gasnier, to whom Jimmie Adams has signed his services for a long period, announced a change in production plans for his Glendale studios. Arrangements have been consummated whereby Mr. Adams will no longer be identified with Mermaid Comedies, with which he has been featured for the past year, but hereafter will be starred in a new series of two-reel features by the company bearing his own name and known as Adams Comedies. This series of pictures, eight in number, will be released on the Educational Film Corporation program.

BALLET DES ARTISTES.

New Pantages Brightened by Bevy of Dancing Nymphs.

A whole troupe of Terpsichore's priestesses will "trip the light fantastic" at the New Pantages next week, for Edna Rigdon's nymphs are headlined in the Ballet Des Artistes, a gorgeously staged cycle of interpretative dances.

That thorough Thespian, Thornton Flynn, promises another of his delightful vocal contributions, and Tracy, Palmer and Tracy are reputed to be sure-fire with their melange of music and merriment.

Two good fighting names are those of Leonard and Willard, and with a punch to their songs and a kick in every line of their chatter they stage a battle of wits that always goes over to a knockout.

The Ambler Brothers scramble through a routine of equilibristic feats, and a very particular surprise act promises another flock of thrills.

Alice Joyce is starred in "Her Lord and Master," a production that is well worth notice in the Pantages series of first-run super-features.

WHAT TALES TITLES TELL!

"Those who want a movie censorship are not those who attend movie theaters," declares Tod Browning, the director. "Their opinion of a picture's morality is often formed from its title, and their opinion of picture players' morality from certain 'inside dope' scandal papers. Then they pick up some film publication and read innocent items so they sound like this: 'One Week of Life with Pauline Frederick;' 'Sick-a-bed with Wallace Reid;' 'Are All Men Alike with May Allison;' 'Why Trust Your Husband with Eileen Percy;' 'What Women Will Do with a Special Cast;' 'Dangerous Business with Constance Talmadge;' 'Scratch My Back with a Special Cast;' 'Behind the Door with Hobart Bosworth,' and comment 'What terrible things these pictures are,'"

"THE CLANSMAN" TO RUN ANOTHER WEEK.

"The Clansman" enters its third and final week at the Garrick today, having shown to packed audiences, in spite of the fact that it has been exhibited scores of times here.

Los Angeles fans will never have another opportunity to witness D. W. Griffith's big spectacle. This is positively the last time it will ever be shown here. The exchange which is handling the film has made this announcement.

The picture will be flashed on the Garrick screen for the final time next Sunday.

COUNTRY COMEDY AT MILLER'S THIS WEEK.

Now in its second week at Miller's, "Down Home," based on the story of "Dabney Todd," by F. N. Westcott, is registering high with photoplay fans, and the thrills, romance and laughter running through the production make it popular with all classes.

With the characteristic humor of David Harum, "Down Home" also carries the thrills and laughter that was not present in the early version of the well-known book of David Harum.

Mary Pickford is also on the program at Miller's this week in a one-reel production taken in 1909, with Irvin V. Willat, the director of "Down Home," as her leading man.

This picture, taken twelve years ago, is conclusive evidence of the advance made in motion pictures during the last few years. It was originally a serious drama, but today it is a comedy with laughs from start to finish.

Music appropriately selected completes the program.

"ZIGZAG TOWN" AT CAPITOL THEATER.

If you can find your way through the bewildering maze of high-powered divertissement of Ed Armstrong's "Zig Zag Town" production, the newest offering of the Baby Dolls at Gore's Capitol next week, you will get the gold-embroidered curtain rope, according to the stage hands, who have been working night and day on what they believe to be the most ambitious offering yet staged at the Capitol.

Armstrong promises at least seven different specialty numbers on the new bill, with the corps of Baby Dolls in the peppiest line-up of dance and song numbers yet conceived. There will be a massive setting, which is to hold a number of scenic surprises.

The cast of principals has been especially rehearsed in the new parts, and it promises a perfect characterization.

Manny King, Irene Brooks, Rooky Lewis, Violet Mansfield, Billy Riddle, Nan Keyes and others will be seen.

On Tuesday night the Capitol will stage movie night, while on Friday night the chorus girls' contests will be held.

MALATESTA AS BOOTBLACK.

Fred Malatesta is glad that he will be able to get away from his villaining and play a new role. He has been the villain so long that no one suspects him of being anything else. Now, however, he is to portray Dick, the Italian bootblack, in Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

"PARDON MY FRENCH."

Vivian Martin and Ben Turpin at the California.

"Pardon My French," a new Messmore Kendall production, released by Goldwyn and starring Vivian Martin, is one feature of the program opening at the California today.

The story deals with a young actress out with a road company, which, in the usual manner of such companies, goes broke, leaving everybody stranded, including the heroine, Polly, played by Miss Martin.

It is said to be a real Vivian Martin vehicle—light, entertaining, amusing and with dramatic and breath-holding passages. It is the kind of story which Miss Martin has made peculiarly her own on the screen, half comic and half dramatic, and it is certain to increase the already wide popularity of the star.

And even if the various situations in this comedy were not funny enough by themselves, the job would be completed anyway by the witty subtitles written by Irvin S. Cobb.

The other feature of the new program is Ben Turpin's first Associated Producers' release, "Love's Outcast." Turpin's security at the head of the screen's comedy performers is sufficient to justify every expectation of a huge success in this, the first of a forthcoming series, of "Ben Turpin Specials," produced by Mack Sennett.

An excellent all-star comedy cast is cleverly disposed in the leading roles and includes, besides Ben Turpin, the star, as "a ladies' man;" Dot Farley as his wife; James Finlayson, as an innocent detective; Kathryn McGuire, Phyllis Haver, Mildred June and other beauties as plot participants and witnesses; Kalla Pasha as a jolly tar, and Albert Cooke as a "dry" courtroom attache.

The orchestra will offer for the overture Verdi's brilliant "Il Trovatore," and other features will include a clever stage number.

LEAD FOR MISS COMPSON.

Will Carleton has been engaged to play opposite Betty Compson in her second Paramount starring picture, to be started shortly under Penrhyn Stanlaw's direction. This is "The Woman in the Case," by Clyde Fitch, scenario by A. S. LeVino. Mr. Carleton has appeared in Paramount eastern-made productions and had a number of years' experience on the stage in legitimate drama and as leading baritone in big musical shows.

NEW PLAY WITH ROBERT EDESON.

Early Premiere of Comedy, "Peter," Programed at Majestic Theater.

A definite cast is given plans of Thomas Wilkes, the theatrical producer, for further new presentations in Los Angeles through the announcement that immediately following the revival of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," which opens today, Robert Edeson will be starred in a new play at the Majestic Theater.

This is a comedy, entitled "Peter," by Marion Wightman. It tells the story of a college professor who suddenly wakes up to the fact that he has been living off the fortune of his wife for a number of years and that consequently he is not master in his own house. His efforts to extricate himself from the predicament furnish the plot.

Mr. Wilkes regards the new play as the most promising attraction he has yet announced as a part of his production activities. Mr. Edeson will be supported by members of the Majestic Stock Company, excepting Edward Everett Horton, who will be on his vacation at the time.

"Pilgrimage Play" Soon to Open Here.

Henry E. Herbert,
Who will again portray The Christ role this season.

LAYING STONES OF HOLY CITY.

Far East, most of the time in Jerusalem and its environs.

But besides that she visited Egypt and India. In these other countries she traced to their sources influences on the life of Palestine, and relationship, important because of the invasions of the warlike hosts.

She found in the tombs of kings in Thebes carvings showing costumes similar to those now worn in parts of the Holy Land. In India she discovered strange resemblances in the craft and art works to those which she found about Jerusalem. Thus did she arrive definitely at the cosmopolitan character of the life in the metropolis of the Jews in the period of the divine drama.

With this established Mrs. Stevenson says that she can proceed to enlarge both the variety and the coloring of her presentation. She has, however, been careful to eliminate anything that is in the least doubtful in authenticity.

Still she feels justified in using a wide range of provincial and national coloring to add richness to the pageant drama. She went beyond the limits of bazaars and shops in the cities to obtain her costumes. She traveled to the unvisited towns and even the mountain fastnesses to purchase from the people the clothes they themselves wore.

REAL NATIVE APPAREL.

"Most of these costumes I bought right off the people's backs," she said. "I have every assurance that they are virtually the same as those that were worn in the time of the Christ. In the out-of-the-way places the styles never change.

"Even in Jerusalem itself some of the people still wear caps similar to those which were shown on the walls in the tombs at Thebes. These were reputedly the garb of the Jewish prisoners captured by the Egyptians. Strange to say, in Jerusalem they are worn by people who declare that they are not of the Jewish race, and, in fact, persecute the Jews.

"Every step that I took convinced me of the authenticity of the biblical narrative as a chronicle. It is remarkable how things check up. When Christ speaks of John the Baptist, he describes him as a man who was not wearing soft garments. When I was in the Holy Land I found that the camel's hair garment was the one naturally worn in the desert, and it was but logical to assume that this was the type worn by John in the desert.

"Christ himself wore a head-dress. It is thus that we shall show him in this year's production. He used the kaffiyeh and the abaye" (the scarf and the ornamental headpiece like a crown) "which is still worn."

In detail the "Pilgrimage Play" will undoubtedly be a revelation. Each minute change has been carefully weighed in Mrs. Stevenson's mind. She has accepted nothing either in costume, manner or custom, which could not be thoroughly substantiated. She conducted her researches historically and archaeologically, and found that at every point she was but proving the beauty and the reality of the spiritual drama as told in the Bible.

I would hesitate to give a record of the stuffs, the trinkets, the jewels, the beads, the furnishings which she obtained during her stay in the Holy Land. Too, it would be difficult to describe them in detail.

What strikes you as particularly unusual among the assortment is, of course, the rich coloring. There is one garment that is a flame of orange, shot through and through with a fiery pomegranate red. Mrs. Stevenson told me that a boy had showed her a flower whence the dye emanated—a flower that grows on a tree similarly to the purple jackarandas now in bloom here. It flares orange and red like the wonderful silk to which it gives its lifeblood.

There is one garment worn by the women of the desert that is five yards long. Five yards long! Imagine it! It looks like a dress for a giantess.

But, of course, it is formed into a sort of balloon-like blouse, which is full not only above the waist but below as well.

Then there are the marvelous head-dresses, woven of threads and holding possibly a hundred coins. These are collected from childhood as the dowry of the woman for her marriage. She always carries her dowry with her. It represents her jewelry.

There is a sort of large collapsible brass lamp which will probably be used in the garden of Gethsemane scene; there are marvelously wrought saddlebags that look like they might have been the work of the American Indian; there are straps and carriers, ornamented with shells from the Dead Sea; there are mystic batiks from Bokhara, Tyrian purple cloth, blue beads that are used to adorn donkies and children alike, and there are embroidered garments that are as heavy as the weight of years that hang over all these relics and reproductions of relics, which are to help visualize the great era of the Christ drama.

APPRECIATE CLARK GIFT.

In consideration of a contribution made to aid the needy musicians of Austria, a letter of thanks was received at the offices of the Philharmonic Orchestra yesterday from Carl Maria Haalbruncy, president of the Society of Austrian Musicians. The letter states that the donation was, according to the wishes of the donors, spent to relieve the neediest cases, and that a list of beneficiaries will be sent in the near future. "The sum of 60,000 Austrian kronen has been set aside to serve as the founda- of the 'W. A. Clark fund,' which we will supplement from time to time," the letter continues, "for the use of future cases in need of relief, so that your excellency's name and the memory of your good deed may live forever among Austria's musicians."

Gayne Whitman,
playing leading role in "Three Faces East" at the Morosco Theater.

"THREE FACES EAST" ATTRACTIVE AS EVER.

"Three Faces East" enters the week with today's matinee at the Morosco.

The powerful mystery drama is proving a big drawing card. The play affords a wonderful two hours' entertainment to persons who like mystery and suspense. You will grip your seats in excitement during the thrilling scene. This is one characteristic of every audience who has seen the piece.

The play is from the pen of Anthony Paul Kelly and is regarded as one of the best dramas of the past season.

Bertha Mann and Gayne Whitman have the leading roles. They are admirably supported by the regular Morosco favorites.

The next attraction at the Morosco will be "A Tailor-Made Man," a screamingly funny comedy.

"SYNCOPATED WEDDING" BURBANK ATTRACTION.

Jazz and ragtime are invading the ranks of the Hi Jinks Revues Company at the Burbank.

The coming week is to be especially lively, according to announcement. "A Syncopated Wedding" is the new music show.

This is the production which upset one of the biggest road-shows' calculations in the East, when the Hi Jinks Revues played in opposition to the said show, and ran away with the honors.

The most massive and elaborate staging and costuming of the new play promise entertainment of the highest quality.

Al and Loie Bridge, featured principals, have an apparently inexhaustible supply of material. Nothing is ever repeated by the Hi Jinks Revues. Whenever a new show is announced every detail is changed. Costumes, songs, dances, specialties, settings, etc., are never the same.

The principals included in the cast are Jeso Phillips, Jean Darby, Olga Brooks, George Clark, the Kemball Four, Mayzee Weldon, and of course, that "young old couple," Al and Loie Bridge. And the most beautiful and bewitching chorus in captivity adds luster to the bill.

Announcement is also made that for one week only, beginning with the new production on the stage, Jackie Coogan, in "Peck's Bad Boy," will be added to the Burbank program.

ASSISTANCE LEAGUE HELPS.

For her current production starring Claire Windsor Lois Weber needed a structure of the Spanish type, and the Flintridge County Club fitted the description to the "T." But Flintridge is an exclusive organization, and not particularly desirous of having a movie company around. Somebody told Miss Weber's location manager of the location bureau maintained by the Assistance League, a charitable organization, and as a last resort Robert E. Wells, general manager, was appealed to. It took about eight minutes, elapsed time, for Wells to point out that a handsome rental fee could be charged for the use of the club building, which would be turned over to children's charities, and the trick was done.

Vera Vaughn,
In "War is Hell" at Broadway Pantages.

"WAR IS HELL" AT BROADWAY PANTAGES

"Oklahoma Bob" Albright's Broadway Follies will all be transformed into pretty senoritas for the coming week's presentation of "War Is Hell," at the Broadway Pantages.

Frank Samuels has decided upon Sonora, Mex., as the most appropriate place for a musical comedy demonstration of the historical remark he has selected as the title for his comedy.

This being a musical comedy war, the hades of the simile will naturally be a musical comedy hell, and a musical comedy version of Mexico is also in order. Therefore, instead of scowling Aztec generals in poncho and sombrero, the dashing leaders of Samuels's revolutionaries will be uniformed a la Tango, and instead of the dark-skinned peoncitas familiar to travelers in Obregon's country, the senoritas will be the chic, pretty and graceful barefoot dancers of Mr. Albright's Follies chorus.

There will be neither trenches nor training camps, but a few pretty Red Cross nurses are promised.

EN DISHABILLE.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" to Show at the Majestic.

Comedy in its lightest form will be the attraction at the Majestic, where, beginning this afternoon, Thomas Wilkes will present that frolicsome farce, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," by C. W. Bell and Mark Swan.

Of all the pajama plays this one is perhaps the liveliest and funniest. It is all about a young wife who falls in love with her husband because she believes he has been a veritable Romeo with women in his day.

Her husband, however, is an innocent simpleton whom the swish of a skirt fills with trepidation, but he is compelled to sustain his wife's illusion. In order to do so he enters into a conspiracy with the aid of a friend that nearly proves his undoing. He betakes himself to a lonely wayside inn in company with another man's wife, and before long other women appear—more than he had ever dreamed could appear in one place—and the developments that ensue provide action enough for a two-family house.

In the role of the "other woman," Mary Newcomb will have a splendid opportunity to display her talent as a comedienne. Supporting her will be Franklin Pangborn, Alice Elliot, Sara Sothern, Fred F. Cummings, Marie Curtis, Forrest Seabury, Henry Hall, Harry J. Leland, Vivian Moore, Hazel Buckham and Stanley Taylor.

PLAYING OPPOSITE WILLIAMS.

Fritzi Ridgeway is playing opposite Earle Williams in the Vitagraph production, "Bring Him In." The Williams company is still at Lake Tahoe, where exteriors are being made.

"TOO MUCH SPEED."

Wallace Reid in a Motor Comedy at Grauman's Tomorrow.

Wallace Reid, in "Too Much Speed," a tale of adventure and action, with Wally in the role of a daredevil driver, divides prominence on Grauman's program, opening Monday, with Grauman's presentations, chief of which is "Xochitl," a phantasy in which twenty dancers and artists, marvelously costumed, will appear amid gorgeous scenery.

Written especially for the screen by Byron Morgan, author of "The Roaring Road," "Excuse My Dust," and "What's Your Hurry," all automobile stories and three of Reid's most successful features, "Too Much Speed" carries the young star, as a demon racer, through punch episodes and action galore.

"Too Much Speed" is a typical Wally Reid picture from start to finish, and is said to be his most successful vehicle to date.

Agnes Ayres is the leading woman. In addition, the cast includes Theodore Roberts, Jack Richardson, Lucien Littlefield, Guy Oliver, Henry Johnson and Jack Herbert.

Frank Urson directed and C. E. Schoenbaum is the cameraman.

An atmospheric musical score will accompany "Too Much Speed," "Xochitl" and the other features. The orchestra numbers will be played by the Grauman orchestra, and the organ selections will be rendered by Henry Murtagh.

Thomas Meighan, in "White and Unmarried," will be seen today for the last times.

READS FOREIGN PLAY.

Hedwiga Reicher gave a reading of David Pinski's play in one act, "Bathsheba," recently at the Elks' clubhouse. The reading was preceded by a short lecture on Pinski, "The Man and His Works," of which Miss Reicher gave a vivid and interesting description.

WANTED PROP BUNGALOW.

Harry ("Snub") Pollard was put to a hard test in gallantry the other day. Some newlyweds wanted to buy the bungalow constructed for his new picture comedy. The bungalow, set between some permanent homes, with its attractive lawn and gardens, big trees and inviting look, was just what a young couple had set their hearts upon—so Pollard was told by the insistent bridegroom. Firmly and sadly he had to inform them it was "only a picture house and would soon be torn down."

DIRECTOR MEETS STAR.

Al Christie has arrived in New York, according to a telegram to his brother. En route East he met Douglas MacLean at Atlanta, Ga. McLean was making a personal appearance at the Howard Theater. Doug prevailed on Christie to join him in a double act at the picture house, and presumably they got away with it, because both are still going good, outside of Atlanta.

Vola Vale,

In principal feminine role in "Someone in the House," to show at Tally's.

ANOTHER CROOK PLAY.

"Someone in the House" to Show at Tally's Tomorrow.

A short story from the pen of Larry Evans formed the foundation for the stage success, "Someone in the House," which has been picturized by Metro, with Edmund Lowe as the star. The picture will be shown at Tally's tomorrow.

A society crook, polished in all the ways that appeal to life in "high society," works his way into the confidence of the beautiful daughter of a wealthy family and schemes to betray that confidence in procuring the famous Brent diamonds. Everything works with machine-like accuracy until love intrudes and the "polite" crook finds his path of crime becomes a road of mystery.

All those tense situations which make a mystery drama strongly alluring by their powerful bid for the unexpected have been preserved in the picture, it is said, and clearly bring out the atmosphere of the unusual which runs through the drama.

Besides Lowe, as "The Dancer," there are Vola Vale, Edward Connelly, Henry Miller, Jr., and other well-known stage and screen actors in the cast.

Mr. Tally is offering as a special added attraction what is probably one of the most remarkable novelty features of its kind ever made, and so far as records show, the first one ever attempted. It is a romantic photodramatic sketch woven around such great musicians and composers as Godowsky, Rachmaninoff, Leo Ornstein, Zimbalist, Alma Gluck, Rosa Ponselle, Mana Zucca and one or two others. These artists actually appear on the screen in their respective roles.

A specially arranged musical score accompanies the feature, and Rubinstein's Concerto in D minor is the piece de resistance offered by the solo piano, orchestra and organ. The concerto figures prominently in the musical drama.

POLLOCK COMEDY.

Clune's Broadway Will Offer "Such a Little Queen."

"Such a Little Queen," Channing Pollock's successful comedy, in which Elsie Ferguson made a hit a few years ago, has been turned into a clever screen vehicle.

Constance Binney will star in it at Clune's Broadway this week. The role of Anne Victoria, queen of a mythical kingdom, is said to be well suited to this demure little actress.

The play deals with the fortunes of the queen of a petty kingdom, who, when her throne totters and revolution disrupts her little country, flees to America with her dog and her bird and her very much bejeweled crown, but with no practical assets. After starving in royal dignity in a dingy New York flat for a few months, she goes heroically to work in a Wall-street office, where she meets a man who is a real prince and loves her.

The decorations worn by the star, as the little queen, are genuine decorations bestowed at one time or another upon various persons by various monarchs of old Europe, in the days when monarchs were more in vogue than they are now in the Old World. These decorations, which are the property of a New York collector of antique jewels and art objects, were borrowed for Miss Binney's use in this picture.

Miss Binney is supported by excellent actors—Vincent Coleman, Frank Losee, Jessie Ralph and others.

"Such a Little Queen" is a comedy of youth and love in Arcady and promises to be good entertainment for picture lovers.

"THE KANGAROOS" AT EGAN LITTLE THEATER.

"The Kangaroos," the newest Victor Mapes mystery play, begins its second week at the Egan Little Theater on Monday night.

The farcical comedy is proving one of the best magnets Frank Egan has yet tried out here, and Oliver Morosco, who expects to present it to Broadway, New York, is greatly encouraged by the reception it has been given by Angeleno audiences.

The play is well saturated with laughs, giggles, guffaws and chuckles, while an element of mystery gives it the thrill of melodrama.

Olga Gray Zacsek is seen as a feminine Sherlock Holmes, Neely Edwards and Russell Simpson furnish unlimited comedy and others in the cast are Kathleen Kirkham, Margaret Davis, Martha Mattox, Lincoln Stedman, Charles King, George Clare, Alice Clare and Edith Fassett.

"BEARDED LIKE A PARD."

Tony Moreno, Vitagraph star, is raising a prodigious growth of whiskers for his next picture.

Betty Compson,

In screen revival of "The Miracle Man" at the Alhambra.

"THE MIRACLE MAN."

The memory of the late George Loane Tucker will be paid fitting tribute at the Alhambra this week, where "The Miracle Man," the noted director's masterpiece is being shown.

"The Miracle Man," originally released by Paramount a trifle over two years ago and featuring Thomas Meighan and Betty Compson, at present independent stars, has created film history and has an unrivaled record for success in the history of the silent drama. Everywhere it has been shown, a few cities of the civilized world have not offered it for review, it has been given most enthusiastic acclaim and its story is as entertaining and inspiring today as ever.

Adapted to the screen by Mr. Tucker from George M. Cohan's dramatization of the original Frank L. Packard story, "The Miracle Man" unfolds with extraordinary human appeal a story of three crooks who sought to swindle the public out of a fortune, using a blind healer as their foil. The opening scenes of the picture show the brilliant leader of the crooks, assisted by a beautiful girl, and "the frog," who could disjoint his body as he willed, planning on taking up their activities at the small village in which the aged blind man was creating a sensation by his many wonderful healings by the laying on of hands.

Arriving at the home of the old man the crooks prepare for a golden harvest and pose as relatives and his business representatives. Their outward tenderness covers their mercenary aspirations, but gradually the faith of the wonder worker converts them to his cause and their sudden change of heart makes possible one of the most stirring and unusual climaxes ever given a screen play.

Lon Chaney is cast as "the frog," Gene Dumont plays the part of a "dope" and Joseph J. Dowling is seen as "the miracle man."

"FOOLISH MATRONS."

Tourneur's New Picture at Symphony has Strong Cast.

On the question of what constitutes marriage and the right to happiness, Donn Byrne wrote his novel, "The Foolish Matrons," and from the novel Maurice Tourneur has evolved a motion picture that is the chief attraction at the New Symphony today.

Subtly has the director blended the laughs with the tears and woven into the picture brilliant bits of biting satire. Yet, underneath it all runs an undercurrent of powerful drama.

There is no single featured player in the production. Rather, there are six of them, all well known in the film world, and under the guidance of Maurice Tourneur and Clarence L. Brown they have perhaps excelled themselves.

Hobart Bosworth, Charles Meredith, Wallace McDonald, Kathleen Kirkham, Doris May and Mildred Manning constitute one of the strongest casts that Tourneur has ever offered in a single production.

Three separate stories are woven into "The Foolish Matrons," yet each of the stories is dependent upon the others. The narrative deals with three different couples thrown into a whirlpool of New York's busy life, and their weaknesses and virtues are contrasted strongly.

A special score and prologue have been arranged under the direction of Tourneur for the presentation of the production at the New Symphony.

"WOMAN GOD CHANGED" REMAINS AT RIALTO.

After prompting extensive discussion in local church, legal and official circles over many of its passages within the past fortnight, "The Woman God Changed" begins the third week of its engagement at Grauman's Rialto today.

Much of this laudatory discussion has centered on the happenings in the lives of the two principal characters in this beautiful story after they have been cast up on a desert isle, the victims of a shipwreck, the man, an officer of the law, the woman, his prisoner.

Their strange marriage and their ultimate return to the United States—and justice—form a network of action which accounts for the reception of this photoplay locally and which eclipses the interest aroused by the original novel.

Robert G. Vignola directed, and in the cast are Seena Owen, E. K. Lincoln, Lillian Walker, Henry Sedley, H. Cooper Cliff, Paul Nicholson, Joseph Smiley and Templer Saxe.

The desert island location scenes were filmed in the Bahama Islands.

The Rialto program is rounded out with a series of presentations by Sid Grauman, most prominent of which is his atmospheric prologue to the feature, "Moonlight Even on Tahiti."

Men by association in large masses, as in cities, improve their talents, but inspire their virtues; strengthen their minds, but weaken their morals.

Here is the answer to what every woman wants to know, and every man thinks he knows about married life!

If you suppress the exorbitant love of pleasure and money, idle curiosity, iniquitous pursuits and wanton mirth, what a stillness there would be in great cities.

As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman;
Though she bends him, she obeys him;
Though she draws him, yet she follows;
Useless each without the other!

been a student at Mills College during the past year, is home for the summer vacation.

Horace Miller, accompanied a fishing party to Big Bear Lake Thursday, and is expected home the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Chapman left early in the week, by auto, for a trip to the celebrated Yosemite Valley, and will be gone for a number of weeks.

Mrs. Harry Taylor and mother, Mrs. Tallon, and Mrs. Taylor's niece, Miss Adrien Taylor, all of Fresno, were guests at the W. D. Taylor home Thursday. The Fresno party is spending the summer at the coast, with Long Beach as their headquarters.

ONTARIO.

As a pretty compliment to Miss Jean Waite, who is shortly to return to her home in Eastern Canada after a visit of several months with her aunt, Mrs. Amy M. Huntoon, 125 East E street, Miss Ruth Bell entertained Thursday afternoon with a luncheon of charming appointments at The Sycamores at Red Hill. Many-hued garden flowers in graceful baskets were used in decoration. The luncheon was served in five courses.

In honor of Mrs. Oscar Arnold, who is to spend the summer in the East, and Mrs. John Hall Kelman, who is shortly to remove to Los Angeles to reside, Mrs. W. John Campbell entertained Wednesday afternoon with a five hundred tea at her home, 125 East G street. A collation followed the card tournament, the hostess being assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss Lois Campbell, and Miss Ardis Richardson. On Monday afternoon Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Charles L. Lampkin delightfully entertained another group of women friends at cards and tea at the Campbell home.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Althea Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lynch, 122 Miramonte avenue, to Kimball Lakin of Los Angeles, was told Wednesday at a bridge tea of charming appointments, at which Mrs. A. Wayne Fontes, sister of the bride-elect, was hostess at The Sycamores. Four tables were used in the card tournament and a collation followed. Intimate girl friends of the bride-to-be were guests. The wedding is to be an event of midsummer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Fueger celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary with a musicale and informal supper party Sunday evening at their home, 418 West D street. The hosts were given a surprise shower of aluminum ware. Mrs. Fueger was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Joseph Lakin.

Society was out in force Saturday afternoon for the bridge and five hundred tea given at the Hotpoint Club for the benefit of the building fund of the Current Events Club. Prizes for the afternoon's play were awarded Mrs. John Herbert Tracy, Mrs. P. Herman Crist, Mrs. E. F. Glass and Miss Elsie Hamilton. Mrs. Jerome Hill Titus was at the head of the committee in charge of the successful affair.

The parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, 636 East E street, was the scene of a quiet wedding Saturday evening, when Miss Mabel Orr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Orr, 226 West D street, became the bride of Fred A. Burns, formerly of Ontario, but now of Kernville. Mr. and Mrs. Orr, Miss Marjorie Cadd and Lew Wallace were the only witnesses to the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Burns left immediately after the ceremony on a motor honeymoon. They will reside in Kernville, where the bridegroom is connected with the Southern California Edison Company.

UPLAND.

Mrs. Reid B. Bordwell entertained with a bridge tea of charming appointments Tuesday afternoon at her attractive home on First avenue. A blue and yellow color combination was artistically carried out in the decorations, with daisies and Bachelor Buttons. Prizes for the card tournament were awarded Mrs. Jerome Hill Titus, Mrs. James Lynnward Grahame and Mrs. Samuel B. Rowe. Tempting refreshments followed the games.

Mrs. Grace Childs Paulin was hostess Tuesday afternoon at her home, 771 Second avenue, at a happily informal tea. The fore part of the afternoon was devoted to fancywork and chat, and a collation followed. The guests included Mrs. A. L. Palis, Mrs. Reid B. Bordwell, Mrs. Jedd F. Sawyer, Mrs. Ernest C. Dart, Mrs. R. C. Norton, Mrs. George Cable, Mrs. N. G. Pehl, Mrs. S. G. Moore and Mrs. Harry Kennedy.

Miss Lucille Chilson, whose marriage to T. E. Buie of San Bernardino, is to be an event of the near future, furnished the inspiration for a delightful tea and shower, with which Mrs. G. W. Eckerman and Mrs. J. J. Atwood entertained Monday afternoon at the home of the former on West Ninth street. White bridal roses were used in decoration and the afternoon was spent informally. Twenty-five enjoyed the affair.

Floyd Batchellor and Miss Mary Leona Ramsey, popular Upland young people, were quietly married Wednesday at the First Methodist Church, San Bernardino, the Rev. M. R. Campbell officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Batchellor expect to make their home in Ontario.

SEAL BEACH.

A delightful farewell party was given in honor of Judge Ord on Tuesday evening, at the Jewell Cafe, by several of his friends. Judge Ord left the next day for a three months' trip in the East. Those present to enjoy the occasion were Judge Ord, Judge May, Mayor Doyle, Walter G. Stortz, Richard Wright, Richard Bixby, F. C. Blankenship, J. A. Graham, A. E. Bennett and J. B. Dixon.

A very pleasant party was held at the home of Miss Rowena Harder on Friday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in games and music, after which delicious refreshments were served to the following guests: Henry Bennett, Rowena Harder, Sylvia Hinds, Margaret Doty, Margaret Leadbetter, Bob Bonner, Salome Van Blarcom, Lawrence Sullivan, Winifred Wilson, David Morris, Lennie Hockings, William Richards, and Mr. and Mrs. DuLaney and Mrs. Hinds.

Mr. and Mrs. Billie Templeman entertained in Los Angeles on Tuesday evening, in honor of their sixth wedding anniversary, at a theater party and dinner. Those present to enjoy the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Templeman, Miss Winfred Elliott, Miss Gonzales, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newlon, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Little.

BELL.

Miss Daisy Krost and Mr. W. W. Cole were united in marriage on Friday by Rev. Smith, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. G. R. Welch. Miss Krost has just arrived from the East, and Mr. Cole is employed in Los Angeles. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Cole will be at home in Los Angeles.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ingraham, when Miss Emma Little of Adair, Iowa, and Mr. John W. Ingarham of Newbury Park were united in marriage by the Rev. Gill. Both the bride and groom are schoolteachers, and the wedding is the culmination of a long-time friendship.

A delightful dinner party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cronenburger on Wednesday, in honor of Mrs. Cronenburger's birthday. The house was very prettily decorated. Covers were laid for eleven, and the table was decorated with golden nasturtiums and ferns. After the delightful dinner, the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Those present to enjoy the occasion were Mr. an dMrs. C. Martin, Misses Catherine Lowe, Kruenbuhl, Irene Powers, Marion Powers, and Messrs. R. Starett, E. H. Cronenburger, C. A. Williams, and the host and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Cronenburger.

VENTURA.

Mrs. Ben Selby entertained the members of her five hundred club at a pleasant afternoon on Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Johnson entertained a little group of her friends at an all-day party at Camp Chaffee on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crump entertained a few of their old friends at a five hundred party Tuesday evening.

A nice affair of the week was the benefit card party given under the auspices of the Altar Society of the Old Mission Church. Mr. and Mrs. G. Ferro opened their beautiful home for the occasion, which was largely attended.

The Acacia Dancing Club had a delightful party Monday evening at the Athene clubhouse. The committee for the evening was as follows: Mrs. O. M. Geibel, chairman; Mr. Geibel, Messrs. and Mmes. C. M. Wilson, Chester Arnold Dan Emmet, C. R. Ficken, L. P. Hathaway, F. Jumper, W. Laughlin, Ed Hennigan, N. Myres, Harold Sly, A. T. Mead, William King, A. C. Jones and R. N. Haydon, who was chairman of the stunt committee.

A christening party was given Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. G. Ferro to celebrate the baptism of their little son, Frederick. About sixty guests attended the celebration which was held in the beautiful gardens of the Ferro home. Father Grogan of the Old Mission christened the child.

Oliver Reardon, Jr., the gifted young musician, whose two public recitals here at the bathhouse auditorium attracted so much favorable comment last winter, has left for Chicago to enter the Lobarthe Pianoforte School, for the summer months. He will return in the fall to resume his high school studies here.

POMONA.

Miss Sophia Vejar, a native daughter and member of one of the pioneer families of Pomona, was married to Lawrence Jones of Balboa at a pretty ceremony at the home of the Rev. J. J. Sheehy of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Thursday morning. The couple are spending their honeymoon at San Diego.

Friends of Mrs. Monroe Thurman, 275 Columbia avenue, gave her a delightful surprise party on the occasion of her birthday anniversary Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. H. E. Schwichtenberg and Mrs. Harvey E. Brewster entertained members of the Rowena Circle and special guests at an enjoyable affair taking place at the Schwichtenberg home, 216 East Holt avenue, Thursday afternoon.

Miss May Ashcroft, 975 Huntington Boulevard, entertained informally Thursday afternoon in honor of her house guests, Miss Eva Parks of Berkeley, who is visiting here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Smith and daughter, Mrs. Howard Webster, and Mr. and Mrs. William Sweany of Monroeville, Ind., all of whom are visiting in Los Angeles, were guests Friday of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards, 614 Grigsby Court. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards are also former residents of Monroeville.

Miss Pauline Bilney became the bride of Glenn L. Weist Monday morning, the Rev. Samuel J. Kennedy of Alhambra performing the marriage ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Ayres, 1050 East Third street, before the immediate members of the families of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Rice, who have been living in Idaho the past few years, are visiting at the home of Mr. Rice's cousin, Dr. N. J. Rice, 514 McKinley avenue.

Miss Ida Swindt, the young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Swindt, 582 Columbia avenue, entertained a party of thirty of her girl friends Saturday afternoon.

Miss Hope Smith and Roy Devalon were married at a pretty ceremony taking place in the First Methodist Church Wednesday evening, at which the Rev. Walter C. Buckner officiated. Both are well-known among the younger social set of Pomona.

Mrs. J. G. Sheets and her sister, Mrs. Charles O. Parrish, were the complimented guests at a luncheon of twelve covers with which Mrs. M. K. Metz entertained at her La Verne home Wednesday. It was a farewell for Mrs. Sheets, who is removing soon to her new home in Los Angeles and a welcome to Mrs. Parrish, who is here from her home in El Centro for a summer visit with her sister and her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Parrish, 150 Jefferson avenue.

One of the prettiest weddings of the month was that of Miss Clara Arbuthnot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Arbuthnot of San Bernardino avenue, and George T. Mellor, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents Monday evening. The cerenfony, which was performed by the Rev. Robert J. Taylor, was witnessed by sixty relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom.

SIERRA MADRE.

Most gratifying to the future guests of Bride-elect Yerda M. D. Appleby will be the favorite recipes received at a shower party held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. J. Miller, when twenty of the participants presented their compliments in the form of palatable formulas to be used by this favorite future housewife.

On Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. C. W. Jones on East Alegria avenue, the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational Church will be entertained. Mrs. Jones will be assisted by Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Jr.

The Fourth of July will be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Merrill at their home on Santa Anita Court in entertaining Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dow and children, Dura and Fred.

To spend a month in this salubrius summer climate, Mrs. James Pierson of Santa Barbara has taken a bungalow on North Mountain Boulevard.

After a year's visit in Honolulu on a business mission, Mr. Raymond Hedderly, popular young social leader, has again located here among his former friends and relatives.

Former favorite rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Rev. George H. Cornell, accompanied by Mrs. Cornell, spent a short time here last week among their many friends.

BURBANK.

A most beautiful setting for a wedding was the lawn of the Thrasher home, with pink potted roses and ferns, making a rose garden, when Miss Mellie Thrasher and Mr. William Nickerson were married. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock last Wednesday, Rev. S. T. Allen officiating. Miss Thrasher was gowned in white satin with lace panels and veil, her bouquet was of sweet peas and bride roses. Miss Marjorie Thrasher was maid of honor, wearing orchid organdie, the bridesmaids were Misses Katherine Rier and Mildred Farnam. Little Alice Rose Hunt was flower girl. John Daniels was the best man. Eighty guests witnessed the ceremony and attended the wedding supper. After a short honeymoon, they will be at home in Burbank.

RIALTO.

A wedding of particular interest to Rialto people and indeed throughout this valley was that of Miss Nina Slade and Henry Preston, which took place on Tuesday morning in the beautifully furnished living-room of their future home at Los Angeles. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Slade, residents of this place for many years, and Mr. Preston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Preston of East Foothill Boulevard, brother of Will Preston, Ed Preston, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Rialto, and Luella Preston, both having hosts of friends here.

Rev. James H. Lash of Hollywood, a former pastor of the local Congregational Church, spoke the words uniting the future lives of Miss Slade and Mr. Preston, members of the immediate families being the only witnesses. The handsome bride, making an exquisite central figure, wore a traveling suit of Shantung silk and carried a bouquet of Cecile Brunner rosebuds and ferns. Following congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Preston left on a two weeks' honeymoon trip to Northern California, interested friends making sure that their car was well ornamented with rice.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Tibbot spent Sunday with their son Earl and family at Los Angeles, having the pleasure of hearing Bishop Adna Leonard deliver the baccalaureate sermon to graduates of the University of Southern California.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Hodge entertained with a charming garden party given out-of-doors at their home on Foothill Boulevard. Velvety lawn, blooming trees and plants, stately palms, Japanese parasols, Japanese lanterns and jardinieres of lovely flowers combined to form a veritable picture of fairyland, bringing back dreams of childhood days. The game of five hundred furnished happy diversion, Mrs. Harry Hodge being the fortunate winner of the ladies' prize, a lovely bud vase of cut glass, while A. H. Morgan was awarded the gentleman's prize, a handsome deck of cards. Follow-

EAGLE ROCK CITY.

Mrs. A. G. Railley entertained the San Rafael Hills Chapter, D.A.R. at her home, 556 East Colorado Boulevard. The gathering was on the lawn in the shade of the big pines.

Dr. and Mrs. Neal Wood and children of North Highland avenue have gone to the beach for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Loud of 156 Paloma avenue had as dinner guests on Tuesday evening Miss Dell Eckstrom and Miss Mary Dunn of Highland Park.

Misses Hattie and Nellie Hillhouse of Warrensburg, Mo., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. P. McClean of North Highland avenue.

Miss Addie Lucas of North Highland avenue has returned from a vacation spent at Pine Crest, San Bernardino Mountains.

Miss Eleanor Biohm of Portland, Or., is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. H. McLean. Dr. and Mrs. McLean and Miss Biohm spent the week-end at San Diego.

GARDEN GROVE.

A delightful miscellaneous surprise shower was given on Tuesday evening, in honor of Miss Helen Headstrom, who will become the bride of Mr. Vernon Farquar on next Tuesday, at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Headstrom. Many beautiful gifts were received by Miss Headstrom. After the presentation of gifts, a pleasant evening was spent in games and music, following which delicious refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served. About thirty guests were present to enjoy the occasion.

Sydney Wayne Holt and Miss Helen E. Barnes were united in marriage on Sunday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Barnes. Mr. Holt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Holt, and is one of the most popular young men of the community. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Holt will be at home in Garden Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mosher entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Parks of Santa Ana; Rev. and Mrs. Spade, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Schakelford and Mr. and Mrs. George Mosher.

DOWNEY.

One of the most delightful affairs of the season was the reception given by the Downey Choral Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ball on Friday evening. The house was profusely decorated in red and green. A short program was rendered, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served to the many members of the club present.

Miss Alvina Ardis and Mr. J. H. Stoner of Fallbrook were united in marriage at the Congregational Church in Long Beach on last Tuesday by Rev. R. P. Howell. The bride is a graduate of the Pomona College and has been teaching school in Fallbrook for the past few years. The Downey guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John Cockran, Mrs. A. S. Gray, Mrs. J. H. McCullough, Mrs. J. H. Ardis, and Mrs. Pearl Ramsaur and daughter, Genevieve, and Mrs. Q. J. Rowley and Mrs. R. P. Howell of Long Beach.

WESTMINSTER.

One of the most pleasant family gatherings of the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gill on Saturday. On that occasion their daughter, Miss Florrie, was united in marriage with Robert Warren Hall, by Rev. W. T. Ward of the Presbyterian Church. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion. After the ceremony the company sat down to a typical English tea. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Gill, Mrs. Jones, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. John W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Harr, Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones, and several other members of the family.

A charming afternoon reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weinshenk on Saturday, in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen Fay, who is a graduate of Occidental College. Close to fifty guests were present, among whom were Mrs. H. Vogt, Mrs. John Eckstein, Mrs. O. B. Byram, and daughters, Miss Marjorie and Frern. After a long afternoon, spent in various pastimes, delicious refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream and cake.

WINTERSBURG.

The members of the three junior classes of the Wintersburg Sunday-school made up a party, which spent Tuesday afternoon at Huntington Beach. The afternoon was spent in many ways, after which a delicious lunch was served. Those enjoying the occasion were Merritta Murdick, Muriel Moore, Alice Willmarth, Alberta Turner, Della Clemens, Zexia Nichols, Julliene Blaylock, Hazel Winters and Carlys Murdeck. Jack Turner, Herman Whitson, Alfred Stinson, Fred McMillan, Norman Rouff, Gardner Willmarth, Hayden Gardner, Carl Clemmens, Tom Radford, Mrs. Fox, Mr. Moore and Miss Dyer.

Miss Fannie McGuire, and Mr. Leslie Clyde were united in marriage on Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McGuire, and is very popular here.

REDLANDS.

June weddings, have been and to be, are the most interesting things in society these days. Showers are as plentiful as weddings, in fact, more so. Miss Carroll Williams entertained a company of friends last evening in honor of Miss Frances Poppett, who is to become the bride of Leo Lester McCreary soon. During the evening she was given a large basket filled with lovely gifts. The Misses Anna and Catherine Crusan entertained in honor of Miss Mary Curtis who is also to be a bride this coming week.

A wedding, in which the bride found herself in entirely strange surroundings just having come from the East, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Brandenberger on Eureka street. The bride was Miss Ruth Warren of Burton, Kan., and the groom was Carl Brandenberger of this city. The wedding was a quiet one with only a few friends of the young people being present, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brandenberger, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hurst, Mr. and Mrs. William Brandenberger and Mr. and Mrs. Claud Sedwick and son this city.

Miss Florence Sprenger, Miss Margaret Ahlborn and Mrs. Henry Ahlborn, who are leaving Redlands, were honored with an "at home" at the Y.W.C.A. during the week. Those who received were Mrs. Henry Fuller, Miss Mary Cornwall, Mrs. A. Hornby, Mrs. S. G. Jones, Mrs. E. E. Dow, Mrs. Eric Williams, Mrs. H. A. Westerbrook, Mrs. C. D. Hatch, Miss Fannie Langford, Miss Ruth Harris, Mrs. A. O. Childs, Mrs. A. T. Van Dyke, Miss Maude Barkelew, Mrs. Donald Hayes, Mrs. J. J. Suess, Mrs. Jonathan Brooks, Mrs. C. F. Woehr, Mrs. A. Haven Smith, Mrs. Alex Richardson, Miss Stella McLaughlin and Miss Irene Knox.

The girls of the Alpha Theta Phi Sorority of the University of Redlands are having their annual house party at Balboa, the chaperones being Mrs. J. B. Woodworth and Mrs. Ruth Violet of Santa Ana. The girls entertained their boy friends over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Parry entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Strait on Mission Road for twenty of their friends, with a dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Emerson, Constance Dunham, Doris Skinner, Verena Frenzell, Mary Stockton, Ruth Cruickshank, Millicent Long, Berl Bergstrom, Kathleen Wilkes, Eva Williams, Dorothy Scott, Guilbert Darling, Kenneth Sweeney, Earl Nicks, Albert Boettger, William Paul, Verne McMinn, Stanley Ferguson, Dean Fowler, Glenn Farquhar and Lloyd Yount.

Miss Nan Hinckley entertained at her home on Mission Road in honor of her house guest, Miss Beatrice Hewitt of Los Angeles. Dancing, a supper and fortune telling were the diversions. The guests were Bertha Craig, Helen Beattie, Fritz King, Marguerite Logie, Beatrice Wilson, Ruth Howland, Valerie Stone, Carolyn Gill, Paul Grow, Orland Fowler, Nevin Maccubbin, Robert Reitzel, Stewart Hinckley, William Woodruff, George Lownes, Horace Pastorius, Earl Powell and Albert Koehler.

Miss Anna Van Winkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Winkle of San Francisco, and Dr. Kenneth L. Dole, one of the famous family of Dole athletes at Stanford University, who is practicing in this city, will be married in September. They are to live here.

Carl Seitter, son of Rev. and Mrs.

Mr. and Mrs. Keyes of Eagle Rock entertained informally on Sunday at dinner in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Pat Stine.

L. Bertolina and family returned Sunday morning from a week's visit at Sacramento.

Frederick Fox, a former resident of this city, but now of Pasadena, was visiting friends and relatives on Tuesday.

SOUTH PASADENA.

Miss Catherine Ahlswede entertained at a charmingly appointed luncheon on Saturday afternoon at her home on Stratford avenue for a group of young friends, three of whom are leaving soon for distant parts. Among these are Miss Lucile Treff, who departs shortly for Chicago, where she will make an extended stay; Miss Katherine Walker, who goes to her former home in Detroit, Mich., after sojourning in South Pasadena for more than a year, where she has made for herself a host of friends, and Miss Clarinda Kork, who is soon to leave with her parents for San Francisco, whence they will sail for Honolulu on June 29. On Thursday afternoon Miss Marian Russel gave a delightful informal affair for the same group of girls, complimenting the trio of popular society maids. Again on Wednesday they were the motifs for another very enjoyable afternoon, at which Miss Walker was the hostess at her home in Camden Court.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Diefenderfer entertained about thirty guests on Saturday evening at their home, 1968 Fletcher avenue. It was not until the party had assembled that the host and hostess announced the fact that the occasion marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The happy company showered Mr. and Mrs. Diefenderfer with congratulations, although they felt that they should have been let into the secret earlier. The surprise, however, did not lessen the pleasure of the evening, which was spent in conversation and merry-making generally. A very delightful feature of the affair was the harp music, furnished by professional talent. The garden was illuminated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns, and proved a comfortable setting for the delicious repast, which was served at the close of the evening. The occasion will long be remembered by the guests, as well as the host and hostess, as a most enjoyable one.

Mrs. George F. Patterson has returned to her beautiful home in this city after an extended trip to New York and Washington. Mrs. Patterson was accompanied home by her two daughters, the Misses Catherine and Rebecca Patterson, who have been in attendance for the past year at National Park Seminary, Washington, D. C. Many social affairs have been planned for these charming young ladies in honor of their return home. The first of these was a garden tea given yesterday by Miss Annabelle Ralphs, daughter of Mrs. George Albert Ralphs of Hollywood, where this charming function was given at the handsome residence of Mrs. Ralphs on Hollywood Boulevard. Assisting Miss Ralphs was a group of younger society buds.

One of the most elaborate and handsomely appointed affairs of the summer season was the garden tea given yesterday by Mrs. Charles B. Boothe at her home, 1515 Garfield avenue. Invitations were issued to a very large number of guests, including friends from Los Angeles and many other Southern California cities, as well as from Pasadena, South Pasadena and vicinity. One of the most delightful features of the afternoon was the dancing provided for the enjoyment of the guests in the large garden house on the spacious lawn of the Boothe home. The hostess was assisted by a number of charming maids and matrons, prominent in the social life of this section.

Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Shellhorn entertained at dinner on Saturday evening at their handsome residence on Edgewood Drive. The guests numbered twenty, members of the dental profession of Los Angeles and their wives. Mrs. Shellhorn has as her house guest her sister, Mrs. H. E. Sinden of New York, for whom a number of social affairs have been given since her arrival. Among these was a very charmingly appointed luncheon on Tuesday, at which Mrs. Harrison Gifford was the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller entertained at dinner on Friday night at their home, 1805 Ramona avenue. Besides the host and hostess, covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Foster of Highland Park, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kesler of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Larford of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. William Van Dohren of Omaha, Neb.

HERMOSA BEACH.

Mrs. T. M. Roberts spent last week at her Glendale home, going over to attend the graduation exercises of her son, David, from the eighth grade.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. George of this city, and Mrs. J. C. Barnett of Glendale, drove to San Diego last week, to spend a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Robinson.

Mrs. Kate Duncan of Pasadena and a party of friends spent the week-end at Mrs. Duncan's cottage on the Strand.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Johnson and family of Fresno have arrived here to spend the summer months.

The Oscar Miller family of Pomona were guests here, last week, from Friday until Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vergil H. Parke have let their home here, and are sojourning at the Cahuenga Hotel in Hollywood for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Krantz and daughter, Barbara of Glendale, will be summer residents here. They are quartered on Myrtle avenue.

Mrs. J. C. MacArthur is spending a two weeks' vacation at Wheeler Springs near Ventura.

Among the Pasadena folk who are already established here for the summer are Mrs. Gertrude A. Coppage, Dr. S. J. Madison, the D. I. Coolidge and the W. W. Morgans.

During the past week those who have come down from Los Angeles to spend the summer are, Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Young, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Glass, daughters Margaret and Leonora, and son, John, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Goodrich and Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Andrews.

The Hermosa Beach Masonic Club is planning a pleasant party for the evening of June the thirtieth. Dancing and cards will be the diversion of the evening. Ira Hagenbuch is chairman of the entertainment committee, and Mrs. Pearl Andrews heads a committee of the Eastern Stars who will assist in receiving and serving.

MANHATTAN BEACH.

Mr. and Mrs. George Martin of Los Angeles are down for the summer at their home on Manhattan avenue.

The Girl Scouts were very pleasantly entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Loraine Nunn.

Dr. A. Campbell and Miss May Campbell are spending a two weeks' vacation motoring through the northern part of the State.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Klennie and daughter, Miss Alice Klennie, who have been spending several months here, left Saturday for their home in Huron, S. D. They expect to return here in the early autumn, as they have purchased a part of the Jordan, and expect to have a home here.

Miss Lillian Sherlock of Los Angeles, was a house guest of Mrs. Emily Sinsabaugh, last week.

Miss Marian Sinsabaugh is spending this week with friends in Los Angeles.

Miss Helen Huntington, who has been a popular teacher here, this year, departed, Saturday, to spend the summer at her home in Alhambra. Miss Huntington will return here in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zweigart of Pocatello, Idaho, arrived Sunday, to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daugherty. They expect to stay a month here and in Redondo Beach.

Misses Marian and Emily Sinsabaugh were hostesses, Wednesday night, at a delightful surprise party given in honor of Miss Alice Klennie, who left on Saturday to spend three months in Huron, S. D. Twelve girls and twelve boys were guests at this pleasant party. Masses of flowers and crepe paper streamers in pink and white were used in decoration of the living and dining-room. Light refreshments were served by the hostesses.

ALHAMBRA.

In a quiet ceremony performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. B. Elizabeth Ward, at noon, Saturday, by Rev. S. J. Kennedy, Miss Gladys Barrett Ward became the bride of Bert H. McDonald. Attending the principals were Mrs. Frederick Fitzpatrick, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, and Frederick Fitzpatrick as best man. The bride was gowned in an embroidered frock of white voile. Immediately following the service the newlyweds departed for a brief honeymoon trip. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald are well known here. Mrs. McDonald is an accomplished reader as well as a newspaper woman. Mr. McDonald is a young business man of this city and the son of Mrs. Lillie McDonald.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Smoot in South Third street, when their daughter, Miss Estelle E. Smoot and Floyd Terry of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. Carlton Kirk in the presence of a company of ninety relatives and friends. The home was artistically decorated with myriads of roses, palms and ferns. The bride wore a frock of white satin and her veil was held with a wreath of orange blossoms. Miss Ethel McHolland was bridesmaid and wore a gown of white organdie over yellow satin. The honeymoon is being spent in the north and on their return Mr. and Mrs. Terry will reside here.

Mrs. H. C. Graves furnished the inspiration for a bridge-tea of charming appointments at which Mrs. Frederick Fitzpatrick entertained on Saturday afternoon at her home in South Fourth street. Summer flowers in pastel tints were used in decoration. Mrs. Graves received the guest prize, a handsome basket. About thirty enjoyed the affair.

About fifty members and guests of the San Gabriel Woman's Club were entertained at the home of Mrs. H. J. Muller on Mission Drive Friday afternoon at the closing program of the year. Mrs. Catherine Bean, the new president of the club, was installed and interesting talks were given including an address by Mrs. M. E. Johnson of the Wednesday Morning Club, Los Angeles. A profusion of flowers and music rendered by a violin quartet further enhanced the pleasure of the guests.

In compliment to about fifty matrons, patrons of the Los Angeles association and other guests, Alhambra Chapter, O.E.S., was at home on Tuesday evening. Among features of the entertainment were a play and musical program. The affair terminated in the banquet room where Madeline Woodbury, matron, and W. W. Nuzum, patron, presided as hosts.

MONROVIA.

Mrs. John H. Stephens of North Ivy avenue has had as her house guests for the week-end Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, daughter of former Secretary of Labor Wilson, and her cousin, Miss Jean Wilson.

It was an especially charming affair for those who enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Talbert's hospitality, the opening of the Talbert swimming pool being one of the most enjoyable events of the season. The opening of the pool for this season was ushered in with three smart affairs, the three coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons, for each event the Talberts invited a large number of guests, who enjoyed the delights of the pool or a snappy game of tennis. During the afternoon dainty luncheons were served in the attractive pergola. Nearly 125 guests accepted the hospitality of the Talberts.

Mrs. J. W. Foley gave a farewell dinner party at her home on Sunday, in honor of Miss Frances Sheppard, who is leaving soon for Philadelphia.

A delightful affair was given on Saturday afternoon when members of the Royal Daughters' Society of the Presbyterian - Congregational Church were entertained at the home of Miss Lucile Kalb, on Prospect avenue. A Japanese motif was used, the decorations furthering the idea with Japanese lanterns, bamboo and yellow flowers. Guests were dressed in bright-colored kimonos and wore their hair in the Japanese mode. Games were played during the afternoon and Japanese prizes were awarded to the lucky winners. The dainty refreshments served were Japanese delicacies. Hostesses for the charming oriental party were the Misses Kalb, Marie Madden and Kathryn Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Alexander of the Colonial Theater left on Saturday for a motor trip to Yosemite. They will make the trip with Hollywood friends and after spending a week or two at Yosemite will go on to San Francisco and other points of interest near there. The trip home will be made by way of the Coast route.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Evans have taken a cottage at Manhattan Beach and will leave soon to spend the summer there.

D. C. Sheppard and sister, Miss Frances Sheppard, and friends, spent a most delightful week-end at Catalina. Friends accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Foley, Mr. Jepson of Los Angeles, Mrs. Brown of Canada, Mrs. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Sturgeon of Los Angeles and Mrs. F. J. Anderson.

Mrs. Sarah J. Anderson, a well-known graduate nurse here, is going to Philadelphia to live with her daughter, who resides there. She will be accompanied by Miss Frances Sheppard, who will stay in that city for some time, to take up art in the Philadelphia Academy.

Mrs. C. H. Reed left on Wednesday to spend the summer in the East. She has gone via Grand Canyon, and after leaving there will go on to Chicago and later to Milwaukee. She will return by way of San Francisco, where Miss Helen Reed is spending some time with Miss Louise Merry.

Mrs. Nina H. Brown and son Merrill of Indianapolis arrived in this city on Sunday to visit her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Hohanshelt of West Lime avenue. Mrs. Brown expects to attend summer school at the University of California to take an educational course. Mrs. Brown has had a fine educational career. She obtained her master's degree at the Iowa State University, and is a graduate of Simpson College, and at one time was a member of the faculty of that college.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Klein left on Monday to spend a few days at Big Bear Lake. Accompanying them on their vacation were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Morrasy, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bronson and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cole.

Hazen Shower left on Wednesday for Berkeley, where he will enter the summer session of the University of California. Mr. Shower also plans to continue with his studies at the university in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson and small son Dan left on Friday for a visit with friends and relatives in Nantucket, Mass. The Robinsons plan to return to California in about two months.

Members of the Daughters of the Revolution were charmingly entertained on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Beckman. A picnic supper was served on the spacious lawn of the Beckman home. Forty members, including their families, enjoyed the delicious supper.

YUCAIPA.

On Wednesday the George Lees of Sixth avenue entertained at dinner. A profusion of sweet peas decorated the dining table. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Haynes of Temecula, Mrs. Charles Heath and Miss Irma Heath of Compton, Mr. Reed Calvert of New York, Mrs. James Millar of Highlands, Miss Robina Van Winkle of Patterson, N. J.; Mrs. Joy Ebermayer and son Robert and Mr. and Mrs. George Lee.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church were entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles R. Weaver of Second avenue. Luncheon was served and the occasion was pronounced most enjoyable by all those present.

Three representatives of Yucaipa graduated from the Redlands High School the evening of June 14, at the amphitheater. Among the number were Miss Gwendolyn Wilson, William Houston and Miss Hallie Adams, one of the sixteen included in the "Pro Merito" list, which honor was bestowed for excellence throughout the four-year course.

Mrs. W. W. Edwards of Second avenue entertained at a charming informal tea on Tuesday afternoon. Guests who enjoyed the occasion were Mrs. William Kline, Mrs. D. E. Robbins, Mrs. Harriman and Mrs. D. E. Dolen.

Under the able leadership of Mrs. Sam Edwards and Mrs. Otto Sweeters, a Y.W.C.A. was organized Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwards. Miss Springer of the Redlands Y. was present and helped form the organization. The young ladies are enthusiastic over their plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roedel left last Wednesday for Sheridan, Wyo., where they will spend the summer visiting their eldest son, whom they have not seen for several years.

AZUSA.

On Saturday, June 11, Miss Fern Haley, one of Azusa's most charming young ladies, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon Bell, a popular young man of Glendora, the Rev. S. F. Shiffler officiating. The young couple are spending their honeymoon at Bay Island and upon their return will reside in Glendora.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Heth and Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Heth attended the graduating exercises at the University of California, southern branch, on Friday evening, at which time the latter's daughter, Miss Gertrude Heth, was graduated. Miss Heth will teach in the Pasadena city schools next year.

J. E. Hibsch and daughters Mamie and Zelma motored to Los Angeles to attend the graduation exercises at Jefferson High School. Their cousin, Charlie Hibsch, was among the ninety-one graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Farren and son Sidney and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Davies and son Dick motored to Los Angeles Sunday and spent the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris. On their way home they called on Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Malding of Baldwin Park.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hendrix of Los Angeles, Mrs. Bently of Oklahoma and Mrs. Hendrix of Coachella were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Demmit on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Robinson and daughter, Carolyn were guests at a birthday dinner on Saturday at the Manx cabin in Topango Canyon. The arrangment of the table for sixteen persons was unique in canyon scenery and viands. The afternoon was spent in listening to the music of a piano and two saxophones.

Miss Markely and the Euodia girls enjoyed an all-day picnic at the mouth of the San Gabriel Canyon on Saturday. They spent the day

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Salyer have returned from Pinehurst, where they spent their honeymoon.

In celebration of the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stephens, a number of friends gathered at their home. A mock wedding was a feature of the evening's amusement, the bride and groom being clothed in their wedding garments of thirty years ago. Gifts of cut glass were presented by the guests, a musical program was given, and refreshments were served.

FRESNO.

With the summer days becoming warmer, Fresno people are leaving for the mountains and seashore in ever increasing numbers expecting to form colonies at the Coast or mountain resorts where many delightful affairs will be held.

Among those who have left Fresno recently for summer vacations are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Prescott and two sons, Kendrick and Phil, who have gone to their mountain home near Basin for the summer months. Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Melon have gone to the Yosemite Valley where they expect to spend a portion of the summer.

Miss Eleanor Mogensen has left for Berkeley where she expects to combine a vacation with attendance at the summer session of the University of California.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Dick have gone to California Hot Springs. They were accompanied by their son, Allan Dick, who expects to return in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McDonald and Dr. and Mrs. Harry Craycroft have returned from Shaver Lake where they enjoyed a short outing.

Mrs. H. O. Breeden, wife of Rev. H. O. Breeden, pastor of the First Christian Church of this city, is enjoying a month's vacation at Santa Cruz.

Miss Helen Keating of San Francisco, who is the house guest of Miss Ellen Rogers at her home at Las Palmas Vineyard, was the guest of honor Friday afternoon, when Miss Rogers entertained the Bridgettes and other guests.

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Crichton enjoyed an outing in Sequoia National Park this week.

Mrs. W. H. Martin has returned from a six weeks' visit with her brother in San Bernardino.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

Complimenting her guest, Mrs. J. K. Baker of Santa Barbara, who is spending a few weeks here, Mrs. James T. Wells entertained at a pretty affair at her Buchon street home on Friday evening. Music and conversation were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Over a hundred members of the local Masonic lodges and Eastern Stars and their families participated in a jolly evening at San Luis Hot Sulphur Springs on Friday evening. A picnic supper was enjoyed and was followed by dancing at the pavilion.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Edwards (nee Rose Bettencourt) were the guests of honor at a reception tendered them on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. M. S. Bettencourt on Monterey street. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, who were married here recently, have just returned from a honeymoon spent in San Francisco and the bay region.

A wedding of much local interest occurred in White Plains, N. Y., on Thursday, when Alvin Kaiser of this city was married to Miss Beatrice Miller of White Plains. The wedding took place at the Episcopal Church and was an elaborate church affair. The bride is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kamm of this city. The romance which culminated in the wedding Thursday evening began when Miss Miller accompanied her aunt and uncle west for a visit last summer and became acquainted with Mr. Kaiser. The engagement was announced before Miss Miller returned East in the winter. After a honeymoon spent in the East Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser will reside here, where Mr. Kaiser is connected with a local banking institution.

Celebrating his fiftieth birthday, Joseph Bariogio entertained about eighty guests at his home on Chorro road Saturday evening. Dancing and games were enjoyed until midnight, when an elaborate supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Warden and little daughter are here from Chicago visiting Mrs. Warden's brother, Judge T. A. Norton, and family. Mrs. Warden was formerly Miss Anne Norton of this city.

Miss Miriam Marshall and her brother, Stewart Marshall, were complimented by being tendered a barbecue at San Luis Hot Sulphur Springs on Wednesday evening by a number of their friends. Miss Marshall leaves shortly for Mt. Holyoke College, Massachusetts, where she will enter as a freshman this fall. Stewart Marshall will spend the year in Nebraska.

A wedding of interest to San Luis Obispo occurred Saturday at Santa Barbara, when Miss Myrtle Minkel was married to Shirley Weise, a prominent rancher of Sonoma county, the Rev. Hughes of the Methodist church performing the ceremony. The bride has been a teacher in the city schools here, and during her residence here has made many friends. She was a member of the Methodist choir and a prominent member of musical circles. Following a honeymoon in the south, Mr. and Mrs. Weise will make their home on the Weise ranch at Glen Ellen.

Little Helen Ackerman celebrated her tenth birthday with a picnic at Pismo Beach on Saturday. The party was taken down in automobiles in the morning, and remained at the beach for a happy day on the sands and a big birthday dinner. About twenty little guests enjoyed the little hostess's hospitality. Mrs. J. K. Ackerman chaperoned the party.

VISALIA.

Thursday evening Mrs. George H. Deinstadt was hostess at a miscellaneous shower in honor of her cousin, Miss Osee Belle Chivers, whose marriage to Russel L. Long of Fresno, will be an early event. Cards and musical numbers afforded entertainment for the guests. Miss Chivers was presented with a number of gifts, and refreshments were served at a late hour by the hostess, her daughter and Mrs. Robert Gustason.

In celebration of the eighth birthday of her grand-daughter, Dorothylee Carter, Mrs. George Butz entertained Friday afternoon. Pink, lavender and green were used in the color scheme, while the favors were tiny kewpies with a huge kewpie doll as a table center. The birthday cake was an interesting feature, and there were a number of youthful guests present.

Mrs. B. C. Anderson has gone to her former home, Lewiston, Me., where she expects to spend the summer. Her daughter, Mrs. H. P. Thomas of Duluth, Minn., will join her in Lewiston.

Lysle Bush was host at a Spanish dinner Friday evening in this city. Mr. Bush is a member of Wallace & Bush, contractors of Los Angeles and San Jose, and a visitor here for several days. Covers were laid for twelve.

Thursday evening the Daughters of the Confederacy enjoyed the last meeting of the season with a Spanish banquet at Estradas. Officers were installed at the home of Mrs. A. H. Murray, prior to the banquet. A basket of red flowers formed the table center, and covers were laid for eleven.

OLINDA.

Complimenting Miss Maud Horn of Los Angeles, Mrs. Harry Hemus of Olinda entertained with a very pretty shower in honor of the bride-to-be. Miss Horn is a niece of Mrs. Hemus, and has many friends here. The pleasant rooms were artistically decorated in white and pink. Miss Horn was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts. After the unwrapping of the gifts, the guests were seated at daintily arranged tables, with wedding bells as favors. A delicious two-course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. William Churchill of Brea. There were twenty invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bilstorm of Pomona spent Sunday and Monday with Mrs. Bilstorm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bryan of the G. & L. Lease. Mr. Bilstorm is home on a vacation from Mexico, where he is engaged in the oil industry. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. John Bryan entertained with a dinner in honor of the Pomona guests, it also being the anniversary of their wedding. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Woods of Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Malone of Olinda, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bryan, and Mr. and Mrs. Bilstorm and family.

Olinda people summering at Yosemite, or spending part of their vacation time at this popular resort, are Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McHenry, and sons, Francis and Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Longstreet of the Olinda lease.

Out-of-town guests at the closing exercises of the grammar school, were: Mrs. W. Allen of Santa Ana, Mrs. M. A. Pendleton of Pasadena, Mrs. M. Ross and Miss Louise Hilburn of Covina, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Warner and Miss Thelma Simmonds of Placentia.

BREA.

Dr. and Mrs. H. Davidson of Hollywood, former residents of this city, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Culp, on Tuesday. Dr. Davidson is a director of the First National Bank here.

Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Davis celebrated their birthday anniversary on Sunday, by a trip to Los Angeles, and dinner at the Alexandria, followed by a theater party in the evening. Other guests were: Mrs. McVeigh and daughter and Billie Davis.

Many Breaites have taken advantage of the excursion rates and are making trips to eastern points, and old home places. Among those to leave over the Santa Fe, Thursday were: Charles Miller and Earl Haug, to Oklahoma; Miss Gladys W. Swoffer, to Minneapolis; Norman Read and family, to Indianapolis; H. B. Rollins, to Omaha; C. G. Savage and wife, to Fort Worth, Tex., and Florence L. Royle, to Milwaukee, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Henigan entertained over Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ridell of Pasadena. The Ridells are former Pasadena friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henigan from the Crown City.

REDONDO BEACH.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zwiegart of Pocatello, Idaho are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey.

Miss Rose Murray has gone with a party of friends from Los Angeles on a two weeks' motor trip to San Francisco and points adjacent.

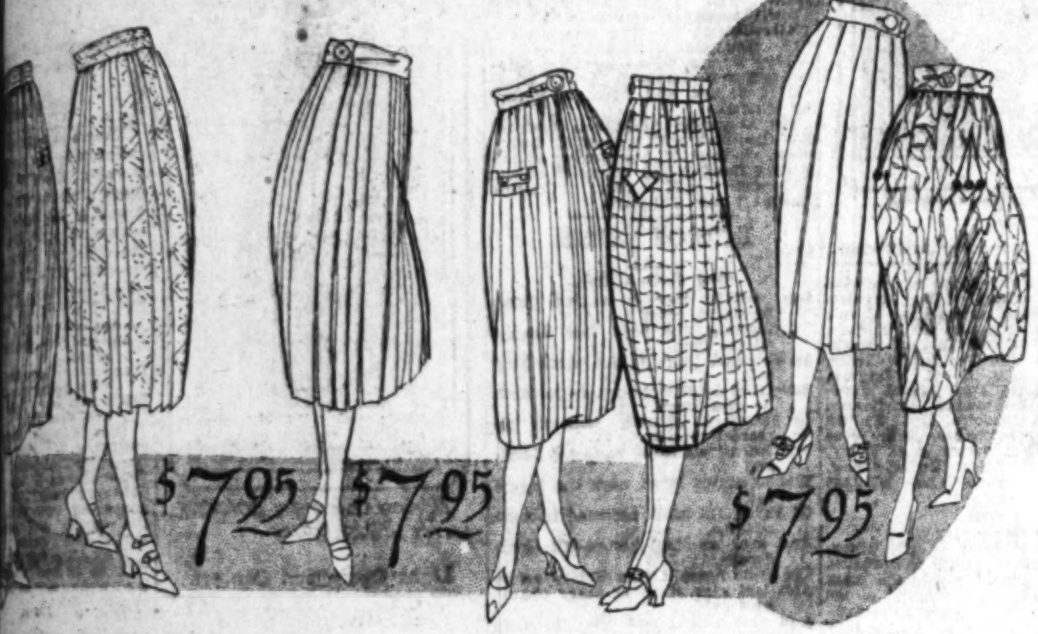
HERE IS A "VILLE-VALUE" THAT SHOULD CREATE A SENSATION AT THE VILLE DE PARIS MONDAY

350 Beautiful Silk Skirts Take the Impelling Price of $7.95



—And it may be stated with emphasis that $7.95 is nothing less than an astonishingly low price for such skirts as these—and if you are interested in the acquisition of a beautiful silk skirt for Summer —you should under no circumstances miss this opportunity.

—Skirts of Baronette, of Striped Sports Poplin, Tricolette, Chinchilla Satin Crepe, Canton Crepe, Novelty Plaid Sports Satins, Fantasie, Snake Skin Satin and Crepe de Chine—all the most popular sports fabrics of the season. Fabrics that everyone knows for their quality—and that everyone should know are truly phenomenal values at this absurd price—$7.95.

—All the newest sports models—plain tailored, side pleated, or box pleated Skirts; pleats both large and small—some in novelty groupings. Skirts with patch pockets, slit pockets, clever belts and button trims.

—In colors they are wondrously complete and varied—gay shimmering Satins of Copen, Orange, Nile, Raspberry, Pink, Peacock, Lavender, Orchid, Lemon, Tan, Rose, Henna, Alice Blue, Gray, Purple, Cream and White—Marble effects in Navy and Brown, Pink and Cream, Green and Gray—White and Tan with cross bars of Black, Navy, Red or Cream.

—350 Skirts in all—coming right at the very moment when thoughts are centered on new skirts for sports and summer wear—and yet it is doubtful if anyone has anticipated the possibility of buying such skirts for $7.95 only.

—A glimpse at the windows will tell the story—In the Sport Skirt Section, at The Ville—Third Floor.

ORCHESTRA GAINS.

RECEIPTS OF PHILHARMONIC NEARLY DOUBLE.

Gross receipts from the concerts by the Philharmonic Orchestra during the past season practically doubled those of the previous concert period, according to statements made public during the past week by the organization. The larger auditorium and universal number of concerts, plus the growth of public interest, are the reasons assigned for the expansion. The receipts approximated $100,000, whereas the previous season they aggregated about $54,000.

As nearly as can be estimated, 186,000 persons heard the concerts during the second season. There were in all, twenty-four symphonic and twelve popular, with an additional twelve concerts in various parts of Southern California, besides the thirty-four given on the tour of the Western States.

During the period, 123 compositions were played. Of this number, twenty-two were heard for the first time in Los Angeles, and thirty-two for the first time by the orchestra.

It is already predicted that receipts for next season will run at least one-third larger. Season subscriptions now equal the amount up to September 1, last year, and the names of hundreds of new subscribers are on the waiting list for reservations, as soon as the old have been disposed of.

The number of concerts will of course be larger. There will be fourteen symphony and fourteen popular, instead of twelve each as in the past. Soloists will be obtained from the list of visiting artists.

Improvements in the library are heralded by the trip which Conductor Walter Henry Rothwell is taking to Europe. The desire of W. A. Clark, Jr., founder of the orchestra, is greatly to enlarge the store of new compositions, it is understood.

Lemare in Concerts.

Two organ programs of substantial interest and appeal were presented by Edwin H. Lemare, municipal organist of San Francisco, as part of the baccalaureate exercises and dedication of the Bovard Administration Building, of the University of Southern California, during the past week. One affair took place Tuesday, the other Thursday night.

The organ was but recently installed by the Robert Morton Company of Van Nuys, the builders.

Mr. Lemare included in his programs the Prelude to "Lohengrin," Minuet in A by Boccherisi, Sonata No. 6 by Mendelssohn, Scherzo in F by Hofmann, Preludo to "Parsifal" by Wagner, Toccata in F from Fifth Symphony by Widor, and several of his own compositions and transcriptions. Mr. Lemare is a thorough musician in his work, having great skill both in technique and as an interpreter.

Choral Union Gives "Creation."

Another dedicatory exercise of notable attractiveness was the singing of the oratorio "Creation" by Haydn, under the direction of Horatio Cogswell. The choral union of the university was heard in this classic masterpiece, before a capacity audience.

The union numbers 135 voices and evinces particular strength in the soprano, alto and bass sections. The tenor is but slightly deficient in tonal volume. Both in balance and vitality of their song, the chorus made a remarkable impression on the musical as well as the general public.

Much enjoyment was added to the event by the singing of Mme. Isabella Curl-Piana, soprano, as Gabriel and Eve; Raymond Harmon, tenor, as Uriel, and Fred C. McPherson, basso, as Raphael and Adam. A number of prominent singers assisted in the ensemble numbers, of which the work so largely consists.

With Eastern Symphony.

Among the soloists to play with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, which is under the direction of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, next season will be Olga Steeb, the pianist. She will appear on an April program.

Two pupils of Miss Steeb, namely, Frances and Elizabeth Copeland, will be heard in recital Thursday evening at the University of Southern California college of music, on South Figueroa street.

Difficult selections, such as Bach Sarabande and Fugue and the Sonata by Grieg, will be represented on the program. Jack Griffith, tenor, a pupil of Charles Edward Hubach, will sing. Miss Lillian Steeb is to assist as accompanist.

Everett Pupils.

Vocal pupils of Miabelle Everett will be heard in program at their teacher's studio, Friday evening. The songs will be selected chiefly from the modern literature of music, including in addition the "La ci Darem La Mano" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and Brahms, Tschaikowsky and Dvorak numbers.

The concert will be opened with the Dohnanyi Rhapsody No. 4, played by Marjorie Hicks, accompanist.

Those to be heard include Leontine Redon Finley; Maude Shenberg, Lillian Siems, Jane Anderson, Lothrop Worth, Lula Lanterman, Miriam Aaron, Margaret Stroufe, Mrs. W. W. Mines, Eleanor Griffin, Mrs. M. E. Baker, Mrs. Theodore Grabe, Margaret DeMers, Frank Schembra, Eugenia McQuatters, Gladys Wetherby, Mrs. Wesley Roberts, Mrs. A. J. McQuatters and Curtis Cortelyou.

Piano Students Heard.

Piano pupils of Miss Frona V. Clarke, from Los Angeles and Covina, gave a program Wednesday afternoon at the Woman's clubhouse in Covina. The affair attracted much interest.

Assisting were Cecil Burk, violinist, and Miss Thelma Burke, accompanist.

Pupils taking part included Dorothy Edwards, Helen and Winifred Marshall, Pearl Burk, Loraine Bashor, Viola Cresse, Ethel Mitchell, Lavonia Wilson, Wilhelmina Hoogendyke, Dorothy Edwards, Pauline and Meredith Tucker, Arline Hotchkiss and Roy Bowman.

Commencement Concert.

The annual commencement concert of the college of music, University of Southern California, was held last Friday evening. Representative of discrimination in the selection of modern and classic numbers, the program included works by Debussy, Arensky, Grieg, Mendelssohn, Liszt, Puccini, Chopin, Beethoven and Tschaikowsky, among others. Piano, violin and vocal music was heard.

Those taking part were Grayce Brillhart, Helen Repath, Robert Lackey, Marguerite Haubert, Beatrice Marie Loucks, Evangeline Reese, Evelyn Sutphen, Edna Heard, Naida McCullough, Ethel Snaveley, Ivy Goade, Anna May Galloway, Rebecca Quinones, Madeline Coppock, Opal Leeson, Clarence Simmons, Mrs. Zefer Sparrow, Elizabeth Mottern and Mrs. Lois Waltz.

Ellis Club.

The final concert of the Ellis Club for the season will take place this afternoon at Philharmonic Auditorium. The season just closed has been a remarkably successful and busy one, the club having been heard in its four regular concerts in Los Angeles and also appearing in Santa Ana in a benefit program for disabled veterans of the World War, and on the final night of music week in Los Angeles on the Courthouse grounds before a vast audience.

The soloist of this afternoon's concert, Mrs. Norena Coleman, is a talented soprano, possessing a voice of range and power. So enthusiastic was her reception with the club at the Santa Ana benefit concert that the board of directors of the Ellis Club was besieged with requests that she be selected soloist for this, the closing event of the season. Her solo numbers will be: Aria, "Suicidio" (Ponchielli,) "Dawn" (Curran,) "Laughter of Love" (Raymond."

Two of the club numbers, "Spirit of Beauty," by Hortario Parker, and "Brown Heather," by Karl Busch, will be accompanied by members of the Philharmonic Orchestra. The occasion which promoted the writing of "Spirit of Beauty" was the opening of the Chicago Art Institute.

Incidental solos in "Brown Heather" will be contributed by Ralph Laughlin, tenor, and Robert Brown, baritone. Other numbers to be given are "Sylvia," "Song of the Sea," "Dance of the Gnomes," "Bella Napoli" and "Love's Benediction."

The club and [illegible] will be directed by J. B. [illegible], and Mrs. M. Hennion-Ronin[illegible] will be accompaniste.

Benefit for Study Club.

The recital to be held at the Hollywood Woman's Clubhouse Friday is of particular interest to lovers of the three arts. Lorenza Lazzarini, dramatic reader, Maude Fischer, eurythmic dancer, and Glen Ellison, baritone, are on the program.

Mme. Lazzarini, besides being the popular leading lady of "The Tempest," took the part of Marie Antoinette in the French section of the pageant recently held at the Ambassador Hotel for the Children's Hospital. Prior to that event she appeared for two seasons in an Italian grand opera company.

Miss Fischer is widely known as a eurythmic teacher and dancer. Recently she interpreted through dancing, "The Spirit of Music" for the Wa-Wan group of the Friday Morning Club in the pageant typifying, "The Questing Spirit of Womanhood," given by the California Federation of Women's Clubs at Yosemite.

Glen Ellison, the Scotch baritone, is one of the Edison artists, and his Scotch dialect songs bring a delight.

This recital is being given under the auspices of the Junior Theosophical Fraternity, a study club of young people meeting Thursday evenings at 5444 Hollywood Boulevard.

Band at Hollywood Bowl.

The Greater Los Angeles Municipal Band will play at the Hollywood Bowl this afternoon. The program will be as follows:

March, "Onward Christian Soldiers"	Carter
Overture, "Raymond"	Thomas
Selection, "Mlle. Modiste"	Herbert
Solo ('cello,) "The Swan" Mr. S. Kalinowsky.	Saint-Saens
Selection, "Carmen"	Bizet
Minuet	Beethoven
Polka	Straus
Song, selected Miss Helen Tappe.
Finale of overture, "William Tell"	Rossini

Irish Tenor in Seattle.

Thomas Egan, the Irish tenor, who is completing a cross-country concert tour, under the auspices of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland, has arrived at Seattle and will concertize during the summer season on the Pacific Coast. The Irish tenor is assisted by Mme. Lilian Breton, dramatic soprano of the Drury Lane Opera Company.

Summer Piano Course.

Mrs. Romaine M. Schons, pianist, has opened a summer course of music for piano students.

Carlson Classes.

Anthony E. Carlson has announced that he will give a normal summer course for teachers and singers during the three months beginning July 1. The classes will embrace all the fundamentals of tone production and the art of singing. Mr. Carlson is one of the most successful teachers of Los Angeles.

The following pupils have shown his ability as a coach and teacher, it is said: Grace James, Hulda Dietz, Leone Von Der Leith, Erline Des Chines, Mrs. H. E. Edington, Mrs. Rose Lick, Mrs. Mabel Meredith, Mrs. Thompson Buchanan, Mrs. George Charette, Mrs. Phillip Zobelein, Frank Geiger, John Westervelt, Irving Andrews, A. N. Buley, Clifton Herd, Glen De Hertzler, Harry M. Sherman and William Rodrick Wance.

Music Teachers.

The final program of the Music Teachers' Association for the present season was given during the past week. It was Long Beach members night. The numbers included the Ballade in A flat (Chopin;) Etude Tableau (Rachmaninoff;) "Gnomenreigen" (Liszt,) and Marche Militaire (Schubert-Tausig,) played by Pauline Farquhar, and an American Indian Song Monologue in costume, with numbers by Troyer, Lieurance, Cadman and others, given by Lucy E. Wolcott, Olive Powers being at the piano.

Visiting in Denver.

Pearl Cole-McMullen is at present house guest of her uncle, G. H. Pattison, vice-president of the State Bank in Denver. The singer has been touring Wyoming and Colorado, giving recital programs.

Arrangements have been made for a series of concerts by Gregory W. Golubeff, at Egan school auditorium, beginning July 1. At the opening event will be heard Sol Cohen, violinist, Mr. Golubeff, mandolinist; Carmen Iris, Spanish cantatrice; Alexander Ivanoff, balalaika player; Philip Ryder, basso; Kathleen Shippen, pianist, and Sonia Zariova, soprano.

It is Mr. Golubeff's stated intention to bring a number of musicians to the fore at these concerts, who have not had the opportunity to receive recognition locally of their talents, as yet.

A feature of the second presentation will be a ballet staged by Kosloff and his dancers, it is announced.

Community Sing.

The new civic community sing was held Thursday evening at Normal Hill Center. Direction was in the hands of Hugo Kirchhofer. Louise Perry gave numbers illustrating diverse phases of Russian, French and American music.

Music With Play.

Musical numbers by Prof. M. S. Gudmundson, teacher of violin, and Miss Sadie Lieberman, his accompanist, will give brilliancy to the entertainment tomorrow night by advanced students of the Wallis School of Dramatic Art. "Lady Windemere's Fan," will be presented in the Gaumut Theater.

This will be the 248th public production of the school. It is under the direction of Miss Meridel Le Sueur.

The Shakesperian comedy, "Midsummer Night's Dream," is being rehearsed by the children's department for production in the near future.

Joint Students' Program.

Edith Lillian Clark and Carolyn Handley will present a group of their advanced students in a piano and vocal recital Monday evening at the Ebell clubhouse. The program will include the Arensky suite and the "Danse Macabre" for two pianos.

Mrs. Clark and Miss Handley presented another group of students in a program at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, Thursday evening.

A third recital will be held at Mrs. Clark's residence studio, 223 South Coronado street, Thursday afternoon.

Pupils' Recital Series.

Musical programs are being rendered by the pupils of Frances Pierson Brumbaugh. On Friday evening, at Miss Brumbaugh's studios, in the Majestic Theater Building, Miss Leah Wood, a young pianiste, her first assistant, was heard, with Helen Coffein, contralto, assisting.

Yesterday at the same studios there was an ensemble program for advanced piano and vocal students. The following took part: Marion Jones, Esther Johnson, William H. MacDaniel, Caffrey Whomes, Lois Ellenberger, Robert Moore, Mary Frances Fisher, Alice Hesse, A. Ceil Marshall, Mary Newkirk Bowers, Marjorie MacFarland, Alice Campbell, Amanda Wilson, Mrs. and Helen Kohler, Lois Coleman, Stanley Duncan and Phyllis Ephlin.

Tomorrow evening, at Jonathan Club, the second annual commencement program by students from intermediate and advanced classes will take place.

University Series.

The opening concert of the university summer series is to take place Tuesday evening, in the new U.S.C. auditorium at Thirty-sixth and University avenue. The artist will be Olga Steeb, whose brilliant artistry has been critically appreciated by her own home admirers, as well as by the leading critics in other cities.

The concerts are being given under the auspices of the Woman's Club of the university. The proceeds are to be devoted to the fund for the completion of the administration building and auditorium, which seats 2000 persons. The club is offering an unusually low admission fee, with special rates for season tickets and for university students.

Three concerts are scheduled, the Olga Steeb, Tuesday evening; the Zoellner Quartet, July 12, and Mme. Anna Sprotte and Charles Wakefield Cadman, July 26.

Miss Steeb's program is as follows:

Gavotte and variations (Rameau;) rhapsodie, Op. 79, No. 2 (Brahms;) Scherzo, (Mendelssohn;) sonata, Op. 25 (Chopin;) Grave, Doppio movement, Scherzo, funeral march, finale; prelude G. minor (Rachmaninoff;) country dance (MacFadyen;) "Forest Murmurs" (Liszt;) "Campanella" (Pagannini-Liszt.)

Oriental Program.

Mystic imaginings of the lands of the Far East are promised those who attend the Grauman orchestra concert of this morning. Mischa Guterson has arranged an oriental program of attractiveness.

The orchestral program numbers will include: "Procession March" from "The Queen of Sheba" (Goldmark;) "Sakuntala" overture (Goldmark;) "Danse De Le Fee-Dragee" from "The Nut Cracker" suite (Tschaikowsky;) "Arabian Night" (Mildenberg,) and two scenes from "The Caucasian Sketches."

Miss Norma Gregg, soprano soloist, will sing "Chanson Indou," Rimski Korsakoff, and "Temple Bells," by Finden.

As a special additional feature, Sid Grauman will present C. Luboviski, violinist, whose playing at the Rialto Theater has attracted favor. Luboviski will play "Caprice Basque," by Sarasate.

BITS OF VERSE.

One Golden Day.

One golden day I walked from Stratford town
To Shottery, the path that Shakespeare trod.
In England there is not more holy sod,
Save that small spot where he doth lie him down
In Stratford church, beneath no mortal crown;
For he, of all men, seems a demi-god
Whose genius lifted high the magic rod
Of Verse, till lo! it bloomed in wide renown,
And ever so shall bloom till earth decays,
Till Time himself puts victory aside,
And last men sleep in dusty chambers cold,
And this bright sun that now its glory lays
Upon the fields, and gives them life, shall hide
Itself in darkness, being faint and old.
—[Laura Blackburn, in Chicago Tribune.

The Farm Lane in the Fall.

The maples, with their crimson stain,
Beguile me down the old farm lane,
Where the slow-moving cattle go
At dewfall in the afterglow,
When dreamily there drifts across
The pastures, wrapped in amber gloss,
The milking cry, "Co' boss! Co' boss!"

Here sumachs show their gleaming fire
Above the purple aster spire;
And here, like embers in an urn,
The bending barberries blush and burn;
While from the opened milkweed pod
Drift snowy sails, and o'er the sod
Lift torches of the goldenrod.

The air is soft, the air is sweet;
The bygone lure of truant feet
Calls as it did in distant days
When all the world was hung with haze,
The haze of youth, and dreams were fain,
And filled with glories that remain
A halo around the old farm lane!
—[Clinton Scolland, in New York Sun.

Where Heroes Sleep.

In Picardy the shadows deep
Across the corn and wheat fields creep;
Where poppies flaunt their gay attire,
As crimson as the flaming fire,
Or heroes' blood, whose watch they keep.

All still they lie in that last sleep;
Soft through the trees the light winds sweep
With gentle touch each breathing lyre,
In Picardy.

Her loving watch the moon doth keep,
O'er that vast field where heroes sleep;
No pomp or fame did they desire—
Ah, no, their aim was holier, higher;
For Freedom's cause they held life cheap,
In Picardy.
—[L. Eleanor Voswinkel, in Minneapolis Journal.

The Aintyet Mariners.

The "Francis X" steamed into port,
And all her sails were set.
The stern threw up a steady spray,
The port holes were all wet.

The captain in the engine-room
Stoked coal with manly zeal,
And on the bridge at midnight
No one spoke except the wheel.

The engineer got breakfast,
Upon the galley stove,
And as they crossed the bar the crew
Rushed madly for a clove.

And why do you suppose that things
Were going thus today!
Because the moving picture man
Had ordered them that way.
—[Bernard L. Wells, in Cartoons Magazine.

Revelation.

I was a tall and delicate dancer,
All a-wing with flying joy—
I stood as proud in my scarlet sandals
As ever a Grecian boy—

Till I came to a wood like evening,
A solemn and sunless place,
Where water as true as a knife blade
Was sharp with my own real face.

That is why I am rooted
So scared here and still,
Hiding beneath these petals,
Huddled under this hill.
—[Winifred Weller, in The Measure.

The hedgehog, on going to sleep for the winter, first rolls about in leafy ditches, until his spines have speared leaves enough to make him a warm blanket. Then he finds a snug retreat in the roots of an old tree, curls up, and snoozes until spring.

The Seamstress

Well, yes'm, I ben feeling a little bit poorly lately, I got to confess. My land! I certainly do git tired of livin' a life of "one before and two after." . . .

Ma'm? Why, you know what I mean, some kind of medicine tablets or pills. If it ain't "one before and two after meals" it is "two before and one after." Yes'm, it looks like to me that the last year or so, I've had to do that to keep from givin' plum out. . . .

Ma'm? Why no'm, it don't make me feel so specially dumpy and blue, but course I can't do the things I want to do and that's a auful disappointment. I can't never make out why a person is so blue about having to work and so downhearted. It looks like to me they ain't got nothing to be blue about. But now you take it if they can't work they got something to be blue about. Yes'm it's the truth. Yet and still, whilst I ain't agoing to say like a parrot, "It don't do no good to git blue" (that's flat enough to rile a budy,) I do say, "If you begin letting yourself feel sorry for yourself, things have got the start on you to begin with, and you needn't go and handicap yourself with that. But all the same you're in a dickens of a fix if you can't work, especially men. My land! A sick man is the most forlorn critter in the world.

Well, sometimes women can't and sometimes they don't work and folks don't think nothing about it. But a man has got to stand 'em thinking he ain't no count besides the disappointment of not being able to steam on ahead through his plans and work.

Well, it looks like to me that folks make a mistake in the place where the brains are kept. It looks like to me they are in your stummick. Because my land! It don't look like to me I got a nickel's worth of brains when my stummick is out of order, no'm. And if I worry about anything, it goes right off to my stummick. It gives me a stummick ache instead of a headache.

Well, you know, when I got to take the street cars in the morning—Oh, my land! I mustn't talk so much about stummicks. What was it you wanted to do with this black satin? Oh, yes'm, I remember now. You want to make a cape of it. It's the very thing to do with black satin, and they ain't no kind of cape that is more stylish this year and it will last you for a coon's age. You see if you have anything the matter with your stummick you forget things. It affects your memory. There I am again.

Well, if you want to you can have it accordion-plaited and just gather it simple at the neck and have a big collar. Or you can make it plain and have one of them quilted collars what are so pretty and stylish now. And if you don't want a plain or a quilted collar, now, why you can have a collar of gray astrachan cloth what is just as pretty and becoming as fur, but more suited for the summer than what fur is. . . .

Ma'm? Why yes'm some has a kind of facing of it running clear down to the bottom of the cape in front. I reckon its right expensive though and you can have just a pretty collar . . .

Stick me? No'm, that pin ain't going to stick my mouth. But if I was to swallow one now I sure would have some trouble with my stummick. Well, what I was agoing to say was that when I go to get on the street car in the morning why I always pray before I get on that they won't have no new motorman on that morning when my stummick is so out of order. Yes'm, them new ones most ingenerally jerk you to death with their starting and stopping. Yes'm, it's the aufullest thing in the world to have 'em start sudden and stop sudden when you are uneasy in your stummick. But then—

Ma'm? Why if I was to have the gray fur in cloth on it why I would have a gray crepe de chine lining. And if I was to have the quilted collar all black out side mebbe I'd have a brighter lining like henna or jade green. You most ingenerally need a little livening up somewhere if the whole thing is black. And to tell the truth, I like that jade green so much and it is so fresh and pretty that I think I'd manage some way to have a lining of it in something or else a dress of it.

I saw a lovely jade green canton crepe what was made with a front panel of finely plaited gray crepe de chine. Well, and the rest of the dress was just as plain as it could be. The skirt had three tucks four inches wide below the hips put in by hand. At the top and at the bottom of the tucks it had a row of wide hand-hemstitching. Well, and the waist had set in sleeves with the armhole bound and the sleeves sewed to the lining. And the sleeves was ruther long, about seven-eighths and wide open with a hem and a row of hemstitching and around the neck and down the fronts on each side was a row of hemstitching. Most anybudy could make a dress like that with a plain green crepe de chine sash hemstitched on the ends and tied at the side.

Yes'm, and the hard part made it look so handsome that you want surprised when they told you it was $125, even if you did know you could have it bought and made for something like $40.

Well, I think we can make both of 'em, and have some money in your pocket to kite around with and have a good time when you are through.

Oh, no'm, I don't think being sick is agoing to interfere. I ain't never very sick ner I ain't very well, you might say. I ben dodgin' pain a good many years and it ain't never dealt me the knock-out blow yet, except I git some mighty bad hunches in the stummick. But as I was saying, I ain't never let it give me the grouch yet.

My land! If I git a shaking up in the street cars when I feel thataway what in the world would I do if I had to go places them mornings in an automobile. Why I know they must jerk and jump and bump over crossings a great deal worse than what the street cars do and so I'm thankful on them mornings that I ain't no rich person with a big car awaiting out in front for me and I couldn't dodge the chauffeur and ride in the cars. And then again I might git one of them chauffeurs what you can't make go slow unless you kill 'em. No'm, I'm well off goin' like I do to my place of business to dressmake.

DUNNING SYSTEM.

Exceptional, indeed, in interest was the demonstration of musical work given by the pupils of Isobel Tone, representative here of the Dunning System of instruction. A large attendance greeted those who took part, and the audience expressed their interest and pleasure in applause for the various unique tests performed. These included memory work, slight reading contests, rhythm tests, demonstrations of harmonizing, transpositions, modulations, etc. A large number of students took part.

"MISS" DUPONT NOW IN FIRST STARRING FILM.

"Miss" Dupont, signed to star at Universal City as a reward for her work in support of Erich von Stroheim in "Foolish Wives," has started on her first feature, directed by Jack Conway. The story is "The White Peacock Feather," a narrative by DuVernet Rabell, adapted by Lucien Hubbard, scenario editor at Universal City.

Jack Perrin, star in his own right, has been engaged as the leading masculine character, while the balance of the cast includes Ramsey Wallace, Leo White, Freeman Wood, J. J. Lance and Elinor Hancock.

The action takes place in New York, Arabia and other romantic locales between.

As Marguerite Armstrong, "Miss" Dupont entered the realm of the silent drama quite by accident. When "Lombardi, Ltd.," was filmed she was a gown designer, employed to supervise the costumes in that production.

Struck with her beauty, the director, Mr. Conway, gave her a small role. Von Stroheim saw her and engaged her for "Foolish Wives." As the production was nearing completion Irving G. Thalberg, general manager at Universal City, offered the leading woman a contract to star in her own right in Universal productions. She has resumed her original name and will only be known to playgoers as "Miss Dupont."

"NOBODY'S MAN" FILM.

E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel of post-war conditions in England, "Nobody's Man," is to be filmed by Goldwyn.

Seventh and Grand

McCutcheon Fabrics

Every woman who knows about clothes, knows McCutcheon Fabrics.

They are synonymous with excellence.

They are exclusive to Robinson's in Los Angeles.

And in Summer Dress Materials they leave nothing to be desired!

"Prints" have assumed a most important role this season; sweet and old-fashioned, indeed, but very modern, too!

There are Printed French Organdies, Printed French Batiste, Tropical Prints and English Prints.

Other Imports include English and French Sateens that will tub; priced at $1.35.

Dotted Swisses in many entirely new color combinations, at $1.50 and $2.00.

And that ideal material for sports wear, English Homespuns, at $1.95 a yard.

SECOND FLOOR

Woolen Materials

Monday's offerings in Woolen Materials are altogether different—

They are entirely for the benefit of the woman who is interested in trimmings or wraps.

Nearfur, Krimmer Cloth and Astrakan! And what woman could not be interested in brand new materials with such names!

These come 46 to 52 inches wide, so only a small amount is needed for a whole wrap.

Colors are cream, tan, silver, black, gray and black and nickel and black combinations. Priced at $6.00 to $9.00 a yard.

SECOND FLOOR

Lace Flouncing $3.95

450 yards of exquisite Lace Flouncing in new patterns in Brussels Filet and Margot mesh embroidered in conventional and floral designs—

This new Flouncing is to be marked at almost half its regular price for Monday.

It is the lace so popular just now for afternoon and evening frocks, and it usually comes high. Now at $3.95.

FIRST FLOOR

French Voile Blouses $5.00

French Voile combined in a magic way with fine Val lace, knife pleated frills, tucks or hand embroidery is the summery fabric of which these blouses are made.

They come in over-the-skirt and tucked-in models, some with collars and some without, and with long or short sleeves.

Each is distinctive and exceedingly pretty.
Each is a good value at a higher price.
Monday $5.00.

THIRD FLOOR

Athletic Suits, $1.00

Kiddies may play in comfort in these Athletic Union Suits.

The waists are made of cool white checked muslin, and the bloomers are of white or some light color, as pink, blue and buff. An elastic band across the back gives these little suits a pliable quality that active children need.

Sizes 2 to 12 years. Price $1.00.

FOURTH FLOOR

Fibre Silk Underthings

They were bound to come—with Fibre silk so successful in other things.

Here are Vests, Bloomers and Envelope Chemises of fine knitted Fibre Silk. They are new; they are beautiful and they are durable.

And to all these merits they add several other features: The Knickers have patented adjustable elastic at knee and waist, more material than usual in the hips, and wide, double-faced gusset. The Vests are long, fitted with good ribbon and have tailor made tubing at the top.

Vests are priced at $2.75; Bloomers, $4.50 and Chemises, $5.00.

FOURTH FLOOR

The June White Sale

Fleeting as the charm of early summer, is the June White Sale at Robinson's.

Suddenly—it is here. And for a time—a time so full of beautiful opportunities for everyone who loves pretty things—it lingers. One almost comes to think of it as permanent. Then, suddenly it is gone. Like early summer, gone for a whole long year!

It is with us still! Four glorious days remain in which to reap the benefit that this Sale always brings. Four days!

Muslin Underwear Reduced

150 Muslin Petticoats, are to be reduced to less than half price for Monday.

They are trimmed with lace and embroidery that alone is worth more than their sale price.

Monday, 75c and 95c.

Crepe Gowns

There are gowns of muslin and finer materials that are also worth much more. They come in every desirable style; some with high neck and long sleeves. All are lace or embroidery trimmed.

A choice of price: $1.45, $1.95, $2.45 and $2.95.

Crepe Gowns, $1.95

Gowns of Windsor Crepe—that soft, serviceable material that need not be ironed—are to be just $1.95 on Monday.

They may be had in plain white, or flesh, or in floral patterns, according to one's taste.

And they come in both regular and extra sizes.

Monday — Windsor Crepe Gowns, $1.95.

Women's Pajamas, $1.95

These are 2-piece Pajamas of Madras cloth or Cotton Crepe.

There is a choice of the slipover or button-down-the-front styles.

Their prices are most interesting, $1.95 to $3.95.

THIRD FLOOR

June White Sale Pequot Pepperell and Three Seas Sheets and Pillow Cases

Loveliness for Little Girls

White Lingerie Dresses and Dresses of Organdie in colors that are trimmed in lace and embroidery will make the little miss happy for party days. They are priced beginning at $5.00. Sizes 2 to 6.

Bloomer Dresses of gingham and organdie combined use ruffles and wool flowers to make them gay for every-day wear. These may be had at $8.95.

And Hats to go with dresses are quite the prettiest ever! They are of organdie and dotted Swiss and come in both white and colors. Their prices begin at $1.95. Sizes 2 to 16 years.

GIRLS' SECTION—FOURTH FLOOR

Sale of Lamps $19.75

25 of Robinson's Lamp Standards and Shades will be on sale Monday. They come in all the popular styles; polychrome or mahogany finish and they all represent splendid values at their Sale price. Standards and Shades are $19.75 each.

SEVENTH FLOOR

End Tables $19.75

End Tables have become an institution in most homes. They add so much to the appearance of a room and to the comfort as well.

Here are 50 of Solid Mahogany that are priced as low as $19.75.

One may see them Monday, on the

Table Scarfs

Tie and Dye Scarfs are of Fiber Silk and Pongee. They are exceedingly beautiful and reasonably priced at $15, $19.75 and $25. Batik Table Runners that come in all the desirable colors range in price from $29.75 to $37.50.

SEVENTH FLOOR

Envelopes

Dainty, well-made Envelope Chemises of Muslin, Cambric or Batiste, come in four groups of low prices for Monday's selling.

Some have hemstitched bandings, others are embroidery or lace trimmed, and there is a wide choice of styles and designs.

Prices are: $1.45, $1.95, $2.45 and $2.95.

FOURTH FLOOR

Underwear for Girls

The Miss who buys her Underthings at her very own department in Robinson's can be sure that she is getting quite as much in style and quality as is her older sister in her departments.

100 Hand Made Gowns are delicately embroidered by hand. Sizes 6 to 16 years. They are very low priced for Monday beginning at $2.50.

200 Gowns that are prettily trimmed with lace or embroidery, sizes 2 to 16 years, are marked as low as $1.25.

72 Princess Slips, some hand-made, others trimmed in lace or embroidery, are priced beginning at 95c.

200 Knicker Drawers, Waists and Combinations, both hand and machine made, are attractively decorated in lace or embroidery and marked low for Monday, beginning at 95c.

FOURTH FLOOR

Women's Jersey Coats, $10

Coats of Woven Jersey that look like sweaters, but are firm enough to hold their shape have been reduced to $10.00.

They are made in the Tuxedo style with patch pockets and self belt, and they come in all the desired colors.

A little more tailored than a sweater; a little more practical for some occasions.

These Coats have been half again as much as their Monday price.

A wide choice $10.00.

THIRD FLOOR

Petticoats of Satin, $6.95

These Petticoats are of fine, heavy Satin, cut on straight lines, and trimmed with three rows of hemstitching edged with two inch Val lace. The bottom is scalloped.

For so much prettiness, $6.95 is a small amount.

And Petticoats of Silk, $8.95

Crepe de Chine! It is double to the hips, too, making it perfectly shadow proof.

These are severely plain, depending for their beauty on the material and one tiny cluster of silk flowers.

Lovely in the extreme, they are moderately priced at $8.95.

THIRD FLOOR

Sale of Axminster Rugs $39.75

60 of them! Seamless Axminster Rugs, 8.3x10.6, priced at $39.75!

Seldom does the home maker find an opportunity for buying his "fundamental" furnishings at such a price.

The rugs are slightly imperfect; a number of them are just a trifle shaded in places.

These are Sandford Rugs—and few are the women who are not familiar with that name in rugs.

They are taupe with a rich border of a darker shade, and it is only on account of slight imperfections in the color that they are being sold at this very low price.

An early visit to the Rug Department will give the Monday shopper a great advantage in choosing the rug she wants, but every one of the 60 is a remarkable value at $39.75.

SEVENTH FLOOR

Motor Kits

Leave nothing to be imagined in beauty or convenience. England is responsible for them. She has covered strong box frames with strong Fabrikoid and added handles, locks and so forth of the best Sheffield Steel to make these perfect Luncheon Kits. Then inside—such compartments; such fittings! Service for six! China cups and saucers, Porcelain plates, delicate glass ware; nickel flat pieces, food containers of porcelain with nickel fitted covers; compartments for thermos bottles—everything one could want for a luscious luncheon in the open!

There is a variety of styles and prices beginning at $175.00.

FIRST FLOOR

Draperies

Cretonnes! In the right hands to what achievements may they not aspire! There is magic in their weaves and colorings.

10,000 yards of Imported and Domestic Cretonnes are just awaiting those "right hands" to fulfill their destiny.

Priced from 68c to $10.00 a yard.

Kapok Silks have just arrived at Robinson's to bring joy to many women. In a wide range of lovely colors. From $4.00 to $6.50 a yard.

Filet Nets are always wanted, especially for summer. There is a multitude of beautiful designs or plain Nets from which to choose. They range in price from 75c to $4.50 a yard.

June
Month-End
4 days beginning Monday

June 27, 28, 29 and 30

—We're coming to the first mile-post in the year's business—June closes the first six months of selling.

—We are now taking inventory of stock on hand; books close on the last day of the month—four days remain in which to lower stocks and thus to increase the sales of the half year.

More Sales--Less Stock

—Thus may we sum up the desire of all stores at inventory time; so, during this June Month-End event we shall feature many, many exceptional price inducements that will prove interesting to all those who have merchandising needs.

Sports Silks and Woolens Underpriced For This June Month-End

—Naturally, the silk and woolen dress goods department has caught the "before-inventory" spirit, and actuated by the desire to see stocks move quickly, quotes these interesting under-pricings:

Women's Low Shoes 'Way Low at $3.00

For Quick Disposal During the June Month-End

—Eager buying is anticipated in the shoe department during the last four days of this month, for it is only occasionally that prices as low as this can be offered on such desirable shoes.

—Almost any woman can afford a pair at the moderate pricing of $3.00 and at this time when fresh, new shoes are wanted for wear with pretty summer things, it's an opportunity that is too attractive to be overlooked.

All are well made shoes that are slightly sub-standard —and there are white pumps and low shoes as well as good-looking patent pumps in the assortment. When you see them, you'll probably decide to have a couple of pairs which will cost you less than you are accustomed to pay for one pair of shoes.

The White Shoes

—including pumps, oxfords and strap models, are to be had in various fabrics; there are low Cuban, junior and French heels; and welt, turned and flexible soles in the assortment.

—All sizes are represented in the group.

Patent Mary Jane Pumps at $2.85

—Excellently made of fine materials and constructed on our well known Little Guardian lasts; they have been taken from our regular stocks and are ordinarily priced much higher. Nearly all sizes are to be had in every width.

The Patent Pumps

—are the product of a well-known manufacturer of fine shoes, and were made to sell at several times the price we have marked them for this event. There are several hundred of them in this group, slightly sub-standard, in a variety of the season's most favored styles. They have welt, turned and flexible soles and French heels.

Children's Betty Bly Pumps at 95c

—These tennis pumps with instep straps are of firm white duck with grosgrain bows. They are built on foot form lasts, making them fine for play or sports wear. Sizes 6 to 13.

Unusual Offerings In Stockings & Underwear

—during the June Month-End make it advisable for you to purchase whatever you will need in stockings and underwear for some time to come. The prices are made especially attractive in order to effect a quick clearance in this department.

Women's Glove Silk Vests and Bloomers at Half Price

—These glove silk vests and bloomers of fine quality are marked way low for quick clearance during the June month end. There are not all sizes in the assortment but the garments are all perfect. The vests are to be had in round neck style or with elastic bodice tops; the bloomers have elastic at knees and waists. The garments have been priced regularly from $5.25 to $6.00 but will be marked at just half these prices for the last four days of the month.

Women's Silk Stockings, $1.39

—In black, white or brown. These are full fashioned with lisle garter tops, heels, toes and soles. The silk is of a superior quality but owing to slight imperfections which should in no way affect the wear, they are priced exceptionally low at $1.39.

Women's Fiber Hoselles at 35c

—are to be had in black, white and colors. They have lisle turnover tops, lisle heels and toes and may be had in fancy weaves.

Women's Cotton Stockings at 19c

—These include broken lines of black cotton stockings made with mock seams and full reinforcements. At 19c they are priced much less than their regular markings.

Women's Nainsook Union Suits, 93c

—These suits in athletic style are priced much lower than usual because they are broken lines. They are in round neck styles with plain or fancy striped tops and are of materials which are cool and comfortable for summer wear.

Women's Swiss Ribbed Vests, 19c

—In round neck or bodice top styles. They have slight imperfections and are priced at 19c for regular sizes and 25c for extra sizes.

Children's Socks, 15c

—In white with fancy turnover tops; a few are to be had in plain colors. Some of the socks have slight imperfections but price on all is lower than usual.

Boys' Knit Union Suits, 39c

These have high necks, no sleeves and are in knee length. In sizes 6 to 14 years, priced specially at 39c.

—The Broadway—Aisles 6 and 8

Two-Toned Ribbons Less at 65c and 95c

—These are suitable for sashes or hat trimming and are to be had in an extensive assortment of colors in 4½ and 5½-inch widths.

Roman Striped Ribbons, $1.25

—The colors include red, navy, black, gray and others. The ribbons are 7 inches wide and have been priced much higher regularly.

Heavy Taffeta Eyelet Ribbon, $4.95

—Some have border patterns, others allover eyelet designs. In gray, navy, brown, white and black.

—The Broadway—Aisle Six

Lace Collars at $1.00

—In tuxedo and round styles in both white and ecru.

French Veiling, 89c

—In diamond mesh with small chenille dots. All the wanted colors are in the assortment.

Real Filet Lace, 50c to $1.25

—There is an extensive assortment of real filet laces from one to 4-inch widths in attractive patterns at prices ranging from 50c to $1.25.

—The Broadway—Aisle Five

Worth While Underpricings In the Men's Furnishing Dept.

—should inspire you to do considerable shopping here while the prices are so exceptionally low owing to the four-day June Month-End disposal, beginning Monday, June 27. It is our purpose to make prices so attractive that merchandise will be quickly disposed of during the four days preceding inventory, in all departments in the store.

Men's Summer Weight Union Suits, $1.15

—There are 25 dozen of these light-weight garments, which are exceedingly cool and comfortable for summer wear, to be offered during the four-day June Month-End event at the remarkably low price of $1.15. They are well made, elastic form-fitting union suits in long or short sleeve and ankle length styles. They are to be had in either white or ecru in sizes 34 to 46; the opportunity to purchase your summer supply of underwear at such a saving should not be overlooked.

Broken Lines of Men's Fine Shirts 'Way Less, $4.35

—There are 20 dozen shirts in this assortment, they have been taken from much higher priced lines, and priced exceptionally low for quick clearance. They are of fiber and silk mixed fabrics that have the appearance of silk and are known for their excellent wearing qualities. There is a wide range of patterns from which to choose; many are in neat stripe effects on light or dark backgrounds. Sizes range from 14 to 16.

Men's Muslin Night Shirts, $1.65

—are priced much less than regularly. There are 25 dozen in sizes 15 to 19 to go at this special pricing during the final four days of June. They are made of muslin of good quality, cut full and of a good length, with V necks; in plain white with colored braid trimming.

Men's Bathing Suits, Less at $2.95

—The bathing suits in this group are of wool mixed materials in the one-piece style and are to be had in green and brown heather mixtures and black with orange stripes on the skirts. They are to be had in sizes 38 to 46.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The twelfth biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs is over, and those who participated in its sessions or who looked on in the role of visitors are estimating the extent of the accomplishments and speculating as to what the coming two years will bring forth for this organization which now has a membership of nearly 1300 clubs. There seems no doubt that the progressive element in this organization is anxious for the attainment of the utmost efficiency possible in the operation of federation affairs. Realizing the breadth of its aims and the constructive movements to which it is pledged, these federation women (who represent the best and broadest minds in the organization) hope to see a gradual strengthening of all which seems required to make certain the attaining of the desired objectives.

The consensus of opinion is general that this biennial was the most satisfactory in point of attendance and constructive endeavors of any in the federation's history. Although the convention length of nearly a week and a half is for the most part conceded to be unnecessary (and hereafter the sessions and other affairs on the program will be kept within a period of six days,) there was no deserting of the ship before activities ended last Wednesday in the tri-cities of Davenport, Moline and Rock Island.

I am glad to have had the privilege of attending this biennial. It acquainted me with much I feel it is necessary I should know. And out of this opportunity has come a deeper faith in the potentialities of an organization which may become one of the greatest factors for furthering through music the welfare no less than the happiness of the people and the nation.

It is doubtful if many people outside the federation and certain public-spirited citizens and municipal and government officials appreciate to the full how great may be made the power of this organization for good. The objects of the National Federation of Music Clubs are fundamentally sound. The organization has much more at heart than to promote solely the performance of good music through concerts. Extending the capacity to appreciate what is for the best interests of the masses is a chief aim. The federation understands how much music can do for the family if it is taken properly into the home. It understands how tremendous a power music becomes when it is taught, by inviting methods, to children in the schools. In other ways which I will not detail just now, the federation is striving to develop Americanism through the practical harnessing of music to pull its share of the load to achieve some of those things we all wish to see come to pass.

Although distinct progress has been made during the recent life of the federation, it is the belief of some of its progressive members, and those well acquainted with what it has done and wishes to do, that the most fruitful days of this organization lie ahead. Under the piloting of the new president, Mrs. John F. Lyons of Fort Worth, Tex., I see fine things in store for the federation. Among other newly elected officers are Mmes George Houston Davis and Oscar R. Hundley of Birmingham, Ala.

MAKE CHANGES.

Changes made at the recent convention in the charter and by-laws of the National Federation of Music Clubs give to it a broader scope than ever . . . in point of possible membership and affiliation with other music organizations and movements. And hereafter the election of officers will be by the directors, as happened on Tuesday, last.

There was considerable opposition to this method of electing the chief executives of the federation. Heretofore, the delegates and individual voting members have cast their ballots for candidates for office. The proposed change in the revision of the by-laws met with much disapproval from 50 of the 167 voters on the convention floor. They contended that what the majority felt would make for a more elastic elective body, similar to that of large corporations, was nothing less than putting control of the federation into the hands of the few, and placing the small member clubs in a position of relative unimportance.

When all the action was concluded on the changes in the charter and the modification of the revised bylaws submitted by the committee appointed to draw them, the federation had a new name (the word "music" having been substituted for "musical,") and, besides those other matters already mentioned, the voting power was vested in delegates, one delegate at large for each State federation, and, among individuals, officers, chairmen of the standing committees and life members.

As it now stands, the federation is proceeding in a perfectly correct way in so far as its charter and bylaws are concerned. What seems odd is that the voting power of each individual who has the right to vote is twenty times greater than that of the delegate who represents the smallest club . . . having a membership of twenty.

It would seem only fair to readjust this, and it may be done at the next biennial.

AIM FOR EFFICIENCY.

Efforts to secure a greater working efficiency is expected to result in the course of time. With so broad a policy adopted, the federation has assumed a huge task and its performance can be made possible only through a concentration of its forces, and in attempting only what it is physically possible to achieve.

In future there will be no more ten days' conventions. One week is regarded as sufficient, which indicates that the recent program was needlessly long.

And I expect to see drives made to heighten the working strength of the State federations, and to move to greater lengths in endeavors to have public school music put generally throughout the country on a more satisfactory basis.

Part of this work by the federation will undoubtedly consist in educating the educators. By this I mean that those members of boards of education, and school principals, who regard the teaching of music as more or less a fad, will be visited and shown what's what. I anticipate a co-operation on the part of the federation with the music supervisors' national conference, which is to take place next April . . . probably in Nashville, Tenn.

I also anticipate seeing some change made in the holding of young artists' contests for chances to make concert tours under the auspices of the federation.

In the past it was the custom to select from each of the fifteen federation districts a winner in each of the classes for pianists, violinists and male and female singers, regardless of their evident abilities to make careers. The danger of permitting any "winner" of a district contest who has slight chance of coming somewhere near the performances of the finest talent appearing at the national finals must have been apparent when the recent ones were held last week in Rock Island. It made one almost heartsick to listen to the efforts of some of these young musical folk, because they were illy equipped to succeed in what their hearts had been set on.

It will be interesting, now, to watch the progressional progress of the 1921 contest winners who will each be given public appearances after the manner I detailed in this column in a recent article. These young people are: Enrique Ros, a New York pianist, and whose talents impressed the experts as most marked; Henry Rosen of Cleveland, violinist; Miss Narodney of New Jersey, mezzo-soprano, and George Smith of Evanston, Ill., whose "baritone" voice, in my opinion, is a tenor. g. "THE APOCALYPSE."

The event of outstanding musical importance at the federation biennial was the world's premier of "The Apocalypse," a dramatic oratorio. Mrs. Pauline Arnaux MacArthur selected the greater part of the text from the books of Daniel and Revelations, and in conjunction with Pierre Henri Roche arranged the words for musical setting, which was done by Paolo Gallico.

There is slight doubt that this oratorio is a splendid piece of work, despite its having no great popular appeal. But from the musical and dramatic standpoints "The Apocalypse" commands our respect because it discloses such fine musical craftsmanship on the part of the composer.

Mr. Gallico can scarcely be credited with having created a highly original score. Its pages reflect the influence of Wagner and Strauss, with a touch here and there of Debussy. But there is such admirable color in the work, the contrasts are so consistently drawn and the climaxes so effectively built that we believe musicians will come to regard "The Apocalypse" as a work to be respected and performed.

The prologue impresses me as the one section of the four wherein the composer missed a fine opportunity. Instead of making his music descriptively powerful and "earthy" he seemed fearful to "let go." The result is a spiritual quality in the score which makes one wonder whether it quite fits.

The representation was not one we can commend in the degree we should like. The Tri-City Choral Society, with the exception of the weakness of the tenors, sang splendidly and revealed a tone quality which was most agreeable. And the Tri-City Orchestra, augmented by some Chicago orchestra players, did a creditable job. But Conductor Cyril Graham of Chicago was not equal to the task of keeping together in proper degree his forces, so the interpretation suffered. I understand that Artur Bodansky is to perform this work with the New York Society of the Friends of Music Chorus and part of the Metropolitan Operahouse Orchestra, this coming autumn; then we shall have a better chance to become acquainted with the musical values of "The Apocalypse."

Miss Cyrena Van Gordon, of all the six soloists, had the broadest opportunities and made much of them. The others, who were less successful, were Misses Estelle Liebling, soprano, and Katheryn Meisle, contralto, and Messrs. Frederick Gunster, Edwin Swain and Augustus Ottone, tenor, baritone and basso.

Taken in its entirety, the twelfth biennial of the National Federation of Music Clubs brought forth accomplishments distinctly worth while.

TAYLOR SAILS FOR EUROPE.

After a few days at the Biltmore, William D. Taylor has sailed on the La France for several weeks in Europe. He will not produce any pictures abroad, contrary to rumor.

JUNGLE PICTURE.

The Superba Offers a Thriller That's Unusual.

A three-ring program is the offering at the Superba today, with all the romance of the "big top" and thrilling encounters with wild and ferocious animals the notes that are sounded strongest in the main feature, "The Man Tamer," starring the spirited Gladys Walton.

A delicious little comedy, entitled "Pals," and enacted by the inseparables, Baby Peggy, Brownie, the wonder dog, and Charlie Dorety, and a sparkling prologue, introducing six dancing and singing tots, who do credit to their act, "Ringling Brothers in Miniature," complete the triumvirate bill.

As the story of "The Man Tamer," directed by Harry B. Harris, gets into action, Miss Walton is shown as a circus girl, handling lions in an animal act with her father, a veteran of the arena. He dies, and the girl is forced to go it alone, battling for her living and her honor against tremendous and utterly discouraging odds. The "odds" are advanced through the owner of the circus, a role interpreted by William Welsh.

The heart interest comes into the story when the girl takes a wild young millionaire and tames him just as easily as she tames her wildest lions. Roscoe Karns plays the wild young millionaire.

Some really thrilling and actually staged scenes distinguish the photoplay, and it is almost breathtaking to see the little star in a cage, whipping lions, and witnessing one of the beasts pouncing upon her father (in the play.) Three of the foremost animal trainers in the country were instrumental in making these scenes. They are A. C. Stecker, superintendent of the Universal zoo, Rex de Rosselli, who plays the part of the father, for years the most famous trainer in America, and C. B. Murphy, also in the cast, who, under the [illegible] Carlos Bernardo, [illegible] deville circuit for [illegible] a leopard act.

Grace Ward,
Appearing in "The Guiding Spirit," picture with faith-healing as its theme, at the Walker Theater.

"THE GUIDING SPIRIT."

"The Guiding Spirit," a vivid picturization of faith-healing in drama form, is offered as the special attraction at Walker Auditorium this week, starting today.

The picture, written and produced by Rose Fisher, widely known as a faith-healer and teacher, reveals in realistic manner how mental and physical healing is effected.

Photographically the picture presents many startling and sensational effects. It depicts the various forms of healing, through prayer and through faith. There also is shown the manner in which absent treatment is accomplished, through the transmission of the spirit from the earthly body to the scene where the healing is performed.

Besides offering something of extreme interest to all who believe in supernature, the picture presents a stirring human interest drama, centering around a little child, whose unswerving faith brings love and health and happiness into the lives of those about her.

The picture was produced at the instance of many earnest believers in faith-healing. While it may be classed among such screen productions as "The Miracle Man," "Earthbound" and one or two other pictures that have created a wide interest, "The Guiding Spirit" is entirely different from these in both theme and treatment.

"PAINT" THAT IS FATAL TO CORNS

Chemist's Discovery Causes Them to Dry Up and Fall Off.

If you want to be rid of corns and callouses, simply paint them with the preparation known as Cactus Corn Compound. This "paint," the discovery of a chemist, ends the pain almost immediately and in a short time the corn or callous dries up and falls off.

A small bottle of Cactus Corn Compound, costing only a few cents, is sufficient to end dozens of corns. It can be used in the privacy of the home and is absolutely safe, whereas cutting is dangerous and makes corns grow faster.

Don't suffer from corns. Paint them and kill them. Your druggist has Cactus Corn Compound and will refund your money if it disappoints you.—[Advertisement.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition All Summer

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion, and without giving an oily, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel.—[Advertisement.

Getting Too Fat? Try This—Reduce

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers, "and the more comfortable," say those whose fat makes summer intolerable. This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the style goes to a druggist and gets a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly. These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, even on the hottest days, and they are also the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only one dollar for a full sized box, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a box by sending to the makers, the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

A Wonder-Offering of

1500 Dinner Sets

Of American Porcelain

at $5.98 to $21.98

—"The most remarkable offering of its kind in the history of the Department"—we quote our buyer of chinaware, and after having seen with our own eyes the dinner sets involved, we've caught much of the enthusiasm with which he spoke!

From the Potteries of Edwin M. Knowles

—maker of fine porcelain, have come the majority of the dinner sets to be featured during the June Month-End at the low figures quoted, every piece of this make being perfect. We have added a number of sets, from other potteries, that show slight imperfections on the glaze.

There Are More Than Thirty Patterns

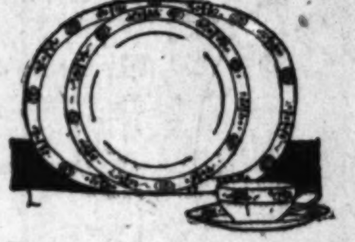
—involved in the assortment; so you may readily understand that this is no ordinary offering!

—The patterns, moreover, are new and wantable; the colorings those most in demand. Many of the sets are shaped on Colonial lines.

27-Piece, 42-Piece and 50-Piece Sets

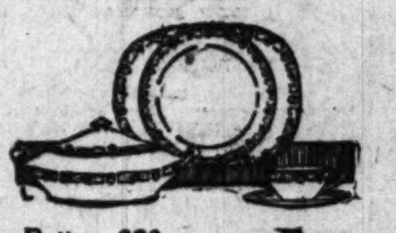
—May be had in any pattern, and are priced according to the number of pieces, at $9.48, $15.48 and $21.98, respectively.

—If you need a new breakfast or dinner set, don't fail to see these Monday.



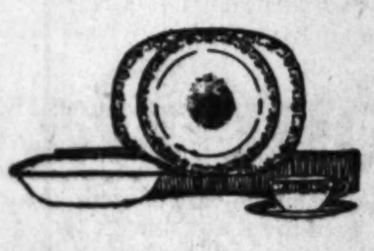
Pattern 314

—is in a colorful design on a border of ivory, broken by heavy black bars which divide it into panels. Scattered over the border are alternating sprays of forget-me-nots and roses. The 27-piece set for four persons is marked at $9.48; the 40-piece set for six at $15.48 and the 50-piece set for six at $21.98.



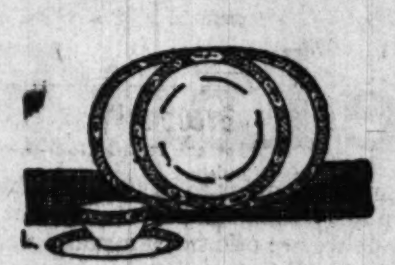
Pattern 333

—has an unusual and attractive conventional design in which vines and tiny flowers in henna, green and blues are quaintly patterned. The 27-piece set for four persons is priced at $9.48; the 42-piece set for six at $15.48 and the 50-piece set for six is marked at $21.98.



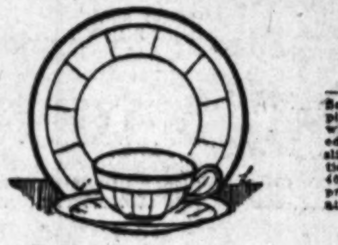
Pattern 268

—has a panel border on which are wee blue cornflowers and dainty pink flowers. The panels are separated by occasional medallions worked out in blue, green, gold and pink. A gold band lines the inside of the cups and also the handles. The 27-piece set is priced at $9.48; the 42-piece set in service for six at $15.48 and the 50-piece set in service for six is $21.98.



Pattern 267

—is decorated with a pale green border in lattice effect with pink rose motif. The Mayflower shape is seen again in this service. A 27-piece service for four persons is priced at $9.48; a 42-piece service for six at $15.48 and a 50 piece service for six at $21.98.

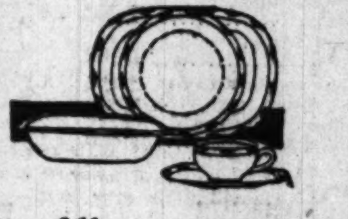


Pattern 3889

—has a graceful floral design in pink and blue with gold line edge. Owing to slight imperfections this set of 40 pieces is priced 'way low at $8.98.

Pattern 266

—in the ever popular white with gold band and gold line may be relied upon to harmonize with the decorations of any dining room. The 24-piece service for four is priced at $9.48; the 42-piece service for six at $15.48 and the 50-piece service for six at $21.98.



Pattern 261

—Is in Mayflower shape and has an ivory border with gold line, edged with clusters of pink roses on an old gold background.

—27-piece service for four, is $9.48.

—42-piece service for six, is $15.48.

—50-piece service for six, is $21.98.

Pattern 317

—is decorated with rich colors and is in the Mayflower shape. It has a good looking rose border on an ivory background which is set off by lines of blue, black and gold. The 27-piece set for four is marked at $9.48, the 42-piece set for six at $15.48 and the 50-piece set for 6 at $21.98.

Pattern 646

—is adorned with blue lines broken by clever pink and blue medallions. It would be especially pretty in a breakfast room with blue hangings and owing to slight imperfections is priced very low at $8.98 for service of six, including 42 pieces.

Another Pattern

—with two narrow gold bands is priced inexpensively due to slight imperfections in the glazing which are hardly noticeable. A 27-piece set for four is priced at $5.98 and a 40-piece set for six is priced at $8.98.

Pattern 197

—with gold line design is priced at $8.98 for the set of 42 pieces. It has slight imperfections which are almost imperceptible.

Hughes to Go on a Tour of Exploration.

After a most strenuous bout at scenario-writing, Rupert Hughes has decided to wipe the sacred dust of the Goldwyn lot from his feet, step into his brother Howard's power boat, now chafing at its moorings in San Pedro, and speed away to the wilds of Southern California for one brief week of exploration. Maybe, he says, he will also explore the highest heights and the deepest valleys of Catalina Island, and then publish a book on his discoveries.

Mr. Hughes modestly confesses that though he has written many novels, innumerable short stories and a few plays, he has never yet penned a book of personal adventure, and his soul hankers for new honors. He may even illustrate his volume with paintings of the mud banks of Southern California. Though he is a sculptor of some distinction, the paint brush is an unknown implement to him. But no matter.

Hughes will start next Tuesday. His companions will be Howard Hughes, wealthy Eastern manufacturer and inventor, and Milton D. Gardner, assistant superintendent at Goldwyn's. They will carry with them a field camera and a motion-picture ditto, the latter, presumably, that their emotions over their great discoveries and startling adventures may not be lost to an expectant world.

The motor boat, which was recently built for Howard Hughes in Milwaukee, traveled by canal to the Mississippi, down the father of waters to the Gulf and from Galveston it went by rail to San Pedro. It is commodious, comfortable and strictly up-to-date—quite the proper sort of vehicle for Maj. Rupert Hughes, who is also comfortable, commodious and absolutely modern.

The latest photoplay by Rupert Hughes to reach the screen is entitled "Dangerous Curve Ahead." In the light of this hazardous trip into unknown waters, the title has a prophetic ring of warning to its author and his foolhardy companions.

Red Feather Complexion Powder

It has distinctive and exclusive transparent and adhering qualities and a delightful fragrance. 50c a box.

The Red Feather Co. New York

COSTS ONLY 50c BUT MY, HOW POSLAM HEALS!

A hundred dollars couldn't buy the perfect relief that the first touch of Poslam brings to itching, inflamed, eczema-tortured skins. Yet a box of skin-healing Poslam costs but 50c.

Poslam is so concentrated and acts so directly that a little goes a long way. But its medication is so gentle that it cannot irritate the most delicate or inflamed skin. Eczema, rashes, scalp troubles, pimples—they simply cannot resist Poslam. 50c before the war, 50c during the war, 50c now—at every drug store. For sample, free, write to POSLAM, 243 W. 47th St., New York.

Poslam Soap, medicated with Poslam, clears and brightens the complexion and prevents return of eruptions.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—[Advertisement.

BEST DRESSED MAN IN HOUSE.

Chamberlain, Lloyd George's Assistant, Methodic.

Wears Monocle, Creaseless Frock Coat, Also.

However, He is Lacking in Popularity.

BY ARTHUR DRYSDALE.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, May 31.—The chief figure in England today is Lloyd George's new assistant, Austen Chamberlain. Now Lord Privy Seal, leader of the Conservative party in the House of Commons and virtual, though not titular, head of the greatest single party in the country, the future is largely in his hands.

No man ever came into leadership with fewer bouquets and less blaring of trumpets than Austen Chamberlain. Political writers with almost one accord declare his defects, while pointing out that his title to the position lay in the fact that he was the sole candidate.

They complain that he lacks tact and understanding of men, does not go out of his way to be popular, has no imagination, and "is very far from being an ideal leader."

Yet he sits on the throne and perchance the prophets may be confounded as they were in the case of Bonar Law.

CONTROLS MAJORITY.

He controls the majority in Parliament and he is a strong party man. He has not the genius for hero-worship that Bonar Law had and it is not yet known how he will get on with his Liberal chief. So far he has announced his loyalty to the Coalition and coming from him this means that at least for a time, he will support the present administration.

But how long will it last? That question is being asked anxiously by interested politicians who scent an early general election. They are likely, however, to be disappointed.

Twenty-eight years ago the new Tory chief met his old nurse and told her he was going in for politics. "Politics," was her disgusted comment. "Oh, Mr. Austen, I should have thought two in the family, your father and Mr. Richard, was enough to have had in politics. Why don't you go in for something useful?"

Perhaps now that he has read all the faint praise with which the political writers have damned him he recalls that story with a certain amount of regret for neglected advice.

WEARS MONOCLE.

"Our Austen," as they call him still in the Midlands, is tall, almost boyish-looking yet, despite his fifty-seven years, and wears a monocle "like a gentleman."

He has both a distinguished face and bearing. The brown hair is neatly, carefully brushed back from the forehead. It is not so abundant as once it was and there are streaks of gray in it.

Below the broad, rather sloping forehead there are blue eyes that seem icily, unemotionally cold, but are said to light up with a warm, kindly humor when, the cares of office thrown aside, their owner is spending a few happy hours with his children. And they look at you with a clear, straight, frank gaze, the glance of an essentially honest spirit.

LONG A MEMBER OF CABINET.

His cheeks bear the lines of advancing years but more of weighty cares, the mark of all the men who have been through the last seven years of tremendous responsibilities.

Austen Chamberlain has been in the Cabinet practically the whole of the period of the war. It has left its mark upon him as upon all his colleagues. It has brought Bonar Law to the verge of breakdown. It has aged the Premier and turned his Celtic crop a silvery white. It has made an old man of Herbert Henry Asquith.

All the statesmen of Britain have paid the penalty in greater or less degree of the strain of piloting the British empire through its most momentous epoch.

Austen has not escaped. And with the years his square, strong-willed jaw has become even squarer, more uncompromising. The resolute mouth has set in more determined lines. Here is a man upon whom authority has laid its seal.

Many years of high office have confirmed the early air of authority, the youthful seriousness, the ministerial austerity. To use the famous phrase of Oscar Wilde, no one has lived up to "the importance of being earnest" more conscientiously than Austen.

The best-dressed man in the House of Commons, he has always had a reputation for his clothes. His frock coats and waistcoats are famous. Labouchere once likened him to a smart undergraduate in his first frock coat, and another member told him that he showed off a frock coat "better than any man I know." Austen's explanation of the reason why he takes such particular pains to dress immaculately is an interesting bit of family history.

WHY HE DRESSES WELL.

"Many years ago," he states, "when I was just starting in life, my father said to me, 'My boy, to two things in life pay the greatest attention — your frock coats and your enemies. Frock coats are liable to crease; enemies, unless treated very carefully, are liable to increase. They both require "smoothing down" occasionally.'"

Rather frail in appearance, an effect heightened by his many inches, he walks like his father and speaks like him, though without the rhetorical fire or oratorical genius which Joe knew so well how to use, but he does not inherit the orchid habit. The great apostle of imperial preference was never without one in his buttonhole.

At Highbury, the elder statesman's Birmingham residence, there was a wonderful orchid house and the story is told that in Austen's early undergraduate days, one of his college friends was asked to stay there.

Before dinner a tray of buttonholes was brought round for the guests. Austen's friend was just about to take an orchid when the horrified butler stopped him with the explanation, "Beg pardon, sir, but the orchids are for the family."

The present leader of the House of Commons has copied his father, who has always been his idol, in the use of a monocle, the way he parts his hair, and the peculiar cut of his cuffs. That he walks like his father is not surprising.

Yet it is difficult to write of a family walk in regard to Joseph Chamberlain, for he never walked if he could ride. Joe always took a cab. No Englishman of his time exercised less. In this Austen is true to family tradition.

His devotion to the memory of his father has been rightly described as "beautiful."

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

The 175,000 Philadelphia school children who are members of the Junior American Red Cross did a valuable bit of service in connection with the problem of undernourishment among pupils during the last school year, according to Henry J. Gideon, director of the Bureau of Compulsory Education. Ten per cent of the school children of the city are undernourished and a supplemental meal during school hours was provided for them by the Junior Red Cross. Contributions from the 175,000 members amounted to $11,070, of which $4000 has been expended for health and nutrition work in the public schools. An additional $4121 has been set aside to provide a scholarship loan fund for children whose financial condition would otherwise force them to discontinue school work. These loans are repaid in small installments.

In a setting that resembled a glorified country fair, Mrs. Payne Whitney held a garden party on her estate, Greentree, at Manhasset, L. I., at which funds were raised for the baby's fund of Nassau county and for the New York hospitals. It was estimated that 3000 people were in attendance and that more than $15,000 was raised.

The feature of the party was the auction of live stock. Dogs, pigs, cows and barnyard fowl were sold to the highest bidder.

An appeal for volunteers for a blood transfusion was answered by 372 out of 500 members of the Cleveland fire department on duty one day recently. The call was in behalf of Mrs. David Wilson, who was left in a serious condition from a Caesarian operation performed a week ago, when twins, a girl and a boy, were born. The boy died, but the girl probably will survive. The blood of three of the firemen was found suitable. Coins were matched to see who would be accepted and Charles L. Trinkner won.

Medical supplies and nursing care for refugee children in Greece are being furnished by the American Red Cross, which is co-operating with the Greek government. To supplement this work and aid in restoring these children to normal, the Junior American Red Cross has made an appropriation from its national children's fund to be used in developing school and recreational facilities at Saloniki, where many orphan refugee children are being cared for. Opportunities for properly directed play and exercise, and schools for the instruction of these children, are as necessary for their development as food and nursing.

According to the records of the Children's Bureau, which has just closed another year of work in Kansas City, the number of physically defective children under 6 years of age reached by its efforts has been reduced nearly 50 per cent, compared with three years ago. This is a remarkable showing. It reveals that co-operation of parents with this responsible health agency is exceedingly worth while. It indicates a plain duty at the same time that it emphasizes an opportunity for the city's children to enter school in good physical condition and to prepare for future citizenship.

LIKES FILM KIDDIES.

Alice Lake, who is mothering four of the most gifted children of the screen in her new Metro picture, "The Infamous Miss Revell," insists on spending as many of her evenings with her film charges as possible. "The experience," she mysteriously explains, "may come in handy some day."

The Times Literary Page Books and Their Makers

By Thomas F. and Lillian C. Ford

A ROMANCE OF RECONSTRUCTION

Coningsby Dawson's New Novel, "The Kingdom Round the Corner," is an Alluring Love Story Picturing Post-War Conditions in England.

THE KINGDOM ROUND THE CORNER. By Coningsby Dawson. The Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York.

In theme, Mr. Dawson's new novel reminds one of Locke's "The Mountebank." It is the story of a man whose former valet achieved military distinction during the war, a man who never lost a foot of trench, who knew not defeat, and so was accorded every honor and distinction as long as the war lasted. Then came demobilization, and like Locke's hero, Braithwaite faced the problem of how to carry on in peace times. An ex-British general could hardly return to valeting, and yet this was all that the world had to offer him. How he solved his problem is quite subordinated to the love story, which is one with not a few complications. Not only did the one-time valet win far higher rank and honor in the war than did Lord Taberley, whose valet he had been, but he even won the heart of Terry, who had promised to marry Tabs the very day he should return from the war.

Mr. Dawson is none of your new writers who finds accepted institutions all wrong, and who are so ready above all to rail at marriage and romance. In this novel his one aim seems to be to get all his characters paired and married as expeditiously as possible, never doubting that it is thus they will be brought to the kingdom round the corner that Tabs so optimistically preaches and believes in. In the end everybody is made happy except the quite naughty Terry, who is left to find her kingdom at a later date.

The story is well told, stirring situations follow each other at an almost bewildering rate, and the heart interest never abates until the last line of the last page is read and the book is closed with a satisfied sigh.

Even though Mr. Dawson is an incorrigible romanticist, he sees people with a clarity that enables him to produce characters that stand out with no little distinction. For instance, one may read many a book before finding the equal of Sir Tobias Bedow, Terry's father, who is thus described:

"He was a little man, inclined to be podgy, brimful of a darting kind of energy and dignified with an air of fussy distinction which none of his antics, however grotesque, could diminish. He was Shakespeare as he might have appeared at 60, after years and a return to Ann Hathaway had quenched the taller flames of his poetic fire. The resemblance was haunting and remarkable: there underlay it a hint of gnome-like agility."

It is this conservative English gentleman who said of the returned soldiers with their new demands: "It's gone to your heads; you want to brush experience aside and dragoon the older world into new formations. You, who were civilians yourself, have come back despising us civilians; your contempt is three parts fear lest you will fail, as you failed before in the old civilian competitive struggle. You talk about the virtues war has taught; let's grant them and grant them gratefully—they saved us from destruction. But what about the frantic recklessness it encouraged, the cheap views of bodily chastity, the desperate insistence on momentary happiness?"

Perhaps it is Maisie, the thrice-married widow, who gives the most interest to the book. She is original, lively and appealing, even if she is a bit too bold. It is she who says: "I think we might have tea; it'll restore our serenity. There's nothing like employing your hands when you want to keep from losing your temper. A woman learns that, even when she's only been married once. When she's been married three times," the cornflower eyes become suddenly innocent, "she knows everything."

There is cleverness in the book, no little understanding of the human heart and an interest that never flags. As a picture of England under the stress of reconstruction, "The Kingdom Round the Corner" has value for those who care to go beyond the story when selecting their fiction. Take it all in all, no better novel for vacation reading can be easily found.

BOOK ON ART.

FROM HOLBEIN TO WHISTLER, NOTES ON DRAWING AND ENGRAVING. By Alfred Mansfield Brooks. Yale University Press, New Haven.

A book, beautifully illustrated, the purpose of which is well explained in the introduction, as follows:

"This book deals only with pictures of great and unquestioned merit. It seeks neither to make nor to mar the reputation of any artist. And no more does it concern itself with market values. It deals primarily with the art of engraving in one or the other of its better known forms, together with the art of drawing, which, as it is the foundation of all good picture-making, is the foundation of all good engraving. To point out some of the salient requisites of good drawing, and to illustrate these requisites as they appear in a limited number of the works of the best of most famous engravers the world has produced, is the second, but in no sense secondary, aim of this book. . . . In fine, it is a book on drawing and engraving intended to help the already large and yearly increasing number of those who are interested in these two arts.

The seven chapter headings are as follows: Drawing and engraving; the beginning of line engraving in Italy; the beginnings of line engraving and wood in the north; Mantegna, Marcantonio Raimondi, Lucas of Leyden Durer and Holbein; The theory and process of etching—Rembrandt, Van Dyck and Claude Lorrain; Mezzotint engraving—Claude Lorrain and Richard Earlom; Turner, the Liber Studiorum and Wordsworth.

TALE OF THE WEST.

THE HEART OF THE RANGE. By William Patterson White. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City.

Racey Dawson and Swing Tunstall were having one last celebration in Happy Heart Saloon before going to look for gold in Arizona, when Racey walked into the adventure of his life. A horse that he had taken by mistake must be returned to its owner, daughter of the owner of Dale's ranch. He expected no mercy—none whatever from the lady—but he found no formidable person but pretty young Millie Dale, with most disconcerting blue eyes. Racey discovers that a gang is planning to run Millie's father off the ranch, so he goes back to Farwell and tells his partner that they aren't going to Arizona after all, but are going to stay right there and take a hand in the game. With at least two murders to solve and several villains to cope with, Racey has his hands full, but he is equal to all of them. His courage falters only when he looks into Millie Dale's blue eyes, but what he reads there is altogether satisfactory.

William Patterson White is one of the few writers who can record from actual experience the casual, happy-go-lucky old West that is fast giving way to the street car and the Ford. "Paradise Bend" and "Hidden Trails," which preceded "The Heart of the Range," are breezy romances of the same type.

PROBLEMS OF PIANO PLAYING.

SELF-HELP IN PIANO STUDY. By Harriette Brower. The Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

A book for piano teachers and students concerned with the principles, methods and problems of piano playing. There are constructive studies and suggestions on the importance of foundation work, on standardized method and much material of value to the student who is without the instruction of a teacher.

Among the topics discussed are principles in piano playing, the beginner, time keeping and the trill, use of the wrist and arms, variety of touch in passage playing, scale playing, arpeggios, octaves, applying principles to pieces, points of technical training, the study of rhythm, touch and tune, and on memorizing.

HENRY G. AIKMAN, WRITER AND MAN.

Distinguished Editor Gives His Impressions of the Author of "Zell."

BY JOHN FARRAR,
Editor "The Bookman."

My admiration for Henry Aikman, both as a man and as a writer, is somewhat the same as my feeling for Robert Frost, John Masefield and Edwin Arlington Robinson. At first glance one is convinced of his sincerity, and later acquaintance only deepens the conviction. He is modest, quite without affection, clear-thinking, an honest workman and a keen student of the psychology of mankind. As for his literary ability, it was apparent in his first novel, "The Groper," and "Zell" has been too widely acclaimed to demand further praise here.

It was luck that made possible my first encounter with Aikman. The announcement of "Zell" in advance notices spoke of it—rather unwisely, for there is so much more in the work—as the study of a family which had been separated by divorce. Since this condition is so prevalent in the United States, I felt that here was the possibility of a big novel. I asked the publishers for advance sheets, took them home and sat up that night reading through a novel which seemed to me in many ways a far better, certainly a more sincere piece of writing than any other American story since "Ethan Frome." . . .

The success of "Zell," which was published by Alfred A. Knopf, was almost instantaneous, and practically every critic in the country has added his word to the general praise. But since Mr. Aikman has actually been writing eight years, it cannot be truthfully said that he is one of the few who has won success instantly or easily.

There isn't much in the way of pyrotechnic display about Henry Aikman. He has a delightful family and spends much of his time with them. He plays an occasional game of tennis. Now and then he may be seen in a group of New York literary people, but as a rule he stays closely at home and works. He is the steady, determined, wholesome sort of man to whom one goes for advice. The most I can say of him is that Detroit should be proud to have produced the author of "Zell" and at the same time so sane, attractive, modest and helpful a citizen.—[Detroit Free Press.

TO ENCOURAGE WRITERS.

Two thousand dollars will be paid Jan. 1, 1922, and annually thereafter, by the Dial Magazine, to a young American writer. This is intended to acknowledge, at least in a small way, the service to letters of one of those who have contributed to the Dial in the preceding year. The money is not a prize and the Dial is not instituting a competition; nor are there any special terms or conditions. The editors of the Dial feel that while many American writers make handsome livings through their work, others of a more intellectual and therefore less readily apprehended talent cannot appeal to so large audiences. They are thus compelled to spend some of the best years of their lives without recognition and without the means to leave them free to work at their art. As the Dial is not a money-making institution it cannot support writers generally. But it hopes each year to set one young American writer free for twelve months so that he may have the only freedom which counts—the freedom to do what he wants most to do. The sum of $2000 is intended to represent the equivalent of a year's leisure. No restriction will be put upon the recipient, however, and he or she will be free to spend the money in any way.

In the course of his announcement, the editor writes that from the time it changed ownership, in 1919, the Dial's purpose has been to give a hand to the young writers and artists of America. This is done not by limiting the contributors to the young and to Americans, but by choosing work from both unknown and famous writers, those who work in conventional and unconventional modes, European and American, with regard only for the artistic qualities of the work submitted. Without prejudice in favor of one side or the other, the Dial has published the best work it could find, and it so happens that its contents page is usually fairly well divided between Americans and Europeans, new writers and old, writers of sonnets and writers of free verse.

FURS FROM WILDS TO WEARER.

THE FUR TRADE OF AMERICA. By Agnes C. Laut. The Macmillan Company, New York.

A book on the fur trade that will dispel many illusions is this large one-volume work of Agnes Laut. It discusses a wide range of topics, from what every woman who buys furs should know, to the laws of the United States on seasons for different furs. Miss Laut is thoroughly convinced of the propriety and humanity of the fur trade, insisting in her preface upon the fact that through its beneficent workings the fur-bearing animals are protected and cared for as they would never be did not the world hanker for their hide, which is surely a most comforting doctrine for the movie queen who flaunts her mink or seal coat.

The first of its three sections deals with the use of furs as an art. Chapters are included on fashions and modes in furs, historic furs, and also a technical examination of different kinds of furs, from the viewpoint of the connoisseur.

Part Two deals with the market value of furs—in particular, the transfer of the market to the United States during the war; it discusses the dyeing industry, which was localized in Germany previous to 1914, but which is now well established both in England and in the United States. This part of the book also describes the transport of furs from the arctic regions to civilization.

Part Three recounts the story of the trapper. Some of the material for this portion of the volume is taken from one of Miss Laut's earlier works.

The book has over 300 pages, is profusely illustrated, and is priced so as to place it in the list of luxuries.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

BY MYRON ZOBEL.

Society condemns Shaw for lacking emotional interests. Shaw condemns society for having them. Each party is merely insisting that the game be played according to its own particular rules.

Of course Shaw will never give in. Neither will society. But fortunately for society the artist in Shaw sometimes gets the upper hand and when it holds out long enough the result is a "Candida" or "You Never Can Tell"—plays in which an artistic subtlety leads his reform and all its schemes by the nose.

Sometimes—as in "The Doctor's Dilemma"—you can see revolutionary dialectic getting the upper hand in a play that is otherwise all art. The perfect unity and deft dramatic development of this play is broken in the beginning of the third act by an irrelevant, though brilliant piece of sophistry between the artist Dubedat and the doctors, and then continues with point and purpose through Dubedat's splendid and stirring death to an end that is charged and vitalized by very real emotional values. Of course, most people get about as much out of these scenes as the reporter does. But why blame Shaw?

In fact why blame Shaw for the many plays in which art get hog-tied before the rise of the curtain and fails to make itself heard from the first act to last above the noise of the disputation?

For where was Shaw to find that richness of emotional experience we clamor for in his plays? Did Shaw ever experience 'the pangs of dispis'd love? Assuredly he did not. And if he has omitted the pangs he has made up for it in good measure by what he has had to say concerning 'the law's delay, the insolence of office, and the spurns that honest merit of the unworthy takes.'

Dull people are continually stamping Shaw as an imitator of Nietzsche or Marx or someone else. Of course the exact opposite of this is true. Shaw has merely taken the ideas of these men—and some others—as a basis for a new drama. His plays are the vitalization of their ideas as applied to modern institutions.

For Shaw shows a passage from the old drama of personal motives. His characters are not individuals, they are ideas; his stage is not the room of a house with one of its walls removed, it is the brain of a man with as much as possible of his middle-class respectability and self-deception cut away. This is what gives to Shaw's plays that necessarily disembodied flavor we complain of.

Compare Alexander Dumas fils and Bernard Shaw as dramatists. Both wrote what is known as the drama of ideas. Both used the same dramatic precept: 'Preparation and Explication.' Both had the same regrettable stage conventions—the long arm of coincidence with the finger of fate at the end, and the modern Greek chorus in the person of some guide, philosopher and friend—usually a wealthy uncle.

"In La Dames aux Camelias" and "Mrs. Warren's Profession" they both treated the same subject—that battered but ever-fascinating subject: justification of the courtesan. Observe the difference of the treatment. In Dumas it is justification on sentimental and personal grounds; in Shaw it is justification on unsentimental and economic grounds.

That is Shaw. Too shrewd to attempt to reform individuals, he carries his attack to the very citadel itself—the time-honored institution of society.

His weapon: the drama. And as the old dream of personal motive (love, hate, revenge and death) did not suit his purpose, Shaw changed the drama. He created the modern drama of ideas. Institutions (marriage, religion, family life, historical traditions, capitalism, . . .)—these, in the Shavian drama, have taken the place of the old stage sets.

That is Shaw.

That is Shaw's method. It is a working out of Oscar Wilde's statement—"the longer I live the more keenly I feel that whatever was good enough for our fathers is not good enough for [illegible] as in politics, les grandpères ont toujours tort."

That is Shaw.

BOOK ON LETTER WRITING.

MODERN BUSINESS WRITING. A STUDY OF THE PRINCIPLES UNDERLYING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISEMENTS AND BUSINESS LETTERS. By Charles Harvey Raymond. The Century Company, New York.

An unusually comprehensive work on writing advertisements and business letters. The author is instructor in business English in the University of California; he has given great care to the collection of material on his subject, including copies of letters and advertisements actually used by many leading business firms. Mr. Raymond is well known in the Bay District, where he was formerly a newspaper man. He is also the author of several successful short stories.

In the foreword Mr. Raymond says: "The power consistently to make an effective appeal is the distinguishing characteristic of the successful writer of modern business letters and advertisements. It is possible to write an appeal that is constantly effective, rather than occasionally effective, only by basing the appeal upon a practical and definite plan, worked out in accordance with an analytical study and a systematic application of the underlying principles which the experience of business men in thousands of selling campaigns has proved fundamental.

"These fundamental principles underlying the selling appeal are discussed and analyzed, step by step, in the first chapters of this book. Their practical application is made clear by the analyzing of a large number of business letters and advertisements which are quoted for purposes of illustration."

The book is divided into two parts, the first devoted to the selling appeal, and the second to everyday letters.

The everyday letters considered include letters of inquiry, or order letters, adjustment letters, credit letters and collection letters. Two valuable chapters are those on house instructions to correspondents and the make-up of letters.

The book is one that can be safely recommended to sales managers and office managers as well as to those in direct charge of business correspondence in any office.

WISDOM FOR YOUNG AMERICA.

Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant, in the June Bookman, has a word of sound advice for the American "young intellectuals." She says, in summing up:

"Possibly the best way for the revoltes to carry through their revolt is to see very clearly the line of cleavage from their elders — see it and glory in it, as Amy Lowell has deliberately done with the new poetry. And yet—not long ago I heard a poet, who ranks high among the new, but draws all his originality from traditional New England roots, say that it was not necessary for a man to quarrel with his father in order to be free, in order to 'take his place.' He must 'find his direction,' find it and stick to it—but that done in youth, he could wait twenty years, if need be, for success. So speaking, in the midst of a reading of his farm poems, Robert Frost, with his timeless profile, his mop of tossed gray hair, his voice with its subtle hint of dialect, conveyed a direct sense of the creative spirit in America. And an ordinary, unilluminated New York audience found itself suddenly sharing his faith and patience, his life that had been lived for immaterial rewards, his most beautiful individual vision and expression of our national genius.

"A vision, an expression utterly unlike Edgar Lee Master's. Yet is one more American than the other? Let us be grateful for a nationality that includes them both."

RAINY EVENING.

Between the sallies of the rain
The thrushes call and call again;
The robins chuckle in content
That has no earthly measurement;
And one song sparrow in a tree
Thrills the leaves with his rhapsody;
And now once more the rain comes down
And smooths the lines in night's dark frown;
Bringing a slumberous cadence in,
Bringing a silver rustling thin,
As if rain were a silken dress
Winds wore to hide their loveliness.

AMERICANISMS.

AMERICAN ENGLISH. By Gilbert M. Tucker. Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

A book marked by vigor and freshness of mind is this, which treats of the alleged degeneration of the English tongue in the United States. The author takes issue with those who are everlastingly mourning over our misuse of the mother tongue, and is able to cite copious quotations to prove his contention that our misuse of language is only about on a par with that of the natives of Great Britain. He shows that even distinguished British writers are guilty of many a slip, grammatical and rhetorical, that no American ever makes.

Among those quoted are Ruskin, Charles Reade, Trollope, George Meredith, Locke, Galsworthy, Arnold Bennett, Anthony Hope, Prof. John Cowper Powys and Buckle.

The author does not dispute the charge that a considerable number of new, and in many cases uncalled-for, words and expressions have been invented and now pass current in the United States, or that the meaning of various others has been gradually warped, to the injury of the language. But this, he finds, has also occurred in England. He contends that it is a case of "Et, tu, Bruta," and should be so treated.

Chapter II discusses ten important treatises devoted to Americanisms, written at different times since the publication of Pickering's "Vocabulary" in 1816. To many readers this chapter will prove the most valuable in the book, for it affords a basis for an extensive and interesting study of the whole question.

In the third chapter exotic Americanisms are traced to their source and shown, paradoxically, to be of foreign origin. The list, with quotations from English authors, includes 1100 words. The following chapter gives a list of some 1900 words that the author has decided to be real Americanisms, a term that he defines as a word or phase that either originated in America and expresses something that the British have always expressed differently if they have mentioned it at all, or else "that would convey to a British ear a different meaning from that which it bears in this country." One might question the use of the word ear in the definition.

A brief chapter on misunderstood Americanism is as enlightening as it is interesting. An excellent bibliography and a very complete index close an admirable book of its kind.

SOUTH SEA LOVERS.

John Claire Minot of the Boston Herald writes a jingled review with apologies to Arthur Guiterman, et al. His subject is "My South Sea Sweetheart," by Beatrice Grimshaw, an adventure and mystery story from the spring list of the Macmillan Company.

Let's chat about Miss Grimshaw's book
In free and easy jingles—
A tale that is romantic stuff
With many thrills and tingles.

The scene is in the southern seas—
For that is much the fashion—
Where there is often lack of clothes,
But never lack of passion.

The heroine spins us the yarn
And tells us how her father
Reared her upon a tropic isle.
And was a hermit, rather.

An aged man named Ivory,
And Luke, his young descendant,
Had likewise sought the little isle;
A marriage was impendent.

Well, that was what the others planned,
The old man and her daddy,
When she was but a little lass
And Luke was but a laddie.

They lived within a wondrous cave,
Much fairer than a palace;
The children played beside the sea
And roamed the hills and valleys.

The lass, she tells it modestly,
Was blessed, or cursed, with beauty;
And Luke, he was a manly lad,
With fine ideas of duty.

One day the father came down ill;
It was a fatal sickness:
The childish pair was wedded then
With unromantic quickness.

The bride was twelve, the groom fourteen—
You think it proved a failure?
At once the groom was hurried off
To school in far Australia.

The bride, when father passed away,
Was likewise sent to college,
Where pious sisters taught her much—
Not too much — worldly knowledge.

Now dashes Harry England in—
A handsome, ruthless rover,
Whose main pursuit is breaking hearts
The whole Pacific over.

The little bride, now growing up
To lovely woman's station,
Sees England once, or maybe twice,
And then, capitulation!

The husband comes! there is a row
Within a single minute;
The bride's aunt and a native queen
Are badly tangled in it.

The action hits a speedy clip
And everything is torrid.
And some there are show noble
hearts,
And some are frankly horrid.

The outcome of the tropic tale?
I'll leave it to your guessing,
And give—though they will never know—
The happy pair my blessing.

SOLDIER POET.

Gilbert Frankau, whose "Seeds of Enchantment" has just been published by Doubleday, Page & Co., is a son of Frank Danby. Educated at Eton, at 21 president of a large firm of tobacco importers, at the outbreak of the war he sacrificed his business, sold out his interests at the loss of $300,000 and was one of the first to become a volunteer.

Several war poems, especially "The Song of the Guns," rank Frankau high among the soldier poets. Poems, novels in verse, short stories, plays, political articles, flow with equal facility from his pen.

FRENCH FORESTRY PRACTICE.

BY G. A. PEARSON,
Silviculturist U. S. Forest Service.

STUDIES IN FRENCH FORESTRY. By Theodore S. Woolsey, Jr. John Wiley & Sons, Inc., New York.

America has much to learn from France in the conservation of natural resources. A great deal was learned about French forestry during the war. Thirty-one thousand American soldiers, mostly experienced woodsmen, were employed in the French forests, getting out lumber, ties, timbers and fuel for use at the front. The impressions which these men carried back home cannot fail to have a wholesome effect upon our national attitude toward our forests.

To present to the American public, as well as to the profession of forestry, a view of the aims, methods and accomplishments of forestry in France, is the object of Col. Woolsey's book. Two chapter were written by Col. William B. Greeley, forester, United States Forest Service, who during the latter part of the war was at the head of the American forestry regiment in France. Under the caption, "Impressions of French Forestry," he states that although forestry is an economic necessity in France, it is to an almost equal degree an expression of the thrift, the conservatism, the love for beauty, and the social inheritance of the French people. In concluding the chapter, he draws this parallel between the forest situation in France and in the United States:

"In France, forestry is comparable in the intensiveness with the growing of field crops. Cuttings are so regulated as to yield an approximately equal crop from year to year. There is no such thing as waste. Tops and branches which will not make lumber, ties or posts are cut up for firewood or converted into charcoal. Even the twigs are gathered for fuel. Stumps and large roots are removed for fuel, or in the case of pine, turpentine is extracted from them. Prompt replacement of felled trees with young ones is a matter of great concern. With proper encouragement, nature will do this. Some species will reproduce only in the shelter of older trees. In such cases, light cuttings are made to stimulate seed production, then a seed bed is prepared, usually by by hand cultivation. The older trees are removed gradually in order to avoid injury to seedlings by sudden exposure, while, at the same time, admitting the proper amount of sunshine. Some species, such as pine, require relatively little shelter; but seed supply, soil preparation and protection against damage by grazing receive careful consideration. Sometimes the entire stand is cut clean and replanted. The enormous expenditure of labor in the care of forests in France seems prohibitive to us; but the French have made forestry pay, and the time is coming when it will pay in this country."

The chapter on control of erosion in the mountains should prove especially interesting to readers in the Southwest. For more than a century France has been endeavoring to check the ravages of floods which devastate her fertile [illegible] early as 1860 a law was [illegible] providing for the [illegible] mountain slopes, and the [illegible] of denudation by [illegible] grazing. Beauty ✢ by Rupert Hughes

THIS new novel by the author of "What's The World Coming To?" and "What Will People Say?" is Mr. Hughes's most ambitious work. Clelia Blakeney is an embodiment of beauty — a perfect young woman of the most modern type. This powerful, dramatic story of the tragic thing that happens to her, and that at the same time immortalizes the influence of her youth and vigor and beauty on the men and women of her set, is the author's epic achievement.

H FORESTRY PRACTICE.

BY G. A. PEARSON
Silviculturist U. S. Forest Service.

devastate her fertile valleys. As early as 1860 a law was enacted providing for the forestation of mountain slopes, and the prevention of denudation by cutting, fire and grazing. For many years laws of this kind were rendered ineffective by opposition from the grazing industry; but finally the policy of placing public welfare ahead of private interests won. During the thirty-two years from 1860 to 1892 16,951 acres of denuded mountain slopes were reforested, while during the sixteen years from 1893 to 1909 an area of 194,236 acres was reclaimed.

The process of reclaiming a mountain slope which is badly eroded is somewhat as follows: Dams of masonry or dry stone are constructed in the main stream bed. Sometimes a dam is placed every two or three hundred feet. Slopes in danger of sliding are held by retaining walls of masonry. Small ravines are held in place by a network of brush (wattles). The upper slopes are first sodded, then as soon as the soil is stable enough, shrubs are planted on the slopes and in the stream beds. After the shrubs are established and have fixed the soil to a certain extent, trees are planted. Often the stream bed must be paved.

Some idea of the importance attached to the control of floods by the French people may be gained from the fact that the total cost of reclaiming watersheds often runs as high as $40 per acre. How much would the California fruit grower be willing to pay if their lands were in danger of being washed away? The French have found that it is cheaper to preserve the natural forests in the mountains than to be forced to resort to expensive corrective measures. In fact, their protective forests usually yield a fair income, some financial return above the costs of development and administration. Let us profit from the experience of France, and stop the devastation of our forests.

INSIGNIA AND ITS ORIGIN. ORDERS, DECORATIONS AND INSIGNIA, MILITARY AND CIVIL, WITH THE HISTORY AND ROMANCE OF THEIR ORIGIN AND A FULL DESCRIPTION OF EACH. By Robert E. Wyllie. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

A book of much interest to those who desire to know and to be able to recognize insignia of various kinds. A quite unusual set of twenty-one plates in color make the book especially attractive. The author, Col. Wyllie, is on the general staff and is an authority on the subject.

The chapter headings give a somewhat definite idea of the subjects treated. They are: History and development; military orders and decorations; military nomenclature, classification, and method of wearing decorations and medals; American decorations; American service medals and badges; Great Britain; France, Belgium and Monaco; Portugal and Italy; Eastern Europe; Asia; America; decoration and shoulder insignia; insignia of rank and insignia and distinctive colors of arm or service.

E GOSSIP BOUT PRINCE.

Whispers Wales Has Lost Heart Again.

Time Name is Coupled With Young Matron.

Heir Apparent Hard Smitten by Cupid.

BY LADY MARY.

May 30.—Has Cupid at last tried to shoot an arrow into the heart of the Prince of Wales? It is whispered—rather loudly whispered—here in society that he has.

In advance to the apex of the London season, of course there is gossip about the heir to the throne. He is to be seen a great deal whenever he happens to be in town, and it is no secret that he manages to spend at least a couple of nights and days in every week within the capital.

Duty may call him to a tour in the north or a military function or a stone laying expedition in the provinces, but someone invariably sees him either tearing back in his high-powered car without fuss or formality to one of the great railway stations.

BRILLIANT MATRON.

Whispers say that there is a considerable power that is responsible for these constant and often unnecessary returns to York House, St. James's Palace, the Prince's town residence. The identity of the fair lady for whom the heart of His Royal Highness is said to beat so keen is "everybody's secret" in the royal circle, and the latest rumor is that she is the wife of a highly placed official of the King's court. Rumor all the more circulates.

She was not 19 when she married in 1912. She was a beauty among the previous year's debutantes and as such was praised from London to Alexandria. At her home parties are given and she is one of the finest auction bridge players in London. She is "smart" and well dressed and an enthusiastic dancer.

DEBUTANTES DO NOT ATTRACT.

If there is anything in this rumor, certain it is that the Prince has no especial interest in the "buds" of the year. As a matter of fact the jeune fille apparently has no particularly attraction for him and even the ogling of the most famous stage flappers leaves him quite cold.

Coming quite close to our Prince at a reception one evening and I was rather depressed to see him show the marks of worry in his young face. His eyes are as merry as ever, but they are framed by lines that tell of care.

I overheard a very great lady say, criticism of his appearance recently: "Poor boy, he has so much work to do that his own pleasures must be taken at such times as he can steal. How can he be fresh and care-free?"

OVER-WORKED YOUTH.

There is no more hard-worked young man in the British Isles and now that he has had to do a great deal of "bear-leading" in connection with the Crown Prince of Japan, his manifold duties are particularly strenuous.

One of the special "refuge" spots the Prince seeks when he is in London is a quite little place called the Club which is situated in a small street back of Piccadilly. There are only about a hundred members all told, and they are a community who fiercely resent practically any addition to their number.

It is a very exclusive haunt the place of the simplest description. Meals cooked on a grill in full sight of the members or diners by a chef who knows exactly the tastes and fancies of each member.

No guests are allowed to be introduced into this close community and within its doors perfect harmony and good fellowship reign. Rank is not regarded at all, each member is the equal of his fellow. The Prince, it is said, regards this club as a sort of "sanctuary" and some of the best and most friendly with everyone.

AN COMPANY FETED IN NORTH.

Accompanied by his players and staff, Marshal Neilan returned to Los Angeles yesterday from a trip on the steamer Yale to San Francisco, where exteriors for "Bits of Life" in Chinatown. Scenes were taken on board the steamer. Some very unusual results are said to have been obtained because of spells of seasickness from which every member of the troupe, including Mr. Neilan, suffered.

In San Francisco a delegation of exhibitors headed by Frank Costello of the Turner & Dahnken Theaters and Sam Edwards of Associated First National Exhibitors greeted the company. An elaborate dinner was given in their honor at the St. Francis Saturday night.

"Bits of Life," the current Neilan production, will be finished this week at the Goldwyn studio in Culver City. Work on the next picture will be started immediately.

As an outcome of timely price reductions Bullock's announces a remarkable opportunity to save on seasonable White Silks with

40-in. White Crepe Meteor Prominent at $2.95

The June Underwear

Last Value Monday—Tomorrow

200 New Windsor Crepe Gowns on Sale Monday at $1.50 Each

—They will bear your most stringent comparisons, because Bullock's has subjected them to a rigid test of Quality and Value to be sure that they are worthy the distinction of leading this last Monday of selling in Bullock's June Underwear Exploitation. Just as Bullock's has been strict in the test of Value and Quality and Beauty of the many other Silk and Muslin Undergarments which have emphasized so strongly Bullock Sincerity in making the June Underwear more attractive—more Valueful—more interpretative of Bullock Purpose and Friendship.

—And so it is wonderful that 200 New Windsor Crepe Gowns will actually be offered Monday at the little price of $1.50—all flesh color with butterfly and flowered designs in blue—square neck with short kimono sleeves—sizes 15, 16 and 17.

A small lot of Muslin Gowns will be introduced with an element of economy at $1.50 each—slipover—short sleeves—plainly tailored—all sizes.

500 Women's Crepe de Chine Gowns at $5.95

—with a war tax of 10c—will emphasize the unusual value both of themselves and of the many other lovely Crepe de Chine Gowns out Monday—some of them as low priced as $3.95—Are you sure that all of your Silk Underwear needs are satisfied? You should certainly not miss the opportunity to save which is so attractive in Bullock's June Underwear—just a few more days remaining—are so expressive of unusual value that they should lead you to expect just as unusual value in the Envelope Chemise at $2.45 and $3.95 and higher prices, upon which Bullock's has spent so much attention to make them different and unusual.

200 Crepe de Chine Envelope Chemise at $2.95

—But there is so much to tell that the half cannot be mentioned. The high Value of the Silk Petticoats at $3.95 and $4.95 should not be ignored—nor that of the Silk Bloomers at $2.95 and other prices. Just so should the Silk Camisoles as low as $1.00 be considered.

—And then there is so much of interest to those women who are considering economy in Muslin Underwear—Muslin Gowns at $1.00—Muslin Envelope Chemise at $1.00—Indian Head Petticoats at $1.45—Muslin Corset Covers at $1.00—Step-in Batiste Bloomers at 75c—and dozens and dozens of other fine garments at other prices—each concerned with economy in a strictly attractive Bullock Fashion-Monday—the last Monday of Bullock's June Underwear—at Bullock's Fourth Floor.

Free Explanatory Lecture

TOMORROW, MONDAY, AT 2:30 P. M.
Dressmaking School Room, Second Floor, Bullock's Seventh Street Building
by

MADAME COATES

Founder and Director of the School of Dressmaking and Millinery.

The work and objects of the School, which opens Wednesday, will be explained in detail in this lecture. Every woman interested in the subject is cordially invited to hear this final open lecture, Without Charge.

Class A (Beginning Wednesday, June 29, at 2:30 p.m.) Includes a complete course of twelve lessons in Sewing and Dressmaking. Fee $5.00.

Class B (Beginning Thursday, June 30, at 2:30 p.m.) Includes a complete course of twelve lessons in Designing, Analytical Dressmaking and Tailoring. Fee $5.00.

Class C (Beginning Thursday, June 30, at 9:30 a.m.) Includes a complete course of twelve lessons in Millinery and Flower and Bow Making. Fee $5.

During these explanatory lectures Madame Coates will exhibit a large number of colored plates which will be used by her pupils for special study of lines, colors, silhouettes, trimmings and general effects.

She will explain how her pupils are taught to make models in crinoline or muslin or some inexpensive materials before cutting into the material out of which the garment is to be made.

Enrollments for the school will be received tomorrow, at the Exchange Desk, Bullock's Second Floor.

The People and Their Daily Troubles

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

The Ideal Woman.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

A young girl, who has been assigned "The Ideal Woman" as the subject for her graduating essay, asks me if I will give her a close-up of this paragon.

Of course, there is no such animal as an ideal woman. Even the most seraphic of the angel sex are far away from perfection. They have faults, and blemishes and defects. They have amazing weaknesses, and curious ways, and strange peculiarities, which not only enable us to love them, but to endure them, for nobody could possibly live with an ideal woman. Even the extra good ones are hard to stand.

Still, the notion of an imaginary super-woman is an alluring one, and intrigues the fancy, and here is the way that I would paint the picture of my ideal woman:

She should be beautiful. Not with the surface prettiness of youth, that is a matter of a peaches-and-cream complexion, and glistening hair and teeth, and a willowy figure, all of which are bound to go into the discard in a few years' time. I would give her these in some measure, but I would add to them the beauty that comes from kindliness, and intelligence, and that time only intensifies. Some women are better looking at sixty than they were at sixteen, and that is the sort of ever-wear beauty with which I should endow my ideal woman.

I should further make her easy on the eyes by clothing her in lovely and appropriate garments. There is no virtue in frampiness, nor is there any merit in skimping on hair pins. It is everybody's duty to their fellow-creatures to create in themselves, and about them, as much beauty as they can.

The prettiest woman has her looks enhanced by pretty frocks. The homeliest woman can camouflage her defects and produce the illusion of beauty with a few yards of chiffon, and she commits a public offense when she doesn't do it. No woman need be as ugly as God made her in these days, and if she sits down in Mother Hubbard wrappers and boudoir caps, and accepts her fate without a struggle, she isn't the sort of a woman she should be.

My ideal should have plenty of brains, both plain and fancy style. She should be well educated, well read, with a mind stored with the wisdom of the ages, but she should know so much that it would make her humble, and she shouldn't feel the necessity of flaunting her attainments in everybody's face. Still less should she pose as an oracle.

In a word, she should be bookish without being a book worm; learned without pedantry; capable of holding her own in an argument without always being willing to start one.

And with intellectuality she should have good, hard, common sense. Her feet should be planted solidly on the ground. Her reading should include the cook book as much as it does Ibsen. She should show as much interest in running a home as she does in the Einstein theory, and be as capable of grappling with the butcher's bills as with solving a problem of higher mathematics. The ideal woman must have two sides to her brain, each equally well developed.

The ideal woman must be competent and efficient. No baby dolls, no clinging vines for me. My ideal woman must turn out a good job at whatever task to which she sets her hand. If she goes into business, she must work with her eye on the topmost rung of the ladder instead of on the time clock. She must put ambition, enthusiasm, loyalty, ability into her labor, so that her employer arises and blesses her name, and brags about her in the market place.

If she marries, she gives every bit of intelligence in her, every drop of energy into being a good wife and mother. She doesn't make a family door mat of herself with "welcome" on it for her husband and children to wipe their feet upon. She rules her household wisely. Here is the iron hand in the velvet glove, that retains the wayward, and holds up the weak, and that pushes and pulls the family into making the best of themselves. It takes a woman whose head and heart are equally balanced to make a good wife and mother.

My ideal woman would have a large sense of humor. That would enable her to laugh when things went wrong, instead of crying over them. That would give her a philosophy that would enable her to make merry over the little troubles of life, instead of whining about them. That would insure her being cheerful and good-natured, and making a bright, and sunshiny home.

My ideal woman would have sympathy and understanding. She would be no hard judge who took a little two-inch rule, and measured the world by it and found it wanting because it did not come up to her little narrow standard. She would know things by the grace of God, without being told. She would understand temptations she had never known and so enabled to envelop all the weak and erring in the mantle of her pity.

My ideal woman would be kind and generous, and given to hospitality, a good listener and a good talker, a woman who combined sweetness and strength, who could cry over a hurt puppy, and walk dry-eyed over the burning plowshares of her own sorrows, and sufferings.

An impossible idea, you say, yet I know several women who come very near to realizing it.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Packers Not to Blame.

PASADENA, June 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] It is refreshing indeed to observe the stand that Harry Ellington Brook takes in regard to vegetarianism. On the other hand, it is distressing to observe that certain of my fellow-believers desire to have legislation passed forbidding the slaughter of animals. The slaughter will cease when patronage is withdrawn. Every vegetarian who wears leather shoes contributes just that much towards the packing industry. I have worn canvas shoes for years and thus help California's cotton industry in place of causing men to labor amidst the blood and corruption of a packing-house. In order that my pores may not inhale poison dye stuffs I am at present starting to use white duck clothing. It is not Swift, Cudahy or any other packer's name who runs the packing. It is the people who use the output. The proprietors are merely our servants and I am sure they will be as faithful in the manufacture of healthy clothing as in the business they are now in.

Every time a life goes out a certain amount of animal electricity is released and this causes atmospheric disturbances. That is what caused the deluge of rain when the World War commenced. Nature accustoms itself to unusual conditions. That is why there was no deluge of rain after the war got started. The recent rains were caused by conditions again getting down to normal.

CLARENCE EMERY.

Corrects Us.

PASADENA, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The department of "Questions Answered" of your paper is interesting and often valuable, and the information given is uniformly trustworthy; but pardon me in a slight correction of your reply to the question in today's issue in regard to "The Didache." The answer that you give is a good one except as to the date, which appears to be slightly misleading.

You say that "It was written about 1056 A.D." This is entirely true of the manuscript which was found by Briennios in 1875; but if you will refer to pages iv, last two lines, and v, of Scribner's edition of 1884, it will be found to be pretty well proven that the "Didache" itself is a document of the second century, and quite likely of the early part of the second century.

If you would care to notice this difference, in some future issue, it might be of considerable interest to so many of your readers as are students of the early sources of manuscripts, or information concerning them.

Again expressing appreciation of your paper, and of the department of "Questions Answered," I remain.

MORRIS PECK.

Puts "Bitters" In It.

HOLLYWOOD, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I have the greatest sympathy for a man that has lost one of the greatest blessings known to man—namely, liberty. In your daily of the twentieth of this month Mr. John P. Goss declared his liberty has been ruthlessly taken away and hence my sympathy. I agree with him and with him I demand a parade! What we want is to show the long hairs that we still live, and love our liberties; think of the good old days when we could step into a corner saloon and quaff the flowing beverage, drink long and well—spend our week's stipend to suit the demands of the innerman, and now the only thing available is to humbly trudge home after a week's labor and deliver the aforesaid stipend to an exulting wife—and she, with malice and aforethought, spends the hard-earned money for grub and shoes for the kids. New York is to have a demonstration against the long hairs who, in a clandestine and an unscrupulous manner, deprived us of the greatest blessing known to man, namely, liberty. If we parade here in Los Angeles and line up our friends on the Fourth of July, unquestionably we would send down the spinal column a cold chill of those who had the temerity to divest us of our rights. Our friends are numerous—we know them, and to a man they can be depended on. Please draw on your imagination and in your mind behold our parade and our friends; look us over and you will see a line of men with determined faces demanding once more a saloon on every corner (and one or two in the middle for convenience.) I wish space would permit and I would name many of the stalwarts; they are bdave, bold, sturdy, strong and reliable. I am for a "parade" now and forever. Let's do her the Fourth.

J. E. SMYTH.

Asks a Hard One.

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the June 21st issue of the Los Angeles Times I read the letter from Polly Burns about "Clever Coppers." I, too, have wondered where they come from.

A few days ago while passing one of the sub postoffices I noticed a mail man come up with a truck. A lady had a car parked directly in front of the postoffice door. The mail man very nicely asked the "fair autoist" if she would kindly move up a little so he could back to the curb and get his mail. This the lady (?) emphatically refused to do. One of our "clever coppers" was appealed to and he very gruffly ordered the mail man to "mind his own business." The mail man carried out some thirty or forty bags of mail and it appeared to me that the mail man might be in the right. Not being an autoist I was not versed in the traffic laws, but out of idle curiosity I took the trouble to find out and discovered that the "clever copper" should have cleared the space as requested by the mail man. The "clever copper" refused to do his duty even after his attention was called to same.

I am forced to ask: "Why is a clever copper?"

S. R. THOMAS.

Is It Humor?

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I saw a brand new placard on a street car this morning. Either it was from a supply preserved since auld lang syne, or newly printed. Why say corporations have no souls, when they keep fresh a chivalrous sentiment years after its practice has ceased? On second thought, this placard may be humor. It may mean that one should not stand anywhere on a street car except upon the seats. It reads:

"Passengers are requested not to stand on front platforms, or lean against gates or front of car when there are vacant seats, or spaces in aisles in rear of motorman or on rear platform, as it is unsafe, obscures the view and is UNPLEASANT for other passengers."

SUMMER OPERAS.

"Fortune Teller," "Dorothy" and "Firefly" at the Mason.

"The Fortune Teller," Victor Herbert's three-act comedy success, would appear to be a wise and clever choice for the opening of the four weeks' summer engagement of comic opera at the Mason by the California Opera Company.

The tuneful work will be sung during the week beginning July 4, and Managing Director William G. Stewart has worked out a genuine stellar cast for the presentation of the Herbert favorite.

The list of leading artists to appear includes Irene Pavloska, soprano; Basil Ruysdael, basso; Roy Atwell, the singing comedian; Laurence Tibbit, baritone; John Westervelt, tenor; Sybil Bacon, Suzanne Keith, sopranos; June Harding, contralto, and a number of other talented young artists in minor or secondary roles.

The opera is of the Hungarian character, with scenes laid in Budapest and on the Danube, and is one of the real outstanding successes of modern light opera composition. As sung a few years back by the Alice Nielson Opera Company it scored brilliantly, both in this country and Europe, and brought its composer magnificent returns.

The book is by Harry B. Smith and tells the story of how a Polish count and amateur musician was foiled in his endeavors to marry a young heiress, one of his pupils.

The opera calls for rich staging and colorful, picturesque costuming of the Hungarian gypsy life.

Mme. Pavloska, in the Herbert composition, is called upon to portray two different characters—Musette, a gypsy fortune teller, and Irma, a pupil in the ballet school of the Grand Opera at Budapest.

Mr. Stewart promises a sumptuous offering of "The Fortune Teller," and will present the opera with entirely new scenic and costuming effects now in preparation. The opera abounds in delightful arias, duets and other concerted numbers and offers the prima donna unusual opportunity for display of both her vocal and dramatic gifts.

"The Fortune Teller," according to announcement, will be followed by Arthur Collier's fascinating comic opera, "Dorothy." Owing to the success and popularity of "The Firefly," this fine work of Rudolf Friml will perhaps be included in the summer engagement at the Mason.

GOOD LINE-UP OF STORIES FOR WALLIE.

On his return from the East, where he has been co-featured with Elsie Ferguson in "Peter Ibbetson," Wallace Reid will make a series of starring pictures. One of the first will be "The Champion," from the play by Thomas Louden and A. E. Thomas. With Grant Mitchell in the leading role, it has been one of New York's comedy hits. Another picture is "Tall Timber," by Dr. J. A. B. Scherer, formerly president of the California Institute of Technology, who left his college work to write scenarios.

Mr. Reid will also be starred in "Rent Free," by the late Charles E. Van Loan, whose short stories appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Officials of the company state that they are also planning for Mr. Reid a story unlike anything that has ever been done in pictures. It will be called "Across the Continent," being a racing story of an entirely new idea.

MAY FLY TO RESORT.

More daring spirits of the cinema colony of Hollywood, Culver City and Universal City are planning to go by airplane to the opening next Thursday night of the Green Mill Gardens, at which Bill Paine and Morris Rauch will specially cater to the screen artists. The proprietors have arranged for an airplane landing field where celluloid stars may park their limousines of the clouds. Cecil B. De Mille and Viola Dana are two well-known flyers who have been invited, while Frank Lawrence, editor-in-chief of Universal City, and his wife, Viola Mallory, expect to make a foursome, taking with them Allen Holubar and Dorothy Phillips, producer and star, respectively, of "Man, Woman, Marriage." The new cafe on the highway to Venice will be open for inspection Tuesday night, but the housewarming festivities will not be held until June 30.

Clara Williams Attends Theater.

Clara Williams (Mrs. Reginald Barker) attended the theater for the first time in nearly a year, when she accompanied her husband to the showing in Los Angeles of his "Snowblind." Mrs. Barker has just recovered from a lingering illness. She viewed the pictured in her boudoir previously, but she desired to experience its effect on an audience.

DANCER AND FILM STARLET.

Baby Andrene Wilson, who has appeared a number of times in the films, recently took part in a dance recital under the direction of Miss Edith Lindsay at the Hollywood Woman's Club. Little Miss Wilson appeared as Cupid in the number called "Cupid's Garden." She has had parts in pictures made by Tom Moore, House Peters, Wanda Hawley and other stars.

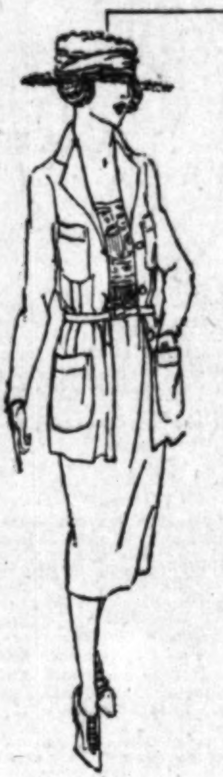
Outdoor Clothes for Women—

"ONE O'CLOCK SATURDAYS"

Bullock's Annual Sportswear Sale

Will Commence Earlier Than Usual—Monday—Tomorrow

—and continue every shopping day of July. Many who have been waiting for this one sale in this one store, because of the precedent established a year ago of Value and Opportunity, will receive this news with enthusiasm. If you do not know, you should read this announcement thoroughly—you should plan to share Monday—and to watch the papers day by day for more news of interest—you should visualize a Sale Remarkable in its inclusion of good looking, individualized Clothes for Outdoor Wear—The following special features will go on sale Monday, tomorrow, and continue until quantities are exhausted—



100 Pongee Suits $24.75

—No one who is the least acquainted with Bullock's Sportswear Store could miss the significance in such an announcement as this —it means a very deep reduction and very worthwhile savings to those who share—

—Cool, natural Pongee Suits—ideal for summer Sportswear—three very smart models included—strictly tailored with patch pockets and bound buttonholes. Notched or Tuxedo collars—sizes 14 to 42—

—100 only—of such exceptional value that women who know the high quality and good style of them will not hesitate a moment Monday—at a price almost incredibly low—$24.75—in Bullock's Annual July Sale of Sportswear.

100 Jersey Suits Reduced to $16.75

—Tuxedo, Half Tuxedo and Tailored Belted types—trimmed with that two tone color idea in black, tan, navy and brown. In this group are 50 suits which will be shown for the first time Monday—underpriced at $16.75.

125 Fine Sports Suits Greatly Reduced

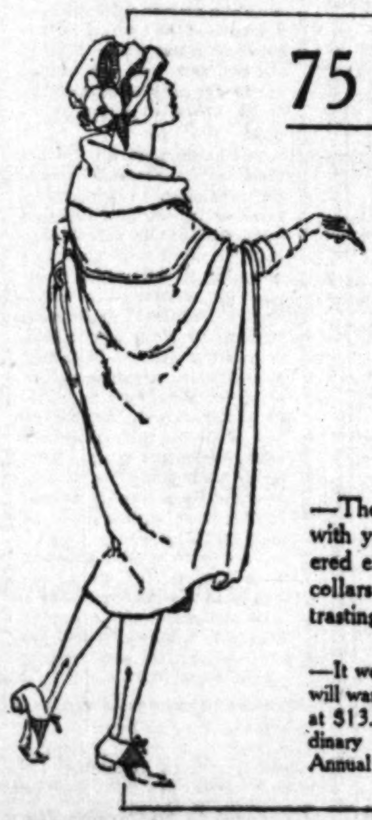
—Three groups of them at $32.50, $39.50 and $59.50. Included are finely tailored Suits of Tweeds, Homespuns, Flannel and Knit Cloths in sports and street shades—you cannot mistake this high quality or help knowing that this is an opportunity not often equalled.

50 English Coats Reduced to $33.75

—Direct Bullock Importations that are worth ever so much more—full length and ¾ length models for Sports and utility wear—just 50 at this greatly lowered price, $33.75.

Sports Shoes, $6.85, $7.85 and $8.65

—Three very specially priced groups comprising more than 600 pairs of strapped Pumps and Oxfords. Plenty of white shoes included. Also gray, fawn, brown buckskin and brown calf. Odd size lines reduced together with some high value special purchases—the Sportswear Shoe Opportunity of the season.



75 Jersey Capes $13.75

—Isn't it wonderful the way this lovely Sportswear has been reduced in price? Do you know how much these Capes were originally? You cannot help but realize it when you see how good looking they are.

—There are two very smart styles—plain with yoke and patch pockets and a gathered effect with scarf attached. Some collars are lined and trimmed with contrasting colors.

—It would be unreasonable to suppose that you will want to miss these so very much underpriced at $13.75—because you will not find them ordinary Jersey Capes—Monday—in Bullock's Annual July Sale of Sportswear.

400 Knit Bathing Suits at $3.95 Each

—These come as the result of a very attractive special purchase and they should receive a great deal of attention, Monday. Why, how can you resist such good looking suits even at a higher price, the one that was intended for them, for instance? Just see how cleverly they are designed and what smart striped effects they are in. They are good fitting, too; and pure wool —really exceptional at $3.95 each.

400 Sports Skirts, $9.75, $14.75 Each

—Two more unusual values—resulting from stern price lowerings for Bullock's Sale of Sportswear. Included will be smart Wool Skirts in stripes and plaids—also Silk Skirts of Crepe de Chine, Baronette Satin, Pongee and Novelty Sports Silks—greatly reduced in two groups at $9.75 and $14.75 each.

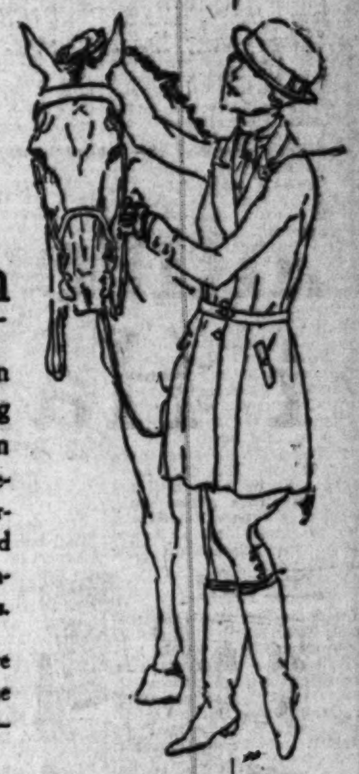
300 Wash Blouses, $3.95, $5.95 Each —Tailored, too. Voile, Linen, Dimity and Batiste. Many very attractive styles are included, all of which formerly commanded a much higher price—hemstitched, lace trimmed, frilled and drawn work models—in a special offering of reduced prices in two important groups at $3.95 and $5.95.

50 Linen Habits at $25.00 each



—A price reduction of more than usual scope. Fine Linen Riding Habits for Children and Women —tailored to be smart and correct, regardless of price—possessive of character that individualizes them and places them in the realm usually commanded by the higher priced garments.

—Both belted and tailored models are included—sizes 8 to 16 years for the children—sizes 18 to 44 for Women—

100 Silk Sports Dresses Much Reduced

—Three groups of them at $29.50, $39.50 and $49.50. Including many street types as well—in Canton Crepe, Crepe de Chine and Pussy Willow. An assemblage of smart styles and colors at three very much lowered prices.

110 Wash Dresses $16.75 and $27.50

—Unusual reductions bring this offering into prominence. The best of the season's styles in Gingham, Voile, Cotton Crepe, Dotted Swiss, Organdy and Linen. A fascinating and almost bewildering array of them—down in price to hitherto untouched levels.

400 Hats, $3.95, $5.95 and $9.75

—You ought to see the lovely Hats that have been embraced in this great repricing—really it is inspiring to think that they will actually be available at such little prices. Garden, Sports and Tailleur types. Straws, Body Hats, Hemp Hats, Cotton Hats, Ribbon Combinations—practically all the trimmings that have this season invaded the realm of Millinery—in three groups of reduced prices.

—Monday, tomorrow, the first day—Bullock's Annual July Sale of Sportswear—continuing through July 30—at Bullock's Sportswear Store —Bullock's 7th St. Bldg.—Entrance on 7th St.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY MYRA NYE.

Woman's City Club.

"The Milk Question" will be the subject for discussion before the Woman's City Club tomorrow, at 1 p.m. in Lincoln Hall, third floor Walker Auditorium. Mrs. S. C. Graham will speak for the people and S. A. W. Carver for the milk interests.

Nonmembers may obtain at the door guest tickets admitting them to the program. A silver flower basket with engraved inscription is now displayed at the club. It will be presented to the member bringing in the largest number of new members before July 25, when the membership campaign closes. The goal set is 1500. This trophy will be presented to the winner at the club picnic, which is being planned for August 1, in Exposition Park.

Monday the club was addressed by Walter R. Hadwen, M.D., of London, on the subject: "Development of a Century in Health and Sanitation in the British Isles."

California Audubon Society.

Following a well-appointed luncheon in the Rose Room, Chapman Building, Wednesday the annual meeting of the California Audubon Society was held Wednesday when election of officers was held resulting as follows: President, Wilfred Smith, Pasadena; first vice-president, Mrs. Harriett Williams Myers, Los Angeles; second vice-president, Otto Zahn; third vice-president, Dr. Frederick W. D. Evelyn, San Francisco; secretary, Miss Helen S. Pratt, Eagle Rock; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph B. Anthony, Los Angeles.

Miss Pratt has served two years as chairman of birds and wild life in the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs and has been on the board of the Audubon Society of Los Angeles for six years.

Mrs. Myers resigned the secretaryship after twelve years continuous service in the cause of conservation of bird ad wild life.

Brief talks were given by representatives from allied organizations, including Miss Belle Smith of the Wild Flower Club, Southwest Museum; Roland Ross, native study department of public schools, and Mrs. F. T. Bicknell, president of the Los Angeles Audubon Society. A letter was read from Glen Buck of Chicago, one of the pall-bearers at the funeral of John Burroughs. The letter retold the last words and hours of the great naturalist.

There were reports given by the retiring secretary, a review of conservation and all activities for the year, which will be published for students of the various departments of the society.

Business Woman's Civic Club.

The Echo Park Clubhouse will be the new place of meeting for the Business Woman's Civic Club tomorrow evening, when members will assemble there at 7:30 for the closing session of the year. Nonmembers including all business women and friends of the club are cordially invited to attend this meeting. The program will include the reports of the outgoing commissioners, the address of June Pelham, the retiring president, and the installation of new officers.

During the social hour there will be music and refreshments.

Philanthropy and Civics Club.

"Husbands' Night" is the next noteworthy event in the calendar of the Philanthropy and Civics Club. Mere men will be guests of honor at the evening entertainment, Thursday at 8 p.m., in the Elks' lodge room. With pretty ceremony, more formal than usual in club circles, the newly elected officers will be installed and the clever satire entitled, "The Bewildered President" will be played by members of the club. The double octet trained by George B. Gookins will sing. The president of the club, Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, has written both the play and the installation lines.

At the last meeting Orra E. Monnette, president of the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank, addressed the club on "Human Relationships." So interesting did it prove to be that members of other organizations immediately asked Mr. Monnette to appear before their organizations. In turn the speaker became interested in the philanthropy work of the club and donated $50 in the name of the bank to this fund.

At next Tuesday's meeting there will be no program. The usual sewing sessions will be held and the birthdays of members whose anniversaries occur in June will celebrate about the luncheon table. Toasts and gifts to the scholarship fund will mark the hour.

Pomona Ebell.

New members of the executive board of Pomona Ebell Club are as follows: President, Mrs. W. A. McCormack; first vice-president, Mrs. D. B. Hendrick; second vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Stone; recording secretary, Mrs. Ralph Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Bruce Rice; parliamentarian, Mrs. Holmes Brown; curator, Mrs. Floyd Owens.

Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club.

Mrs. D. G. Stephens, president emeritus of the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club, will preside tomorrow at the final meeting for the year of the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club, to be held at 2:30 p.m. Two-minute reports will be made by chairmen and section leaders, followed by the installation of the newly elected officers.

The social program, in charge of Mrs. C. M. Waters, hospitality chairman, will include several novelties, musical numbers by Miss Enona Hopkins, harpist, and refreshments. This is a "members only" afternoon.

Verse Writers' Club.

At the home of the president, Miss Grace Dennen, the Girls' Collegiate School at Adams and Hoover streets, the last meeting of the Verse Writers' Club, will be held Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. The critic and guest of honor for the evening will be Dr. Richard Burton.

Woman's Club, U.S.C.

For the benefit of the new auditorium of the University of Southern California, the Woman's Club, U.S.C., is planning to present during the summer, a series of entertainments, the first one of which will be given the 28th inst., when Olga Steeb, the pianist, will appear in concert. The Zoellner quartet will be presented July 12, while Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer-pianist, and Mme. Ruzena Sprotte, dramatic soprano, are scheduled for July 26.

At the last meeting of the club at the university, the newly elected officers were installed as follows: President, Mrs. Sue Reynolds; first vice-president, Mrs. Emory Bogardus; second vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Rainwater; third vice-president, Mrs. Newton Hogan; fourth vice-president, Mrs. C. V. Gilliland; fifth vice-president, Mrs. Will A. Betts; recording secretary, Mrs. Will S. Leatherby; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. C. Life; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Montgomery; chaplain, Mrs. J. V. VanCleve; federation secretary, Mrs. H. W. Brodbeck. Honorary members of the board who assist the club in promoting the interests of the colleges are: Mrs. George F. Bovard; Mrs. A. E. Pomeroy; Mrs. E. S. Chase, Mrs. W. W. Widney, Mrs. A. J. Wallace, Mrs. A. C. Shafer, Mrs. Newton Hogan, Mrs. George Murdock, Mrs. W. M. Bowen, Mrs. Frank Plumley, Mrs. Byron Wilson and Mrs. S. W. Crabill.

Culver City Woman's Club.

At the home of the president, Mrs. V. R. Day, Monday, the Culver City Woman's Club held its final board meeting of the year. The following chairmen were named: Members, Mrs. Lawrence Wilson; program, Mrs. Robert Wankowski; social, Mrs. Milton Gardner; house, Mrs. S. E. Manatt; printing, Mrs. William Teal; auditing, Mrs. Claude Edington, and press, Mrs. Paul H. MacKeeby.

Three new departments are to be initiated during the summer: Civics and philanthropy, Mrs. Laura McNeir Loud, chairman; drama, Mrs. Fred Ritter, and music, Mrs. Della Williams.

Legion Women.

At Foresters' Hall on Flower street, Tuesday at 2 p.m., the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion, Post. No. 8, will meet.

Club Personals.

Frieda Peycke, a member of several of the leading women's clubs in Los Angeles and well known for her original entertainments and pianologues, has been studying for the past six months in New York City with Nelson Illingworth, dramatic interpreter. While in the East Miss Peycke has had offers from Harold Flammer, the critic, for five of her new musical readings.

Mrs. Frederick Betts, curator of the art and travel section of Los Angeles Ebell, entertained Friday at her home in honor of Mrs. W. B. Scarborough, chairman of programs for the past season.

Mrs. Charles Bowen Van Vorst of the Ebell Club will entertain at the Beverly Hills Tea House with a musical tea Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. H. J. Walker of the Los Angeles Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution entertained the members of the State memorial committee at luncheon Monday, when her guests were: Mrs. Lyman B. Stookey, State vice-regent; Mrs. M. M. Maybury, State reciprocity chairman; Mrs. Silas H. Enyeart, regent of Cabrillo chapter; Mrs. William W. Stilson, past State regent, and Mrs. William P. Nye, State historian.

In honor of Zella Maude Hall, fiancee of Franklin G. Huling, pastor of the Hoover-street Baptist Church, the Ladies' Auxiliary Society entertained Tuesday afternoon with a linen shower at the home of Mrs. H. L. Shipman of Twenty-fourth street. The halls and living-rooms were decorated in pink rosebuds, pink and white carnations mingled with asparagus plumosis and many wedding bells in honor of the prospective bride.

Mrs. W. A. Fitzgerald of San Francisco, the newly elected president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, spent the past week in Los Angeles. At her own request no honors were paid her as a club official. Wednesday, however, Mrs. Louis Schirm entertained quietly in her honor with a luncheon at the Athletic Club. Among the guests were Mrs. John C. Urquhart, president of the Los Angeles District Federation, and Mrs. Sidney Thomas Exley, State vice-president-at-large. Mrs. Fitzgerald was on her way home from the regional conference of women's clubs held in Salt Lake City two weeks ago.

Mrs. John C. Urquhart, president of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, left Friday for San Francisco where she will attend the first board meeting of the newly elected officers of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, Thursday.

FEATURED IN CLUB PROGRAM.

Louise Benjamin.

Miss Helen Hammond

Mrs. Scott Allen

Miss Helen Van Vorst.

Soloists and Others.

Miss Van Vorst read "The Happy Prince" at the Ebell Junior Auxiliary's luncheon, where Miss Hammond was the soloist, with Mrs. Allen as her accompanist. Miss Benjamin also appeared on the program in piano numbers.

DR. BURTON PRAISES LOCAL DRAMA CLUB.

Dr. Richard Burton, speaking on Wednesday before the Drama League in the gardens at the home of Mrs. John J. Mitchell, 125 Vermont avenue, called attention to the fact that the Los Angeles center had happily avoided the "stained-glass, solitary attitude of the moon-struck groups "in certain other cities. Instead of ultra-aestheticism the Drama League in this city has chosen to make a vital contribution to good citizenship in service of the best kind, Dr. Burton said. He told of the encouraging outlook of the Drama League of America, that has weathered the storm through the hard years of the war when it seemed that it could not go on, but is now in a position that need occasion no worry. He referred to conditions in New York with some feeling, and said some of the best players, great artists, are idle half the time, because of the ignorant people who are in control of the moneyed theaters. Yet, he found at least thirty plays out of the fifty seen in New York City during the season, as very much worth while.

The idea of a repertory theater, advanced by Harl McEnroy, received Dr. Burton's hearty indorsement. Mr. McEnroy had previously told of tentative plans for such a theater, stating that rehearsals are to be arranged for a performance in September or October. In conclusion Dr. Burton spoke with enthusiasm of the "Pilgrimage Play." Mrs. W. W. Burton presided over the business meeting that preceded the program. Richard Ingalese gave interesting reports of the play-reading and play-writing sections. Mrs. William Williamson, the secretary, told of the purpose to be represented in the business pages of drama, the national organ of the league. Miss Alden gave interesting details of work with the Children's Theater.

Officers were elected as follows: Mrs. W. W. Burton, president; Miss Lucille Evans, secretary; Mrs. John J. Mitchell, treasurer; Miss Evaline Dowling and Dr. Allison Gaw, vice-presidents. Directors, Samuel Storrow, Elmer A. Ellsworth, Mrs. Herbert Peery, Mrs. David Forbes, Mrs. Charles B. Penman, Dr. Andrew S. Lobingier, Mrs. Bernard Higgins, Mrs. John Stimson and Mrs. William Williamson.

Mr. Woollett of the Community Service, gave a talk of appreciation for the co-operation of the Drama League. Mrs. Burton, in her annual report, that showed several pledges for constructive work, made a year ago, have been carried out. These included a monthly bulletin-callender, and the establishment of an information bureau that is exerting widespread influence.

Gregory Gobeleff, a Russian, played remarkable mandolin selections, that showed the amazing possibilities of that instrument when played by an artist. Mrs. Mitchell, the hostess, gave clever plantation monologues that convulsed her audience. Miss Ella P. True presided at the punch bowl.

It was announced that because of the illness of one of the players, the final affair of the season that was to be given by the Drama League on the 30th inst., at the Ebell Club, has been postponed.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN HEAR PEACE ADVICE.

"Preparedness as the Best Preparation for World-wide Peace" was the subject of Maj. Tully, speaking before the Republican Study Club Friday afternoon. Buron Fitts, State commander of the American Legion, spoke on "Federal Legislation for the ex-Service Men."

Dr. Jessie Russell, third vice-president, presided in the absence of Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, who was at La Jolla. Dr. Russell also told of the debates in the Senate on the Knox and Porter resolutions as she heard them during her visit to Washington.

Enthusiasm was shown over the preparations for the annual luncheon of the club to be given the 30th inst., at the Ambassador, in honor of the president. Gov. and Mrs. Stephens and Mayor-elect and Mrs. Cryer have been invited. Judge Dana Weller of the Superior Court will be one of the speakers and Justice Gavin Craig will speak on "The Opportunities and Possibilities of the Republican Study Club."

Republicans and their friends are invited to this luncheon. Husbands of members will be in attendance. Reservations may be made with Mrs. E. A. Clampitt, Wilshire 2396.

VAN NUYS WOMEN HOLD MEN'S NIGHT.

"Husbands' Night," given by the Woman's Club of Van Nuys Wednesday evening, marked the close of the club year, and scored another triumph for this popular organization. More than 250 representative men and women of Van Nuys enjoyed the banquet, the addresses and the program of entertainment. Mrs. O. B. Hubbell, president of the club, was a charming toastmistress, while speeches describing in a jolly, optimistic manner the past, present and future of the club, were given by Mrs. H. S. Trotter and Mrs. Fred A. Kellogg.

B. R. Holloway, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, spoke on behalf of the husbands. The worth-while program, which followed the banquet, was provided entirely by local artists, and included solos by Mrs. E. H. Hughes and Mr. A. L. Swinton, a duet by Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Charles Lane, and selected readings by Mrs. Opal Scarborough, Miss Lois Buchet and Miss Georgia Limoges. The Women's Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. G. H. Westzstein, gave several attractive selections, while the Van Nuys Orchestra played.

GOVERNOR IS SPEAKER AT MEETING OF CLUB.

Gov. Stephens honored the Monday Afternoon Club of Covina and the retiring president, Mrs. J. L. Matthews, by appearing as the speaker the last day of Mrs. Matthews's presidency. The Governor and Mrs. Stephens were guests for luncheon at the president's home in Navilla Place before the meeting and spent the whole afternoon unhindered by other engagements, with the club speaking on the subject, "Club Women and Legislation."

There is no club in the Los Angeles district that has grown so rapidly during the last two years, as this one, there having been only eighty-four members at the beginning of Mrs. Matthews's term, with 125 added the first year and 124 the last year. The policy of the regime has been to keep the membership intact, undivided by meetings of sections. The result has been that each Monday the pretty clubhouse has been filled, where formerly there was only a scattering attendance, according to Mrs. Matthews.

Some of the speakers, who have brought vital and interesting messages during the last year are: Judge George Monroe of the Superior Court; Mrs. Florence L. Stevens, prominent woman attorney; Mrs. Ella French Aldrich; Prof. W. H. Holland; Mrs. John C. Urquhart, district president; Mrs. C. H. Snyder; Mrs. Robert J. Burdette; Dr. Miriam Van Waters, and I. J. Kanst.

The officers installed Monday are: President, Mrs. C. E. Page; recording secretary, Mrs. Hobart Cushman; financial secretary, Mrs. William Strickler.

A musical program was given by Mrs. Henry Marshall, contralto, who sang "The Sweetest Flower That Grows" (Hawley.) and "Sunset" (Dudley Buck.) and Mrs. Charlotte White, soprano, who sang "An Open Secret" (Woodman) and "Sunshine Love Song" (Grieg.) both accompanied by Mrs. Henry Damerel, and Mrs. David Watson, solo pianist.

Mrs. John Bixby, who has been attending regularly, the meetings in Los Angeles of the State Legislative Council, reported on legislation and Mrs. H. N. Webber, chairman of Americanization, reviewed the activities of her committee, who have inaugurated and had charge of a "Neighborhood House" down in the Mexican settlement near Covina.

To upholster your boudoir chairs and the bench for your dressing table in figured terry cloth, a fabric which combines the velvety surface of chenille with the artistic splashiness of cretonne of the best grade. The predominating color note in the cushions will, of course, match the tone scheme of the room where they are to be used.

Featheriness in all the accessories of costume. The newest sunshades to accompany summer frocks have ribs and edges outlined in ostrich tendrils of pastel tint. The same trimming, in suit shades, is applied to the smartest of handbags. Feather neckpieces, reminiscent of the ostrich boas of twenty years ago, have taken temporary precedence over scarfs of silk, wool and fur. Feather hats are, perhaps, the best of all and their continued vogue during the fall and winter is predicted. Particularly lovely is a broad sailor of rose ostrich worn with a gown of gray canton crepe.

High laced bathing shoes of vivid red in surf satin, designed to accompany a black satin swimming suit, the cape of which is faced in red. A touch of carmine also appears on the black cap.

DISARMAMENT URGED BY WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Specific action of various women's organizations seems to be contagious. Just now virtually every club as it meets, passes a resolution favoring the reduction of armaments. At the last meeting of the Friday Morning Club this was done. This was the outstanding feature at both the district and State conventions. Business women are passing similar resolutions, and now in New York women are organizing in groups with this propaganda as their sole purpose. The movement started in a committee appointed by the League of Women Voters, at the annual convention in Cleveland held recently.

All parts of the country were represented, California by Mrs. Oliver C. Bryant, who was so effective as peace, in the pageant at Yosemite. Miss M. Hauser is the national chairman of the new organization, which, as yet, has no distinctive name, but plans are being made to organize women living in the rural districts and on farms. Such women do not, as a rule, belong to clubs but it is felt by the leaders of this movement, that their assistance in this work is particularly needed and that "strength united is stronger."

Bathing suits are gaily trimmed with yarn flowers.

Going East? Take a California Lucky Bird along—he's a wonder for looks and is only a dollar! You'll find him at that charming little art shop of Phil. S. Bernay's, 315 W. Third. Some very unusual candlesticks are priced at $2 and framed pictures at a 25 per cent discount and the famous Vantine's incense and burners.

If your hair has that "straw-blonde" look from using peroxide, you can have it toned to a more natural gold or drab blonde at this Scientific Hair Parlor. 515 Fay Bldg., Third and Hill.

The "Rose Garden" will be open about Thursday at 812 W. Seventh. Do run in and try their breakfast, lunch or dinner, served a la carte from 6:30 until 11 p.m. Specialties are individual steaks, fish every day—and fresh shrimp and crab salads.

New fall suit coats are finger-tip length.

Dull care is put aside the minute one enters that most charming of quiet retreats—the Elite, where frost-like fountain specials and cooling drinks and ices are served at the tables any time of day from 11:30 in the morning to 11:30 at night, to say nothing of crisp salads, dainty sandwiches and other summer dishes which delight the real epicurean! It's just a step from everywhere to 641 S. Flower.

Linen jumpers are worn in lieu of sweaters for outdoor sports.

Hasten before the fall rush and have your fur wrap remodeled—you can get it done for half, if you take it to the Bogue Fur Shop this week! At 746 S. Hill, Evelyn Myers, formerly of Colburn's, is manager—and they certainly do turn out some nifty creations made out of old ones! Crepe de chine and georgette are cleverly combined with fur scraps to make voguish wraps for summer.

Many lovely tailored suits are made of heavy silks for summer.

"That new car is among the possibilities if dad will only let us sell those old diamonds which none of us care to wear—we would much rather have a car," wailed Marie! She could sell the gems to Hambright—and at the present price of diamonds she could realize enough to buy the car. He pays the top price at 811 Story Bldg.

Girdles and frocks of contrasting shades are attractive.

You'll not see anything just like them anywhere else, those charming girlie's frocks at the Vanity Fair, 631 W. Seventh—there's a tiny wisp of a dress made of cross barred-voile, daintily hand embroidered—a dear little silk "going somewhere" dress—satin suits for tiny lads and other smart togs!

Your pearls strung the "Howes Way" will be safe! Take them to B. D. Howes & Son, fifth floor Brack-Shops, where they specialize in real pearls, platinum mountings and also carry a line of beautiful indestructible pearls.

McCutcheon's famous airy, fairy Swiss organdies in all those wonderful colors now sponsored by the Mode are shown at Robinson's in many beautiful designs and in especially lovely weaves found at this store exclusively—such as Jacquard, the ring and an unusual barred weave. There are plain ones matching these in color which can be used for trimming.

Tiny auto sunshades are made on the same plan as the parasol.

A home with a "vine and fig tree" all your own—hasn't that always been your wish? Now, if you could turn everything you don't really use into money, you know you never wear those diamonds our aunt left you—and Mr. Fergusson will gladly buy them—you could easily buy a place. Why don't you run up to see him at 206 Haas Bldg.?

Making your own hats is a fascinating and thrifty pastime! Learn at the Camillus School, sixth floor, Brack-Shops. 50 hours $10. Day and evening classes.

Dinners only 75 cents on week days—wonderful home-cooked dinners they are, too—and on Sunday one dollar—at the Rampart Inn, 614 S. Rampart. There are fish dinners and meat dinners—choice of meats—and chicken dinners—all delightfully satisfying. Call Wilshire 4638.

Waxed flowers and fruits are used for trimming summer hats.

A gay and charming crowd may always be found at the Assembly Tea Rooms, both in Hollywood and at the Brack-Shops, for dinner—especially on Sunday evenings. Call 578443 for reservations at 7016 Hollywood Blvd., and 13857 for Brack Shops Assembly.

The vogue for trimming in angora wool still continues.

Say, merchants—for "Elks' Week" —they are making some perfectly stunning table and window decorations at the Allen Water Gardens, 1020 N. Vermont. They are in Elks' colors, and are indeed unusual. Call Wilshire 991—or take South Hollywood car.

When you go a-shopping with hubby next time, or when you wish to surprise him, at Mullen & Bluett's see that new idea in sports shirts—it's made up in the style of an English polo shirt, with a comfortable, yet becomingly low collar and when worn with the special necktie which is designed for it—will be the niftiest thing on the links, tennis court or any place in the great out of doors! My, but you will be astonished to see what a wonderfully large stock of men's shirts they carry—those decidedly smart white crepe de chine shirts are found in many figured and plain patterns—and they are all so reasonably priced! And don't forget the pajama sets, the middie style, made of zephyr, and those with the new English collars, some in crepe, soissette in wonderful colors and white ones in "Fruit of the Loom"—and the prices will give you and hubby, too, a big surprise—they are so reasonable! Don't forget Broadway at Sixth!

The "U" neck is the very newest thing.

A permanent wave is such a joy at the beach—water doesn't hurt it—makes it lovelier. Emma Atkin, expert Nestle operator, specializes in waving bobbed hair—and white hair and dresses the hair after the wave. 822 W. Seventh. Phone Main 1203. She makes eight curls for $5.

Many and varied are the sashes to harmonize with miladi's gowns.

Beeman & Hendee's Polly Primrose frocks for little girls and growing lassies have a style with a difference. They are being created in fetching new and original designs—made to order is their specialty, at 948 S. Hill.

Many of the smart summer capes are of silk and quilted Georgette.

Lovely sport silks for skirts are shown at $3.95 a yard at that tiny silk shop in Brack-Shops lobby. Lingerie silk, such as Cheney's crepe jersey, is priced at $2.95—there are lining silks and dress silks all reasonably priced and of best quality.

Yes, very long sleeves and ankle length will be worn this fall by some folks!

Lovely "Coro" indestructible pearl beads are on sale at Cowen & Son's, 724 S. Hill, at $2.50 a strand, lengths, 15 in., 18 and 20 in.; guaranteed for 20 years! There's a special sale on silk hose and silk lingerie at 25 per cent reduction. A new shipment of pure silk Japanese kimonos at $12.50, value $25; and beautiful Jap crepe kimonos at $2.85 and $3.75.

Fashion still clings to the gayly-colored handkerchief.

Thursday is the last day of that remarkable "Final Close-Out Sale" of togs for tiny tots and infants at the Baby Specialty Shop, 734 S. Hill. Infants' white rubber pants, Hickory Brand, 39c; 4-4 rubber sheeting 75c; bathrobes of heavy quality for children, 2 to 6 years, at $1.25; women's silk and fiber hose in tan, gray and white, 75c, and wonderful reductions in layettes.

Felts hats are very good for sports wear.

Say, girls, bathing suits in nifty new styles on sale at Cowen & Son's for $4.75; suits for the whole family, too, men's at $3.75 and children's $2.25, wonderful values at 724 S. Hill. Clever tie-back sweaters in pure fiber silk at $5.75; smart slip-over models in silk at $12.25; pure thread silk sweaters, valued at $45, will sell at $25 this week. Lovely fiber tuxedo sweaters are marked $8.50; wool blouse models with vestees of lace, $2.45; "tie-ons" of wool at $5.45, in many colors, and clever tuxedos at $8.75. You'll like those knitted sport capes at $9.75 and $13.95; also children's capes at $6.75.

The chemise dress is the most popular of all the styles.

There's really nothing smarter than an ostrich feather neck piece—choker or boa. Vallely & Vatcher are creating some in exclusive styles which are as chic as can be. For evening they are lovely in pastel shades; all can be made out of old ostrich plumes at 640 Broadway, 6th floor, opposite Bullock's.

For absolutely bewitching lingerie, needlework unsurpassed and worn by women of discrimination call Frances Klippel, South 3793-W.

Summer hats for summer wear are found for all occasions at greatly reduced prices at Randall & Brown's, 804 W. Eighth at Flower. They also make over.

Individual instruction at Modern Business College—just like a piano lesson—it's really individual! 253 Broadway.

Vests to be worn with tailored suits may be of heavy satin or plaited organdie.

At Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop they are waving specialists and do nothing else. They advise making appointments a few days ahead if possible and avoid disappointments. Both Nestle and Frederics systems used. This is the oldest wave shop on the Coast and the largest west of New York. Entire front fourth floor Brack-Shops, 7th and Grand. Phone 62563.

Parasols are often made of lace to match the gown.

THE NEW.

bright metal, necessities which some years ago aviated into the luxury class, back within the pocket-reach of the householder of modest means.

The extra frock of organdie or organdie and ginghams, which fills in for innumerable occasions of midsummer afternoon wear. Charming frocks spelling summer in every diaphanous fold, are buyable at the present moment at half the prices ticketed on them at the beginning of the season.

Motor-trip impedimenta which especially includes the delightful tent to be pitched beside any country road where one parks for the night. A tent of the type which is "raised" with the ease of an umbrella, and folded next morning, with equal simplicity. Between the canvas walls of this convenient shelter, though winds and fog prevail without, one is as snug as the traditional bug in a rug.

The Jump in Jumpers.

When one goes to the root of the matter, which, in this case, is to the arm hole, the present violent epidemic in jumper styles may be attributable to the steady shrinkage in sleeves in progress during the past twelve-month. As arm coverings, in one-piece frocks, and the dressier clothes, have become even more negligible, the vogue for the sleeveless garment in athletic apparel of every type has waxed great until it has come to the pass where no outdoor wardrobe of femmeor fille is complete without at least one jacket, short or long, and one tunic gown which stops short of sleeves.

While the sleeveless knitted slipon is in the fourth or fifth summer of its colorful existence, no newborn child of the prolific sweater family is lustier at the moment. It may finish just below the waist line or extend half way to the knee. It may be of all-wool or all-silk; of the favored ribbosene weave, of the even heavier chenille, or of the tissue-thin merino worsted. It may be knitted in a solid color or striped and bordered contrastingly; fringed deeply or finished in peplum like ripples.

In all cases it is good, as a foremost dealer in sport apparel for women recognized, when he produced, the other day, as the dernier mot in outdoor toggery, a black slipon of velvety chenille thread, outlined top and bottom, around armholes and on the deep v of the neck line, with a three-inch band of white, and finished with a narrow string girdle of black, striped in white. To accompany this stunning garment was a hand-made blouse of white handkerchief linen, untrimmed except for hemstitching, and a wide skirt of flannel, plaited in alternating stripes of bold black and white.

Dresses, Too, Economize in Sleeves.

The sleeveless one-piece golf dress of knitted wool or homespun came in with the jonquils of January and is still flowering luxuriantly after the flowers of early spring are tales long told. It is quite superfluous to remark, here, that the uses of this practical gown, which brought back in its train a fresh lease of life for the separate blouse of tubable materials, extend to many provinces where clubs and caddies are strangers. It has undergone, too, an expansion in the territory of the cloth of which it is made and, this summer, exclusive shops are showing large armholed frocks, minus sleeves, in gingham, linen and pongee, ranged in the order of their preference, as well as in wool jersey.

One of the latest costumes, designed for wear on the links, is of this last weave. It has a moderately wide skirt of white jersey and a knee-length jacket of Pekin blue, the odd-shaped pocket flaps, as well as collar, cuffs and belt, being of white. With this, is worn a brief brimmed hat of soft white felt, ornamented with a single mammoth gardenia, in jade blue, a color of the flower not known to nature.

If sleeveless golf clothes are good, sleeveless riding togs are even better, in the opinion of the equestrienne style makers, for these autocrats are showing, as examples of the ultimate, riding habits of heavy linen or eponge in ecru and of whipcord and twill, in darker tan, in which the full-skirted coats are guiltless of sleeves. These are supplied by the plain white blouses of dimity or linen, which go along on the ride.

Fashions in Neptune's Domain.

This summer when Aphrodite emerges from the waves onto the sand it is immediately apparent that fashion has been keeping her wits busy of late with the result that there is a maximum of happiness in the effect produced in sea toggery, which salt water cannot wither or shore sunshine stale—in this case translated fade.

Whether the sea nymph wears surf satin, crepe de chine or canton crepe—and she usually wears one of the three unless she has adopted the ultra swimming suit of checked gingham, or, unless she scorns anything more frilly than the reliable sheath of wool jersey—she comes out of the water in a state of original perfection as to clothes far removed from the dejected stringiness of a few seasons back and which reflects credit immeasurable on the makers of fabrics today.

In the matter of accessories, the ducky type of girl invariably wears the brightest of caps or kerchiefs with her suit of black or navy. Her stockings are black and often show white clocks or ribs of a heavier silk. Her cape is of ratine, terry cloth or rubberized silk and is likely to be lined in the same bright hue that forms her headgear and this color is repeated in her bag.

Fashion Proclaims as a Fact That:

Suits of striped woolen fabrics are trimmed with wool fringe.

Fruit and flower-trimmed felt hats are having a great vogue.

Silver-edged ribbon flowers add gay color to a georgette blouse.

Suit skirts will be simple, but often have an embroidered border.

The narrow, plain white collar is used with a deep or oval neckline.

The suit-jacket is generally loose and features a narrow string belt.

The long waistline silhouette is favored for children's fall dresses.

Net hairbands have crested work that gives the effect of rhinestones.

A tailored and buttoned overblouse suggests a Russian influence.

A basque blouse of sand georgette has wheel embroidery of georgette.

Large pendants of hand-painted crystals are worn on fine black cords.

The boudoir cape wrap of chiffon and lace is worn over a plain underslip.

A white knitted silk cape is edged with a scroll design in navy-brushed wool.

What Does a Clearance Mean Anyway?

FIRST of all it is a timely sale of all surplus merchandise of the present season to make room for that of the next.

It provides capital to buy styles for the next season. That's why it is held so early and before the present season is over.

Having a surplus doesn't mean poor merchandising, but keeping it would. We have to maintain a large stock to supply the many needs of our customers.

The most rapid way to effect a clearance is to reduce prices. And this we have done without stint. Thus you and we gain equally. You save money on merchandise you want. We get back the money we have tied up which enables us to have new, saleable merchandise ready for the next season.

—Clothes for wear now
—Clothes for wear all summer
—And plenty for everybody.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 24 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers, will testify to my skill as an expert. Work done at your home by appointment.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

The only known method today of permanently removing superfluous hair is Electrolysis. This process in the hands of reliable and expert operators insures absolute satisfaction. Regardless of whom or what method you have tried, I guarantee to permanently destroy root of hair, leaving no scars. Formerly of Weaver-Jackson. 60080.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Miscellaneous.

SUPERFLUOUS hair, moles, warts, removed by electrolysis, the only process that kills the roots of hair, never to return. Don't spend money uselessly for depilatories or other so-called hair-removing methods, because electrolysis is the only permanent relief from disfiguring growths. My latest multiple-needle machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. Results perfect. Professional expert treatment, $2 per hour per needle. Half-price mornings. Treatment guaranteed. Personal attention. PERSONAL—"A WEAK SPINE."
A deformed, rigid and weak spine is the cause of many internal afflictions, it is manifested by wry neck, unevenly drooped shoulder, protruding scapula (shoulder blade,) stooping and sway back, one high hip seemingly due to a short leg. Even difficulties of the lower limbs, joints and feet are due to such weakness, a drawing pain especially in the lower back is always symptomatic. To strengthen and straighten the spine by repeated, specified curative and corrective movements of an active and passive character is the only reliable way to overcome such conditions. Free advice. WANTED—OIL STOCK SALESMEN.
One of the largest and most prominent loan and investment firms in the city has taken over a legitimate oil company who have already brought in two producing wells (over 300 barrels daily) on their 1000-acre leases and have spent $50,000 of their own money in genuine development work, in addition to the large amount spent in purchasing the leases. We require $25,000 immediately to connect up their wells with pipe line and to install tanks and other equipment to secure big production. 20 per cent dividend on money invested will be absolutely guaranteed by this firm, but we believe it will pay at least 100 per cent annually. There is no gamble or speculation in this proposition. We want several high-grade salesmen with first-class connections to sell shares immediately. This proposition will stand rigid investigation. Every statement can be proven. See us quickly. MR. LAMBERT, room 1220, 458 S. Spring.

FOR SALE—

Bargains in Used

PIANOS AND PLAYERS.

In buying a used Piano or Player, the condition of the instrument is of more importance than the price you pay. Used instruments as ordinarily sold are merely passed on in about the same condition as when traded in by the former owner. The actions and cases of these instruments should be put in condition before re-selling. Only by careful inspection and good shop-work can satisfaction be assured. Every instrument sold by the Birkel Company is put in good playing condition. Many of them can scarcely be told from new. Every one is guaranteed by us. Should you decide to exchange for a new Piano or Player any time within one year, we will credit on this instrument all the money you have paid.

USED UPRIGHT PIANOS FROM $150 TO $565
GRANDS FROM $665, UP.

We always have on hand many excellent used Pianos in both grand and upright makes that have been turned in to us in exchange on Duo-Art Reproducing Pianos or on new grands. This collection embraces all styles and sizes of Pianos in practically any finish you may require and includes the following well-known makes:

Steinway	Brinkerhoff
Weber	LaBargue
Sohmer	Davenport-Treacy
Estey	Krakauer
Kurtzmann	Birkel Co.
[illegible]

PLAYERS FROM $450, UP.
All play 88-note and latest music.

These also embrace practically all styles and finishes. An unusual opportunity to realize a worth-while saving.

Terms arranged to suit — a small payment down.

PIANOS FOR RENT AT REASONABLE RATES.

50 new pianos for rent—Uprights and Grands—If you buy later, all or portion of rent paid will be allowed on purchase of any piano or player you may select from our stock.

FOR SALE—

PIANO BARGAINS
OF REAL MERIT.

Price alone does not constitute a piano bargain. If the instrument is not in perfect condition a low price would not make it a bargain.

Every piano that comes to us in exchange is gone over thoroughly from top to bottom and all worn parts replaced with new. They are rebuilt to give lasting satisfaction, and are GUARANTEED the same as a new piano.

In our used piano department now, many fine makes are represented. Prices on uprights down to $200—prices on used players down to $390.

Pay $10 per month if you like.

AUTO CLUB WILL BUILD NEW HOME

Plan Three-Story Building for West Adams Site.

Structure to be of Attractive Spanish Design.

Will House All Departments of Organization.

Plans have been completed for the new home of the Automobile Club of Southern California, to be erected on the site purchased about a year ago at the southwest corner of Figueroa and Adams streets. The new building, which will afford greatly increased facilities for rendering service to members of the club, will house all of its various departments.

The building will be of Spanish architecture, and will be of class A construction throughout. According to the plan which has been approved, it will be an L-shaped structure, with frontages on both Adams and Figueroa streets. These two wings will form two sides of a large central patio, which will be developed in the Spanish feeling. On the opposite side of this patio from the Figueroa-street entrance will be the garage to house the club's automobiles, and the fourth side will be given over to the long arcade for parking space for the club's clients. The entrance to the central patio will lead through an arcade driveway, which will divide the Figueroa-street frontage into two wings. The Figueroa-street wing will have a frontage of 280 feet, while the Adams-street frontage will be 250 feet.

The main entrance to the building will be on Figueroa street near the corner of Adams, into an octagonal-shaped domed lobby, which will extend through to the third floor. To the left of the main entrance will be the elevators, and to the right will be the main stairway. The first floor will be elevated about four and one-half feet above the street level, furnishing adequate lighting facilities for the basement, which will contain the men's locker and shower rooms. Both wings of the main floor will be devoted to the general offices, finished in banking-room style, without partitions. The women's accommodations, lockers and rest rooms, will be located on the second floor, the greater portion of which will be devoted to general offices and departments, finished somewhat in the style of the main floor

The third floor has been designed for accommodations for club employees and members of the club. This floor will contain a large dining-room, with kitchens, a men's lounge and smoking room, a large assembly room, and the directors' room. The remainder of the floor will be devoted to office rooms, for officials of the club. The second floor of the south unit of the Figueroa-street wing, which will be separated from the main building by the driveway, will be connected with the main structure by means of an arcade extending over the drive.

CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction, with tile roof over concrete slabs. The exterior will be of plaster, with the main entrance executed in cut stone. The interior finish will be of extreme simplicity, but will conform with the architectural design of the exterior.

Sumner Hunt and S. R. Burns are the architects for the building, while Aurele Vermeulen is the landscape architect. The plan of making the building an L-shaped structure around the large patio, conserving some of the fine trees now on the property, was due to Mr. Vermeulen.

Since the foundation of the club in 1900 it has had a steady growth until its membership now exceeds 56,000, making it the largest club of this kind in the country, and, it is believed, the largest of the kind in

DELEGATION READY FOR CONVENTION.

California Fruits, Badges and Booklets to be Given Out at Chicago Meeting.

Filled with the spirit that spells growth, progress and prosperity for the great Southwest, thirty members of the Los Angeles Realty Board will invade Chicago and way stations on the line of the Santa Fe Railroad, armed with rapid-fire guns and publicity ammunition for a campaign of "Greater Southern California, Straight Ahead," and "Southern California All the Year 'Round."

While the primary object of the trip to Chicago of the thirty prominent realtors of Los Angeles is to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to be held in Chicago July 13 to 15, a further object will be to spread the word of Los Angeles as the whitest spot on the commercial map today, and the role this city has assumed as the new industrial giant.

Headquarters for the Los Angeles delegation to the Chicago convention have been secured in the Auditorium Hotel, and Secretary S. Ross Fenner will leave here about the end of June, arriving in Chicago in time to arrange the details of the campaign the Los Angeles realtors are to carry out in the convention city. The Los Angeles delegates will be quartered in the Drake Hotel while in Chicago.

From the Los Angeles headquarters, to be in charge of Secretary Fenner, large quantities of California lemons and oranges, and a punch made from the juice of California fruits, will be dispensed. A beautifully and profusely illustrated booklet telling about Los Angeles industrially and climatically will be given to visitors to the Los Angeles headquarters, and thousands of badges, made in a design that carries the slogan, "Greater Southern California, Straight Ahead," and the California poppy, pendant from this, under the Los Angeles Realty Board's title, will adorn the breasts of delegates from other cities to the convention, and citizens of Chicago.

In order to handle properly the dispensation of the booklets and badges, and the California nectar, Secretary Fenner has been authorized by the governing board of the Realty Board to secure the services of at least six beautiful Chicago girls to assist in the headquarters in the Auditorium Hotel.

The thirty or more delegates to the big convention, who are to leave this city on July 8, over the Santa Fe Line, in two special coaches, will be provided with several thousands of the booklets and other publicity matter concerning Los Angeles, to distribute en route. The Los Angeles delegates will arrive in Chicago one day ahead of the opening of the convention, giving them time to get in close harmony with operations at the headquarters before the real work of the convention begins. The Los Angeles board is pledged to the support of San Francisco in the sister city's effort to secure the 1922 convention.

TO ERECT FINE BUILDING.

Twelve-Story Concrete Structure to Rise in New Financial District.

Construction of a notable addition to the new financial district of the city will be started on July 1, when the two-story structure now adjoining on the north the Realty Board Building at 631 South Spring street, will be razed to make way for the twelve-story, Class A building to be erected on this site by H. H. Ford, president of the Redlands National Bank of Redlands. This property, owned by Mrs. Victoria Trask, was taken under a fifty-year lease by Mr. Ford several months ago, and tentative plans were prepared at that time for a nine-story structure to be erected on the property. The original plans, however, have been completely revised, and the building will be carried to the height limit. This structure, to be one of the most attractive of its kind in the city, will represent a total investment, including the cost of the lease, of more than $1,000,000.

Plans for the Ford Building have been prepared by the firm of Stanton-Reed and Hibbard, contractors and builders, who will have charge of the construction work. The first floor and basement will be 60 by 155 feet, extending to an alley in the rear, but the eleven upper floors will be 60 by 104 feet, leaving a large light court, seventy feet in depth, at the rear of the upper floors. This plan will eliminate the need of any light courts in the center of the building.

The Italian style of architecture has been adopted for the structure, the front of which will be finished in colored stucco and cement with large ornamental pilasters flanking the windows of the two upper stories. According to present plans, the entrance lobby will be flanked on either side by stores, but these plans, it is stated, may be altered. The lobby will be finished in plaster, with a high-vaulted ceiling, decorated in colors.

UPPER FLOORS.

The eleven upper floors will contain a total area of about 66,000 square feet. These floors have been designed for offices for business and financial firms, but the arrangement of the partitioning walls is only tentative, being subject to change to suit the convenience of the tenants.

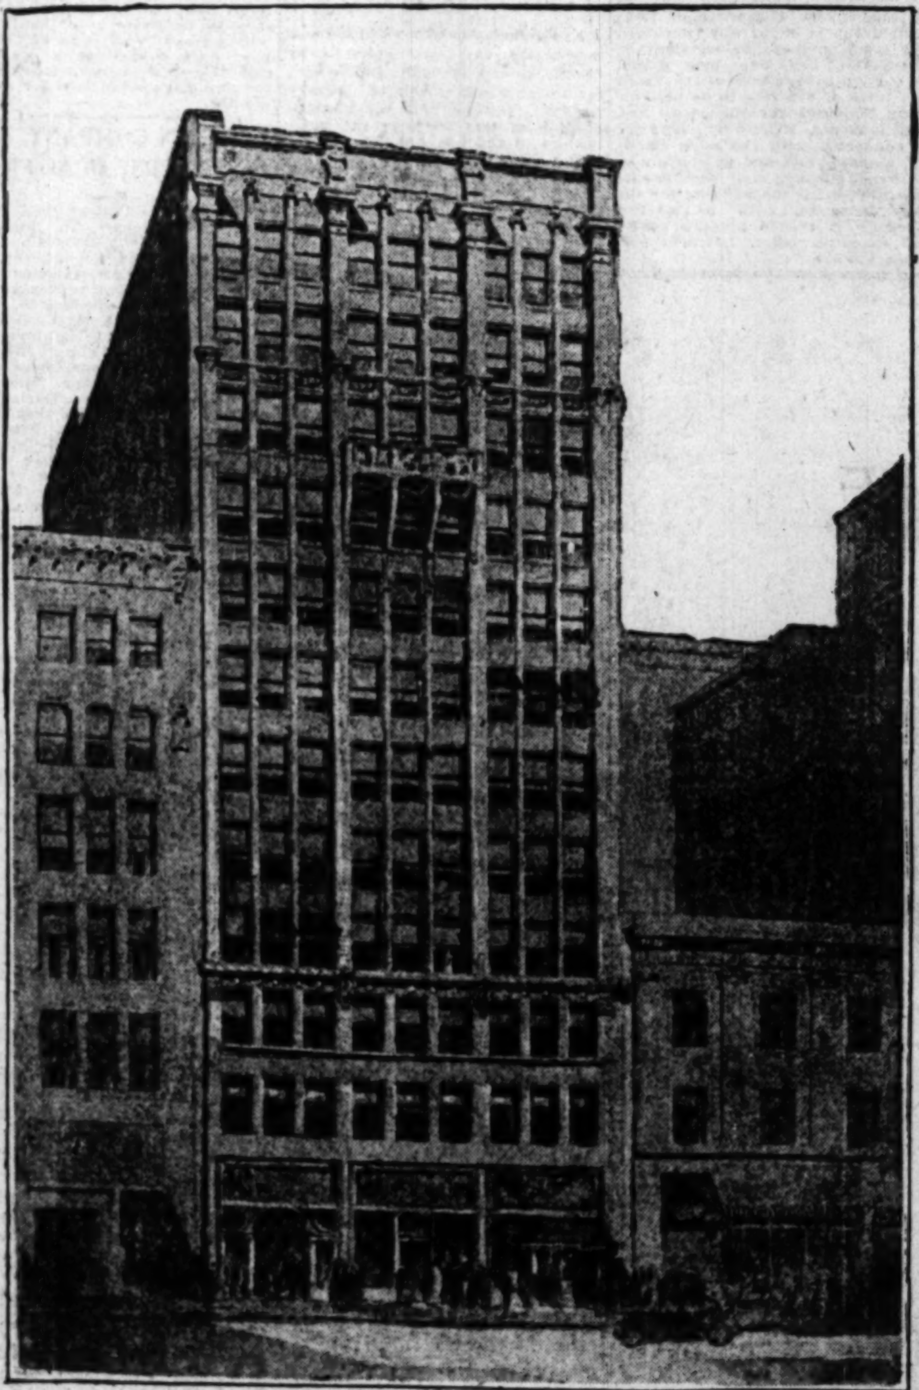
The building will be of reinforced-concrete construction, fireproof, and equipped with the convenience of a modern office building, including a large steam-heating plant. The fast passenger elevators, capable of a speed of 400 feet per minute, will be installed. It is expected to have the building finished and ready for occupation by February of next year.

The ground lease on the property was negotiated by the firm of Metcalf and Ryan, realtors, who have also taken an active interest in the plans for the structure. This firm will act as agents for the building. Bayly Brothers, investment brokers, are acting as fiscal agents for Mr. Ford in the project.

The erection of the building is being made in the nature of an investment by Mr. Ford, who is confident of the growth of the new financial center in the vicinity of Seventh and Spring streets. While it was originally planned to erect a smaller structure on the site, the demand for accommodations by financial and semifinancial firms in this city caused these plans to be revised, and plans for the larger building made.

NEW GLENDALE CHURCH.

Robert H. Orr, architect, has completed plans for a new church at Glendale for the Glendale Christian Church. The building will contain an auditorium to seat about 650 people, Sunday-school classrooms, and a banquet room and kitchen in the basement.



Notable Addition to Financial Center.

Twelve-story structure to be erected on South Spring street, adjoining the Realty Board Building, by H. H. Ford, Redlands banker; Stanton-Reed & Hibbard, designers and builders.

BRICK AND TILE PLANT EXPANDS.

Los Angeles Company Builds for the Future.

Enlarging Facilities and Modernizing Equipment.

Brings Efficiency Up to High Standard.

With the purpose of putting local brick and tile production on a plane that would enable it to compete successfully with the best facilities of the older eastern organizations that still regard the West as a field for their sales efforts, Howard Frost, president of the Los Angeles Brick and Tile Company, recently made a tour of the eastern centers of production of face and enamel brick, hollow and roofing tile and architectural terra cotta, at Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Upon his recent return, work was at once started on a series of improvements in the Los Angeles plant of this company with the definite aim of doubling capacity, increasing efficiency and creating service conditions demanded by the great building program that is breaking all building records in Southern California, at the same time that stagnation marks building construction throughout the rest of the country.

To provide Los Angeles brick, tile and terra cotta for the expected great trans-Pacific and South American demand, through the port of Los Angeles, is a major consideration in the expansion program, already well under way in the Los Angeles plant.

The chief feature of this improvement program is the installation of a series of huge clay storage sheds and modern conveying machinery, work which is now progressing and which, it is expected, will be completed this summer. These sheds, the largest of their type on the Pacific Coast, measure 175 feet long by ninety-five feet wide by fifty feet deep. They will have a clay storage capacity of 1280 tons in each bin, or a total capacity of approximately 11,000 tons. This is equal to 220 cars of clay.

The sheds are being constructed of reinforced concrete to a height of fifteen feet, with structural steel beams rising to a height of thirty-five feet above their concrete bases. The steel was manufactured in Los Angeles by the Llewellyn Iron Works. Connected with these great storage sheds will be a specially constructed and electrically operated conveyor, which will carry the crushed clay from an immense hopper and deposit it in the storage bins. Part of the conveyor equipment is a monorail system running directly over the bins. This monorail, the latest of its type, is equipped with large grab buckets into which the clay is dumped by the conveyor, and thence moved at will to the proper place in the bins. The conveyor machinery is now being installed by the Stevens-Adamson Company, one of the largest American manufacturers of the kind, which recently established a branch in Los Angeles.

SPEED AND ECONOMY.

This new method will not only add great speed to the handling of clay but it will insure perfect mixing and allow the clay to "age" in storage. This "ageing" process is of highest importance to face brick and tile manufacturing, according to experts, because it adds greatly to the value of the product when burned. Another great advantage to be gained by the installation of these improvements is that they will result in the elimination of the slow, costly method of shoveling the clay from the cars by man power. Thirty shovelers are now required to remove the clay from three cars,

PUBLIC GOLF LINKS PLANNED.

Eighteen-Hole Course in the Baldwin Hills.

Nominal Fee Will be Charged Public for Use.

Extension of Car Lines and Streets Proposed.

With the construction of a new, up-to-date, 18-hole public golf course, extending from Mesa Drive and West Forty-eighth street to the rim of the Baldwin Hills, the Los Angeles Investment Company is preparing to create one of the most attractive residential sections in the country on its Angeles Vista Heights tract, according to information given out by W. H. Harrison, general manager of the company.

Preliminary work of laying out the course is completed and actual work of putting the links in shape will be under way this week, Mr. Harrison says. The clubhouse will be located back on the gentle slope from the intersection of Mesa Drive and West Forty-eighth street. The drive will be straight away past the clubhouse, and the course will then extend along and up the slope of the hills and back over the rim of the hills to the clubhouse. The course will be open to the general public, a small fee being charged for use of the links.

GOOD CAR SERVICE.

The new links will be reached by excellent street-car service, the Hawthorne yellow car line passing by the clubhouse. The West Forty-eighth-street car line ends only a short distance away and this street will be paved through to Mesa Drive, and it is expected that as soon as the Los Angeles Investment Company begins building new homes on the Baldwin Hills, south of West Forty-eighth street, this car line will be extended to, and perhaps beyond, Mesa Drive.

Not only can this locality be reached by quick trolley service, Mr. Harrison points out, but it is also quickly reached by automobile from other downtown sections of the city. Mr. Harrison reports further that plans are under way for the extension of both Vernon avenue and Santa Barbara street through to the hills, which will be a great contributing factor toward opening of Angeles Vista Heights to rapid settlement as the new building program of the Los Angeles Investment Company is put under way.

This is only one of the plans of its 1921 building program the investment company is carrying out. New blocks are being opened and improved in the section of Angeles Vista Heights, east of Mesa Drive, and in a short time it is planned to begin building new houses on this tract north of West Forty-eighth street.

The opening of the 2000-acre tract at Inglewood is another big feature of the building program. It is in this tract that the little homes for families of moderate incomes are under construction. These homes are reported to be in such demand that the company is being forced to speed up its building plans to keep pace with the needs.

NEW BUILDING FOR REDLANDS UNIVERSITY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, June 25.—Another building in the University of Redlands group is under way, workmen now being engaged in erecting the first unit of the fine arts group. This group is to consist of two small structures of concrete to be used for study buildings for the piano and voice students. These buildings will be connected with the main building, a chapel hall and auditorium by an arched Spanish style passageway. The first unit is the building for the voice department, to be of two stories with twelve practice rooms and executive office. It will cost about $20,000.

the operation taking a full day, whereas by the new system the cars are dumped into the giant hopper located directly under the tracks in the unloading yard at the plant, and the clay is then conveyed to the storage bins. This requires but a few minutes, and the cars upon being dumped are immediately taken from the yard and sent into other service. This great saving in time alone, according to the company, will result in substantial economies both to the brick company and the railroads.

TO ELECTRIFY PLANT.

It is the intention of the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company, which also operates modern plants at Santa Monica, Alberhill and Port Richmond, to electrify its local manufactory, which is operating full time to keep pace with the unusual demand due to the extraordinary building activities in Los Angeles and vicinity. The company now employs more than 400 men in the manufacture of face and enamel brick, fire brick, roofing tile and architectural terra cotta. Its chemical research department, one of the most important in the manufacture of clay products, has recently been put in charge of Y. Y. Wong, a graduate of the Ohio State University, and regarded as one of the best qualified experts in ceramic art in the West. For some time past Mr. Wong has been working to perfect a process of reproducing certain rare colors in tile and enamel brick once known only to the Chinese but lost in the passage of centuries. The restoration of these colors, according to company officials, will be of immense value to the clay products industry because of the increasing demand for beautifully colored tile and enamel brick, effects in the finer residences and ornate public structures. Louis Wanka, superintendent of the company's terra cotta department, has been engaged continuously in the clay products industry for forty years. It is under his personal supervision that the ornamental figures of architectural tile which are to be placed on the new Brownstein-Louis Building at Eighth and Figueroa streets are being made.

Smoker Tuesday for New Members of Realty Board.

New-members night, when 200 new members of the Los Angeles Realty Board, gained through the recent membership drive, will be officially received, will be held on Tuesday evening of this week in the gymnasium of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. The meeting will take the form of a smoker. Following a short business session, when the report of the governing committee of the board will be submitted, a program of entertainment will be given.

This program will include several boxing bouts, Japanese jiu-jitsu, fencing, and other events. A buffet supper will be served at the end of the program. Admission will be by card only, but since each realtor is entitled to bring one guest, an attendance of nearly a thousand is expected. This smoker will mark the growth of the local realty board into one of the largest in the country, its total membership now being in excess of 600.

Floor of Realty Board Building Leased to U.S.C.

The University of Southern California has taken a long-term lease on the entire sixth floor of the Los Angeles Realty Board Building, at 631 South Spring street, where the university will establish the commercial and business men's departments now located in the Tajo Building at First and Broadway. Classes will be conducted for business executives, as well as for young men preparing to enter the business world.

On September 1 night class will be started, and it is expected that by January 1 both night and day classes will be in progress. The lease to the university, from the Continental Securities Company, was negotiated by W. Ross Campbell, president of the W. Ross Campbell Company.

NEW WOMAN'S CLUB BUILDING FOR INDIO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INDIO, June 25.—An attractive new clubhouse has been designed by Architects Edelman and Barnett of Los Angeles for the Woman's Club of Indio. The new building, to be 54 by 87 feet, will include an auditorium with hardwood floor for dancing, stage and dressing-rooms, kitchen, dining-room, library, and general club rooms. Mrs. L. A. Pawley is the chairman of the building committee, while Mrs. Chester A. Spare is president of the club.

FACTORY ALTERATIONS.

The Wallace, Bush & Skidmore Corporation has prepared plans and holds the contract for alterations to be made on the two concrete and brick factory buildings at 4800 Santa Fe avenue for the Leach-Biltwell Motor Company.

To Build Fine Stores at Ninth and Alvarado.

Plans have been completed by Architect Richard D. King for an attractive one-story building to be erected at the southwest corner of Ninth and Alvarado streets for Harry A. Dutton. The site for the building, purchased by Mr. Dutton through R. A. Rowan & Co., has a frontage of 150 feet on Ninth street and 115 on Alvarado street.

The corner store, with basement and mezzanine floor, will be occupied by the Dutton Drug Company. The Alvarado-street frontage will contain five stores, designed for specialty shops, and a large public market will face on Ninth street. The rear portion of the building will be used as a garage, with the entrance from Ninth street. Floors throughout will be of tile, and the exterior, which will be of Spanish design, will be faced with tapestry brick and terra cotta. The cost of the improvement, together with the purchase price of the site, will be approximately $100,000. Contracts for the building have been awarded, and construction will start immediately.

FACT AND COMMENT.

carried away with them, and which they have communicated to others in their communities.

But perhaps the most satisfactory method of placing the advantages of Southern California before the public, and the method which will bear fruit most quickly, is through the medium of advertising space. Los Angeles has innumerable advertising features. Its growth during the past decade; the development of its harbor; its phenomenal building record of the past year; its tremendous industrial expansion—all these are matters which should be spread broadcast.

San Diego has proved that advertising of this kind pays. With a fund of less than $300,000 the city started out to make itself generally known as a desirable residential city, and the fact that this investment of little more than a quarter of a million brought heavy returns is evidenced by the fact that in one year the population of the community was increased by 8000 new residents and merchants of the city received their return in the form of $2,000,000 increased revenues from these new families.

To say that advertising pays is an exceedingly trite remark, but it is none the less true. Millions are spent annually by industrial and mercantile concerns for advertising, and while the idea of a municipality advertising itself is still comparatively new, its success is proven not only by the instance of San Diego, but by that of Seattle as well, which has been conducting a consistent and well-planned campaign through the national publications for several months.

EASTERN COMPANY ENTERS LOCAL FIELD.

The Pfau Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati, O., manufacturers of plumbing fixtures and supplies, has secured a long-term lease on the store and display room located at the southeast corner of Seventh street and Towne avenue, which is to be used as a local salesroom and branch office. The lease was handled by G. H. Webb of the commercial properties department of the W. A. Heitman Company. The property is owned by W. M. Garland.

Mr. Webb reports also that Frank L. Clark of Portland, Me., has taken a lease on the factory building at 2062 Santa Fe avenue, which will be used for the manufacture of electrical insulation materials. Mrs. E. T. Henderson is the owner of the property.

SLIGHT DROP IN BUILDING.

June Valuations Will be Lower Than for May, but Will Exceed $6,000,000.

Building permits for the month of June, up to and including the 24th, have totaled 2256, with a valuation of $5,273,827. During the corresponding period in May, the record month in the history of the city, there were 2246 permits issued, with a total valuation of $6,498,035. While the June record will be smaller than that of last month, officials of the building department express the opinion that the valuation will exceed $6,000,000. No large permits have been issued since June 1, most of the permits being for dwellings and commercial structures of average size and cost.

It is probable that the building record of the present month will be slightly smaller than that of June, 1920, when permits valued at about $6,600,000 were taken out. The number of permits, however, will be greater this month than during June, 1920. The lower valuation is attributed by officials of the building department to the fact that building costs have dropped 10 to 15 per cent, sufficient to account for the discrepancy in values.

HALF MILLION IN BUILDING.

Progress Shown in Southwest Section of City.

Public Market Under Way at Vernon and Moneta.

Other Business Structures to be Erected Soon.

New construction work to the value of approximately $500,000 is now under way in the rapidly growing business section which is being developed in the vicinity of Vernon and Moneta avenues, and a number of important new additions to this progressive center are now being projected by investors.

One of the largest business structures in the vicinity, now nearing completion, is the new market building, which is being erected at a cost of more than $100,000. This structure, located at the southwest corner of Vernon and Moneta avenues, will have an area of 14,000 square feet, and is being built by Ed Golter. When completed the big building will house a meat market, grocery store, two fruit stands, soda fountain, cigar and magazine stand, coffee and tea store, restaurant, a complete bakery, delicatessen store, fish and poultry store, and a stall for the sale of butter, eggs, and cheese.

Adjoining the market building, and occupying an equally large space, will be one of the most attractive suburban theaters in the city. The theater is also being erected by Mr. Golter. The second floor of the structure has been designed for twenty-one offices for doctors and dentists. Equipment of the building will cost in the vicinity of $60,000, bringing the total cost up to approximately $160,000. The building will be completed and opened on the 25th of this month. The equipment includes two complete refrigerating plants, and fifteen large ceiling fans. The building is of brick and plaster construction, and fireproof throughout.

S. Cohen is having plans prepared for a two-story building to be erected on a site 110 by 114 feet at the corner of Forty-first place and Moneta avenue, covering an area of two lots. The first floor will contain five stores, while the upper story is to be designed for apartments. The structure, which will represent an investment of about $70,000, will be started about October 1. Charles Nielson is erecting a one-story garage building, 50 feet by 125 on Moneta avenue, between Forty-second and Forty-third streets, the structure when completed to be devoted to general repair work and body building. Adjoining the Mission Theater, on Moneta avenue, between Forty-second Place and Forty-third street, Mrs. Sarah Vonstantine is building an attractive two-story building, which will contain three stores on the first floor, with flats above.

One of the most attractive improvements in the vicinity, now under way, is the new two-story brick building being erected at Forty-fifth and Moneta by the Moneta Hardware Company. The Hardware firm will occupy the entire first floor, while the second floor will contain business offices, and four apartments. The building, together with the cost of the site, will represent a total investment of about $45,000. The new structure has a frontage of 50 feet on Moneta avenue, with a depth of 140 feet. H. J. Rose is erecting a two-story brick building at the northeast corner of Moneta avenue and Forty-second street at a cost of about $30,000. The structure contains three stores on Moneta avenue, and one with a frontage on Forty-second street. Jacob Goldner, a business man of that section, has recently purchased a site on the east side of Moneta avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets for a new two-story building, 45 by 151. The lower floor is to be occupied by a wholesale and retail men's and women's clothing store, while the upper floor will be divided into modern apartments.

The property adjoining the proposed new Goldner Building on the south, owned by A. Kanellos, proprietor of the Wisteria stores of Los Angeles, is to be improved in the near future with an attractive store and apartment building, with glazed brick front. Adjoining the Palace Theater between Forty-seventh Place and Forty-seventh street, Marres Benson has bought a site, with forty-five feet of frontage on Moneta avenue, for a two-story brick building, to contain two stores below, and a large public hall on the upper floor. This property, purchased for $9000, will be improved in the near future.

UNION OIL STATION AT DUCOR UNDER WAY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUCOR, June 24.—Residents of the Ducor section are actively interested in the erection of a Union Oil station here, since previously all oil supplies have been shipped in by freight. The plan includes four 20,000-gallon oil tanks, a big warehouse and resident manager's home. A crew of men are now at work laying water mains and receiving materials to be used in construction. The men are under the direction of Fred Tatjes and P. D. Neff.

According to Mr. Neff, construction will be rushed so that the station will be practically completed in about five weeks. Consumers will be served from this station. Tanks and warehouses will be erected between the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads. There are many pumping plants and tractors in use in the Ducor section, which will be supplied from the new station.

the world. The club, in addition to the insurance service which it renders, has charted, signposted and mapped the roads throughout the thirteen counties which comprise Southern California, and has posted the Lincoln Highway as far east as Omaha, and the National Old Trail to Kansas City.

SERVICE DEPARTMENTS.

The club maintains a theft bureau, a touring information bureau, a forwarding department, an insurance department, an official hotel and garage department, and a draughting department for making and printing its own maps. The club has not only thoroughly mapped the roads of Southern California, but it has always been a leader in the good roads movement for this section of the State.

These departments and bureaus will all be housed in the new building, affording greatly increased space, and permitting the more efficient handling of the club business. Twenty-two branch offices and four sub-branches are maintained by the club in Southern California.

Present officers of the organization are: W. L. Valentine, president; Henry W. Keller, first vice-president; H. G. Miller, second vice-president; Standish L. Mitchell, secretary, and Ralph Reynolds, manager of the interinsurance exchange.

TO BUILD HOMES.

Many New Houses Are Planned in Anticipation of Active Season.

The influence of the work proposed by the All-Year Club, which has been organized to exploit the summer climates of Southern California in the East, will stimulate real estate activities here this year, in the opinion of Victor Girard, subdivider of Walnut Park and West Adams Place. In anticipation of considerably increased activity, Mr. Girard's company proposes the erection of new homes at both Walnut Park and West Adams Place. The program will probably include twelve houses at the latter tract and twenty at the former. This new building will be done coincidentally with street extension work and the installation of public utilities.

Sales reports for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, being prepared by the Girard company, show the transfer of houses and lots at Walnut Park and West Adams Place in excess of $550,000. Practically all of this property has been sold through the advertising and excursions conducted by the company.

BRANCH ESTABLISHED IN ROSSLYN HOTEL.

A branch office in the lobby of the Rosslyn Hotel, at Fifth and Main street, has been established by the Janss Investment Company, to facilitate investments of out-of-town visitors to Los Angeles in search of homes or properties. The branch is claimed to be unique in that it is located in the hotel lobby as part of the central business of the hotel. This constitutes the eighth branch to be established by the Janss organization.

NEW STORE FRONT.

Architect W. J. Saunders has prepared plans for a new store front for the Army and Navy store at 428 South Spring street. The store will have a tiled entrance, with plate-glass windows and oak floors. Work will be done by contract.

BIDS RECEIVED.

Bids for the new administration building to be built at Wilmington for the Union Oil Company have been received, and the contracts will be awarded within a few days. John Galen Howard of San Francisco is the architect.

FOREIGN TRADE MAKING GAINS.

Lower California and Yaqui Valley Pointers.

Java Sugar Refineries in Need of Machinery.

Interesting Items from the Commerce Bureau.

When the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce excursion down the West Coast of Mexico stopped in the Yaqui Valley on the return(trip through the State of Sonora, the excursionists were taken on an automobile trip through the valley by American settlers there, and viewed the extensive irrigation works and other improvements built by the Richardson Construction Company of Los Angeles.

The variety and acreage of crops grown there is shown by a recent report of Bartley P. Yost, American Consul at Guaymas, who gives the following figures on the acreage of various crops for May:

Alfalfa, 1590 acres; barley, 717; beans, 2425; fall corn, 3335; spring corn, 1946; cotton, 140; garbanzos, 4122; rice, 10,460; wheat, 7482; Sudan, 55. Fall corn is planted in July, August and September. Spring corn is planted in February and March.

The irrigated section of the Yaqui Valley is located about fifty miles southeast of Guaymas. The irrigated lands are several miles from Cajerne, the nearest railroad station. Excellent grapefruit is grown in that section, but it cannot be imported into the United States.

LOWER CALIFORNIA.

There appears to be a revival of interest in Lower California recently, judging from inquiries received by the trade extension department of the Chamber of Commerce. Plans are under way for a colonization project down on the West Coast of the peninsula, and it is stated that there are good possibilities of oil development.

The possibilities of Lower California are probably little understood. It is very sparsely settled, yet there are said to be artesian wells in places. Dates also are grown down there. A recent report of William C. Burdett, American Consul at Ensenada, on this subject, says:

"While dates are grown to a small extent all over Lower California, the center of date culture is probably San Ignacio. This little town of some 700 inhabitants, situated at the center of the peninsula, can be reached from San Ignacio Lagoon, forty miles away on the Pacific, or from Santa Rosalia, a port on the Gulf of California, sixty-six miles away. Dates from San Ignacio are marketed exclusively in Mexico, since they are not dried or packed in a manner that would be pleasing to American tastes. The local price ranges around 2 cents gold per pound. Since these dates are of a superior quality, it is likely that if handled by modern methods and put out in attractive containers they would find a ready market in the United States. Date brandy and date preserves are by-products. The brandy finds a ready market in Lower California, and the preserves are consumed locally. In 1920 Swiss and German interests installed a drying oven, but the experiment was not a success."

The report of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce states that President Obregon has approved a monthly expenditure of 75,000 pesos for the construction of wharf improvements at Acapulco, Mex., and a cart road from that port to Iguala, in the northern part of the State of Guerrero. It is understood that this will eventually be a truck highway through to Mexico City, thus connecting the capital by the most direct route with the West Coast. The distance is less than 200 miles in a straight line.

The great need of the West Coast is adequate port facilities, and the construction of such improvements will materially aid the business of the West Coast, and incidentally that of Los Angeles.

SUGAR MACHINERY.

Los Angeles has a number of firms which manufacture or deal in sugar mill machinery. There is a great market for new sugar mill equipment in Java, according to Trade Commissioner John A. Fowler of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. In a recent issue of Commerce Reports, Commissioner Fowler says:

"Opportunity for the renewal of plants is afforded in the sugar mills of Java, many of which are out of date or in need of repair. Investigation has also shown that in the case of one of the finest mills in the island a very high percentage of sugar content is left in the cane. This is due to insufficient fuel supply and to waste of power, which should be considered in connection with the installation of further machinery, such as extra rolls and bagass burners to bring these mills up to approximately 100 per cent efficiency. While some of the 187 sugar mills operating in Java are small, others have two and four sets of rolls. A conservative estimate would place the average value of machinery for these mills, on a prewar basis, at approximately $750,000, representing about $140,000,000 worth of sugar-mill machinery in Java. If figured on the basis of present-day prices, this amount would probably be doubled, and to bring these mills up to efficiency, without replacement, it would require an additional investment of from 10 to 20 per cent. Because of the economy exercised during the war in repairs and extension of plants, it is believed that at least seventy of the Java mills will have to be replaced within the next few years. For the future of American sugar mill machinery interests in Java, it is essential to keep good men with a technical knowledge in this field."

Los Angeles has direct steamship service, and is in as good, or better, position to furnish this new machinery than any other city in the world.

COSTA RICA.

Mr. T. E. Lacayo, formerly Consul for Nicaragua in Los Angeles, who recently returned from a trip to Central America, has been appointed as representative of the Chamber of Commerce of Costa Rica in Los Angeles. It will be his purpose to build up trade and commerce in every possible way between this city and the republic of Costa Rica.

He states that business men in Costa Rica are very anxious to have a branch of an American bank established there and are willing to subscribe $400,000 to $500,000 towards such an institution if American capital will do likewise.

Costa Rica also is bidding, says Mr. Lacayo, for cotton and lumber mills and a soap factory.

MANILA CIGARETTES.

A cigarette factory in Manila is desirous of purchasing machinery for manufacturing metal cigarette boxes. It must be equipped with an automatic device that will fill the boxes with cigarettes. The Philippine Commercial Agency in San Francisco has a sample of the boxes desired and is trying to locate manufacturers of the machinery that make them.

CHINESE RUGS.

Plans are on foot to establish a rug-cleaning and treating plant in Los Angeles to handle rugs and carpets imported from China. It is stated that the only other plant of this kind in America is located in New York.

CHINESE INFORMATION.

A. Lorntsen, who has been for several years construction superintendent for the Standard Oil Company at Shanghai, recently arrived in Los Angeles from the Orient, and is stopping at 986 South Kingsley Drive. He will be glad to give anyone interested information on conditions in China.

COCOANUT OIL.

D. A. Lobaton, president of the Philippine - American Company, states that plans are under way for the construction at Los Angeles Harbor of a plant to press the oil from copra, and that soon the importation of copra in quantities will begin here.

SHIPPING INCREASE.

M. F. McLaurin is handling ten ships out of this port in the month of June bound for foreign ports. Two or three years ago, two or three ships foreign would have been considered good business. These ships were for the Pacific Mail, Grace and Johnson lines. Two or three months ago McCormick & McPherson handled thirteen ships in one month.

CONTRACTS LET FOR FINE HIGH SCHOOL.

NEW STRUCTURE TO COVER ENTIRE CITY BLOCK WILL BE ERECTED AT LINDSAY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LINDSAY, June 25.—Contracts for the new high school buildings to be erected at a cost of $215,000 have just been awarded by the Board of School Trustees of the Lindsay district. The buildings will be erected upon the property adjoining the site of the present high school.

The Ernest J. Kump Company of Fresno prepared the plans, which call for an academic, physical education, manual arts, domestic science and a cafeteria building and a swimming pool. These buildings will cover an entire block and will be connected by means of arcades. The architecture will be a mixture of Spanish renaissance and Mexican colonial, with roofs of Spanish tile.

The contract for the gymnasium was let to Victor Cereghins & Son of San Francisco, while that for the main buildings was awarded to W. J. Ochs of Coalinga. The Visalia Plumbing Company secured the steam heating contract for the main buildings, while the Mechanical Engineering Company of San Francisco has the contract for the gymnasium.

Out of a total of twenty-seven bids submitted from contractors throughout the State, their awards were the lowest bidders. Work is to begin as soon as the contractors' bonds are prepared, and Lindsay will have one of the most complete and modern high schools in the State, when the structure is completed.

ADDITION AND ALTERATIONS.

The Milwaukee Building Company has prepared plans for additions and alterations to the two-story building at the southeast corner of Sixth and Flower street for Dwight Hart, owner of the property. Two one-story additions, 40 by 41 feet and 57 by 69 feet will be built. These improvements will cost approximately $25,000.

THE "SPENDERS" ARE ORGANIZED.

Purchasing Agents Exponents of Scientific Buying.

Have Strong Organization in Los Angeles.

Also "Soft Spot" for Local New Manufacturers.

The inauguration of "buyers' week" in connection with the great trade exposition to be staged in Los Angeles during the week of August 15 to 20 of the present year, naturally calls attention to that form of modern professional buyer known as the "purchasing agent," who has grown to be the big co-ordinating force in all large establishments throughout the United States, while strangely enough the United States government, largest buyer of them all, has no such co-ordinator to keep it from wasting its multibillion budget.

It is estimated that in Los Angeles alone there are about 500 of these "P.A.'s," as they are known in their own vernacular. There is a Los Angeles Purchasing Agents' Association, whose membership is comprised of about 175 of these buyers who hold a monthly meeting in the rooms of the City Club and a weekly luncheon at some other point.

This Los Angeles Purchasing Agents' Association is affiliated with a national organization, in which are included nearly all the local associations in the country, for purposes of comparison and survey toward standardizing methods, practice, forms, catalogues, folders, accounting, and even physical products themselves; also for mutual advancement in the gentle arts of the turndown and the pick-up, to the end that as much joy of living as possible may be extracted from these pursuits.

The members of the Los Angeles association are the annual purchasers of commodities to the value of $250,000,000 for the concerns employing them, so the Chamber of Commerce has decided that for "buyers' week" these shall be the honored guests of the exposition, and a booth is to be fixed up for them in the exposition hall, where buying will be so easy to do, they will be expected to contract ahead for nearly all that the mills of Southern California can grind out in the next twelve months.

OWN MAGAZINE.

With the June number just off the press, the local purchasing agents begin the publication of their own monthly magazine, under the title of the Southwestern Purchasing Agent. It is a snappy, well-printed, and illustrated publication, carrying enough advertising to pay the printer, and mental pabulum sufficient to pay the P.A. for its perusal.

At the last meeting of the local association, resolutions were adopted declaring that as far as possible the entire $250,000,000 for whose wise expenditure its members are responsible, would go to Los Angeles manufacturers and distributors, to the end of encouraging local industrial expansion as far as it may be legitimately done.

Furthermore, it is the expressed purpose of the local association to point out for the benefit of the Chamber of Commerce and the controllers of capital, all instances where the local P. A.'s buy an aggregate of any kinds of merchandise not made here, in sufficient volume to warrant the establishment of a plant and to guarantee a market for such goods if they fulfill specifications.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

These purchasing agents want to get acquainted with the hundreds of new manufacturers, and want to learn of the best methods for extending encouragement. A special committee has charge of a system for inviting three of the new manufacturers to give a five-minute selling talk for his goods at each of the monthly meetings. The first of these affairs was at the June meeting, and the buyers were informed about Vitrefrax refractories, Rich vacuum head pistons, Los Angeles desks and Luckenbach steamships.

A standard size for all catalogues is one of the reforms for which the association of purchasing agents is working. Standard sizes and styles of many forms are also gradually being put into use, and other standards of practice are being introduced for simplification and for efficiency as well as economy. A standard base price for all automobile tires is under consideration, in view of the disclosure made at the last meeting that the members of the association spent nearly a million dollars for tires during the preceding year.

The business office of the local Purchasing Agents' Association is at 514 I. W. Hellman building, in charge of H. E. Wildey, business secretary. The officers for the ensuing year, just installed, are the following purchasing agents: Frank Anderson, of the Llewellyn Iron Works, president; C. P. Visel, of The Vail Company, first vice-president; W. B. Stewart, of the Globe Milling Company, second vice-president; R. M. Ketchum, of General Petroleum Corporation, treasurer; A. Scott Ballagh, of the Occidental Life Company, secretary.

INDIO CLAY DEPOSITS WILL BE DEVELOPED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INDIO, June 25.—Owners of the Indio clay deposits met this week at the Date Palm office and took preliminary steps toward the formation of a company for the development of their properties. The new company, to be known as the Interlocking Tile and Sewer Pipe Company, will be capitalized at $250,000. J. A. Gordon was elected president; J. A. Nelson, vice-president; J. P. McNally, secretary, and J. Win Wilson, treasurer.

The new enterprise, it is claimed, will develop a cheaper source of supply of building tile, drain pipe, pressed brick and other clay products for the Coachella and Imperial Valleys. It is expected to have the company fully financed and work under way early in the fall.

BROADWAY LEASES.

Bryan & Bradford, through Thomas P. Cooper of the leasing department, reports the following leases: E. M. Nutting to the Ever-Ready Heater Company, storeroom at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Broadway; E. M. Nutting to Black Hawk Tire Company of Des Moines, Iowa, 1051 South Broadway for display and salesroom; E. M. Nutting to Caterpillar Tire Company of America, 1053 South Broadway, for display and salesroom.

BREA ACTIVE.

Bond Election to be Held Soon for Water System; New Tract Opened.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BREA, June 25.—A bond issue to complete the city water works will be brought before the voters at an early date. The city fathers believe that, as the work is so well in hand, a completed system is the better investment. The Trustees have bought $4500 additional water rights. The new work is of the best material, and is built to stand the test of time. The increased valuation, has made another $40,000 bond issue possible.

The new Craige block will be ready for occupancy by the first of July. The Union Oil Company has opened a new addition on Walnut, and Madrona streets.

Reservations have been made for seventy-two lots, and as soon as homes can be erected, these will be occupied by employees of the company. Prof. Goodwin of Santa Ana is building two business blocks on North Pomona street.

The Brea Investment Company capitalized at $25,000 has been authorized by the Chamber of Commerce to begin the erection of a modern theater building. A committee consisting of W. A. Culp, F. N. High, and J. G. Sargent was appointed to forward this movement. Stock in the company will be bought by local business men at $100 per share.

TO BUILD RESIDENCE.

Architect Frank Lloyd Wright has prepared plans for a two-story, eight-room residence to be erected by Mrs. Martha Taggart in the Griffith Park entrance tract, at the head of Western avenue, north of Los Feliz Boulevard. The residence, which will be situated on Black Oak Drive, will cost about $15,000.

ORGANIZE COMPANY TO ERECT NEW BUILDING.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, June 25.—The Citizens' Building Company of Glendale has been organized and has received a permit from the Commissioner of Corporations to sell $30,000 worth of preferred stock, for the purpose of erecting a two-story store and office building on the property located on Brand Boulevard north of Harvard street. The officers and directors of the company are E. U. Emery, president; J. G. Huntley, vice-president; J. H. Rhodes, secretary; C. C. Cooper, treasurer, and Roy L. Kent, C. D. Lusby, and W. C. Lauderdale, directors.

The building will be of modern design and construction, with storerooms on the first floor, and offices, a banquet-room and kitchen on the second. "Varicolor" Roofing Tile Has an Unusual Appeal

There is probably no more distinguishing attribute for the small bungalow or for the imposing residence than the "Varicolor" clay tile roof. "Varicolor," as its name implies, embraces a wide variety of tones and shades which bring out wonderfully the effect of the house. Besides being fire-proof, weather-proof and time-proof, the roof of clay tile is ultimately the most economical roof, as it eliminates future repairs, reduces insurance premiums and increases the material worth of the house.

We manufacture the largest variety of patterns and colors in roofing tiles in the U. S. Prompt deliveries on all orders.

Awake!

Mr. "Not-yet" and Mrs. "Wait-until"

Yes—of course you're going to buy or build a home of your own. You're tired of landlords and high rent. Maybe you've even got "a set of plans" tucked away in the pigeon hole of your desk. But you're going to wait a while. "Prices are too high now," you say. Yes, sir—you're going to wait until you can buy for less.

Listen, man! Can't you hear a thousand steel riveters beating Prosperity's tattoo? Can't you hear the roar of a hundred steam shovels—digging, digging? Look at that sky line yonder—great steel girders reaching upward into the blue. Listen and look—then think! Ask yourself the why of all this.

Big business is building—not waiting. It can't afford to wait.

Do you think there is much "guess work" in all this? These financiers—these builders—wouldn't they wait if they thought it would pay them to wait? They're building—building as fast as modern machinery and human hands can build.

NOW is the time to BUY or BUILD Your Home

As the pineapple canning industry is of recent growth, all the factories and equipment are not only new, but are often of the most modern construction. The sizes of the original plants have been doubled and even quadrupled. In these cases, great care and thought have been used in the arrangements for handling the immense quantities of fruit with a view to economy and convenience, as well as sanitary requirements.

MAKE OWN CANS.

To supply pineapple containers, already there are two can-making plants in operation in Hawaii. Some idea of the magnitude of their operations may be gathered from the fact that it required about 146,000,000 cans from these plants to take care of the 1920 pack. The pineapple business in Hawaii is second only to the sugar industry, and on the island of Oahu is probably the world's largest cannery of food products, certainly the largest fruit cannery in the world.

California, the peer of all States in fruit canning and growing, canned in 1920, fruit approximating in value $110,000,000, while Hawaii's pack of one kind of fruit alone—pineapple—sold for $31,000,000.

MANY EMPLOYED IN INDUSTRY.

Approximately 20,000 people gain their livelihood from the pineapple industry in Hawaii, according to a recent report. It is said that the industry occupies about 46,000 acres of land and that the number of people employed in the various operations of the industry range from a minimum of 5000 in the slack season, to a maximum of about 15,000 in the busy season.

Describing a visit to the Hawaiian pineapple plantations, Cruse Carriel writes, "We have seen more miles of pineapples than there are smiles in the ordinary lifetime. We have visited the thirteen canneries and the pineapple plantations from which, since the inception of the industry, twenty-five years ago, have emanated 736,735,332 cans of pineapple—a sufficient number to extend 56,298 miles if placed end to end."

TRIBUTE TO PACKER.

"In the case of pineapple," says J. Alexis Shriver, commercial agent of the United States Department of Commerce, "the tropical fruit which cannot stand shipment for long distances, the flavor and freshness have been retained in the canned article to a surprisig degree, and a great advantage to the consumer lies in the fact that the fruit requires no preparation for the table—an important matter in a fruit covered with the tough, prickly skin, and filled with deep-seated 'eyes.' Thus the canning industry has made it possible for the housekeeper to have on her pantry shelves in the cold climates, a tropical fruit in nearly its natural state, ready to be eaten without preparation, and always delicious."

ISLAND IS NOW READY FOR SUMMER VISITORS.

BOARD WALK IS EXTENDED ALONG WATER FRONT; MANY RESERVATIONS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AVALON, June 25.—All building operations have been rushed to completion for the official opening of the summer season this week. Municipal gas-pipe, sewage and water systems have been installed, and the new section of board walk extending along the water front in the business section of the island city laid. This walk, twenty-five feet in width, affords a promenade from the eastern point of Avalon to the western terminal of Descanso Canyon. With the removal of the Tuna Club to a point over Avalon Bay, the board walk now extends several miles, connecting all pleasure piers, Avalon, Sugar Loaf Casino and Hotel St. Catherine.

Forester's Vacation Inn on Clemente avenue has been enlarged to accommodate 250 persons. Sixteen bungalettes have been added, as have also a new gymnasium and lodgeroom building and extensive tropical gardens, with a zoo and apiary.

The palatial new Wrigley residence on East Avalon Terrace and adjoining buildings for servants' quarters are ready for exterior finishers and interior decorators. The magnificent ten-acre hillsite is being transformed into a beautiful floral park by a staff of landscape gardeners which Mr. Wrigley has sent to take charge of the work from his Pasadena and Lake Geneva homes.

The business section of Avalon now presents an unbroken line of modern structures the Elsdon-Coe building, which has just been completed, filling the last remaining gap on Center street. The new building houses the Belmont Art Shop, a branch of a chain of art and leathgoods stores operating in Los Angeles.

In the heart of Avalon more than six hundred new bungalows have been leased for the summer season, the greatest record of reservations made of any season of the island resort, according to the announcement of the real-estate department of the Santa Catalina Island Company.

BANK TO OPEN BRANCH AT FIRST AND VERMONT

A third branch is to be established on Vermont avenue by the California Bank, according to an announcement made yesterday, a site having been secured at the corner of Vermont avenue and First street, where a new branch will be established. Announcement was made last week of the purchase of a site for a new branch at the corner of Vermont avenue and Fifty-fourth street. The bank at present maintains a branch at the corner of Vermont and Jefferson. With the completion of the two new Vermont-avenue branches, the California Bank will have nineteen locations in Los Angeles and its suburbs.

HOUSE AND LOT SALES.

The J. B. Althouse Company, local realtors, report the following recent sales:

NEW ELKS' LODGE.

Fine Structure, to Cost About $55,000, Projected for Porterville.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, June 25.—Erection of a new Elks' home on the corner of Main and Morton streets at a cost of about $55,000, by Porterville Lodge, No. 1342, promises to materialize in the near future, according to J. A. Ulmer, Exalted Ruler. About $20,000 has been subscribed voluntarily and as yet none of the out-of-town members have contributed or been interviewed. The plan as submitted by Architect Kump of Fresno calls for a complete and modern clubhouse, which will be one of the most attractive buildings of the kind in the valley.

Ernest L. Smith, proprietor of the Porterville Dairy for the past year, announces the sale of his establishment to Lovell Wilson and Ralph Hapgood, two well-known young ex-service men of the city. Messrs. Wilson and Hapgood will take possession of the property July 1.

The Porterville Grocerteria, under the management of Myron Tobias, has opened its doors to the public in the Hotel Porterville Building. This establishment is to be one of the largest of its kind in the county.

BELVEDERE GARDENS.

Fine Apartment Hotel at Long Beach Leased.

H. W. Hahn, hotel broker, reports the closing of a ten-year lease on the eight-story, 250-room apartment hotel, which is now being erected by W. W. Paden on Ocean avenue, Long Beach. The property has been leased to W. B. Hanner, formerly connected with the Connor Hotel at Joplin, Mo., and now heavily interested in hotels in San Diego. Upon completion of the building, it will be turned over to Mr. Hanner, who will manage it personally.

The new apartment-house, which will be of class A construction and fireproof throughout, is to be eight stories in height. The site has a frontage on two streets, with a private parkway on Ocean avenue. Plans include a large ballroom, billiard room, and a sun parlor on each floor, facing the ocean. The basement is designed as a large storage room, accessible from the beach frontage, and capable of housing 100 automobiles. The building will contain eighteen double apartments, seventy single apartments and fifty hotel rooms.

Contracts for the concrete work, which will be used extensively in the construction of the building, are held by the Foundation Company. L. L. Jones is the architect, while the engineering work is in charge of Edward L. Mayberry. It is expected to have the building completed and ready for occupation by January 1, when Mr. Hanner will assume charge.

STORE BUILDING.

Marshall P. Wilkinson is preparing plans and will erect a two-story class C brick store and flat building at the corner of McCadden avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard for A. A. Armstrong. The lower floor will be occupied by a dyeing and cleaning establishment, with a five-room flat above.

HAWAIIANS GOOD DRESSERS.

G. B. Curtis of Honolulu has attended the style show in Forest Park and will take home with him some of the duplicate models of dresses and millinery shown at that exhibit. His store in Honolulu is a woman's ready-to-wear, millinery and specialty shop.

"What will sell on Fifth avenue, New York, in the spring time," says Curtis, will sell in Honolulu. If a style is passe, we can't sell it. Our trouble is to get enough exclusive goods. The best class of native Hawaiians dress as handsomely as Americans. They are not all princesses and queens, as you might infer from the character of visitors to America from Hawaii."

Curtis has been in business in Honolulu for twenty years.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

URGES FRENCH LEARN GERMAN

"Learn German!" is the advice former President Poincare has given the French through the Association of Language Professors of Paris. He said:

"To dominate German science we must understand it. And to maintain the independence or the superiority of our literature we must not close our eyes to foreign literature, not even that of Germany."

M. Poincare said German must be known by those who undertake the administration of the occupied regions and also to restore French to its proper place in Alsace-Lorraine.

Army officers recently were urged to learn German. The government has reinstated that language in the officers' training school.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

GREED MENACES PACIFIC SALMON

Dr. Jordan Tells Interesting Habits of Fish.

Know Which Streams Come Down from Lakes.

Each "Geared" to River from Which It Spawned.

BY W. E. ALLEN,
Of the Scripps Biological Institute.

On a recent visit to the Scripps biological station of the University of California at La Jolla, Dr. David Starr Jordan held an informal conference with the scientific workers there, in the course of which many interesting biological phenomena were briefly discussed. Several questions were asked concerning Pacific salmon and in answering them, Dr. Jordan gave additional information so that discussion of these fishes occupied more time than that of any other subject.

One of the first questions asked was whether Pacific salmon would become extinct through overfishing. To this he replied that overfishing alone would not exterminate them, but that it would so reduce their numbers as to destroy the commercial fisheries dependent upon them.

He then made the illuminating statement that some ten years ago a treaty had been arranged between the United States and Canada providing for intelligent regulation of the salmon fisheries in the Puget Sound region, but that the American canners of that section so fiercely opposed it that they prevailed upon the Senators from Washington to prevent ratification by the United States Senate. As a consequence they have in this short time not only endangered the welfare of the whole people through exhaustion of a great marine food resource, but they have also brought their own business enterprises to the verge of destruction.

It is one of many examples that commercial interests cannot be trusted with the control of a natural resource, at least under conditions of open competition.

SALMON MYSTERY.

It seems that no one knows for certain where salmon spend their three to five years of life in the ocean. Probably this has been fortunate as they might have been destroyed even earlier if fishermen had known where to get them. Some of them are supposed to stay fairly near the shores, where they first enter the sea from a river.

Dr. Jordan propounded to us one of his favorite biological puzzles or mysteries, i.e., how do red salmon know which rivers or streams have lakes at their headwaters. He said, in this connection, that red salmon would not ascend any other kind of stream for spawning, although king salmon and some other kinds would.

As one illustration of this he told how Dr. Gilbert once stood on a bridge across the fork of a stream, one branch of which came from a region without a lake, while the other came from a region with a lake, and how he saw king salmon going up both branches, but after hours of watching had seen red salmon invariably choose the branch with a lake.

Dr. Jordan then mentioned Babcock's story, for which he did not vouch. This was to the effect that Babcock conveyed water through a pipe from a stream-bearing lake into a stream and the red salmon tried to swim up the pipe.

"GEARED" TO STREAMS.

A recent conclusion of Dr. Gilbert was given which was entirely new to many of us. Although it is fairly well known that some streams ascended by salmon are short, perhaps only ten miles, while others are long, such as the Yukon, 1500 miles, or the Columbia, 1000 miles, and that salmon have a tendency to ascend streams from which they hatch, it took the long, patient, careful effort of Dr. Gilbert to show that salmon from a short river lacked qualities of endurance or general character which would enable them to spend a whole summer in the weary journey to headwaters of a long river, and that salmon from a long river lacked the characteristics necessary to make use of conditions in the short river.

As he expresses it, salmon are "geared" to the river to which they are native. This is evidently one of the greatest reasons why salmon hatcheries are not successful, the fry cannot be liberated except in streams to which they are "geared."

Such discoveries not only have a great interest because of the glimpse which they give at the real basic activities of nature, but they also have distinct commercial value.

Nothing to Fear.

"George," said his wife, sitting up suddenly in bed, "there's a burglar in the house. Listen!"

"A burglar?" George sat up, too.

"Yes. I can hear him distinctly crossing the floor of the room below. Now (excitedly) he's lighting one of those cigars I gave you for Christmas. I heard him pick up the box and put it down again."

"By Jove, Mary, you're right," George answered. "He is. He's actually smoking one of those—er—those cigars."

Then he snuggled once more comfortably between the blankets.

"Go to sleep, Mary," he said complacently. "We'll find the poor wretch in the morning."—[Boston Transcript.

LAND AT $8000 A SQUARE FOOT.

The highest price ever paid for land in North America went to the owner of 1200 square feet of soil at 18 Wall street. He received $8000 a square foot, or $960,000, for the plot, actually fulfilling his terms: "I will sell when they cover the tract with gold."

This plot at 1 Wall street, corner of Broadway, was purchased at $600 a square foot, and for a time it was the record price. Values along lower Broadway average at from $30,000 to $35,000 a front foot. The land on which the massive Equitable Building stands cost Gen. Coleman T. Du Pont in the neighborhood of $13,000,000.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

GOAT ATE HER CURLS.

Pretty Irene Kenschroft of Lester, Pa., mourns the los of her beautiful tresses. The 16-year-old miss was not a victim of "Jack the Clipper." Bill was the offender.

Irene was asleep upon a lounge when Bill entered. Disappointed in a semimeal of lace curtains and a part of a tablecloth, Bill saw the girl's long tresses and proceeded to masticate them. He nibbed carefully and successfully, but because he was a glutton pulled too hard when he had almost finished his hirsute meal.

The girl awoke, screamed, and neighbors rushed in to find her almost in hysterics. Bill was banished and the girl was worse than despondent over the loss of her curls, which were the pride of Lester.

The goat has not been seen around since and no one will tell what happened to him. — [Philadelphia Ledger.

NOTABLE DISCOVERY.

A massive chair made of copper, which natives believe was given by the late Queen Victoria to an Ashanti chieftain, and used by him as a throne, has been discovered in the midst of a jungle far from human habitation in the Gold Coast Colony, West Africa. According to native legend it was placed over the grave of the chieftain, who had occupied it when alive. The natives believe that the chieftain still sits upon his old throne in spirit at certain times, and for this reason they have never tried to move the chair which, they declare, has now rooted itself in the ground. A Gold Coast surveyor first stumbled across the curiosity. A search party returned to the spot and found the jungle so dense that the natives had to hack a path through the undergrowth.—[Seattle Times.

Whale of a Fish Story.

"It's a whale," more than one visitor asserted who visited Monk's wharf here recently. They were wrong. It was a sturgeon. From the tip of its tail to its snout it measured just thirteen feet, and it weighed 988 pounds. This monster fish was taken with a drift net in the Pitt River by an Indian fisherman, and is said to be the second largest ever taken.—[New Westminster Correspondence, Toronto Globe.

HOLDS PILATE'S OLD OFFICE.

The office of Governor of Jerusalem once occupied by Pontius Pilate is now held by Col. Ronald Storrs, a graduate of Cambridge, and son of the dean of Rochester College, England.

His task is one to test the administrative ability of any man. Jerusalem is a city of disunions where, whatever may come of the future, for the moment Zionists and Arabs are passionately divided, and to steer a just patch between them and induce them to join him on that path is thankless work.

It is to that task, however, that he chiefly devotes himself. Twice a week he has meetings of his favorite pro-Jerusalem society, where French, Italians, British, Americans, rabbis, Zionists, leaders, commercial men of standing, and others, who are in any way prominent in the life of the city, are brought together and in the course of debate, led to see that they have in common a single citizenship. His motto as Governor is "unify and be friends."

Col. Storrs was one of the prime movers in the establishment of an independent Arab kingdom. He is 38 years old.—[Washington Star.

FUNERAL FOR A DOG.

Children in the neighborhood formed in a solemn procession yesterday at the home of Mrs. L. H. Sands, 414 North Pleasant street, Independence, to pay tribute to Ted, the 10-year-old dog of Mrs. Sands. A tin coffin kith six small handles had been prepared and six children with bowed heads acted as pallbearers, while fifty others looked on, most of whom cried.

Ted, for several years, had been a favorite with the children on the street, doing many tricks that pleased them.

The dog was killed by a motorcyclist. Burial was in Mr. Sands's back yard.—[Kansas City Times.

REASSURED.

The long-suffering professor smothered his wrath and went down into the cellar.

"Are you the plumber?" he inquired of a grimy-looking person who was tinkering with the pipes.

"Yes, guv-nor," he answered.

"Been in the trade long?"

"'Bout a year, guv-nor."

"Ever make any mistakes?"

"Bless yer, no, guv-nor."

"Oh, then, I suppose it is quite all right. I imagined you had connected up the wrong pipes, for the chandelier in the drawing-room is spraying like a fountain and the bathroom tap is on fire."—[Argonaut.

HAD AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

After all, some folks say life is entirely a matter of environment, and it would naturally follow from the conduct of a youngster in a North End Sunday-school recently that his father was a tradesman of some sort or another.

The teacher was upon the subject of Solomon and his great wisdom.

"When the Queen of Sheba came and laid fine raiment and jewels before Solomon, what do you think he said?" she inquired of the small boy in question.

"How much do you want for the lot?" bravely answered the lad.—[Columbus Dispatch.

Liberal Hospitality.

The favorite avocation of a widely known surgeon is his model farm near Chicago. It pays no profit except great pleasure. He is hospitable, always asking friends to dinner. One Sunday about noon fourteen unexpected guests arrived. His wife was aghast. "My goodness," she said, "we haven't a thing to give them."

"Oh, anything will do," said the doctor.

So the lady of the house consulted the cook.

"What about that crate of pigeons out in the barn?" asked the cook.

"How many are there?" asked the lady.

"About eighteen," was the answer.

"Well, wring their necks and fix them up."

Dinner was served and the large platter of squabs was brought to the table.

"What's that?" exclaimed the doctor.

"Now, Fred, just go ahead and serve," said his wife.

"But what are these?" he expostulated.

"Just some pigeons we found in the barn," she answered.

"Great Scott!" he exclaimed, "those pigeons cost $25 apiece!"—[Journal of American Medical Association.

No Self-Starter.

A wealthy New Yorker invited a party out to his summer home at Great Neck, Long Island, to see his horses and go for a ride. One of them, a banker, though dressed for the part, knew nothing of horses, had never been on one.

Having been properly mounted, with the assistance of a groom, the banker took the reins as per direction and sat motionless. He did not know how to start; still, he realized with embarrassment that his inaction was attracting the attention of the other riders.

"Well," he said to the horse, with some irritation, "commence!"—[From the Saturday Evening Post.

OLD-TIME TAXES.

The Bulgarian bachelor, who is now groaning under an annual tax, equivalent to 8s 4d a year, has less cause to grumble than many a British bachelor who shied at the altar a couple of centuries or more, ago. During the eleven years from 1695 to 1706 the man more than 25 who shirked his matrimonial duty was called on to pay £12 10s; for a duke—a tax which yielded to the revenue about £1000 a week. More than this, in those good old times the Briton had to pay a tax when he took himself a wife, and another every time he qualified as father. Thus, a duke's nuptials cost him £50 4s; his heir, £30 2s, and for each later male addition to the family his joy was discounted by a payment of £25 2s. The benedict whose income was less than £50 a year had to pay 2s 6d for his bride and 2s every time he became a father.—[Indianapolis News.

T'OTHER WAY ROUND.

He was a very small boy, and the apples he was eyeing were very large. He eyed them for ten minutes, longingly and furtively, while the greengrocer bustled about serving customers. Now he edged near the tempting basket. Now he edged away again. And at last the greengrocer thought it time to intervene.

"Now then, Tommy," he exclaimed, "what are you doing?"

"Nothin'," replied the small boy.

"Nothing', eh?" said the greengrocer. "Well, it looks to me as though you are trying to steal those apples."

"You're wrong!" reported the nipper. "I'm trying not to."—[London Answers.

INFANT DIET.

The doctor consulted his thermometer and looked startled. Then he hurriedly tested his patient's pulse.

"Good gracious, man!" he gasped. "What have you been doing? Your temperature is up to danger point and your pulse is terrific. Have you been limiting yourself to infant diet, as I told you?"

The patient nodded feebly.

"Yes, doctor, I have," he whispered. "During the last twenty-four hours I have eaten three apple cores, over a [illegible] and various buttons, [illegible] siderable difficulty [illegible] coal."—[Exchange.

—A Clean Up—of Plumbing Fixtures
at Bargain Prices!

A sweeping disposal of on-hand stocks of factory seconds and damaged plumbing fixtures, as well as surplus stock of Grade A perfect fixtures and supplies. Take advantage of this now. Any day we may be sold out of some item.

If you are building now, or contemplate building soon, it will pay you to buy your fixtures here and now, even if you are not quite ready to install them. No builder can afford to overlook the chances for money-saving that this event offers.

Complete Bath Room Set— $80
[everything to the rough plumbing]

To help dispose of some of our surplus stock of these bath room sets, we are making this special price for ten days.

The set complete, as you see it in the picture. Our fixtures and fittings are fully guaranteed Grade "A" ware. This includes your choice of 4, 4½ or 5-foot porcelain enameled bath tub. Low style white toilet and wide apron lavatory. Both lavatory and bath tub are equipped for hot and cold water—have high-grade, nickel plated fittings. Toilet includes angle valve and all necessary screws and washers. Everything to the rough plumbing.

Bath Tubs $25 and $26

A limited number of high grade bath tubs, slightly damaged in transit. Some are slightly cracked in the enamel, here and there, a chip may be off—but just the same they will give you many, many years of service. Figure for yourself the savings when you buy a tub for $25 or $26. Of course the fittings are not included at this price.

To go with this we have scores and scores of slightly imperfect tubs at unusually low prices.

Low Toilets, $25

Factory seconds, high grade toilets. These are white porcelain enameled on cast iron, with vitreous china bowl and birch mahogany seat, completely equipped with angle valve and all necessary screws and washers to connect with the rough plumbing.

Grade "A" Sinks, $6

Absolutely No. 1 quality, white porcelain enameled on cast iron sinks, size 18 x 30 inches. Of course, only the sink strainer is included at this price; no trap or faucets.

Sinks, Special, $4.50

You can choose from an assortment of sizes in this lot of sinks at $4.50 each, bare.

Pedestal Lavatories, Complete, $25 to $30

We have a lot of pedestal lavatories in a variety of designs, some similar, to the picture and others different. Some factory seconds, some damaged by the railroad, but all will give long and satisfactory service.

Equipped for hot and cold water—with high-grade supplies.

Bent Nose Garden Hose Valves, 65c

One-half inch size at 65c and three-fourths inch at 80c. These have thread on end to connect hose to.

Recessed Tubs Special—$30 to [illegible]

No two of these tubs are [illegible] are made to go in tiled [illegible] to the floor, you can find [illegible] want in this group of tubs.

They are specially priced at [illegible] depending on style and condition. [illegible] past experience they will be [illegible] by people who appreciate a [illegible] plumbing.

Conditions are ideal for the healing of body and spirit.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

Last year the administration building, pleasure pavilion, kitchen and dining-room were moved to the rear of the playground and a modern mess hall and dormitory with accommodations for 150 children were erected. This year's work has brought many changes, due in a large measure to the financial assistance of the Los Angeles Junior Red Cross. A new hospital, nurse's dormitory and cottages for employees have been built. Over an acre of underbrush has been cleared, electric lights and a refrigerating plant installed. The service building, with its perfectly equipped dining-room and kitchen, was the gift of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, which appropriated $5000 for this purpose. The plumbing in the buildings complies with the building laws of Los Angeles. The plunge was approved by the State Board of Health and the sanitation of the preventorium by the United States forestry service. It is planned to move the pool for the double purpose of affording greater privacy for swimming and the use of the water as additional fire protection.

MAINTAINS CLINICS.

In addition to the responsibility of conducting the preventorium at long range, the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association and the City Health Department maintain tuberculosis clinics at 208 North Spring and 205 North Main streets; the Chicago open-air clinic and corrective work at Ninth and Wilson; the co-operative dental clinic at the neighbor house and the co-operative tuberculosis clinic at the White Memorial Hospital, 304 North Boyle avenue. All these activities are under the supervision of Miss Sidney M. Maguire, executive secretary, who has been the power behind the success of the association. To her initiative is credited the first permanent preventorium for children in California.

Miss Margaret Holdzkom, assistant to the president, Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kaathoven, is a powerful factor in this creative work, as she has supervised the building operations at the preventorium. The dynamic energy of Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kaathoven, Miss Maguire and Miss Holdzkom have surmounted apparently unsurmountable difficulties. The Los Angeles Junior Red Cross is officially affiliated with the preventorium, and has made possible many new improvements.

A determined effort is being made to save the fit rather than the unfit. All active cases have always been eliminated from the children's camps and the preventorium.

The type of children admitted are undernourished and physically below par: children from tubercular homes, but who do not give evidence of active tuberculosis; those having a positive tuberculin skin reaction or granular involvement—non-surgical—and those convalescing from acute diseases of the respiratory system. Each child must be 7 years of age and not over 15. The 100 boys will remain until the latter part of July when, under the same restrictions, the preventorium will be opened to 100 girls. Parents are requested not to send money or food supplies to their children during the summer, but are permitted visiting privileges on Sundays from 3 to 5 p.m. There will be no time limit for children, as the preventorium will be open as long as the funds permit. At the preventorium, recreational programs give civic training in community life, the discipline being maintained by a children's court, based upon the honor system.

SITUATION ACUTE.

Miss Maguire realized the importance of mental tests in conjunction with the preventive work of the association, and Dr. Grace M. Fernald contributed her services. She will continue the tests at the preventorium this summer, to ascertain the exact mental status of every boy and girl, the idea being to scientifically discriminate between the fit and the unfit.

The tuberculosis situation in California is acute, as the State appears to be the hope of the nation. At the headquarters of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association, 522 Chamber of Commerce Building, thousands of people apply for practical advice and assistance. The little group of earnest workers has transformed this formerly inconspicuous association into a powerful organization that attracts social workers from all over the United States. Ninety-four representative men and women of Los Angeles are members of the advisory council of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association. The officers are:

Dr. Norman Bridge, president emeritus; Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kaathoven, president; Dr. Charles C. Browning, Louis M. Cole and Dr. R. L. Cunningham, vice-presidents; Mrs. Benjamin Goldman, recording secretary; John P. Burke, treasurer; Mrs. J. M. Danziger, chairman of finance, and Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow, chairman of advisory council.

LIVERPOOL BUYER ON THE COTTON MARKET.

BRITISH LABOR NEWS HAVE GOOD INFLUENCE; LAST PRICES REACT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—The cotton market was favorably influenced by the British labor news this morning. Liverpool was a buyer, and after opening firm at an advance of 2 to 22 points, active months sold 19 to 28 points above last night's closing. A southwestern report, making the condition of the crop 67.8 and the decrease in acreage 29.1 per cent, pointed to an improvement of only 2.2 point for the month and probably contributed to the advance.

Another private report, making the condition of the crop 60, against 66 last month, and reports that July notices were promptly stopped in New Orleans, sent the market up to 12.25 cents for October, or 40 point net higher, later in the morning. This met southern selling and heavy realizing, the last prices showed reactions of 25 or 30 points from the best, the close being easy and irregular at a net advance of 17 to 28 points.

FLAXSEED MARKETS IN THE NORTHWEST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MINNEAPOLIS, June 25.—Flaxseed demand quiet; No. 1 seed on spot quoted at 1.78@1.84; to arrive, at same. Receipts, 17 cars; last year, 25 cars; shipments, 1 car; last year, 1 car.

Duluth flaxseed was erratic. After breaking sharply at the opening under selling for which there were no buying orders, good bidding by crushers developed and slightly better than full recoveries were made at the close. July flaxseed closed ½ cent up at 1.85 bid; September, ½ up at 1.90 bid, and October, 6 cent up at 1.90½ bid.

Crop News from the Northwest Mostly Bullish.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 25.—Crop news from the Northwest was mostly bullish and there were heavy rains in the Southwest, yet cash houses in that section were free sellers of wheat here for July delivery. A general week-end evening up was on and at the finish July wheat showed a loss of ½ cent, while September gained 1⅛ cents.

Corn, although having a break, finished well toward the high point with gains of ½ to 2 cents, and oats were up ⅛ to ⅝ cent, while rye gained ⅛ to ⅝ cent for the day. The trade was greatly divided because of the various conflicting reports.

Closing prices compared with a week ago show gains of 2 cents on wheat, ⅝ to ⅜ cent on oats, 1⅜ to 2⅝ cents on rye, and 2½ cents on barley, while corn is ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower.

Provisions were up 20 cents on pork and 22½ cents on lard, while ribs were unchanged to 2½ cents higher.

Action of the southwestern cash houses in selling July wheat, with cash prices at Kansas City 2 to 3 cents higher and a wet harvest on there, led local handlers and others to sell wheat and tended to partly offset effect of black rust and crop damage from the Northwest, sent in by Crop Expert LeCount. The E. W. Wagner crop expert, after a tour of the Northwest, takes a different view and says rust in the spring wheat country is of little consequence. Houses with eastern connections were good sellers of July wheat, and export business was limited, with only 100,000 bushels sold.

Exporters bid 27 cents over July for hard winters at New Orleans, June shipment, and 20 cents over Galveston for the first half of July, with the last half 15 cents over. The week's movement suggested another increase in stocks here, although primary receipts of 7,072,000 bushels were the largest at this time in more than five years, and 4,349,000 bushels in excess of a year ago. July was up to $1.31½ and closed half-cent below that point, while September was $1.26¼ and closed with a reaction of half a cent. Country offerings were larger.

Local longs were good sellers of corn, going out of a large part of their holdings on the break. At the same time there was active covering by traders who had corn sold at a higher level and were taking profits. Some of the lines sold out early were taken back later in the day on the break. July was up ⅝ cents to 63 cents early with the low price until the previous day's close. September closed at 63¼ to 63⅜ cents, or close to the top and more than 1 cent above the low point.

Slowness of the cash trade with sales of only 65,000 bushels, was a depressing early factor, but the rally in the futures at the close had a strengthening influence on cash values and the early loss was recovered. Primary receipts of 6,379,000 bushels for the week were the largest in five years, with the exception of last year.

Heaviest trading in oats was at the last, northwestern millers buying and early sellers covering. Crop news was unfavorable and cash business better. Primary receipts for the week at 3,728,000 bushels were below the average.

July rye was bought by seaboard exporters and sold by speculators. There was little cash business done.

What Are Aaa Bonds?

Bonds which have this rating are to be regarded as of the highest class, not only in the matter of actual security of principal and certainty of interest payment, but of general marketability. So says John Moody in his Analyses of Investments, and he specifies the French Republic 20-Year 7½% (Non-Callable) External Gold Bond as such a bond.

Price 95, yielding over 8%

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Week in Review; Investment Outlook; With the Analysts; Bond Market.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

The business week locally was without high spots, but is less unsettled. There is an even tenor to Los Angeles conditions, which is highly gratifying, and which, in the aggregate, is establishing new records in development.

Progress is unsensational, but steady. This is especially true in building and promotion. The Forward Los Angeles movement is well under way, and is to result in bringing much new capital, industries and homeseekers into this community.

While the Federal Reserve Bank for the Twelfth District anticipated the rest of the country by several months in reducing its discount rate, the easier money condition which now prevails in the East is reacting favorably.

It cannot be said, however, that funds are easy to obtain. Banks continue to be highly conservative in their credit relationship with customers, and considerable capitalizing is being done outside of the ordinary channels.

The stock market remains at a low ebb of activity, and new lows were the order of the week. The bond market is also soft, but gives evidence of early improvement.

There is a tendency to slow down preparatory to the taking of half-year inventories, and in anticipation of the three-day holiday which will begin next Friday and last until Tuesday morning, July 5.

Underneath all this, however, is steady employment for all but a few thousand able-bodied workers. The public's purchasing power is not seriously diminished, and volume is running in excess of last year's figures even in view of deflated commodity prices. Attention has been directed heretofore to the sustained bank clearings, and the record for the first six months of the year is likely to place Los Angeles in the first rank of cities showing increase rather than decrease for the period.

The cantaloupe deal in the Imperial Valley is proceeding in good order and will be profitable enough to offset some of the losses the valley ranchers sustained in the collapse of the cotton market. Other corps nearer home are in excellent condition, and there promises to be an abundance of vegetables and fruits at prices considerably below those in effect last summer.

While business failures throughout the country are numerous, there have been few serious embarrassments in this district. Prices are becoming stabilized. Bradstreet's wholesale index shows a decline of 1.9 per cent over a month ago, and compared with June, 1920, two comparative price lists show that ninety-nine commodities are lower and three unchanged. Compared, however, with Aug. 1, 1914, eighty-one commodities are higher, nineteen are lower and five are unchanged. Dun's index number, compiled in a different manner, and covering nearly 300 wholesale quotations, stood at $165,995 June 1, 1921, comparing with $166,658 on May 1, and $262,149 on June 1, 1920.

In discussing the situation at large the Irving National Bank of New York says, in its current review:

"Amidst the clamor of conflicting opinions regarding inactivity in many lines of trade, it is well to remember the fundamental forces which are at work, and are not subject to organized control. To a large extent foreign conditions, regulate indirectly the tempo of American production, determining whether our factories and farms shall be run at capacity and our surpluses be exchanged abroad for those products which are best supplied by workshops in other countries.

"The absorptive power of other peoples is of the greatest importance to us. This fact should always be borne in mind when speaking of price tendencies. The public and private debts which foreigners owe us—and which are increasing from day to day—approximate $10,000,000,000 due directly to the United States government and, it is estimated, some $8,000,000,000 additional in various other kinds of loans; until these debts can be paid or funded business cannot but feel the weight of the load.

"With international credit still in great confusion, it is not surprising that the domestic credit situation should remain more than normally tense, although showing steady improvement."

BOND SITUATION.

Los Angeles investment bankers are firmly convinced that during the next few years there is going to be a steady increase in interest on the part of the general public in high-grade corporation and municipal bonds.

This feeling was given voice yesterday by D. T. Babcock, resident partner of Blyth, Witter & Co., when he said that "during the period of expansion and reckless speculation, through which we have just passed, a great many people acquired greater sums of money than they had ever possessed before. Those who tried to speculate, often made money in spite of themselves because of the general upward trend in stock and commodity prices.

"This has changed, however, and many people are now studying safe investment, who previously in their enthusiasm thought they could make fortunes by speculation. Of course, many of the speculators have been ruined, but on the other hand, the conservative investers who have been putting their money away in safe securities, are still receiving their income and are being envied by those who have been trying to get rich quickly, and who have not succeeded.

"The bond houses which have followed safe and conservative policies are now reaping the reward for their conservatism. I do not look for any rapid rise in bond values, but there must be a steady rise within the next few years because of the fact that the reserve ratio of the Federal reserve banks has been increasing steadfly for several months, and even in England the bank discount rate has been reduced within the past few days. The very fact that manufacturing has slowed up to a certain extent, will mean that there will not be as great a demand for money as there has been in the past, which should mean a lowering of interest rates, and therefore, no increased value in prices for fixed income-bearing securities."

Blyth, Witter & Co. have just completed enlarging their offices in the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Building, with the result that they now have about one-third more floor space than previously. For the past three years the growth of this organization has compelled the enlargement of their offices twice each year.

BOND MEN ORGANIZE.

The investment bankers of Los Angeles, Pasadena and Long Beach, 274 of them, representing practically every bond house in the three cities have taken a step forward in an organization perfected at a dinner meeting held at the Ambassador Friday evening.

The purpose of the coalition is to bring the investment bankers into closer touch with each other and with conditions which govern their business; to establish a co-operative entente; to educate salesmen; develop new business; exchange information; raise the ethics of the profession, and in general, to function somewhat after the manner of the credit men's and other like organizations.

The initial meeting was a complete success, and following an interesting program a committee of nine was elected whose duty it will be to proceed with the organization, adopt suitable regulations and operate the new association as a directorate for the first year. From time to time, but at no fixed dates, group meetings will be held, and matters of general interest discussed. The following members were elected as a permanent organization committee and board of directors:

James R. Page of Stevens, Page & Sterling; Don O'Melveny of E. H. Rollins & Sons; P. R. Cadwallader of Blyth, Witter & Co.; Phillip Brooks of Hunter-Dulin Company; John O. Knight of John O. Knight & Co.; Thomas K. Gaully of W. R. Staats & Co.; Murray Bedlington of Garvin & Miller; Arvin H. Brown of Baer, Brown & Parsons; E. G. Otis of the California Bank.

Theodore Stevens of Stevens, Page & Sterling, was toastmaster, and outlined the purpose of the meeting. Charles F. Stern, former State Superintendent of Banks, and now vice-president of the First National Bank, talked of the new Bank Act and urged the desirability of a united California and the elimination of sectional feeling. R. H. Ballard of the Southern California Edison Company, discussed water power in its relation to State development and hydroelectric application illustrating his remarks with pictures of the Colorado River project to which his company is committed. Dean Witter, a member of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association, had for his theme, "The Ethics of the Bond Business."

ABBOT KINNEY COMPANY.

Negotiations are being completed as a result of which the firms of John O. Knight & Co., Miller & Dunbar, and Stevens, Page & Sterling, as syndicate managers, will purchase from the Abbot Kinney Company $200,000 par value first closed mortgage 8 per cent serial gold bonds, secured by practically the entire land holdings of the company consisting of twenty-four separate parcels of real estate appraised with improvements at $1,285,886 and including (1) Venice business and residential property; (2) an approximate 250-acre tract between Glendale and Eagle Rock, known as Berkshire Hills; (3) Kinneoloa Ranch, the 550-acre country estate

THE COUNTRY OVER.

Detroit Banks Gain Deposits; Quiet in the Southeast; St. Louis Dull.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, June 25.—For the first time since April, 1920, Detroit banks show total deposits in excess of loans and investments and the aggregate of borrowed money obligations is also at the lowest point in that period.

Easier money conditions are in sight. Bank rates on direct loans have fallen from 7 per cent to 6½ per cent, with an occasional loan at 6. The general upward trend of business shows striking contrasts in different lines, however. Retail lines are showing fair volume in seasonable merchandise.

ATLANTA (Ga.) June 25.—The millinery and drug business in the Southeast are enjoying a prosperity far beyond other lines.

A shrinkage of $300,000,000 in taxable values of real and personal property in the rural districts of Georgia is making itself felt and reflects a situation that is general through the Southeast. This has tended to emphasize the usual mid-season lull in the jobbing and wholesale trade.

The outlook has not been relieved by reports of the cotton crop.

The mild winter did not exterminate the boll weevil and reports of the probable cotton yield are not encouraging. Country merchants are discouraged over crop conditions and are buying sparingly in the wholesale dry goods, notions and shoe markets.

Produce brokers declare high freight rates have interfered seriously with their export business.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Commerce in general is almost at a standstill in this territory. The packing industry is perhaps the most active, but the packers are cautious buyers of live stock and are operating with reduced forces, suiting production to fluctuating prices and diminished buying demands.

Building operations are stagnant and idleness prevails in the iron and steel industries.

[illegible] a statement by T. H. Powell, [illegible] for the exchange, statistics [illegible] show an average return of [illegible] to lemon shipments to July 1, as [illegible] average production, packing and [illegible] of $2.40 per box, leaving lemon [illegible] approximately $4,800,000 short of [illegible] cost of the season to June 1.

Mr. Powell stated that growers would have to realize an average of $5.11 per box f.o.b. California from June 1 to November 1, the end of the season, in order to bring the year's average return to the grower up to $3.40, merely the production, packing and shipping costs.

"This average return of $3.40 per box to the grower would not return a cent of profit on his investment or allow any compensation for his year's labor," said Mr. Powell.

There are 58,800 boxes of foreign lemons on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days.

SECURED BY

First Mortgage

An unusual opportunity is offered investors to participate in the issue of $3,500,000 of bonds which are to be secured by a first mortgage on the real estate, plants and equipment of the

Consolidated Textile Corporation

For each $1,000 bond of this issue outstanding there are fixed assets of approximately $2,857.00. In addition, the bonds have as security the equity in the B. B. and R. Knight Company existing after the $7,500,000 issue on that Company. For each $1,000 bond of this issue there are $8,000 of total net tangible assets. The present value of the stock, as listed on the New York Stock Exchange, is around 15. The more than 800,000 shares, therefore, have a Stock Exchange equity of about $12,000,000 junior to these bonds.

The bonds may be redeemed by the Company by paying the holder $1100 for each bond that may now be purchased for $990. After June 1, 1922, however, the premium the Company must pay will be decreased ½ of 1% each year or part thereof elapsed after June 1, 1922.

A strong sinking fund and privilege of conversion into Capital Stock at $35 per share are attractive features of the issue.

The textile business was among the very first to suffer from the liquidation last fall, and consequently has been one of the first to recuperate and is today running at practically full capacity. As a matter of fact, the mills of the Consolidated Textile Corporation are now running at 90% of capacity.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Unlike previous sessions this week, today's abbreviated but active stock market showed a broad and sharp upward swing of prices.

Gains of one to five points, to which an overconfident short interest made enforced contributions, were scattered throughout the list. Oils, rails, shippings, steels, equipments and miscellaneous issues were impartially favored.

Conspicuous strength was shown by Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Baldwin Locomotive, United Fruit, Atlantic Gulf, American Woolen, American Sugar, Sumatra Tobacco, Sears Roebuck, Reading and Southern Pacific.

United States Steel added almost two points to its recovery from the low record of Thursday and affiliated issues were two to five points above recent minimum quotations. Realizing for profit made only slight impression at the strong close. Sales, 435,000 shares.

Current news offered little explanation for the market's reversal, for most advices concerning trade and commerce again stressed conflicting conditions and the cautious attitude of buyers.

Trading in bonds was moderate and irregular, both in domestic and international issues. Total sales, par value, aggregated $4,650,000.

The clearinghouse weekly statement furnished no noteworthy features. Actual loans and discounts showed a very small decrease, considering the recent heavy liquidation. A cash contract of about $20,500,000 still left a liberal margin of excess reserves.

MEXICO

A mining engineer who has operated many years in Mexico has acquired certain very valuable properties which produced millions in gold, silver and lead prior to the revolution. A small preliminary syndicate is now being organized to own and operate them, and conservative investors with from $1,000.00 to $10,000.00 available are offered a participation. Twenty years' residence in Mexico by several members of the syndicate makes available a knowledge of Mexican law, combined with a long experience with the mines and local conditions that assure safety and exceptionally large profits.

Mexico is a country of vast natural wealth and is now on the threshold of a great boom. Many far sighted Americans are now in Mexico acquiring Mexican mine, oil and timber lands which will double in value cany times during the next few years. The members of this syndicate will profit enormously through the development of Mexico's mining resources.

Investigation by responsible parties is invited and references will be given. Full details by appointment. Tel. 65834.

Huntington Beach Oil District

Is Being Developed as Fast as Real Oil Men Can Push the work.

The Standard Oil Company of California are the pioneers of the field, have holdings that are approximate equal to all of the other companies combined. This should convince stockholders in small companies that the district has unusual merit.

During the past week many stocks—through manipulation—sold considerably below what they ought to bring.

We strongly advise against dealing with brokers who can furnish no other information than the last bid price on the stocks.

We receive daily reports from the Huntington Beach field and will gladly give this information to any one interested.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE REVIEW.

of the late Abbot Kinney, near the foot of Mt. Wilson.

The net earnings of the company have increased from $34,397.14 in 1916 to $124,311.11 in 1920, according to a statement, and the estimated earnings in 1921 will show an operating income of $100,000 available for interest charges and amortization. The new pier is approaching completion and it is said that 270 applications have been made for amusement space, although there is available only sufficient room to provide for approximately 100 concessions.

The appraisal which is said to be more than four times the amount of the loan does not include the Windward-avenue pier, which is being built at a cost in excess of $1,000,000.

This pier is built on ground leased from the city of Venice and the space thereon in turn leased to private concessionaires on substantial guarantees, who must build their own buildings and drive pilings for foundations, all of which reverts to the Abbot Kinney Company at the termination of the lease.

The bonds will be offered for sale subject to the issuance of a certificate which will certify them as a legal investment for savings banks in California. They will also be free from personal property taxes in California.

The money derived from the sale of the bonds which mature annually from June 1, 1922, to June 1, 1931, will be used for the purpose of improvements, betterments and additions to the properties of the company; to reduce bank loans, and to furnish additional working capital.

LOS ANGELES STOCKS.

The market closed strong after a week of inactivity and indecision. Stocks most in evidence were Mascot Oil, which was in good demand on a six point gain, selling from an opening at 1.30 to a high of 1.36 and a close at 1.36; Republic Petroleum which moved up from 29 to 30 cents; Tom Reed gained a point and a half during the hour's trading and closed at 69½ cents. United Eastern was a high light in the day's proceedings, 1600 shares going over on a steadily rising market which advanced from 2.46 to a strong close at 2.52½. Delaware Union was also up a point to 19.00, and Goodyear preferred joined the procession and touched 48.00. Los Angeles Investment was in fair demand around 76 cents. The better tone to the market and renewed evidence of a reviving public interest heartened the traders and led some of them to believe that the bottom of the long decline had actually been reached and that the upturn would not be much longer delayed.

FEDERAL RESERVE.

Gold reserves held by the Twelfth Federal Reserve Bank, of which the Los Angeles branch is included, have increased more than $5,000,000 in the week ended June 22, according to a comparative statement of condition at the close of business on that date. The reserves are $204,125,000 as compared with $198,956,000 for the preceding week and $180,758,000 for the corresponding week in 1920.

Other totals included in the statement show bills on hand, $50,677,000; total earning assets, $162,575,000, and total resources, $410,336,000, a decrease from $432,206,000 for the week and from $418,135,000 for the corresponding week a year ago. Total deposits are $120,783,000 and Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation, $227,210,000, which is about $2,500,000 less than the preceding week.

HAY MARKET.

Los Angeles hay exchange reports receipts for the week at seven cars, plus a large amount which arrived by trucks. The demand has been light, and the local market weak. Alfalfa shows a heavier loss in price than grain hay. Quotations are wholesale prices in carload lots. For prices to consumers drayage and handling charges must be added according to conditions:

No. 1 dairy alfalfa, $18 to $20 per ton.

Standard alfalfa, $15 to $16 per ton.

No. 1 barley hay, $20 to $21 per ton.

No. 1 tame oat hay, $24 to $25 per ton.

Stock hay, $14 per ton.

COMANCHE DIVIDEND.

Announcement is made by the Comanche Oil and Refining Company, through H. J. Mallen & Co., that the companys books will close for the current month on June 28, and that stockholders of record will participate in the monthly 2 per cent dividend payable July 1.

GLOBE GRAIN DIVIDEND.

Books of the Globe Grain Milling Company will close on Monday preparatory to the payment, on July 1, of a quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on preferred stock.

BABBITTS GOOD SELLERS.

Hunter, Dulin & Co., syndicate managers for the recent issue of Babbitt Bros. Lands, Inc., first mortgage 8 per cent serial bonds, report a favorable response from the investing public. Although the company has been in active operation for over thirty-five years, this is the first opportunity the general public has had of investing in the enterprise.

It is pointed out that although the physical security behind these bonds is more than ample of no less importance, is the high rating the Babbitt Brothers enjoy among those who are in a position to know and appreciate them and whose personal guarantee the bonds carry.

TRACK BARLEY UP; FUTURES WEAKER.

The local grain market continued dull and featureless yesterday, with little interest shown in any of the shipments of barley, and no sales of the cereal were recorded. The near-by shipments were slightly firmer at the close, track barley showing a gain of 25 cents, while the twenty-day delivery moved up 50 cents per ton. The futures, however, continued weak and dull, both August and December barley taking a drop of 75 cents during the session. The only sale consisted of the transfer of a car of Utah-Idaho 80's for San Bernardino diversion at $31.50.

CLEARINGS IN EXCESS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $28,368,500 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $20,438,200 from last week.

Sugar Tumbles Again.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—One of the largest refineries announced today a decrease of 10 cents a hundred pounds in the price of sugar to the retailers. The new price is $6.80 per hundredweight.

BRECKENRIDGE SYNDICATE PLAN

630% Cash Dividends

Paid to Unit holders since last November by the "Y.M.C.A." and "BLOCK 41" Syndicate of Breckenridge, Texas, and they are still paying.

Thousands have won fortunes in the Breckenridge oil field. Development there is still in its infancy. But most of the acreage in the proven territory is beyond reach now.

The Hellenic Oil Syndicate

has forty acres in the very cream of this field and has contracted for four wells. The first of these is now drilling at 1500 feet. "Lucky George" Anderson, who managed the splendidly successful "Y.M.C.A." and "BLOCK 41" Syndicates, is managing the HELLENIC SYNDICATE.

There are just 1500 units in the HELLENIC, selling for $100 each, and unit holders receive seven-eighths of all oil the syndicate receives from the four wells.

We Have and Offer

A limited number of HELLENIC units at $100. It will be first come, first served.

The HELLENIC chances for big dividends are four times as great as either the "Y.M.C.A." and "BLOCK 41."

Information cheerfully given. Call, phone or write.

LOCAL BANKER'S WILSHIRE HOME.
Between 6th st. & Wilshire Blvd.

An ideal 2½-story frame dwelling in the pink of condition throughout, artistically decorated and conveniently arranged. Twelve rooms in all, and a finished attic with two rooms and bath. Think owner would include the elegant drapes and hangings at the unfurnished price. Priced right, so look at it. Property carries $9000 first mortgage at 6 per cent.

$46,500.
ONE OF WILSHIRE'S REALLY FINE HOMES.
White plaster, tiled roof, lot 100x150.

THIS PRICE INCLUDES THE MAGNIFICENT RUGS AND DRAPERIES WHICH ARE WORTH AT LEAST $12,000.

The house and lot alone are worth $45,000 and more, but in order to force an immediate sale the owner is making this special offering. The rugs include some exceptionally rare orientals and none of them are more than 1½ years old. Fact is, this home is probably as elegantly furnished as any home in the entire city. The house itself is exceptionally well built and finished in finest solid mahogany downstairs. Every wall and ceiling canvased and hand painted. Two baths on second floor, tiled walls and floor and tubs tiled in, too. Maid's room and bath downstairs. Two-story double garage, the upstairs elegantly finished with 2 rooms, kitchen and bath. This is a bona-fide bargain offering, but you will never know it until you've seen it yourself. Call Mr. Williams, 10745; evenings, 567183.

FOR SALE—

A HOME WITH AN INCOME.

Every homeseeker is anxious to secure the right kind of a home in the right location at the right price. The planning of a home is an art. We improve this art in accordance with the development of our artistic tendencies. I have been building homes in California for years; everyone who lives in an ARENSON home enjoys a certain sense of genuine home comfort, refinement and interest. I pay special attention to little details in building that other builders don't thnik worth while bothering with. It's because I love my work and love good craftsmanship.

The type of a home of six spacious rooms, library, two baths, etc., which I occupy, typifies as an ideal home should be. The most interesting feature in the arrangement of this plan is while this is a duplex structure in name, it by no means is indicative of being duplex in appearance. Then from the standpoint of income it is the safest and most profitable kind of an investment. It brings in say three thousand dollars a year, or 20 per cent net. The price is only $21,500, part cash will handle it.

I have two more such choice pieces of property under construction, in a wonderful neighborhood in the Wilshire district, close to downtown, at a bargain.

A. ARENSON,

FOR SALE—BY OWNER AND BUILDER.
SIX BEAUTIFUL HOMES ON NORTH KENMORE AVENUE
BETWEEN MELROSE AVENUE AND SANTA MONICA BOULEVARD.
PREWAR PRICES FROM $8250.

Prospective purchasers will do well to inspect these splendidly constructed homes. The owner and builder bought the land as raw acreage and has converted it into what is undoubtedly one of the finest residence streets in Los Angeles, reached by both red and yellow car lines, a stone's throw from new State University, and immediately adjacent to and midway between Hollywood and Wilshire.

Some of these beautiful places are of brick construction, some of stucco, some of hollow tile and others of frame work and plaster. All were designed by skilled architects, specializing in fine residential work and every detail of construction was executed by careful mechanics who knew their work and are proud of a good job.

The houses are situated in the 800 and 900 blocks on North Kenmore avenue, just west of the Branch State University, and are open for inspection every day to anyone interested in fine construction work.

The owner has deliberately reduced the prices in every case, some as much as $1300, and the new prices are guaranteed against further reductions.

FOR SALE—

THREE YEARS ago I bought NEW a beautiful WILSHIRE home, eight rooms, two baths, double garage, mahogany and ivory finish. Wife and I lavished money and time to beautify the grounds and interior, as our PERMANENT home. Awnings, flowers, fruit trees, new paint and decorations have made it BETTER than new. I bought it for ALL CASH—a bargain in bargain time.

LAST WEEK a telegram advises me of urgent business that takes me away for a year or more. NO BUILDER TODAY can duplicate the bare house and lot for $18,500, but I do not expect a profit, and I will sell for $16,000 and make terms to a prompt buyer. Call 66740 Monday, ask for MR. BATTELLE.

A PALATIAL ESTATE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL HOME,

AND GARDENS

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

$275,000.

MOST COMPLETELY AND ELEGANTLY FURNISHED.

THIS DELIGHTFUL ESTATE

CONSISTS OF 9½ ACRES.

Located within 10 minutes of Hollywood and equidistant from Wilshire's center, convenient to downtown business district. Situated on a beautiful knoll, with an uninterrupted view, extending from the mountains to the sea and overlooking the entire city of Los Angeles and Hollywood.

This home is not too large but very complete; constructed of solid concrete and tile, has many porches, from each of which the view is unsurpassed. The decorations were done by Tiffany. The arrangement is ideal, and every detail for comfort and home charm has been incorporated in this wonderful villa. The furnishings are of the very best, as no expense has been spared to make harmony and elegance supreme.

The grounds are really enchanting, its velvety lawns, tropical fruits, oriental shrubs, mountain pines, water falls and miniature Grand Canyon, delights one's vision at every turn. Has 15 miles of sprinkler system, winding walks and roads.

It is impossible in this space to more than give an idea of the beauty, charm and vista that this home bespeaks. For further information see

FOR SALE—

MY WILSHIRE BEAUTY FOR $1500 CASH DOWN and balance less than rent—and at a REDUCTION OF $2000. This is the last of six fine white cement bungalows I began building last winter, to sell for $10,500. SIX large rooms, finest oak floors and ivory finish, TILED BATH and tiled sink, auto water heater, two dandy bedrooms and breakfast-room, garage, big lot 50x165. NOW GET THIS, PLEASE: Although the ACTUAL saving in building this today compared to last winter is only $465, I am closing out my building business and this is MY LAST ONE. That's why, instead of reducing the price $465 I'll reduce it $2000 and make it $8500, $1500 down to responsible party. I made a profit on the others. For appointment call 66740 after Sunday, ask for MR. DARE.

FOR SALE—
BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GROVE.
BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GROVE.
VERY EASY TERMS.
VERY EASY TERMS.

Here is an opportunity for a couple of capable and energetic young fellows who know the orange business, to take over a fine young producing property, and practically pay for it out of the crops. There are Valencias; navels, a few peaches, figs and prunes; 30,000 grape rootings ready to set out next winter; two tractors, plows, harrows, subsoiler; motors and pumps and plenty of water.

There are lots of ambitious and responsible young men who should jump at such a chance to expand and grow, and before they know it they will be worth a hundred thousand dollars and starting from almost nothing.

The price is $125,000 and worth it; a very small payment down, or a good piece of approved real estate put up to show good faith will suffice and you can have 10, 15 or even 20 years at 5 per cent interest and taxes to pay it out.

MINES AND MINING.

OIL SHORTAGE IS INCREASING—

No better investment can be made now than test holes in new territory. The country needs all the oil you can find, and you have a safe and sure market.

Don't resort to old-fashioned methods of drilling, with large and expensive machinery. Never forget the cost of a hole increases in the approximate proportion to the "square of its diameter."

So drill small diameter holes with the latest and most efficient portable machine ever built for territories from 800 to 2500 ft. deep. Write for particulars and circulars.

APARTMENT-HOUSE OFFERING

House located in the Westlake district, containing 65 rooms, well furnished; lease almost 5 years. Lease and furniture can be bought for $28,000. Some terms.

LONG BEACH APARTMENTS

Furniture and lease of Long Beach apartment-hotel, which has never before been offered for sale, can be had for $28,000 cash. This place contains about 125 rooms, is located close to the beach and has been doing a gross business in excess of $50,000 per year and nets over $20,000 per year.

COUNTRY HOTEL.

House located in the oil district of the San Joaquin Valley, operated for years by the owner of the property itself. He has decided to retire and offers the furniture and lease of this modern house, containing about 65 rooms, at the very low price of $18,000. This hotel has always been a money-maker and can be considered a real bargain. New lease for 10 years. Place clears over $10,000 per year.

BUNGALOW HOTEL PROPERTY

We have in one of the most exclusive districts of Los Angeles a magnificent residence and a number of additional buildings, located on about 7 acres of high landscaped grounds. This can be easily converted into a wonderful bungalow hotel. The owner will accept about one-third of the total price in cash. This would require a capital of about $75,000 to handle.

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY HOTEL

House of 150 rooms, located in one of the greatest business communities in Western America, doing a strictly commercial business. The net profits of this business during the past year amounted to over $80,000. Improvements costing about $35,000 have just been completed on the property. The furniture and lease on this place can be bought for $80,000, of this amount $50,000 must be cash.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE SOME REAL MONEY IN PECOS COUNTY OIL AND OIL LEASES?

This is not a stock, syndicate or promotional proposition of any kind. Just a plain, clean-cut, honest-to-goodness business proposition.

I have just secured three large tracts of 10 and 20-year leases with low rentals, in the eastern part of Pecos county, in the fastest growing oil field in the State of Texas, where they produce oil that brings $10 per barrel.

These leases are situated on excellent oil structures, located and passed on by the world's greatest geologists.

I am going to drill an oil well on each of these three tracts at my own expense and I now have $50,000 on hand, with which to start this proposition, and I am going to put it over with my own money.

I will drill these three wells for the benefit of the people who buy these leases and the purchasers of said leases will share equally in 7-8ths of the production of the entire three wells. I am going to start drilling these wells right away.

I will sell these leases and give you a contract for your part of the production for from $1 to $2 per acre, and will give you terms, if you want it.

I have complete abstracts of titles to these leases and will guarantee all titles to be perfect.

This is the greatest opportunity ever offered good, live agents and salesmen, to make from $500 to $1000 per week. You can easily sell these leases at from $5 to $10 per acre.

Can furnish you with the latest maps, showing locations of my leases, and all drilling and producing wells, and will send literature, pictures and complete drilling report of the Pecos county field.

This is not a speculation, but a real investment. Write or wire me for prices.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE SOME REAL MONEY IN PECOS COUNTY OIL AND OIL LEASES?

This is not a stock, syndicate or promotional proposition of any kind. Just a plain, clean-cut, honest-to-goodness business proposition.

I have just secured three large tracts of 10 and 20-year leases with low rentals, in the eastern part of Pecos county, in the fastest growing oil field in the State of Texas, where they produce oil that brings $10 per barrel.

These leases are situated on excellent oil structures, located and passed on by the world's greatest geologists.

I am going to drill an oil well on each of these three tracts at my own expense and I now have $50,000 on hand, with which to start this proposition, and I am going to put it over with my own money. I will drill these three wells for the benefit of the people who buy these leases and the purchasers of said leases will share equally in 7-8ths of the production of the entire three wells. I am going to start drilling these wells right away.

I will sell these leases and give you a contract for your part of the production for from $1 to $2 per acre, and will give you terms, if you want it.

I have complete abstracts of titles to these leases and will guarantee all titles to be perfect.

This is the greatest opportunity ever offered good, live agents and salesmen, to make from $500 to $1000 per week. You can easily sell these leases at from $5 to $10 per acre.

Can furnish you with the latest maps, showing locations of my leases, and all drilling and producing wells, and will send literature, pictures and complete drilling report of the Pecos county field.

This is not a speculation, but a real investment. Write or wire me for prices.

A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY!
FOR INVESTORS IN PRODUCING OIL WELLS.
Responsible and long established investment firm with unblemished record offers unusual opportunity for oil stock investors in amounts ranging from $100 to $5000. We represent a reliable company that owns over 1000 acres of proven oil leases with two wells now developed and producing over 300 barrels daily. Additional funds needed immediately to drill further wells and connect up with pipe lines, also erecting tanks and other equipment. This is not a gamble but a sure-fire investment with a written minimum guarantee of 20 per cent annual dividends secured by firm's tangible assets and leases. Every statement made can be proven. You are not asked to buy "oil stock," but a SHARE IN THE COMPANY'S LEASES AND PROVEN OIL PRODUCTION. In other words, your money is ABSOLUTELY SECURED AND BIG DIVIDENDS GUARANTEED. See us quickly. MR. LAMBERT, Room 1210 Hibernian Bldg., corner 4th & Spring.

ARE you organizing a company? Save the usual incorporating expenses, avoid personal liability, excess profits taxes and State reports. Organize on the common law plan under a DECLARATION OF TRUST, like so many excellent companies are organized. DEMAREE STANDARD FORMS (approved by attorneys) furnish complete equipment, with which anyone in any State can organize a company, issue shares and begin doing business the same day. The cost of a complete outfit is very small. Ask for circular B-37 containing full descriptions. C. S. DEMAREE, Legal Blank Printer, 613 Walnut, Kansas City, Mo.

PORT NOTES.

The giant Standard Oil tanker Sylvan Arrow, one of the largest vessels of the company's fleet, arrived at the harbor yesterday to load a full cargo of oil for Nagasaki.

The Norwegian tanker La Habra, under charter to the Union Oil Company, also arrived for an off-shore cargo, loading here for Valparaiso.

With a party of officials of the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company and of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company aboard, the new oil tanker Scopas was given her official trial trip yesterday. The vessel is the first of three 8500-ton tankers to be built at the Southwestern yard for this company. Capt. Hugo Frerichs took the Scopas to sea yesterday. She will be turned over to the Shell Company this week at San Francisco.

The Los Angeles Shipbuilding & Drydock Company has a large crew of men at work on the disabled freighter Harry Luckenbach, which was towed into the harbor Friday from Magdalena Bay with her boilers burned out. Efforts are being made to have the vessel ready for sea by next Wednesday, when she will be taken to San Francisco.

Repairs are continuing on the disabled freighter West Jena, which returned to port Friday morning after sailing the night previous for the East Indies. A shattered air pump caused the return of the freighter.

After working all night discharging cargo, the freighter Lewis Luckenbach sailed yesterday afternoon for San Francisco. The steamer discharged 1000 tons of freight here in twenty-four hours.

The big sailing vessel Rose Mahony has been chartered to load lumber on Gray's Harbor for Los Angeles Harbor. The vessel is one of the largest fore-and-aft rigged ships on the Pacific, and will bring about 2,000,000 feet of lumber. She arrived at San Francisco recently from Buenos Aires.

WASHINGTON NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Coal operators of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania and the United Mine Workers of America are charged with conspiracy to bring about the miners' strike in the West Virginia and Kentucky fields by Harry Olmsted, chairman of the Williamson Coal Operators' Association, who says he is going to submit evidence in the case to the Senate investigating committee.

To date the government has disbursed $226,486,591 in meeting compensation claims of disabled soldiers of the World War and death claims of dependents.

Former President Wilson was admitted today to practice of law before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, being accompanied to the court by his law partner, former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby.

Members of the special Panama mission to the United States, protesting against this government's determination that Panama accept the White award in the boundary dispute with Costa Rica, said today they would yield if they must, but that it would be with a feeling of oppression "by a mighty nation."

Representative Fordney today gave assurances to business that there would be tax-revision legislation at this session and that tax hearings would begin next month as soon as the House disposes of the tariff bill to be reported next week.

May production of petroleum in the United States was the greatest on record, 41,920,000 barrels.

With the return to the capital next week of Senator Lodge, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, administration leaders are hopeful that an agreement can be reached on the resolution of peace with the Central Powers of Europe.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 25.—Liquidation and professional pressure this week caused more losses and low records in the financial and commodity markets.

Almost every rally in stocks was a signal for increased pressure and lower quotations, until many shares which figured in the table of averages were 75 to 200 points below maximum quotations of the war period.

Attention was temporarily diverted from Mexican Petroleum and other speculative features by a break in United States Steel, whose heaviness was accompanied by more pessimistic reports from leading industrial centers.

Save in a few cases, including the textile trade, the business outlook as viewed by conservative authorities showed no improvement. Slower collections were reported by commercial agencies, with further contraction of buying power.

Sharp declines in exports last month—in many instances a drop of 50 per cent as compared with May, 1920—had a vital bearing on banking institutions organized to handle postwar foreign trade and the pioneer organization of that character announced voluntary liquidation.

Lowering of the British bank rate, despite adverse industrial and economic conditions abroad, hardly affected the international money market. All foreign exchanges were lower here, with fewer dealings than any time since the extensive reactionary sterling bills.

Domestic money rates eased. Traders expressed belief that local and interior banks would offer time loans more liberally in the year's third quarter.

AERIAL FIRE PATROL.

Government Assigns Flyers to Duty at March Field.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, June 25.—Forest fire patrol service for the summer season will be inaugurated at March Field next week. Capt. R. L. Walsh of the Ninth Aero Squadron, Mather Field, Sacramento, is here with instructions from Air Service headquarters at San Francisco to organize the patrol unit at March Field. Capt. A. F. Herold will be patrol officer at this base.

It is stated that at least six DeHaviland 4-B's will be used on two patrols, one of which will cover the Cleveland Reserve in the San Jacinto Mountain region and the Angeles Reserve in the San Bernardino Mountains. The other will be over Mt. Wilson, and will extend from March Field to Santa Barbara.

Forester J. B. Stephenson of the Cleveland Reserve has been assigned to duty as liaison officer at this station.

AGED MAN VICTIM OF AUTO ACCIDENT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, June 25. — Becoming confused as he was crossing Hamilton avenue, near Second street, this morning, Alonzo A. Garrison, 70 years of age, living at 1094 West Third street, stepped directly in the path of an automobile driven by Mrs. G. P. Simmers, 1151 South Hamilton, and was struck down.

Fortunately Mrs. Simmers was driving at a moderate rate of speed and stopped the car almost instantly. The injured man was attended by Dr. W. H. Eaton and Dr. N. U. Stoneman, who found he was suffering severe scalp wounds and bruises, but was not dangerously hurt. He was later removed to the Pomona Valley Hospital.

BANKER ADVISES TRADING CENTERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ZELZAH, June 24.—The Zelzah Chamber of Commerce, as a result of a banquet drive held at the Community Clubhouse, has added fifty new names to its roster.

J. W. Branson, president of the chamber, acted as toastmaster. The principal speakers of the evening were F. W. Prince, vice-president of the San Fernando National Bank; Mark Grimes, head of the Farm Bureau at Van Nuys; A. E. Streeter, director of the Van Nuys Chamber of Commerce; E. R. Elkins, director of the San Fernando Fair, and A. C. Crissey, president of the Valley Homes Company.

Mr. Prince dwelt upon the advisability of building up small towns as community centers throughout the valley so that the ranchers may have easy and ample trading facilities, and urged the ranchers to diversify their farming so that a failure of any one crop may not mean disaster.

WOMAN RESENTS KICK IN STOMACH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, June 25.—Because, as she alleges, after finding Mrs. Savana Jamarillo sitting in the lap of Jesus del Rios, Mrs. Jamarillo became violent and kicked her in the stomach, Mrs. Marie del Rios, wife of the "man in the case," sought to have the alleged assailant locked up. Mrs. Del Rios testified that she found her husband in the house of Mrs. Jamarillo and that the attack followed her remonstrance over the one-chair episode. Mrs. Jamarillo was permitted to go on her own recognizance pending her appearance Monday.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR ORANGE.

Company Formed to Promote Wire and Cable Factory.

Manager Comes from Big Plant in Middle West.

First Venture of the Kind on Pacific Coast

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, June 25.—The first wire factory west of the Mississippi River, capitalized at $200,000 by local capital and under local management, will begin operations in Orange, October 1. The establishment will manufacture all classes of electric wire and cable.

Articles of incorporation are being prepared and a purchase of two and one-half acres within the townsite for the location of the plant and the ordering of machinery has already been authorized. The company will be known as the California Wire Company, and has for president, Louis Koth; vice-president, F. W. Struck; secretary and treasurer, F. A. Grote, with William King and W. C. Matthias the remaining members of the directorate.

Mr. Kothe was former manager of the Illinois Wire and Cable Company of Sycamore, Ill., a plant that supplied a large trade in the South and West. The other members of the company are local capitalists and practical business men, Mr. Grote, the vice-president, being a member of the pioneer mercantile company of Uhlen and Grote, this city.

The company has secured as sales manager Fred H. Alden, who held the same position formerly in the Sycamore establishment, while two experienced foremen from the same factory will launch the local business. A large building on the newly-purchased site will be used as the factory, with an 80 by 134-foot addition, and a spur track from the Pacific Electric will be run through the grounds. These buildings will later be replaced by larger and permanent ones. The building of an office will be begun at once.

Mr. Koth, the president who has made his home in this city since his retirement from the Illinois plant, considers the future of the business as unlimited in scope and expansion, considering the demand for the product on this coast and the undeveloped market for the same.

The new business will be a splendid asset to this locality, both in the way of business and advertising.

TO HONOR MEMORY OF FALLEN HERO.

LEGION MEN ATTEND FUNERAL OF FIRST CALIFORNIAN KILLED IN ACTION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, June 25.—American Legion men from all over the Citrus Belt are to pay their last respects Monday afternoon to the memory of Ralph Theodore Kingery, first California man to be killed in action in the World War and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kingery, 318 East E street, whose body reached Ontario today from France, accompanied by a military escort.

Funeral services under the direction of Ontario Post are to be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 at City Hall Park. State Legion Commander Buron Fitts is scheduled to be present and invitations to attend the services have been extended to the posts of San Bernardino, Arrowhead, Redlands, Riverside, Corona, Claremont, Pomona, Upland and other near-by cities.

The Rev. R. C. Stone, pastor of the Upland Presbyterian Church, and prominent in war work during the great conflict, is to be the officiant, assisted by E. J. Sandford, chaplain of Ontario Post, American Legion.

The body is to lie in state at Draper's undertaking chapel Sunday, from 2 to 9 p.m.

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion, formerly the Ontario War Mothers' Club, are to attend the funeral in a body, as will also members of Ontario Post, G.A.R., and the Ontario Woman's Relief Corps. Arthur I. Peterson, commander of the Ontario Legion Post, is in charge of the arrangements.

Mayor Willard D. Ball has issued a proclamation directing that all flags in the city be placed at half-mast and all business houses have been requested to close their doors during the hour of the funeral.

Interment is to be in Bellevue Cemetery and arrangements have been made for a firing squad at the grave.

ART LURES THRONGS.

Rozaire, Hartman, Bartlett Paintings at Exposition Park.

The exhibition of paintings by Arthur Rozaire, Bertram Hartman and Dana Bartlett has attracted many visitors to the Art Gallery at the Museum at Exposition Park during the last week. This exhibit will be closed Thursday.

Mr. Rozaire, who is a member of the National Academy, in Canada, shows about ninety-five paintings, many of which are out-of-door sketches, very small, and seen through the eyes of a painter in love with the snow fields of the North.

Mr. Bartlett has been in Los Angeles for a number of years. His paintings of portions of the Grand Canyon of the Arizona are full of light and vibration.

The exhibition of twenty-five paintings by Bertram Hartman comes from the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts.

At the close of the exhibition the art students of the Otis Art Institute will show the best work of the year at the gallery for the following week, ending July 8.

Pasadena Police Charge Autoist With Recklessness.

Crown City Burglar Fancies Silk Undergarments.

Board Not to Change Schedule of Teachers' Pay.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, June 24.—Following a collision of his automobile with one driven by Miss Elsie Brandt, 4 Marengo Court, in which Miss Brandt was injured, and a collision with Hackett Seckler, a motorcyclist, in which the cyclist was injured, Carl P. McNulty, Pasadena realty dealer, is at liberty on $1000 bond today under a charge of driving an automobile when intoxicated.

It is reported that several bystanders threatened McNulty with violence following the collisions, which occurred at Colorado street and Marengo avenue. Neither Miss Brandt nor Mr. Heckler was injured seriously. They said that McNulty drove his car into them at a fast rate of speed as they were waiting at the Marengo corner for the cross-tide of traffic to pass.

McNulty's bail, originally fixed at $5000, was reduced to $1000 and was furnished by C. R. Pyle. His preliminary hearing before Justice R. G. Thompson was set for next Wednesday morning.

TAKES SILK NIGHTIES.

A lingerie burglar is at work here. Last night he, or she, entered the home of R. W. Campbell, on Altadena Drive, and stole several hundred dollars' worth of men's and women's clothes belonging to members of the household. Not the least part of the sartorial loot were women's silk nightgowns, bloomers and other dainties of feminine apparel.

NO CHANGE IN SIGHT.

The Pasadena Board of Education probably will reject the proposal to adopt the Los Angeles teachers' salary schedule and will retain the present Pasadena schedule without change for the coming year at its meeting next Tuesday, according to those who are close to school board affairs.

The teachers have been agitating an increase in the schedule since the Los Angeles schedule was raised, but members of the local board are believed to be not in favor of the Los Angeles plan, which would involve in some instances a revision of classes and teaching regime here.

SUNDAY CONCERT.

Another Sunday concert of the municipal series will be given tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock in Library Park. The concert will be by the Pasadena Concert Band, H. G. Simpson conducting, and with Jack Regan, saxophonist, as soloist.

ROAD CREWS ON HARD SCHEDULE.

Cover Whole Southwest Charting New Territory.

Highway Information Kept Right Up to the Minute.

Auto Club Has Best Advice for Motor Campers.

New road information for motorists who are planning to take trips during the next two weeks will be ready tomorrow, according to an announcement made yesterday by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Where do you wish to go, Mr. Motorist, and how are you going to get there? Here is the territory just covered by club cars. Look it over and see if it offers any suggestions for your summer tours.

VALUE TO MOTORISTS.

One of the touring bureau cars just returned from San Diego county having covered every road, all fishing streams and all lakes, also charted 380 miles of new secondary highways.

The road car left Friday night of last week to cover Kernville, Fairview and the Kern River district, Walker's Pass via Weldon Canyon and Freeman, Tehachepi, Bakersfield and through the orange grove district of Porterville to Sequoia National Park. Thence via Badger into General Grant, Hume and the Kings River Canyon, returning to Visalia via the Sand Creek road, going north from there to Fresno, going up past Aubry and Shaefer Lake, which was recently purchased by the Edison Power Company, to Cascada and Huntington Lake.

Then the car will come back over the old logging road through Clovis to Fresno, thence to the Pines and Bass Lake to Glacier Point and down into Yosemite Valley, out over the Big Oak Flat road through Stockton to Sacramento, east to the Placerville-Folsom road to Tahoe and around the lake past Emerald Bay to Rockaway Beach. Then back to Tahoe Tavern, down the Truckee River to Truckee and to Lake Independence, back through Truckee past Donor Lake, over Donor Grade to Colfax and Auburn to Sacramento, then through the famous Brett-Hart county of Amador, Jackson and Round Top to Hope Valley and Tahoe, then south over the Kingsbury grade through the town that Mary Pickford made famous.

INTERESTING ROUTE.

From here the route will be Minden, Nev., to Mono Lake and over the Tioga Road to Yosemite, back to Mono, down to Silver Lake, Grant Lake, Walker Lake, then to the Mammoth Lake resort, taking in the Devil's Post Pile, Lake George, Lake Mary and Twin Lakes, then to Bishop, then Bishop Creek, then south through the Owens Valley, returning via Red Rock Canyon, Mohave, Willow Springs and Elizabeth Lake.

Total mileage of trip 3200, of which 1300 miles consists of new charting.

Another car is finishing and will be home this week after covering Montgomery Pass, Mina, Hawthorn and Northwestern Nevada.

One of our other road cars is at present gathering information and recharting the section of the Pacific Highway to Grant's Pass, returning through the famous redwood district of Humbolt and Del Norte county, returning home via Crescent City, Eureka and the Coast Highway. Total number of miles covered by road cars for the first six months of 1921, 117,331. This covers not only California, but part of Oregon, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Texas.

BUILD SPECIAL TO CARRY AUTOMOBILES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLINT (Mich.) June 25.—With 249 Buick automobiles aboard the first specially built automobile train in America left Flint for Charlotte, N. C., recently, the train having been specially designed and built for the transportation of automobiles.

The automobile freight cars were constructed to fill the present day needs, just as furniture, oil and live stock cars were fabricated to fill the needs of the days when they were developed.

The train was designed and built for C. C. Coddington, Buick distributor in North Carolina, and is owned by him. It consisted of fifty cars, forty-nine of them automobile cars and the last a train master's car which carried two automobiles in the forward compartment and quarters for the train master in the rear.

NAME SALES DIRECTOR FOR YELLOW CAB FIRM.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) June 25. — Announcement of the appointment of H. C. Bradfield of Detroit as director of sales and advertising for the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company of this city, is made by that company. Mr. Bradfield, who has been president and general manager of the Bradfield Company, Detroit, has discontinued his Detroit business and is now with the Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company.

The Yellow Cab Manufacturing Company, in addition to being the largest manufacturers of taxicabs also manufactures Yellow Cab trucks in the three-quarter and one and one-quarter-ton capacities and a six-cylinder high-grade motor car—the Ambassador. The company is on a capacity schedule for their plant at the present time with no unbalanced inventory or unsold finished stock.

COLLINS IS JOINED BY HIS COLLEAGUES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) June 25.—Announcement is made that Benjamin H. Anibal, chief engineer for the Cadillac Motor Car Company, has resigned to accept a similar position with R. H. Collins in the building of the new Collins eight.

Mr. Anibal has been connected with the Cadillac company about eight years and those familiar with this and the Collins organization freely predict that other executives will follow to the Collins factory of the Durant organization.

GASOLINE MILEAGE GREATLY INCREASED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, June 25.—An invention which, combined with the "fuelizer," is said greatly to increase gasoline mileage is announced by the Packard Motor Car Company in connection with its single six cars. It is a new style carburetor designed to give automatically a mixture which meets the needs of either heavy or light pulling. It is known as the two-stage jet carburetor.

VIGOROUS ATTEMPT TO CUT MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

Drive Carefully in National Parks, on the Boulevards, in Traffic, Everywhere, Says Club.

BY GORDON GASSAWAY.

Accidents are old-fashioned—if you want to be up-to-date you'll own "the car without a scratch."

The car-without-a-scratch idea is spreading over the State, and according to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California, who are behind the movement, it is being taken up by individual car owners in a manner undreamed of.

CUTTING THEM DOWN.

In cities, towns and mountains during the summer, there will be concerted attempts to minimize the number of vacation accidents.

Along with the Auto Club stands the Chamber of Commerce here in a determination to preserve as many children as possible to posterity. At the rate children have been killed off during the past few weeks by motorists, this part of the State will be very thinly populated in twenty years' time, say the authorities.

Modern motorists don't drive recklessly any more. There was a time, points out the club, when it was stylish to be reckless in handling your motor car.

Youths and infant truck drivers thought it was "smart" to sail around corners at break-neck speed, or to run across street intersections with no regard for others. But now the infant truck drivers are dissuaded against such practices by their employers, and the average youth has learned that he is not fashionable if he gets mauled up in an accident.

QUITE DIFFERENT.

It's not—"How many have you killed this year?" which makes up the average drawing-room conversation of a group of motorists any more. It is "How many lives have you spared this summer?"

In some localities all the caution necessary it not being observed, however. Some motorists think that when they are out of sight of the tall buildings, they can get reckless.

A mad rush to the national parks, camp sites and mountains of California this year, unprecedented in volume, is occasioning serious consideration from forest reserve supervisors and those in authority over the various parks.

Serious accidents have already resulted from the scurry on the part of auto owners to get into and out of the parks, such as Sequoia, Yosemite and General Grant, point out

PINK SHEET NEWS SUMMARY

AUTOMOBILES. Calamity howlers given a setback by rapidly increasing production in motor-car plants around Detroit. Rush of orders coming in to many leading manufacturers and the outlook for the season is considered very good.

Reports from tire manufacturers at Akron indicate that a prosperous season is directly ahead. Many of the larger plants are running on almost normal schedules and casing production is jumping rapidly. Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and Mason are all optimistic over future conditions.

Auto Club deplores heavy accident toll among Los Angeles motorists and launches a "Own a car without a scratch" campaign. Reckless driving is no longer considered fashionable and the few who persist are going to be educated along the present stylish lines. Even minor accidents should be stopped and smashed fenders, etc., are going to be "not done" at all.

Charting crews sent out by the Auto Club are bringing in latest highway information from all over the West for Southern California motorists. Much new territory is being surveyed on these trips.

DIMMER LAWS TO BE STRICTLY ENFORCED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, June 24.—Scores of automobile owners in California are laying themselves liable to arrest through the violation, intentionally or otherwise, of the headlight dimmer law of the State. This is the statement of Charles J. Chenu, superintendent of the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Many complaints have been received at the headquarters here, and Chenu is determined to right conditions if possible. He believes that many drivers are not purposely nor defiantly violating the law, but nevertheless, he say, they must give the lights of their machines the proper attention.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BASEBALL VS. MOTOR CARS.

Los Angeles Leads the League in Number of Automobile-Driving Fans.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

One of the kinky little things which it is hard to get straightened out in your mind is the large number who go to the baseball games in automobiles without lessening the packed condition of the street cars about game time.

The privately-owned flivver doesn't seem to have hurt the street cars any more than the privately-owned safety razor has put the barbers out of business. At least, while hanging from a strap you don't notice that anything of the sort has happened. Sometimes, in fact, you get an idea that the street cars have all the business they can handle.

Countless thousands probably shave themselves now who wouldn't have taken a chance with the old broadsword type of razor, and equally countless thousands who formerly patronized the trolleys now own their own steering knuckles. It must be that there are more whiskers in the world than formerly, and more people who ride.

Not only did the Los Angeles club last season out-draw all minor league attendance records in the United States for all time up to date, and distance some of the major league marks, but a census of the flivvers probably would show that annually more automobiles visit the local park than any other in the country.

Not infrequently, literally solid acres of cars are to be seen parkeed adjacent to the Washington street park, with long strings of them leaning against the curb for blocks on adjacent streets.

There are various reasons for this. Parking space here is rather plentiful, while a majority of the major league ball parks are located in congested districts. Furthermore, in a majority of eastern cities the games are not patronized as largely by the motoring class. And such as do generally taxi out. In towns like St. Louis and Cincinnati there is not as large a leisure class as here, as proven by the small week-day crowds. The attendance, which is larger on Saturday and Sunday, is made up to a very considerable extent of workers of one sort and another.

A big taxi business is done at both Chicago parks, and there is quite a

WARNS AGAINST MOTOR THIEVES.

C. S. Morrill Explains How the Bandits Work.

Professionals Have System Down to Fine Point.

Cunning Tricks Employed to Steal Motor Cars.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, June 24.—Cunning, crafty and numerous are the methods used by the professional automobile thieves that operate in California at the expense of the motoring public.

C. S. Morrill, superintendent of the State bureau of criminal identification and investigation, who is in a position to acquaint himself with the ways of the auto thief, has issued a statement advising the autoists of their clever practices.

FAVORITE WAYS.

Here are a few of the favorite methods employed by the thieves as told by Morrill:

A professional automobile thief, specializing on a certain make of large touring car, located a sedan on a business street in Los Angeles. The thief had acquainted himself with the habits of the owner, and found that the car always was protected by a front wheel theft signal, but the owner would absent himself from the machine for hours at a time.

On the day set for the theft the thief approached the police officer on the beat, and after explaining he was the owner of the car, but had lost the key to the safety lock, asked the officer to stand by while he cut the lock off the wheel.

"I don't want any passer-by to think I am attempting to steal the machine," explained the thief.

EASY ENOUGH.

The officer proceeded to the car with the thief and stood by it while the lock was removed, and watched the thief drive away in the new sedan.

A man and woman ride leisurely through the residential district in a touring car, the woman driving. The man apparently is teaching the woman how to drive. When near the car they intend stealing the woman appears to become confused and locks her front wheel with the rear wheel of the car to be stolen.

The "teacher" gets out of the car, looks the situation over and decides that the only way to extricate the machine is to get into the one he intends to steal and drive it forward. As soon as he gets the motor started he drives the machine off at a rapid rate of speed, the woman following close behind.

GOOD ALIBI.

Should the thief be caught in the car before getting the machine started, he would explain to the owner that he was just moving the car a trifle so his "student" could get out without damage to either car.

Another successful method used is for two thieves to dress as mechanics. Using their own car they drive along the street, selecting a machine to steal. As they drive by the car selected one of the thieves makes note of the license number and the name and address of the owner. They then prepare a card with the name and address of the owner, adding a notation "to get the car and bring to garage to repair ignition."

Returning to where the car is parked they hastily secure a tow rope to it and tow it away. If apprehended, the thieves would pro-

TIRE INDUSTRY ON EVEN KEEL

Excellent Reports from Large Rubber Companies.

Demand for Casings Steadily on the Up-grade.

Running Close to Capacity in Akron Factories.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AKRON, June 25.—The rubber industry will sail on an even keel in the future according to best opinion obtainable in the rubber center. The immediate future appears bright and the ultimate condition of the industry depends solely upon the general conditions throughout the country and these, in the opnion of rubber men, are becoming better.

IN THE LEAD.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, under the new management, has lead other companies in reports which reflect the greatest optimism. Two weeks ago the company issued a statement in which they said that business for the previous week was the best in the year and this was followed by a statement this week that business during the past week was better than the previous week by 12½ per cent and that the entire week was better than the same week a year ago and compared favorably with any week in the history of the company.

Although thus far officials of the company have refused to make any comment on the report, it is confidentially reported in banking circles that Goodyear intends to go to 19,000 tires a day after the taking of inventory closes July 5.

FROM THE DEALERS.

The increased business has come from the dealers rather than the automobile manufactures but it is believed that with the increased production of the automobile factories at Flint, especially, the manufacturers' orders will again be increased. This, of course, is only a hazard on the part of the rubber men, but it is given great credence because of the impetus the Flint increase has given to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company rim plant.

Firestone manufactures more than 65 per cent of all the rims used by automobile manufacturers and the plant is now running at better than two-thirds capacity with 350 men. The increases in production at Flint have already been definitely reflected at the rim plant and it is therefore believed that the tire departments will soon feel the same increase.

Firestone continues to make between 17,000 and 18,000 tires a day, which is very close to normal capacity, while Goodrich continues on the 15,000 and Miller on the 3000 tires a day, which was their operating ticket during the latter part of last month.

MANY CHANGES.

In the readjustment of office personel, however, to meet with the new situation as regards competition some of the well-known rubber men in some of the larger companies have resigned and entered other work.

E. C. Tibbetts, many years advertising manager of Goodrich, and his assistant, R. E. Hackenger, have left the company. Milton Fassnacht, manager of the tire adjustment department; E. P. Rowen, in charge of Diamond tire sales, and James O'Mara, well-known publicity director, have left the company. Among those leaving Miller is H. Parker Lowell, one of the best known publicity men in the city.

Tibbetts has joined an advertising

STUDEBAKER IN ECONOMY TEST.

Gasoline Consumption of This Car is Determined.

Amount of Fuel Used Varies With Conditions.

Running With Retarded Spark is Expensive.

Some very interesting tests for consumption of gasoline at various speeds and on different grades were completed last week by the Paul G. Hoffman Company, local distributer of the Studebaker lines.

It was found that with the light six model, maximum economy was under twenty miles per hour and there was little variation found between five miles per hour and the speed of ten and fifteen miles per hour, but when twenty-five, thirty and thirty-five miles per hour speeds were made the consumption increased.

The tests on the various hills around Los Angeles brought forth some surprising data. On a 3 per cent grade over which a car will roll almost as easily as on the level, so far as one can judge without an instrument to measure the flow of gasoline through the carburetor, it requires 25 per cent more fuel to propel the car. On a 6 per cent grade the increased consumption is even more marked for it takes two and one-half times as much gasoline to pull the maximum grade of the State highways as it does to roll along on the level boulevards.

But when you start to climb a grade like Grand avenue or Quintero street, the fuel rushes through in a veritable stream taking seven times as much to pull a 30 per cent grade at five miles an hour as it does to run twenty-five miles an hour on level roads.

Another surprise came when it was found that Quintero street could be negotiated at ten miles an hour more economically than when the car moved at the rate of five miles. This same result was obtained on Grand avenue also, but here it took one-fourth more fuel to pull the grade in intermediate at ten miles an hour than it required when low gear was used.

Cahuenga Pass was also used as a testing ground and repeated trips made back and forth over the summit at rates from ten to twenty miles an hour. The maximum economy for that pull was found at fifteen miles an hour on high although the car would rush over the grade better than thirty.

According to the recording instrument on the dash, which showed the number of gallons per hour flowing through the fuel line it is an even break in economy to drive Cahuenga at ten miles in high gear, fifteen miles per hour in intermediate, or at twenty miles an hour in high, but a saving of 20 per cent is effected by taking the grade at fifteen miles an hour in high gear.

The effect of a retarded spark was also tested and one loses from 15 per cent to 25 per cent of fuel efficiency when the driver forgets to move the spark up to the point where it belongs.

A summary of the data and a comparison of the figures obtained shows that the present legal rate of speed for motor car on State highways is higher than the economically inclined motorists will use. It also reflects credit on the State highway engineers in setting 6 per cent as the maximum grade for State roads as the steeper hills are real gasoline eaters and will consume more fuel to negotiate than the longer way round over the easier gradients.

How to Bring a Defunct Storage Battery to Life.

Why is it that an apparently dead storage battery can be brought back to life through the operation known as recharging?

"This question puzzles many motorists who have had or intend to have their storage batteries recharged," says Harry W. Harrison, Southern California and Arizona distributor for the famous "oversize" batteries.

"A battery produces electricity for the motor car through the chemical action of the electrolyte, in conjunction with a number of pasted plates."

"As the battery gives out electricity, a white substance, lead sulphate, is produced and deposited on the plates. This action removes acid from the electrolyte solution. The electrolyte naturally is weakened and the production of 'juice' is steadily lessened.

"If an electrical current from an outside source is sent through the battery, however, it produces an effect exactly opposite to that resulting from the outflow of electricity. It drives the lead sulphate off the plates and back again into the electrolyte in the form of acid until the solution regains nearly its original strength. When this has been accomplished, the battery is ready to begin putting out electricity all over again."

MOTORISTS PREPARE FOR SUMMER TRIPS.

Vacation time is here.

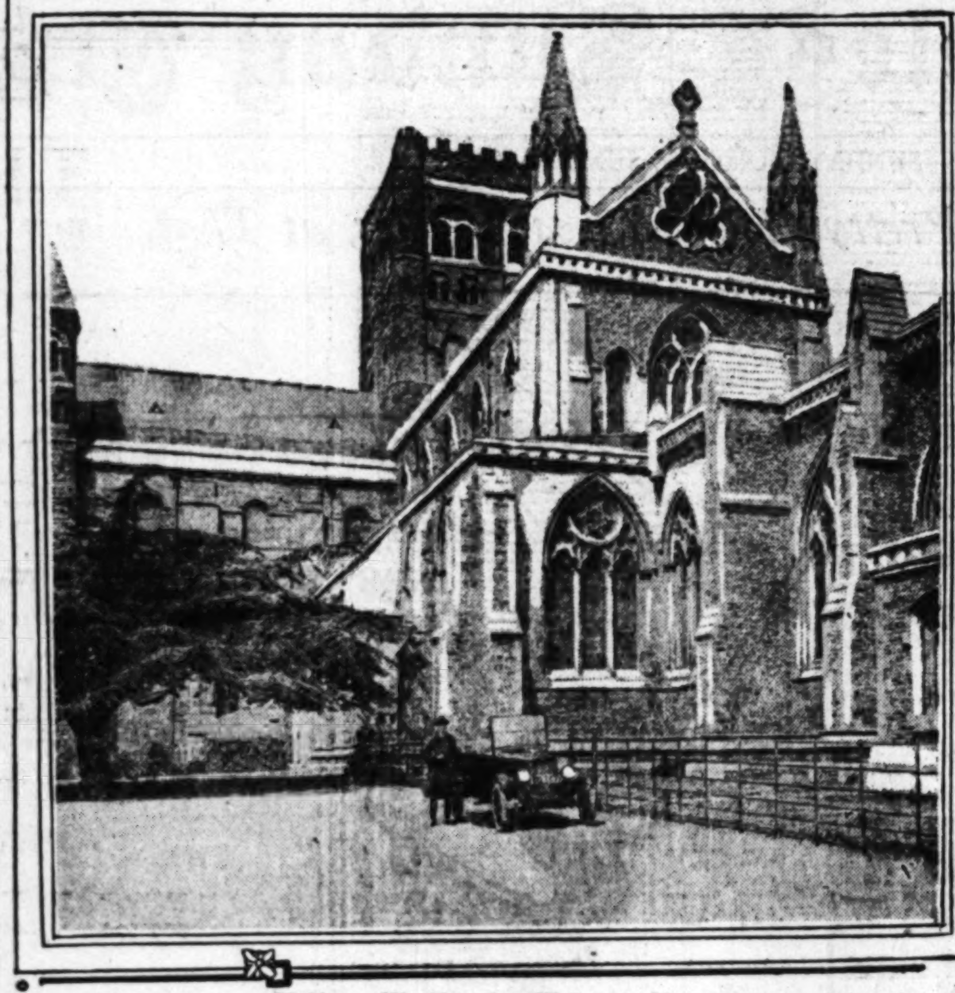
With school days over and July 4th scarcely a week away, Los Angeles kiddies are all agog over the prospects of a picnic tour into some retreat up in the mountains. And the parents are no less thrilled in anticipation of an outing.

"While mother plans what clothes shall be worn and what the lunch basket shall contain, father is tinkering around in the garage and worrying how he is going to manage to take all the junk in the car," says Robert Thompson of the Robert Thompson Company, local firm of body builders, in picturing the common problems of outing preparation.

"But the up-to-date accessory dealer has the remedy for all of the quandries of this perplexed parent," he declares. "A trunk rack fitted neatly on the rear of the car will carry a box large enough to hold nearly everything from tent to fishing tackle and clothes. And the machine will not look like a gypsy wagon when loaded."

SEALING WAX PAINT.

Melt small pieces of sealing wax in alcohol. The wax should be covered with the liquid and be left for a day or two, when it will be found to have become about the consistency of varnish. When used this compound is applied as a paint; it dries fairly quickly and is acid proof, which makes it favorable for use on terminals, connecting bars and other battery fittings.



Making a Hit Abroad as Well as at Home.

Here's one of the new Overland Four models snapped in front of the famous cathedral at Chester, Wales. All over England the Overlands are jumping into popularity and the export division of the Overland company is working overtime to supply the demand.

LEAVE TOOLS FOR TEA.

Can you picture one of our garage or service station mechanics dropping his tools at 4 o'clock in the afternoon to sip a bit of tea?

It is difficult for the American imagination to stretch to such lengths, but that's the custom over in jolly England. We have the word of an eye-witness for it. J. C. Christen, for some time a representative of the John N. Willys Export Corporation in Great Britain, has just returned to assume a post with the wholesale department of the Willys-Overland Pacific Company on the Coast and brings with him a wealth of information about motoring in England.

Why English-built cars have such a low horse power rating is readily seen when Christen explains that the purchase of a motor car license in England involves the payment of £1 or $5 per horse power—making the average yearly license fee for the American-made car about $110. Most English cars, for this reason, seldom run over eleven or twelve horse power.

"Gasoline," said Christen, "costs the equivalent of $1.20 per Imperial gallon, or five quarts. You never see chains on tires and bumpers are used sparingly. Neither automobiles carrying dealers' licenses or commercial vehicles are permitted in the public parks, and, although there is no limit to speed, you are liable to arrest at almost any moment—if you're not careful—for driving to the danger of the public.

"As for our own work in England, the American-made car is very popular. There are now over 7000 Overlands in Great Britain, and, while the Willys-Knight has but recently been introduced there, it has been accorded cordial welcome. That the English favor 'stunt' performance as much as the Americans is proved by the interest evidenced in the unusual performance of one of our cars in London. An Overland carrying five passengers, climbed a flight of 140 steps in the Crystal Palace there, and attracted a great deal of attention."

SALES INCREASED WHEN PRICE DROPS.

WHITE TRUCKS GOING FAST AFTER ANNOUNCEMENT OF REDUCTION.

A record increase in sales has followed the announcement here several days ago of reductions ranging from $200 to $500 in the prices of White trucks, according to O. R. Fuller of the White Auto Company, local distributors.

From all reports, the commercial car field has not yet recovered from the apparent astonishment which greeted the price-reduction announcement last week. The surprise is declared to have been all the greater for the statement that the White trucks were actually available at prewar figures.

"Price reductions of a few hundred dollars really don't mean anything to the motor-buying public unless it knows the amount of price increase during the so-called period of inflation," says Mr. Fuller. "But when it is realized that the price of the White truck experienced the least advance of any commercial car in the whole industry, it is understood that a return to 1914 values would really involve a comparatively small actual reduction.

"Whatever the market conditions, I believe truck buyers have always felt that the White prices have protected them against exorbitant inflation."

CAR IS BUILT LIKE WATCH, SAYS DEALER.

MANUFACTURERS CONSTRUCT NEW ELGIN WITH PRECISION OF TIMEPIECE.

The new series K-1 Elgin is built like a watch, declares R. G. Rowland of the Elgin Motor Sales Company, Inc., local distributers for this popular light six motor car. "The manufacturers have had the watchmaker's ideal of perfect balance and efficiency ever before them in the production of this automobile," he says.

Motor enthusiasts agree that the ideal has been reached and that it is doubtful that any high-grade watch could be more compact or more efficient and at the same time more beautiful. It is pointed out that the new Elgin represents the last word in both mechanical and decorative up-to-dateness.

"The new inclosure of special Elgin design that protects the powerful valve-in-head motor from dust and grit is the particular feature that is receiving the most praise," says Mr. Rowland. "This cover not only keeps clean the entire valve mechanism, but it insures better lubrication and a uniform motor temperature. This cover is of aluminum and is easily removed when making valve adjustments. In addition, this motor has been rendered unusually quiet in operation by the installation of an improved camshaft and new valve-lifters.

"I don't believe a single detail of either design or construction has been overlooked in the manufacturer's effort to make the new Elgin six the counterpart in excellence of the most efficient and reliably built watch of today."

Stutz Factory Announces New Price Schedule.

There will be just cause for celebration on the Fourth of July, because the many people who have been considering the purchase of a Stutz can then avail themselves of the opportunity to save $650, which is the reduction in price which the Stutz factory has notified the Walter M. Brown Company will become effective on July 2.

"It came like a comet out of a clear sky," says Walter Brown, in discussing the entrance of the Stutz into the reduced price field. "True there had been rumors of reductions as there always is, but nothing of a definite nature could be secured, but now that the news is for the public, we are glad that the factory made the cut.

"At the new price the Stutz is in fact priced lower than in the prewar days. The new model is a greatly improved car all the way through. Today the Stutz finds itself as one of the easiest of easy-riding motor cars and the woman who enjoys speed and power combined with comfort now finds her ideal in the Stutz."

"FOUR-NINETY" MODEL IS TO BE CONTINUED.

HAS PROVED ITS POPULARITY DURING SIX STRENUOUS YEARS.

Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" model, which has been selling with great success at the present low prices, will be continued as a motor car standard.

In making this announcement the Chevrolet Motor Company outlines an excellent policy regarding this famous low-priced quality car.

The Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" model has been in existence for the past six years. During that period more than half a million "Four-Nineties" of both open and closed types have been sold.

Their reputation for dependable and economical performance is universally known. It is an insurance of quality to the purchaser. And the fact that the manufacture of this model has been thoroughly standardized is a further insurance to purchasers of minimum prices and of service both as to repairs and replacement of parts.

Present Chevrolet business indicates that the vast numbers of customers now served by the "Four-Ninety" model are well satisfied.

MANAGER OF LOCAL FIRM OPTIMISTIC.

OFFICIAL SAYS LOS ANGELES MOTOR SUPPLY HOUSE IS ENJOYING PROSPERITY.

Everything points toward optimism at the Los Angeles Motor Supply House, Inc., distributors of nationally known accessories and Veedol products.

A. A. Derry, manager of this accessory establishment, has ordered immense shipments of accessories and Veedol because he believes with summer and wonderful touring days just ahead people will buy more accessories and oil than during any past season.

With this thought in mind he is cleaning out old merchandise at big reductions in order to clear his shelves for the new shipments coming in and now on the way.

This week a shipment of Veedol is going to arrive at San Pedro. You often hear of shipments of cars, batteries, pistons and tires, but it isn't very often any one dealer orders oil in such large quantities. However, the Los Angeles Motor Supply House, Inc., has virtually been swamped with orders for Veedol and is now selling between one-half and one carload a month in Los Angeles and vicinity. The shipment coming in is three carloads.

From which it may be derived that Veedol is very popular with Los Angeles motorists. The reason for its increased popularity is said to be because it absolutely resists heat.

Performance

It is not by what a man says, but by what he does, that you judge him. It's the old story, "Action Speaks Louder Than Words."

The same may be applied to motor trucks.

What the truck does—its performance—is what counts. For years the slogan of MACK trucks has been and it is by that slogan we would have you judge MACK trucks.

Performance Counts

Watch them on the highways, on mountain grades, in sand, mud or where the going is the most difficult; note the loads they carry, how well they do it and how long they keep on doing it. Ask the owners what the upkeep cost is in proportion to tonnage and mileage.

The answer will convince you MACK Performance is BEST.

Right-Arm Signals Are a Good Thing—Wrong Ones Cause Trouble.

Too many people are careless in giving arm signals when making turns and frequent and ofttimes serious smashes are the result. The young woman in the Ford coupe, right, is indicating a turn to the right with her arm, and then deliberately turning left, putting the gentleman in the Ford touring and herself in choice shape for a trip to the Receiving Hospital.

YEAR SHOWS MORE MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

INCORRECT SIGNALLING IS AT FAULT IN MOST SMASH-UPS, SAYS LOCAL MANAGER.

"More accidents than ever before is the toll of the first six months of 1921," according to B. L. Graves, Los Angeles manager of the Ford Motor Company.

"How can these accidents be eliminated or cut to a minimum?

"Correct signalling, slower driving and less recklessness is the answer.

"Let us take correct signalling as a concrete example and for once and for all staighten the matter of signalling in everyone's mind.

"Women seem to be the ones who are causing the greatest number of accidents in this class, and next comes the experienced driver who has become careless or forgetful.

"Arm parallel from right side of car means turning to the right. Arm parallel from left side of car means turning to the left.

"Arm tilted to a slight degree and pointed upward from the right side of the car designates turning to the left. Arm tilted to a slight degree and pointing upward from the left side of car designates turning to the right.

"Arm pointed down from either side means slow up and be prepared to stop instantly.

"The accidents which occur from incorrect signalling are for the most part smashed fenders, running-boards, bent-in radiators and broken-in gasoline tanks."

run of the mileage eaters to the Polo Grounds in New York. However, the bulk of the patrons there rely on the elevated lines and the subways. The former does the heavier business because discharging its passengers directly at the entrance to the grounds.

Luxurious Los Angeles probably leads the world in those who travel to the ball yard in their own power plant.

The Mehadaja of Bharatpur, whose forebears probably rode on the hurricane deck of a wind-swept camel, recently had built to order in England a classy closed car, the body of which alone nicked his imperial bank royal $30,000. It is equipped with practically everything except a dumb waiter and a washboard.

Of two disappearing cabinets located in the sides of this flivver palace, one is nothing less than a side board or miniature bar, with all the fixings for promoting a royal jag. Thus one of noble birth can get all swacked up without leaving the cushions. The prince also has a cork-screw and a bung-starter in his tool kit.

That's all right in Bharatpur, where they drink in public, and can take on liquor at the refilling stations the same as gas, water and free wind.

Cars with a private still which can produce home brew at the rate of one gallon per mile, or eighteen to one gallon of gas, would prove popular in America.

agency handling the Goodrich account and remains in Akron.

EXCELLENT REPORT.

Among the so-called smaller companies in the Akron district which have issued excellent reports during the past few weeks is the Mason Tire and Rubber Company. In a letter to the stockholders recently D. M. Mason, treasurer, pointed out that the present liquid assets of the company were four to one to the current liabilities and that the amalgamation of the plantations company with the tire company will give the company current assets of $4,000,000.

Business at the present time is better at Mason, he said than at any time in the history of the company and while the company did approximately $7,000,000 worth of business last year, business this year, on the present basis, will reach $10,000,000. Mason has been in production about five years. Besides the rubber plantations the company operates a fabric mill in connection with its factory. The fabric mill was placed in operation two years ago.

TO CLEAN BATTERY PLATES.

The following solution is recommended for cleaning battery plates that have become somewhat sulphated: Half a pound of ammonium acetate in a quart of water. The plates are removed from the battery case and immersed in the solution, which must be hot, and are left therein for half an hour. In some cases it may require a longer treatment to remove the sulphate. After their bath the plates should be washed well in clear water and then dried before being returned to the battery.

WARNS AGAINST MOTOR THIEVES.

duce the card, explaining they were merely carrying out orders to take the machine to the shop.

CRAFTY STUFF.

The thief who steals an automobile from in front of a theater is another crafty individual. He is generally well dressed and assumes a professional air. Often after picking out the car he plans on stealing he will go into the theater, and after the first or second act will leave the show, step into the car and drive away.

Embezzlement is another form of theft that is practiced to a very great extent. In these cases the thief, using an assumed name, purchases a car from a dealer on lease contract, making a small payment down. The thief then forges a "paid in full" stamp upon the copy of the conditional sales contract and immediately disposes of the machine to some innocent purchaser, who loses the car as soon as he applies to the Motor Vehicle Department for registration for it is there that the fraudulent transaction is revealed.

ATTEMPTING TO CUT ACCIDENTS.

officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

USE YOUR HORN!

With the death of the occupant of a touring car in the Sequoia reserve, when the car was forced over a steep bank, and another death in a reserve of the northern part of the State, Auto Club officials have just taken action to issue a specific warning to the hordes of motor car owners who are planning to vacation this and next month.

"Use your horn!"

This is the first warning issued. According to the club employees who are constantly on the highways, motorists have stopped using their horns on steep grades almost completely.

"We never hear horns any more on the mountain grades," reports a member of the local forest reserve department. "Motorists have apparently forgotten what horns are for."

Many accidents could be avoided, it is pointed out, if horns were sounded in the dangerous curving places of the highways.

DO NOT SHIFT.

"Don't try to shift gears on steep grades!" is the second warning issued. Too many women drivers attempt to do this, and thus lose control of the car. Do all your shifting before you get into the steepest part of a steep grade.

Don't stop in a narrow and steep part of a national park grade to admire the scenery or to pick wild violets. There is a State law against stopping on a narrow road so as to block passage.

Cars are often pushed over a bank in this way.

There are no steep grades leading into Gen. Grant Park, the Auto Club points out, only short ones which should give no concern. There are fourteen miles of steep grades into the beautiful Sequoia Park, and every bit of the way is scenic.

Women drivers should learn that mountain driving is not easy, says the club touring bureau, and unless well versed in the handling of a car should keep off the mountain roads.

There is some steep climbing to Huntington Lake, which is not at all dangerous, but which requires care and some skill. Motorists planning any mountain tours should consult the club or other expert advisers as to the type of grades to be encountered.

GOVERNMENT MAPS SALTON SEA REGION.

"Water-Supply Paper 490-A" is the title of a publication recently issued by the United States Geological Survey. It was prepared in co-operation with the Department of Engineering of the State of California and comprises not only a number of valuable maps covering the Salton Sea region, but detailed descriptions of all the roads and water locations in an area about 100 miles square, including Imperial county and parts of Riverside and San Diego counties. The pamphlet contains over eighty pages of reading matter devoted mostly to accurate logs of all roads in the area available for automobiles. It will be found invaluable to anyone wishing to visit places off the main highway between Banning and Brawley.

under way for the manufacture of steam locomotives. A large railway repair shop has been established during the past few days at the River Rouge blast furnaces of the Ford company, where all locomotives of the railroad are to be repaired.

Here Mr. Ford is personally supervising all experimental work on improvements in existing designs. A special locomotive is being rebuilt according to Mr. Ford's ideas. It is said that a new type of gasoline or crude oil-driven locomotive propelled by a Diesel engine is also included in the experimental plans.

EXPERIMENTS.

Work is also going forward on the construction of gasoline-driven street railway coaches similar to the "Bourbon," which. Ford engineers claim was proven successful in design during recent tryouts. These coaches, driven by two double opposed four-cylinder engines of 100 horse-power each, are to be used in commuter service between Detroit, Wyandotte and other suburban towns along the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad.

R. C. Rueschaw, sales manager of the Reo Motor Company, Lansing, announces several important changes in the personnel of the sales force. Carl Parker, manager of the Lansing branch, has been transferred to the sales organization at the plant, while George Hopkins has been made branch head. A branch house will be established at San Francisco to handle business under the supervision of P. L. Emerson, an executive who has enjoyed wide experience in the distribution end of the motor industry. Establishment of the San Francisco branch will complete the chain of branch Reo houses across the country, the others being located at New York, Detroit and Chicago.

As an auxiliary to the new western branch, a big wholesale and retail establishment will be opened under the management of Byron C. Foy, at present assistant manager of the Detroit Reo branch. C. P. Green will direct the service department at the new San Francisco unit. Mr. Emerson will leave Lansing for his new position about July 1, accompanied by his family.

From this new branch the company also plans to develop the export trade to the Philippines, Hawaii, Japan, China and other countries of the Far East. The change at the Lansing plant returns Carl Parker to the factory organization, where he first established connection with the Reo Company in 1907. In his new position he will be assistant to Mr. Rueschaw.

BABSON'S REPORT.

Roger W. Babson, nationally known statistical expert, predicted gasoline at 15 cents a gallon in the near future while in Detroit this week.

"When in Detroit last winter," said Mr. Babson, "I was bearish on the automobile industry, but I feel much better about it today.

"There are several reasons. First, because the manufacturers are reducing prices. Every price reduction enlarges the number of possible buyers to whom a manufacturer may appeal.

"Second, because the cost of manufacturing is declining and will decline further. Wages are dropping and the efficiency of the men is constantly increasing. Raw materials are already lower, while steel and glass will drop considerably more. This will permit more money to be spent upon advertising and other campaigns to stimulate sales.

"Third, because the cost of maintaining a car is decreasing every month. Tires are better than ever before, while tires, gasoline and oils are cheaper. Furthermore gasoline will be still lower before the movement is over. Detroit may again see 15-cent gasoline.

"Further, because the nation is getting the automobile habit. Where the auto is still looked upon by many of the present generation as a luxury the new generation considers it a necessary—like the telephone and sewing machine. This, however, means that the automobile will be more and more standardized. The spells prosperity for the standard companies, but disaster for some new assembled cars."

"50,000 miles in California Rent Service." Mr. W. A. Hall makes money and saves money.

"I have used my Essex continually in rent service since August, 1919. It has been driven over all kinds of roads, in the mountains, through the oil fields, and under most severe tests for over 50,000 miles. Gasoline mileage averages 23.7 miles per gallon.

"Three of the original fabric tires ran over 24,000 miles, the fourth 28,000 miles. Upkeep is very low—my next car will be another Essex."

Already a thousand Essex Californians are enjoying the power and economy of this remarkable car.

MANY TROUBLES CAUSE MISSING.

Misfiring Commonest Among Autoists' Worries

Poor Carburetion Often the Reason for This.

Proper Timing Necessary for Even Popping.

One of the commonest ills to which the internal combustion engine is heir is misfiring. Naturally, this complaint varies in malignancy, sometimes afflicting only one cylinder, sometimes more, often being merely temporary, due to some incorrect adjustment, again being seemingly permanent and calling for drastic action.

Obviously misfiring interferes with the satisfactory operation of the engine. It means that one or more cylinders are not firing, so that those remaining in operation are carrying on all the work. In a six-cylinder engine missing is not so annoying as in a four; this is obvious, also it is harder to detect. In an eight or twelve one of the cylinders may be cut out and the ordinary amateur driver will never detect it. Misfiring is more easily detected at low speeds than at high, because the flow of power when the engine is running slowly tends to become jerky anyway and the jerk caused by a missing cylinder makes detection fairly easy.

THREE CLASSES.

In a general way the basic causes of misfiring may be divided into three classes: Those caused by carburetion failures, those caused by ignition failures and those caused by some derangement of the valve system.

Misfiring due to carburetion causes may generally be traced to an improperly proportioned mixture; the fuel may be too weak or it may be too strong. The effect will be the same, missing. Under fairly satisfactory conditions of weather, if the engine, after being warmed up, begins to misfire it may be assumed that the mixture being fed is either too rich or too lean. That is the first place to begin trying to correct the trouble. Misfires caused by faulty carburetion will not be confined to any one cylinder. Misfiring will occur in one cylinder, jump to another and make its appearance sporadically in all the cylinders. This is obvious because the same carburetor feeds the same mixture to all cylinders.

Two ways of altering the composition of the fuel mixture are available—one by changing the position of the air control on the dash and the other by feeding more or less gas. In either case the relative strength of the fuel is altered. When misfiring begins it is good practice to try increasing the amount of air used. If this is the cause of the trouble the engine will at once take hold again. On the other hand if the fuel mixture was too weak already the missing will grow worse immediately, which is a sign to cut down the quantity of the air being fed until the engine begins to function properly. The amount of air should always be just as large as the engine will assimilate.

ANOTHER CAUSE.

It may be that there is some mechanical trouble interfering to make the fuel mixture bad. Air leaks around the inlet manifold or valves will allow too much air to enter. The float of the carburetor may be leaking or it may be stuck, the needle valve may not be seating properly, there may be water in the fuel, dirt on the needle valve, dirt in the fuel or an obstruction in the fuel line. It frequently happens that an engine may run well enough in low speeds, but begins missing as the speed increases. When the carburetor has two different adjustments for the different speed ranges the obvious thing to do is to try adjustments for the upper range. In making adjustments of the carbureter the needle should be moved just a fraction of an inch either way and the engine tried after each change. All adjustments should be made while the engine is hot.

Misfiring caused by ignition faults is fairly easy to locate because it usually is in the same cylinder. To test a suspected cylinder for ignition misfiring the spark plug is short-circuited with a screw driver or similar instrument. When the plug is shorted, with no difference being noticed in the operation of the engine, that cylinder is the guilty one. It may be that further inspection may show the spark plug at fault; it may be carbonized, the points may be too far apart or may be burned; the insulation may be cracked. At any rate replacement of the plug is the remedy. If the plug is found very oily at the bottom this may be causing the misfiring. The oil may have worked its way past faulty piston rings or there may simply be too much oil in the crank case.

TRACE WIRE.

If the spark plug is found to be all right the wire should be traced right back to the distributor, and all the insulation breaks should be repaired on the way. Should the wire be whole the trouble may be in the distributor; the distributor arm may not be making proper contact with the segment or the segment may be dirty. The distributor cap must be removed and all segments should be cleaned and so should the distributor arm. If a battery system is used the short arm, known as a tripper, which fits into the notched rotor, may be worn. The connections of the ignition coil should be kept clean and bright, but the car owner should not attempt to explore the mysteries of that part. In the Ford system, which employs four-unit coils, the vibrator points may have gotten out of adjustment. The coil connections to the commuter must be kept tight and clean or missing may occur.

If the battery is weak misfiring is most certain to result. If the battery terminals are loose or corroded the flow of current may be so restricted that missing will occur, and the engine may even stop flat.

STICKING VALVES.

The valve stem is frequently the seat of misfiring troubles. A sticking inlet valve will cause misfiring, and if the exhaust valve sticks the cylinder will not fire at all, the charge escaping by that outlet. Improperly timed valves will let the fuel leak away, and if the springs are weak the valves will not close properly, with the inevitable result.

Finally, do not be too sure that your particular case of missing is not caused simply by incorrect use of the spark lever. Too early or too late a spark will cause misfiring of an exaggerated order. In some cars control of the advance is through a wire control, the tube of which may be out of adjustment and move with the wire, so that the lever indicates advance when in reality the control is fully retarded.

HEAVY WORKERS TO BE ON EXHIBITION.

Trucks and their supplementary adjunct, the trailer, are to be given splendid exploitation at the coming San Fernando Valley Fair, to be held September 13 to 18. Trucks and trailers have become absolutely indispensable to the farmer. Space allotted to the tractor, implement and accessory departments will be liberally interspersed with truck and trailer exhibits.

Oldsmobile Boss Goes to Factory for More Autos.

A. D. Plughoff, vice-president and general manager of J. W. Leavitt & Co., Oldsmobile distributor for the State, has gone East. The Leavitt executive left for the Olds motor works at Lansing, Mich., more than a week ago, with a portfolio full of highly important business matters to be taken up with the factory officials.

Once again the Leavitt organization needs more cars. Not only is there a crying need for more of the popular Oldsmobile fours, but there is a big demand for the new light eight, so one of the main missions of Plughoff on his eastern journey is to secure prompt shipments of several hundred cars of both of these models.

Another reason for the Leavitt general manager's trip East at this time is the appointment of several new officials at the Oldsmobile factory, and Plughoff will take up with them numerous matters of business importance to the Leavitt organization.

He will also bring home with him the latest available information on trade conditions in the automobile world.

CARLOAD OF TIRES INCREASES SUPPLY.

SALE CONDUCTED UNDER SLOGAN OF "EVERY TIRE DESERVES A NEW TUBE."

Just when the special tire sale being conducted by the Stephens Tire Stores Company threatened to come to an abrupt climax because of an exhausted supply, a whole carload of pneumatics arrived from the factory to save the situation. This is the word given out recently by Gordon Williams, manager of the local factory branch at 1234 South Grand avenue.

Under the slogan, "Every tire deserves a new tube," the special Stephens tire sale has swept like a whirlwind into the attention of Los Angeles motorists, according to Mr. Williams. The new specials, which are guaranteed for 6000 miles, are reported to be selling like the proverbial "hot cakes."

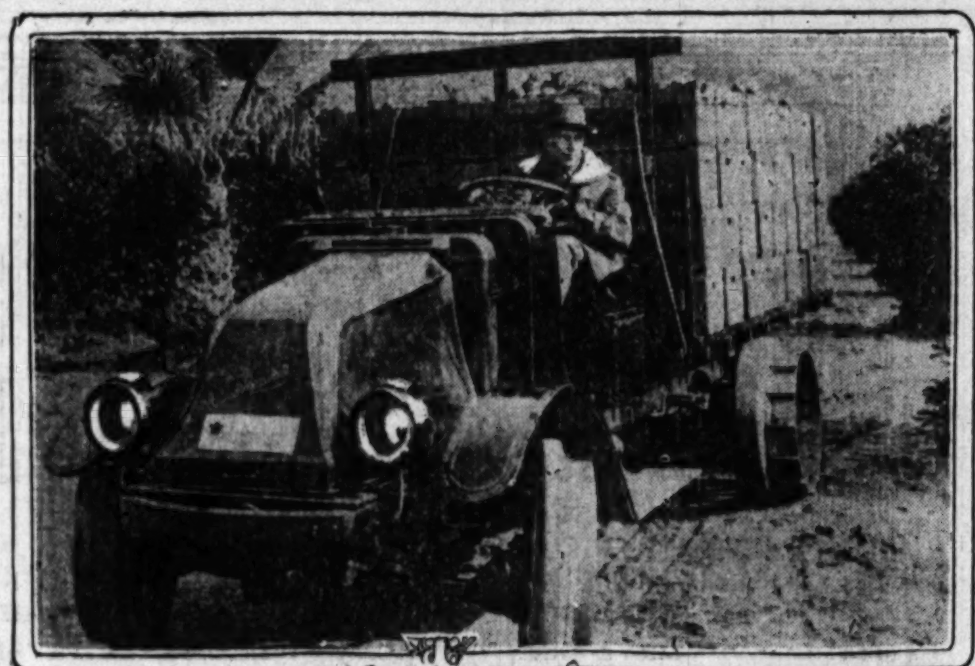
To stimulate interest in the slogan idea of a new casing deserving a new inner tube, the local firm is including a heavy guaranteed tube free with every tire sold during this special sale. The motoring public is responding to this unusual offer with a patronage that appears to have exceeded even Mr. Williams's expectations.

TIPS ON TROUBLE WITH THE STARTER.

BILL CONDITT TELLS HOW TO LOCATE DISTURBANCES WITH THIS UNIT.

"There are very few motorists who have not had that early morning, or after breakfast experience of dashing madly into the garage, stepping on the starter and in return no response from the motor," declared Bill Conditt. "Instead of calming down and investigating what is wrong the above procedure again takes place, causing a loss of time, a possible chance of ruining the starter and certainly a heavy taxing of the driver's patience," he said.

In speaking of the starter when it fails to function properly, Mr. Conditt, who is distributor of the R and V Knight car said: "When pressure on the starter pedal or button fails to cause the engine to be cranked the trouble is not difficult to find, though it may be quite hard to remedy. The usual causes for such troubles are weak battery, poor contact of the cables with the battery, a short circuit caused by cable insulation being worn through, switch trouble, or trouble in the starting motor. A battery test will quickly tell if the source of the current is at fault. If the battery is up to charge, then the cables should be examined and the terminals cleaned and tightened. Then the cables themselves should be examined. The starting motor brushes being worn often cause trouble and in much-used starters the commutator may be worn. The starter switch may stick or make such poor contact as to deliver little current. If in pressing the starter pedal there is a whirring sound but no cranking, the spring on the starting motor may be broken."



All Fixed Up to Ramble Around Our Orange Fields.

A big International motor truck, three-ton capacity, loaded with 108 field packing boxes of Sunkist oranges. These boxes weigh on an average sixty pounds each. THE RIGHT KIND OF TRUCKS.

BY CHESTER B. WELCH.

Assistant Branch Manager International Harvester Co. of Los Angeles.

The motor truck is no longer a question in the minds of successful farmers. It is a case of the truck itself. When you start talking about trucks to farmers, the job is a ticklish one, for he already knows a great deal about trucks through owning an automobile; he knows of the saving of time going to and from his ranch. "Yes sir," he will say, "I know I can save time and do three times the hauling with a motor truck as compared to horses and wagon, but I want you to show me and tell me where your truck is a better one than the other fellow's, and I want you to prove to me that the size truck you recommend is the proper unit for me to have."

The salesman has his arguments, of course, as to mechanism, reputation and every argument to prove that his is a good truck; does the farmer believe him; if he buys a truck, has the farmer purchased the proper unit? All this can be summed up when you run across farmers using motor trucks. If they are satisfied and will swear by their truck, then they have been sold right; if they are dissatisfied and tell you that such and such a truck is no good, then you can make up your mind they have either bought an orphan truck, or they have been sold the wrong unit.

For a little comparison, let us picture two horses trying to pull a four-horse load. What are we doing? Overloading, of course, and that means we should have four horses so that the greatest efficiency will result, and then four horses can work all day. Take on the other hand; picture ten horses pulling a four-horse load. What do we have here? Too many horses for the amount of work we have. The trouble with most of us paying out our good money is that we don't treat the mechanical things ... Oakland Six

ON MAY 9th the prices on all Oakland models were reduced $250.00.

Thus Oakland was the first among the larger builders of automobiles to join in the movement towards the general readjustment of values and prices on all things.

And thus Oakland overnight established a new record for high value in automobiles that in spite of reductions made in the prices of other cars is still a record.

Today's Oakland has not been "cheapened" in order to establish the new price.

Not a single part has been eliminated or less expensively made; no feature of equipment has been omitted; no part of the car has been made smaller. Instead it has been improved and refined.

So at the new price Oakland Six gives a greater value per dollar than at any time in its history—if not a greater value per dollar than offered by any other car.

Compare Today's Oakland with any other standard automobile. Put it to any test.

You will find that no other car at Oakland's price has as much horsepower—44 H. P. at 2600 R. P. M. or 1 H. P. to every 55 pounds of car weight.

No other car at Oakland's price has as long a wheel base—115 inches.

No other car at Oakland's price produces greater gasoline economy—18 to 25 miles to the gallon.

No other six cylinder car at Oakland's price is equipped with as large as 32"x4" tires.

No other car at Oakland's price has as deep a frame as 6½ inches.

No other car at Oakland's price has as much room in both front and rear compartments.

No other car at Oakland's price has as wide seats both front and rear.

No other car at any price has as low a center of gravity insuring the highest percentage of safety on the road.

No other car of Oakland's wheel base is as light in weight—2421 pounds for the open models, 2733 pounds for the Sedan and 2550 for the Coupe—effecting an economy of maintenance and operation not possible to heavier cars.

Prove these things for yourself. Call at our show room and examine Today's Oakland.

Or without obligation on your part we will arrange for a demonstration if you will phone us.

Place the car alongside any other you may be considering and by comparing sizes, weights, measures, equipment and all other essentials that decide the worth of a car, determine for yourself, as we know you can, that Today's Oakland Six is Today's highest value car.

Fahy-Atterbury Firm Announces Change of Name.

The firm of Fahy-Atterbury, authorized Ford dealers of Los Angeles, will be known as the J. Benjamin Fahy Company in the future.

This is the announcement made by J. Benjamin Fahy, president of the concern. "Nothing will be changed except the name," he said. "The same officers, location and policy will be retained."

The change in the firm name marks the passing of one of the oldest landmarks on motor row. The Fahy-Atterbury Company will be remembered as one of the first Ford agencies in downtown Los Angeles, to be organized after the distribution of that car was taken out of the hands of a single centralized organization. For a number of years, however, Mr. Fahy has been sole owner of the firm's interests.

Mr. Fahy joins with other authorized Ford dealers of Los Angeles in announcing a record increase in business since the latest price drop in the popular Ford models.

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 24.—The Pima County Highway Commission has accepted a large quantity of construction work done on the Ajo road. It is told that Ajo, about 128 miles distant, now can be reached readily in about five hours of auto travel. Of the distance about eighty miles are completed. The balance will wait on more funds, though parts of the incomplete stretch are in excellent condition for fast going.

How Much Should You Pay For a Fine Car?

These are the days for frank speaking. Every commodity and manufactured product is now on trial before the American people. Old standards of value have been scrapped—careless, extravagant methods of buying are no longer popular. The process of readjustment has set in and the markets are being combed for dependable merchandise made by honest manufacturers and sold at honest prices.

If a maker of automobiles has a sound and constructive message for the public it behooves him to speak up in no uncertain terms. Therefore, we of the Paige Company, propose to offer a full and complete statement of our present position in the industry, the relative value of our product and the policies which govern us now and will govern us in the future. All of these points can be covered by telling, in a simple narrative form, the history of our world-famous 6-66 models.

We Decide To Attempt The Impossible

For many years we, as automobile manufacturers, had felt that there was too much accent on "price class" in the industry. Under this plan, no maker of a low priced or medium priced car could think of aspiring beyond leadership in his own particular field.

It was a cut and dried process of building to popular specification—the matching of cylinder bore and wheel base instead of a competition of brains and originality. The plan was eminently safe from a business standpoint, but altogether unprogressive, almost reactionary.

So we deliberately decided to forget the "price class" superstition and invade the most intelligent and the most discriminating market in the world. In brief, we decided to build a motor car—for less than $3000—that would equal or excel the finest and most expensive motor vehicles in this country or Europe.

Even more to the point, we decided to attempt the one thing that all automobile men considered utterly impossible and absurd. But we went ahead with our plans just the same, and the first 6-66 rolled out of our plant in time for the Automobile Shows of 1921.

A Car Without A Legitimate Competitor

That car was our answer to the scoffers and old line manufacturing policies. Just how it was created—just how the problems were met and solved is a story that could be told in only technical language. But the car had arrived, and when it swung down Woodward Avenue in Detroit even sophisticated motorists paused to greet this newcomer of marvelous beauty and power.

It was, we knew, a car without a legitimate competitor—not merely a new and superior product but a vehicle worthy of a five or six thousand dollar price mark from every comparative standpoint.

In design, appointment and finish it challenged the most artistic achievements in motordom. But the supreme test was to come. For really fine cars are measured by performance—not paint—and our entire case rested upon a chassis that could only be revealed in terms of action. So we promptly challenged every car in America to meet the 6-66 in comparative demonstrations.

Master of the Highway

The rest of the story is known from coast to coast. As the automobile shows opened, our dealers were swamped with invitations to meet the nation's best and pay the price of impertinence.

All of the invitations were accepted and the 6-66 very quickly proved itself an absolute Master of the Highway. It not only met $6000 and $7000 cars, but defeated them in acceleration tests, hill climbing, speed trials and endurance runs.

Then came the great sporting victories. On January 21st a "Daytona" model 6-66 won the world's stock chassis record by travelling at a pace of 102.8 miles per hour.

This was followed by 100 hill climbing records established on the stiffest grades of the American continent.

And then—to cap the climax—a clean sweep at the Uniontown track on May 20th when the Daytona 6-66 took every stock chassis record from five to one hundred miles.

From 15th to 6th Place in Three Months

This, you will grant, is a marvelous service record for any one motor car—and the public has been quick to grasp the significance of such consistently brilliant performance.

On January 1st, 1921 this company occupied 15th place—in terms of dollars and cents business—in the automobile industry. At the close of the first quarter, we had advanced to sixth place—passing nine competitors and outstripping every maker in the fine car field.

This is a cold fact of competition, but it spells volumes to the clear thinking business man. It proves conclusively that the "price class" myth has been shattered. For, as dealer records show, more than 25% of our sales have replaced very high priced motor cars.

And now it is time for you to draw a few personal conclusions.

Rock Bottom in Price—Peak Position in Quality

So far as prices are concerned, the Paige 6-66 is quite obviously the greatest dollar-for-dollar value on the American market. It is not only legitimately priced, but it is actually selling for from one to three thousand dollars less than its nearest competitors.

We respect this competition but as business men must insist that the discrepancy is altogether unjustified. Unless 6-66 prices are vastly increased, the higher priced cars must ultimately reduce. This appears to be the only fair and sensible conclusion.

At any rate, please consider this one fact: You can today buy a Paige car with a sense of absolute security because you are buying on the new readjustment level. There can be no sudden depreciation of your investment—no "price cuts" to meet competitive standards.

Paige is at rock bottom in price and peak position in quality. For that reason it is a safe, sane and profitable investment.

All Paige prices were reduced on June 7th

Chase Garfield and John J. Troy Optimistic.

Bring Glowing Reports from Nash Factory.

Important Matters Discussed at Eastern Meeting.

Bringing back glowing reports of current and future production, and of the new plans covering the balance of the year, Sales Manager Chase Garfield and John J. Troy of the motor company that bears the latter's name, have just returned to this city after having attended a meeting of all distributors of the United States which was held at the Nash factory.

"Unbounded confidence in the future of the automobile industry with partiular reference to the future of the Nash Motors Company was the theme of the annual distributors' conference held in Kenosha, Wis., more than a week ago," said Garfield.

"Distributors from all parts of the country were in attendance. I have never felt more confident of the future of the automobile industry, and particularly of the prospects that lie before the Nash Motors Company. And never before have we had a product so fundamentally sound as is our car today.

"Many matters of importance to the Nash organization were thoroughly discussed during the three-day session. A plan for the financing of Nash cars with the retail buyer was adopted.

"Matters pertaining to sales and service of Nash products as applied to conditions in various sections of the country were taken up by Charles W. Nash and C. B. Voorhis, general sales manager of the Nash Motors Company, and on the closing day of the conference an informal talk was given by James J. Storrow of Boston.

"Automobile men from all over the country were amazed when told of the splendid business conditions of the State of California. Throughout the East there is still an indication here and there of the period of depression which has now just about passed. Men of the industry are beginning to again radiate optimism, while this sentiment has always prevailed in Southern California."

PERSONALITY STORES.

"Can a store have personality?" was the question asked last week of Charlie Dumars, manager of accessories for Harold L. Arnold.

And Charlie's reply was just as odd as the question. "Yes, if you don't build a Chinese wall around it."

"And why the wall?" was the second inquiry anent the personality of a store.

"Just this," said Dumars, "a store may be a repository of things to sell, or it may be so exclusive—so cold—or so dead, that those features together constitute a wall as effective in keeping people out of that store as the Chinese Wall was effective in isolating China from the rest of the world. In either case the store loses its personality.

"On the other hand, let a store be created by a master mind with a keen eye to an appreciative public—a public which likes warmth, color and decorative art, but must have withal, goods which appeal for their gneeral utility, which meet the requirements of good sense, economy and low prices.

"Give that kind of a store, and attend it with courtesy, expert service and up-to-the-minute accessories for all makes of cars, and I say it has a personality as distinctive as that of the persons creating it.

"In our case, Mr. Arnold had an ambition to produce an accessory store, the equal, or if possible the superior, of any similar establishment in America. Henry Dethloff, an artisan, schooled in the finest art centers of Europe, was brought all the way to Los Angeles to reproduce the harmony of colors from the valley of the Nile. Truly Egyptian is the result. Softly blended yellow, brown, crimson, green and black, with emblematic Egyptian designs, have created a store interesting enough from the art feature alone. To that has been added an aggregation of goods from all corners of the world—the best manufactured for motorists—selected by skilled experts who realized that Los Angeles has democratic ideas, that while the best is none too good, the question of standard goods and low prices must prevail.

"This result is the Arnold accessory store has produced popularity from the first opening of the doors four weeks ago, and many purchasers say our slogan describes the store exactly: 'The Finest Accessory Store in America.'"

SALESMEN TRY FOR RECORD

Liberty six distributors, dealers and salesmen are kicking up the dust in one of the most hotly fought sales contests on record in the automobile business. The contest began April 1 and will close next week. It takes the form of an auto race, with lap prizes, a grand prize, and a big variety of other prizes offered. One prize is a bag of gold for the salesman selling the largest percentage of his quota. Another is a costly silver loving cup for the organization selling the largest percentage of its quota.

Speaking of the contest C. W. McKelvey of the automobile firm that bears his name and who is Southern California distributor of the Liberty six stated, "The first entrant into the race was Tom Hart, of Detroit, who has been selling Libertys for five years, having sold more than 400 of them. He also holds the distinction of having sold the first Liberty car, built five years ago, to Albert Raisch, a Detroiter, who is still using the original car. When asked why he doesn't buy a new Liberty, Mr. Raisch has answered that his old one is still giving excellent service. In fact, an exceptionally high resale price has been offered for the car, even after its strenuous use for five years.

"The first car sold in the contest was sold by Edwin Hale, a salesman for the Richard G. Davis Company, Liberty distributor at Providence, R. I. This car was sold at 9:30 o'clock in the morning of the opening day of the race. He has also sold several other Libertys since the race started.

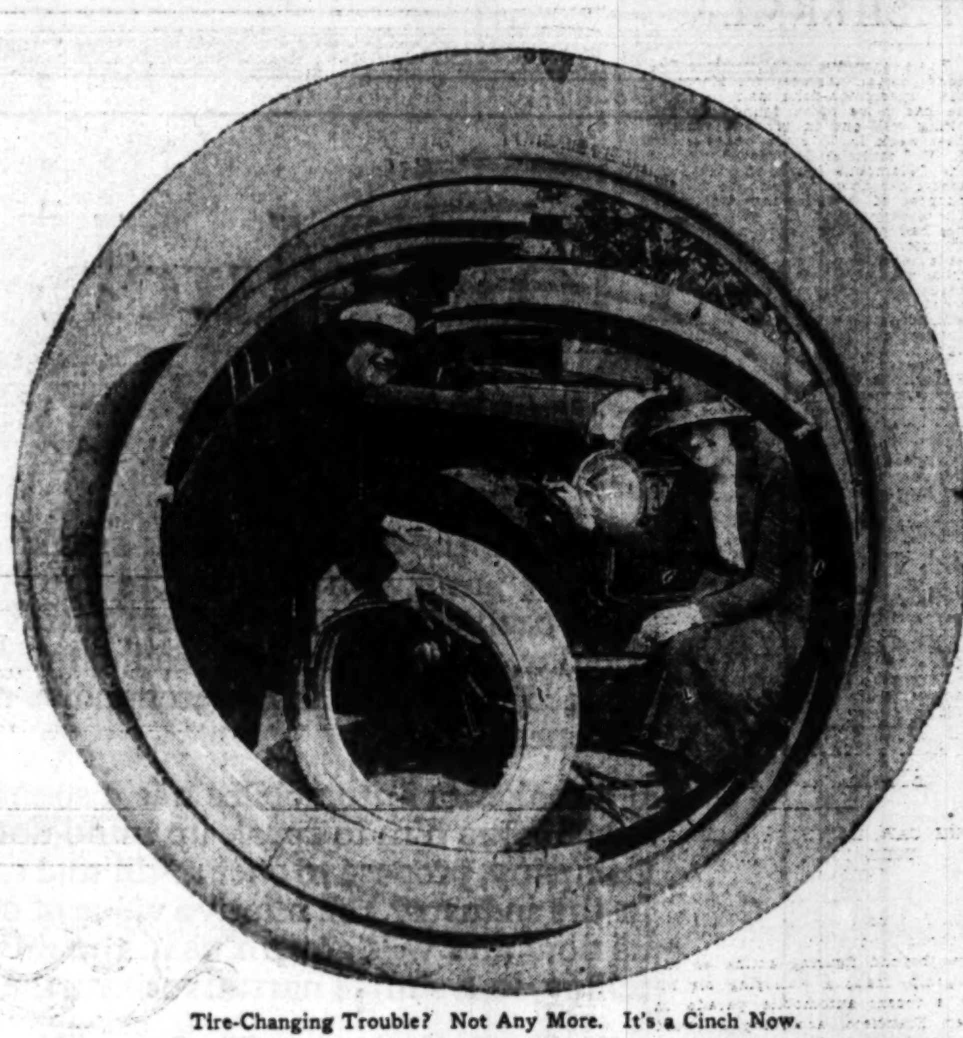
"One contestant sold nine Libertys during the first twelve working days of the race."

NEW HIGHWAY WILL JOIN ARIZONA CITIES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) June 24.—On July 4, Clifton and the Gila Valley towns will join with Silver City, Hillsboro and other Southwestern New Mexico communities in the dedication of the Black Range section of the new scenic highway from the Rio Grande to this point and hence westward, via Safford and Globe, to Phoenix and the Pacific Coast.

Gov. Campbell of Arizona will be represented by State Engineer Maddock. Governor Mecham of New Mexico has advised the committee that he will be present. The speakers' list includes Gov. Mechain, Mr. Maddock, President G. A. Martin of the El Paso Auto Club and President Dell M. Potter of the Southern National Highways Association.



Tire-Changing Trouble? Not Any More. It's a Cinch Now.

At least that's the opinion of Miss Helen Parker and Miss Mary Forrest, who claim that changing tires on their Hudson Sedan, equipped with Daly-Simplex rims, is so easy that it's really fun.

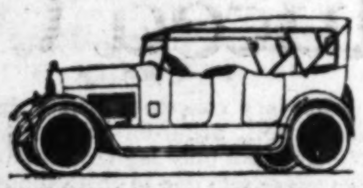
Tells Everything About Farm

Few agricultural journals in the United States equal the TIMES' Farm and Tractor section. This big, illustrated magazine, read by every outdoor man in Southern California, is a regular weekly feature of the SUNDAY TIMES.



Our Faith in Los Angeles and in California encourages us in upbuilding and strengthening our distribution

A Statement by
NORDYKE & MARMON COMPANY
BUILDERS OF THE MARMON 34

LOS ANGELES and California have always shown great friendship of the Marmon 34. And its builders, in turn, have always considered this friendship of particular worth.

Over 1400 Marmons are in service in California. And sales have grown each year in volume.

This is a responsibility and an opportunity which Nordyke & Marmon Company considers worthy of especial consideration.

And that is why the executives of the Company devote such an unusual amount of time on developing and perfecting the distribution and service in Los Angeles and the State.

A Change in Personnel

To improve the service to the public, changes in personnel have been made recently. In Los Angeles, Mr. Tom Roberts is the new manager. In San Francisco, Mr. E. S. Gorrell is the new manager.

Mr. Roberts is the former distributor in Colorado, where he built up a very successful business and won the esteem of the people of Colorado. Mr. Gorrell has been located at the factory as a sales executive.

Both men know the ideal of Nordyke & Marmon Company and how to translate them into service to the public.

Under their guidance, Marmon distributors and dealers throughout the State are able to offer the public all that goes towards making harmonious relations between car owner and manufacturer.

Furthermore, a closer relation with the factory has been brought about through the more constant visiting of factory executives.

A New Record

Since May 2nd, when the Marmon 34 was reduced in price from $5000 to $3985, sales have multiplied many times. One city—Chicago—has more than 175 new owners of the Marmon 34, since May 2nd. And throughout the country, the Marmon 34 has won thousands of new friends.

Nordyke & Marmon Company led the recent movement in price revisions. Since its reduction many others have followed.

But few have made such a radical revision. Only a concern as strong financially and as well intrenched could anticipate the future and the anticipated lowering of production costs.

Nordyke & Marmon Company was founded in 1851. It has one of the largest factories in the country, and one of the most efficient.

The Finest Marmon Ever Built

The new price brings you the identical $5000 car—not changed nor lessened in any particular.

Never in the history of motordom have you been able to obtain such a wonderful car for $3985. And with the direct interest of the company in winning and holding the friendship of Californians, you are assured of the utmost in service.

Visit our show-rooms. See and become acquainted with the Marmon 34. And let us take you on a comparative demonstration.

and Lighting Units Are Quite Simple.

is Essential for Proper Service.

is the starting and lighting something that fills the average car owner with fear a careful look at the gram of his car will serve most difficulties, especially understands a few basic starting and lighting of the car usually consists of and starting motor, separate or included in a single storage battery, which is by the generator and then current to the starting motor the lamps. Then there which connects and disconnects the generator to or from at slow engine speeds. is also a device to regulate charging rate to conform to usually demanded of the with various wires, lamps, etc., complete the not often that mechanical affect the starting and system. Wear in the bearings generator and starting the commonest mechanical times there is trouble in or in the gearing and in mechanical governor. With the car owner can as easily as those in other the mechanism.

troubles obviously are commonest that occur in and they are mostly open circuits or shorts. either case there will be no current at all, while in the flow will be in the wrong whereby the actual work is slighted, as when wire touches another circuit.

necessary to inspect the system at frequent intervals because open circuits and likely to occur at any chafing through of the of a wire is enough to current from flowing to where it is needed. Constant vigilance is the price of starting and lighting efficiency.

There are two methods of running the wires from the battery to the lamps, etc., known, respectively, as single and double wiring. In the double wiring system two wires are used, one to carry the current to its place, where it is needed, and another to bring it back to the battery. In the single wire system one wire carries the current out, while the return is accomplished through the metal of the car's frame. If the wire of a single wire system is stripped of its insulation and touches the metal of the car a short circuit is established and the part served by that wire will not operate at all; if it is a lamp it will not burn. In the two-wire system a short does not form so easily, as two wires must be out of business to cause it.

TERMINALS TROUBLESOME.

The terminals are a source of great trouble in this system. One poor terminal connection may put the whole system out of order, or it may simply prevent one of the units working properly. In case of trouble inspect these parts.

If the starting motor does not turn the engine over snappily and if the lights do not burn with due radiance the trouble is probably caused by the battery. If the lamps do not burn properly, but the starter seems to be working all right obviously the lighting end of the system should be inspected. The best way to attack the matter is to begin at one end of the line and work right down to the other. Start at the bulbs and work back to the battery, examining on the way.

Sometimes the trouble will be found right in the bulbs, which have burned out or have suffered broken filaments through excessive vibration, though this will seldom happen to two bulbs at once. The connectors that lead to the lamps may be loose or the contact points may be corroded. Next examine the wiring back to the switch. See that all wires are fully insulated. In a one-wire system see that that wire is fastened to the metal to which it is attached. In cases where a function box is used there may be a short in this box or the connection here may be loose or dirty. If there are fuses in the wire a fuse may have blown out or the fuse connection may be poor or corroded. If after installing a new fuse that blows out the trouble is in the system. The fuse is intended to protect the system in general from the effects of excessive current supply. Some systems employ circuit breakers instead of fuses.

WATCH SWITCHES.

Switches are another seat of trouble, through dirt, looseness, poor adjustment, etc. Every switch should be inspected in case of trouble. Most starting and lighting systems today include a cutout which disconnects the battery from the generator circuit when the engine is running slowly, usually at ten miles an hour car speed. The ordinary form is electro-magnetically operated and the magnetic points should be kept clean. The cutout terminals, if they become dirty or loose, will cause trouble. If the cutout does not operate properly undercharging may result with battery ills in consequence.

Finally, it is best to use a wiring diagram of the car in hunting for trouble, so that each circuit may be carefully followed from end to end. If the owner has not a diagram it will be supplied by the car manufacturer or the nearest service station.

HEAVEN FOR FISHERMEN.

Now that school is out and summer, long delayed, has come to be a reality, the motorist who loves the seashore has begun to plan for regular week-end trips to the beaches. Perhaps he goes only to watch the children enjoy themselves in the surf, or with rod and line angling for surf, corbina, halibut, herring or mackerel from the pier railing. Then again he may be an ardent "Izaak Walton" himself, in which case he may care more for casting out through the breakers than the less exciting, but also less strenuous sport of angling from the pier rail. In any case the trip to the beach is always an enjoyable one, and with so many almost right at our door, there remains but the minor detail of choosing which it shall be.

For twenty-five or thirty years Redondo Beach has been the Mecca of the sportsman-fisherman. There he has more often found the fish biting well and in greatest variety. Last week L. V. Starr, manager of J. W. Leavitt & Co., distributors of the Oldsmobile four and twin-four, sent a car down to Redondo for the purpose of investigating conditions. There they found that the authorities had provided excellent facilities for pier fishing in addition to the wide beach which is always open to those who care to cast out from the beach. Bait is to be had at reasonable prices almost anywhere, while surf bathing for those who do not care for angling is unusually delightful there.

The famous "horseshoe" pier at Redondo is worthy of a visit, if only for its novelty and unique design.

"JACK RABBITS" MAKE BIG HIT IN BAY CITY.

ONE CAR, IN WHICH CLUBMEN RIDE, IS USED AS A FLAGSHIP.

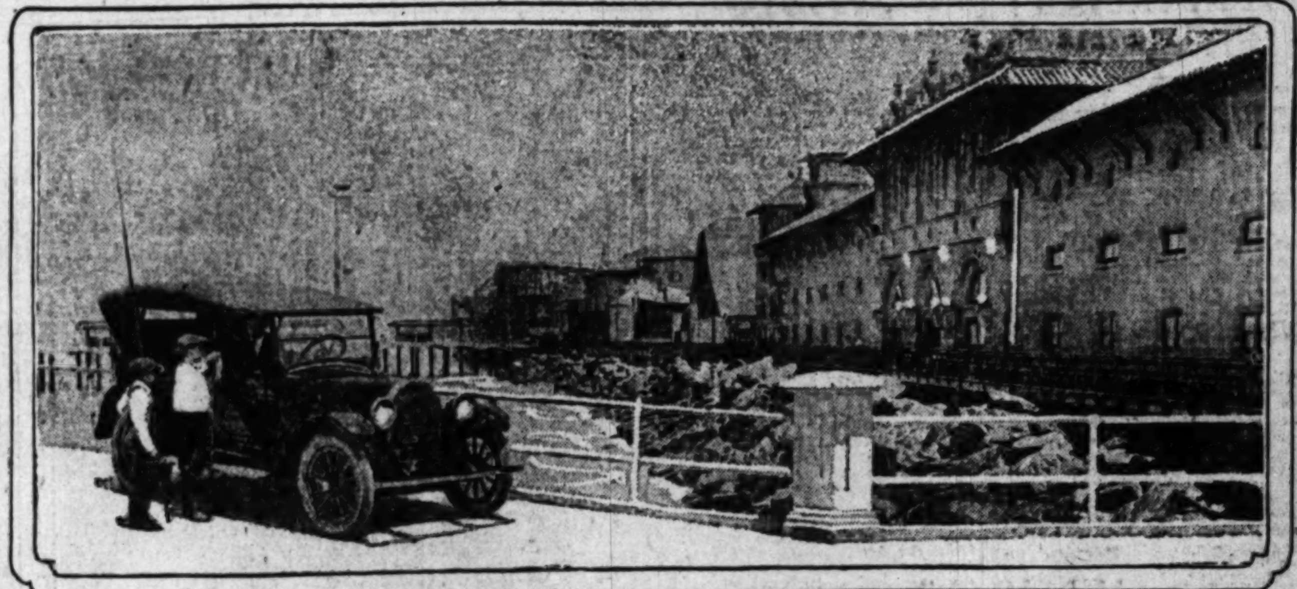
A fleet of up-to-the-minute "Jack Rabbits," with one whose vintage was beyond figuring acting as the flagship, made a walloping big hit in a recent automobile parade in San Francisco, according to word received here by Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the local Apperson branch. Several dolled up club men of prominence made up the crew of the flagship. They were Al Joy, Joe Souther, Otto Wallfish and Lee Dolson, and this quartet in vaudeville garb kept the spectators amused along the line with their pranks.

The communication follows: "Of course the real attraction of the fleet was the bevy of Red Cross nurses who rode, as ladies should, in Appersonian luxury. They were a happy, smiling lot, these young ladies who watch over our soldier boys, and it was one of those pretty little uniformed "pill dispensers" who almost started a riot where Third street collides with Market.

"The flagship had borrowed a rabbit as a Mascot—a real, long-eared jackrabbit, which was securely housed in a canary bird mansion that hung on the port side of the car."

"When I saw that miss turn that rabbit loose I was just a little nervous on account of the heavy traffic," stated the writer.

"You see, the little nurse was driving one of my newest and fastest models," he continued. "I knew if she ever turned the 'jackrabbit' loose that she was driving that they would catch up with that four-footed 'cabbage consumer' she had freed from the cage, and I hate to see a new car speed through the traffic, especially so if it is mine."



Scouting Around to Find the Best Locations for Ocean Fishing.

One of the new Oldsmobiles recently made a trip to several near-by beaches looking for the best fishing grounds. It is here shown on the new pier at Redondo Beach and according to advice brought back by the Oldsmobile party Redondo is the ideal spot for fishermen who enjoy the salt water sport.

GIVES GUARANTEE OF AFTER-SERVICE.

TRANSPORT TRUCK DISTRIBUTOR OFFERS VALUABLE AID AND STOCK OF PARTS.

You hear a great deal about automobile after-service and ninety-day guarantees. Seldom, however, is this mentioned in connection with trucks.

According to the report of D. F. Poyer & Son, Transport truck distributors, these are the first questions a prospective truck purchaser asks, and generally along this line: "What is the reputation of the dealer distributing the truck? What kind of after-service does he give and will I be able to obtain replacement parts immediately?"

Here is the answer to these questions that the D. F. Poyer salesmen give. "Mr. D. F. Poyer is one of the oldest and best known truck men and, in fact, was one of the first to distribute trucks in Los Angeles.

"He was the very first to tell of the service he could give truck users and of the truck he was selling.

"His firm has recently built a huge distributing plant at 824-38 East Sixth street to give service to the many trucks he has sold in and around Los Angeles.

"Concerning replacement parts, he carries a large stock on hand at all times and has the largest stock of Clark internal gear drive axle parts on the Pacific Coast."

MOTOR TRUCKS GIVE SERVICE.

The Big Cars Are Invaluable to Modern Business.

Used in Limitless Variety of World's Industries.

W. L. Moreland Discusses Recent Price Reduction.

"I doubt if there is any manufactured product in the world into which is put more real value in proportion to the selling price than the motor truck," remarked General Manager Watt L. Moreland of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, in discussing the recent reduction in prices quoted for this company's line.

"The motor truck is first, last and all the time essentially a utility. It must do its work not only well and economically, but for a long term of years. Real quality and value cannot be skimped in its construction. There can be no sacrifice in quality if it is to be a successful utility. The truck is used in a limitless variety of businesses, each calling for some individual equipment or some change, however slight it may be, from the regular model, to make it specially fitted for that particular work. While trucks are made in regular standard models there is scarcely one delivered that is not what might be called a custom-made job, made suitably to care for the particular needs of that particular buyer. This is a feature that cannot be overlooked when the cost of production is figured.

"Motor trucks cannot be chopped out by machine by the thousands, like toothpicks.

"The truck-buying public can expect no such percentage of reduction in price of trucks, as has been the case in other lines. Passenger cars, for instance, had reached a high state of development before the war when the truck was in its infancy. The truck's great development came during the war and post-war period, and all the engineering experimentation and manufacture incident to its development had to come during the time of peak prices for everything. In spite of this fact the sales prices of trucks were not increased in any great percentage compared to other articles during that time. This was partly accounted for by the fact that the manufacturers studiously practiced every possible economy in manufacture, and kept their prices as low as was consistent with a reasonable profit.

"There have been, already, some slight reductions in the costs of materials and labor, and it is likely that some more will follow. In our own case we have anticipated the reductions to be expected in the next six months, in figuring our present selling prices. Our reduction was also made possible, however, by internal economies through the perfection of our system of selling through our own branches, thus shortening the road between the producer and the user, and giving the customer the advantage of such saving as comes through the elimination of the middle charges, to as large an extent as possible."

PUTS AUTO TO BED TO SATISFY BUYER.

STRENGTH OF CAMPERS' AUTO BED EFFECTUALLY DEMONSTRATED BY EAGER DEALER.

Here is a test for cot and bed manufacturers to shoot at.

The Western Auto Supply Company received a shipment of "Camper's Auto Bed," which is made to accommodate two persons and is one of the most compact, strongest and easiest to set up on the market today.

The guarantee given by the company manufacturing this bed stated that it could stand 800 pounds weight.

Now, this bed weighs but thirty-seven pounds—seems quite a guarantee for such a light bed.

Two women shoppers dropped in and, being women, were a bit skeptical about this guarantee. The camping manager wanted to demonstrate that the guarantee meant what it said, looked around for some heavy object and finally hit on the idea of putting the front end of a Ford car on top of the bed.

It took six men to lift the Ford equipped with a special body and many different accessories on top of the bed, but it proved to the satisfaction of these customers what the bed could stand.

It was estimated that the Ford with all its accessories placed a weight upon the bed of over 1000 pounds. By this test several hundred pounds more weight were added than the original guarantee called for.

C.O.D.—Come on, Dice—It's the Latest Outdoor Amusement.

Rattling the old bones is getting to be one of the fashionable sports these days. Even down at the beach the young ladies are killing off a few moments talking to the now-famous lawn dice. These large-sized bones were originated in Southern California by Miss Francis Dyas. The car (tear your eyes away from the bathing girls and move them gradually over toward the right) is a Packard Twin Six.

WORK ON SALT LAKE CUT-OFF CONTINUES.

Grading on the new Salt Lake cut-off, which is under construction, has progressed to the summit of the second and final pass on the new route between Yermo and Silver Lake, according to Ralph Hamlin.

It will be remembered that some time ago Hamlin sent a scouting party over the proposed route, the first touring outfit that has, to date, made the trip across to Silver Lake from Yermo, according to a resident of the desert, who dropped in at Hamlin's to talk over the terrific grind the Franklin encountered when it battled its way through sand and over rocks. This pioneering expedition of the Franklin served as an excellent illustration of the Franklin's ability to get around in the wilderness.

ADVANTAGES OF GRINDING.

Only Way to Put a Cylinder Into Perfect Shape According to Experts.

Car owners and repairmen alike, are checking into the causes of motor troubles, closer today than ever before. They regard the points brought out about a good cylinder in the educational campaign now being conducted by the cylinder grinders of Los Angeles, as helpful.

Various methods of finishing a cylinder have been taken up and discussed in this series of talks, and the advantages in favor of a ground cylinder, set forth. It is pointed out that 84 per cent of all passenger car manufacturers and 91 per cent of all commercial car manufacturers have accepted the grinding method as the only true way to put the finishing touches to a good cylinder.

According to the cylinder grinders, grinding a cylinder, after it has been bored out, is the only way yet found to produce a smooth, mirror-like surface to a cylinder wall, and to insure a bore absolutely square and true with the base of the cylinder.

"Just as grinding is employed to finish the greater percentage of new cylinders, so in overhauling a motor, regrinding plays an important part, in fact, it is the all-important part to obtain the right kind of compression," declare the cylinder grinders. "It is a well-known fact that a new piston, and new rings, will not work properly in a cylinder that is out of round, scored, or enlarged at top or bottom, and that faulty compression may be the result of any one of these conditions. Regrinding will correct any or all of them.

"In regrinding a cylinder the grinding wheel exerts very little pressure upon the side wall, and cuts only to the exact depth desired. By other methods the cutting tool, by the force of pressure on the side wall, often cuts too deep, leaving the wall dangerously thin.

"Motorists have found that after a complete overhaul job has been made on the motor, cylinders properly reground, and fitted with new pistons, rings, and pins, that they are able to add thousands of miles more to the life of their car."

NIKRENT IS STAGING A COME-BACK.

Veteran Buick Driver to Enter Nevada Desert Race After Long Rest.

Every star seems to emulate the immortal Patti. The latest prominent sporting celebrity to pull a "Patti farewell" return is our genial and smiling friend, Joe Nikrent, one of the most famous racing pilots that ever sat behind the wheel of a racing chariot. But Joe has a good alibi for his comeback. When Nikrent announced his retirement from the racing game, he made the stipulation that if there was a renewal of the Phoenix road race, or a similar race which called for desert driving, he would be among the starters.

And Joe is making good. Furthermore, not only is Nikrent doing a comeback personally, but he is doing it in a car with which he has made racing history. Buick and Nikrent are synonymous, consequently the announcement that Nikrent has officially entered his Buick car in the Nevada desert road race, which calls for 1000 miles of desert roads of the toughest variety, will be hailed with much satisfaction by his host of admirers in the Pacific Coast territory.

For the past week Nikrent has been testing out his Buick over the Nevada course, which runs from Reno to Wadsworth, Fallon, Lovelock, Winnemucca, Battle Mountain, Elko, Wells, Currie, Cherry Creek, Ely, Tonopah, Minden, Yerrington, Wellington, Gardnerville and thence to Reno.

Such a veteran as Nikrent does not hesitate in stating that the 1000 miles, which must be traversed in three days, will test the sturdiness of the automobile and the stamina and driving ability of the driver. He says there are all sorts of roads excepting highways, with sand, deep ruts caused by washouts from the water rushing down the hillsides of the mountains, to overcome in making the triangular trip from Reno to Reno, with night stops in Elko and Tonopah.

STOCK OF HUPS IS DIMINISHING FAST.

PRICE REDUCTION BOOSTS SALES OF THE GREER-ROBBINS FIRM.

The big slash in Hupmobile prices, aided by the summer weather, has stimulated the demand for this popular car to the extent that the Greer-Robbins Company, Hupmobile distributors for Southern California and Arizona, has had cars diverted in shipments from the factory to other points to this territory, according to Billy Williams, head of the local retail sales organization.

"As far as touring cars and coupes, we are just about as bad off as we were one year ago, when we could not get deliveries from the factory," he said. "The price cut and the improvements that are now part of the regular Hupmobile equipment, combined with the warm weather that has descended upon us with a rush, has our sales force on the jump from morning until night. We have a big shipment of Hups on the way from Detroit, but by the time they reach us, we will undoubtedly be just as bad off as we are right now."

Many who have delayed arranging their vacation period because of the very unusual backward spring weather, are now preparing to "hit the road," and as a result the old car is being traded in for a new one. In this instance, it is remarkable the number of old model Hupmobiles that date back as far as 1914 that are traded in for the late 1921 Hup with all its new improvements.

Yosemite is Shut to Those Without Any Reservations

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP CURRY (YOSEMITE) June 24.—All motorists attempting to enter the Yosemite National Park without confirmed reservations, or carrying their own camping equipment were being turned back today on orders of Supt. W. B. Lewis in charge of the park. This situation is due to keep up for the next six weeks, as all accommodations have been reserved in advance until after the first of August. The record at Camp Curry was broken last night by 200, with a total of 1330 people in the camp. With all roads into the valley open and in excellent condition and with more water in the streams and on the falls than in many years, the present season promises to be the best, by far, in the history of the valley. The falls are expected to retain their beauty well into the fall due to the late snows.

Should be Able to Render First Aid to Engine.

"Human ills and automobile ills both yield to the well-known home remedy treatment when properly applied," says J. C. McGill of the McGill Motor Company, local distributors for the Gardner motot car.

"But quite often the motor car owner doesn't know how to use a remedy or even what the trouble is," he says. "If he is like some men I know of, he may be of the inquisitive temperament that demands the reason for the least tick. He may dissemble and even disembowel his car just for the mere fun of putting it back together again. And as a rule he not only makes things worse than they were, but has to pay out good money for readjustments that might have been absolutely unnecessary had he consulted his service station in the first place.

"Of course, I don't mean that one should not be able to remedy a minor motor ailment involving a knowledge of the general fundamentals of automotive construction and operation. He should kno whow to oil, when to oil; how to tell whether a dead engine is dead from lack of spark or lack of gasoline; how to replace spark plugs; how to remedy a loose connection in case of a broken or grounded electrical circuit, and the other little ills easily remedied. This is necessary information and the dealer is glad to explain all that when the car is purchased."

EXTEND TERRITORY OF BRISCOE DEALER.

LOCAL FIRM BECOMES SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA DISTRIBUTOR FOR THIS CAR.

By an arrangement recently consumated with the Briscoe Motor Corporation of Jackson, Mich., the Boulevard Motors Corporation becomes distributor of the well-known Briscoe car for all Southern California territory south of Monterey county, is the statement issued by Leland S. Foulke, president and manager of the distributing concern. Until the new arrangement and since taking over the line, its territory has been confined to Los Angeles county.

A wholesale department has been created with D. M. Waite in charge and last week, accompanied by A. H. Jones, assistant manager of the western division of the Briscoe Motor Corporation, the new executive started over the territory, to get first-hand information concerning his field of labor.

"We are congratuling ourselves for securing such greatly enlarged territory, for we feel that under the new Briscoe management and with its aggressive and broadened policy including the most sound financing, that the car will find the very highest favor among the ranks of the most moderate price car," he stated.

COLE REAL MUD HOUND SAYS OWNER.

Aero-Eight Plows Through Louisiana Swamps and Woods With Ease.

Mississippi and Louisiana roads are bad enough in the summer time, but in the spring of the year heavy rains and high water make them in most places almost impossible.

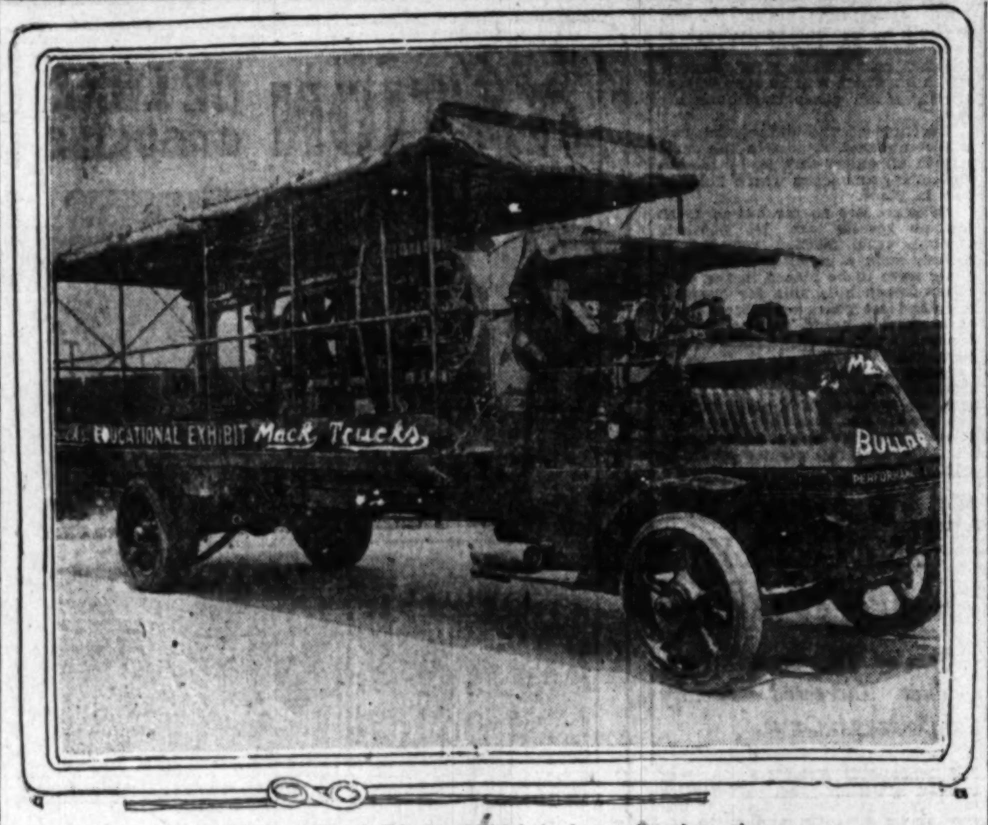
But it was a condition such as this that made C. P. Spees of the Adascope Company of Texas, a lifelong friend of his Cole Aero-Eight, in which he and Mrs. Spees made a cross-country tour. The story of the trip is best told, however, in Mr. Spees's own words in a letter he wrote from Centerville, Miss., to the Cox, Roberts & Bellows Company, Cole distributors at Shreveport, La. Mr. Spees says:

"From Centerville to Shreveport is 215 miles. Our speedometer, however, registers 511 miles between these two towns, so you can guess what we encountered in getting through.

"At one point we were just one and a half miles from Hamburg, La., and could see the town plainly. But someone got our chains. There were four cars stuck in the mud ahead of us and no way to go around them. We were obliged to go forty-one miles out of our way to get into Hamburg, but we arrived before the other cars got through.

"We had about the same experience all through Mississippi, for they have had the hardest rains here and never before has it been that all of the bridges have been washed out as they are now. So in order to get eleven miles into Centerville we had to detour thirty-three miles and then through a woods that was full of holes.

"If anyone wants to get a regular reference regarding the work that can be done by the Cole send them to me. And you know my opinion is not based on paved streets and fine gravel roads, but on mud holes hub deep."



A Unique Truck Display Which is Attracting Attention.

A huge Mack truck has been transformed into a moving show room by the local distributors. The big truck carries a smaller-model machine around and provides power for its operation. The smaller truck is set on its side so that the complete action of every part of the motor and driving mechanism can be seen and studied.

RETURNS FROM VISIT TO EASTERN CITIES.

HEAD OF ALEMITE COMPANY DISCUSSES CONDITIONS IN AUTO WORLD.

Bringing home with him reports on business conditions in the East and Middle West, together with details of still another product soon to be placed on the market and which will eliminate more of the worries attendant on motoring, C. A. Roesch, head of the Alemite Lubricator Company of California, returned to this city last Sunday after a tour of several weeks.

"While in Chicago I met E. W. Bassick, president of the Bassick Manufacturing Company, and had a very interesting talk with him," said Roesch. "Mr. Bassick is a very pleasant man to meet and is a genius in devising aids for the motorist. His concern placed the Alemite lubricating system on the market less than two years ago and now more than 75 per cent of the standard motor cars and trucks have that system as standard equipment.

"Later the Bassick penetrating oil for springs and rusty bolts was invented, and that, too, proved a huge success. Now they are producing the "Gas-Co-Lator," a clever contrivance for purifying the gasoline before it enters the carburetor; their "ShurLite" cigar lighter, in which there are no wire or cords to bother with in its use; a special type of grease for use in the Alemite grease gun, and just recently they have gone into production on a "Booster Pump" for use in connection with the Alemite system in clearing up bearing clogged with dirt and old grease, and which will raise the pressure of the Alemite grease gun from 500 pounds to the square inch to 5000 pounds to the square inch."

HANDLEY-KNIGHT IS BUILT TO SATISFY.

LOCAL DEALER BELIEVES THE MODERN MOTORIST WANTS ARISTOCRATIC CAR.

The new Handley-Knight is built especially for the motorist who is hard to please, is the declaration of F. E. Lewis of the Lewis-Hilliard Company, local distributors.

"This motorist I refer to demands not only something different in motor cars but he wants something that he feels has been built especially for him," says Mr. Lewis. "He wants a car that fairly radiates aristocracy in both motor and body construction.

"The power plant used in the Handley-Knight is the last word in Knight engines, and the Knights are to my mind supreme in the world of motors. This engine is aristocratic in the best sense of the word.

"In the body of the new Handley-Knight, not a single item that makes for luxury is omitted. The connoisseur of automobiles always demands this excellence. And it must not only be carried out in lines and general details of construction. It must be evidenced in every bit of adornment."

FIX YOUR FLIVVER WITH RENTED TOOLS.

"Repairing your car is not so much an art as having the right tools to do the work with and the place to do it in. The average person with a little practice can tighten a bolt if he has the proper tools, or adjust a brake band, if he has a wrench, just as well as a mechanic. It is all in having the necessary and proper tools.

"Many will say that tools are very expensive articles at the present time, and that it takes a good-sized investment to completely equip your car with all the tools necessary for general repair work," says W. D. Candee of the Fix-It Yo-self Shop, who is operating a garage between Tenth and Eleventh streets on Spring street, where motorists can rent tools and space and fix up their old flivver without having to pay a mechanic a fortune to do the job.

"It was with this thought in mind that we established a garage where motorists may easily obtain all the tools they can possibly use and by paying very little per hour for their use."

NOVEL DISPLAY METHOD.

Something original as a motor-truck exhibit is considered difficult to obtain, but undoubtedly the Mack truck display that has been seen on the streets recently would qualify. There is nothing new in one truck transporting another, but when the load consists of a truck that is turned over on its side, then it is different and the crowds that always flock wherever the Mack stops, testify to this fact. In a number of instances, it has been necessary to move the show in order to prevent traffic blockades, and this is a condition that the Mack-International Motor Truck Corporation agreed with the police department not to bring about.

Because of the fact that the entire exhibit was planned to be of exceptional value in showing motor-truck construction, it is termed an educational exhibit. The base of the crank case of the overturned chassis, the bottom of the transmission housing and the cover plate over the governor and timing gears have been removed, exposing the operation of those parts to view. A pulley on the auxiliary shaft of the upright truck drives another pulley on the shaft of the turned-over chassis, by means of a belt. This makes it possible to operate the entire mechanism of the turned-over Mack, from the timing gears in front, to the final drive wheel in the rear, through power developed by the motor of the upright chassis. It is possible to drive the turned-over chassis in any gear in which the lower truck is functioning.

More than 1000 students in the automotive classes of the Polytechnic, Manual Arts and Jefferson high schools, have embraced the opportunity afforded by this exhibit to become better acquainted with mechanical features. The Mack corporation has been requested to retain the exhibit until school reconvenes in the fall, in order that the pupils may have an opportunity to make a more thorough inspection.

HOPING TO CURB "YUCCA HOUNDS."

"Yucca hounds" in motor cars are spoiling California scenery for eastern visitors.

Don't pick a yucca on the hills this summer is a plea issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California at the request of hundreds of nature-lovers in this part of the West.

More than 5000 big blooms have been carried through San Fernando in a single Sunday by autoists, according to actual figures secured by the club.

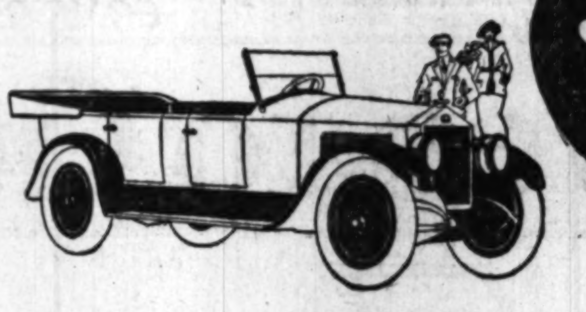
Moon Price Reduced

$1985



Climbing Sales again net a real saving to purchasers of Moon Cars

This big saving of $400 over last summer's price is only partially due to new and present inventories. It is primarily the result of Moon's ever-growing popularity.

Moon sales have jumped far ahead this year. During the first four months of 1920 the astounding volume in automobile sales gave rise to common gossip that the peak of the business had been reached.

But Moon sales show a 27 per cent increase the first four months of this year over the same period of 1920. This fact is significant and is a fair measure of the good-will the motoring public holds for this wonderful car and the company that builds it.

The demand for more and more Moon cars has constantly increased production. This has greatly reduced overhead cost of manufacture, making a much lower price possible.

This surprising reduction in price for all Moon models will be effective July 1st. Orders will be accepted during June at the reduced price for July 1st delivery.

Nothing has been lowered but the price. This remarkable car retains in every detail its established excellence. In addition to its ten proven units, which represent the combined engineering skill of the world, new and greater refinements have found expression in the fullest meaning of motor car perfection.

The Moon stands supreme in its class, and by virtue of its qualities and price, holds unquestioned leadership.

Years of engineering experience and 41 years devoted to coach building account for its mechanical excellence and outward distinction.

Note the list of Moon's proven units—compare them with any other car for a full appreciation of Moon's remarkable value at its new and greatly reduced price.

WAYS TO STOP AXLE NOISES.

Suggestions by Authority on This Subject.

Glenn R. Keith Says Racket is Due to Ten Causes.

Broken Gears is Often Reason for This Trouble.

"Rear axle noises may be brought about by any one or more of the following conditions: Worn or broken gears; worn differential or pinion bearings; warped gears; maladjustment of differential unit or pinion; inaccurately cut gear teeth; misalignment of differential unit and pinion; lack of lubrication; dirt and other foreign matter on gear teeth; sprung axle housing, or gears too hard," declared Glenn R. Keith of the Standard Automotive Steel Company, distributors of the Standard sight in Southern California.

Discussing the subject of eliminating gear noises from the rear axle, Keith stated: "It is necessary to get the proper backlash or play between gears and also to obtain proper tooth contact. The simplest method of checking up tooth contact is to spread some red lead over the gear teeth, operating the pair for a few minutes to obtain markings. Examination of teeth then will show just where contact is being made. Contact too deep or too slight may cause a noise. In order to alter the degree of contact it is necessary to shift the differential unit or the pinion. The former is generally held in place by collars which when loosened allow the entire unit to be moved toward or away from the pinion. Improper backlash may cause a most disagreeable hum which will be even in tone usually if all other conditions are met.

"Shifting of the differential unit is accomplished almost in the same way in all axles; that is, by loosening collars and locks which hold the unit in place.

"If gears are so far out of mesh that no results can be obtained through usual method pursued to remedy such a condition, or if new gears have to be placed in the axle, remove peep hole plug for observation, and set gears with back flush as a starting point, and proceed in the usual way to effect such an adjustment.

"After making adjustments make sure all locking keys, cotters, wires, etc., are replaced and all bolts and cap screws are properly drawn up. If running a car to try adjustments, all bolts and cap screws must be tightened."

SAYS AUTO INDUSTRY IMPROVING.

Stanley W. Smith States That Increased Factory Efficiency is Cause.

By constantly striving to increase factory efficiency, the automotive industry of the United States is improving its products, and by so doing, is aiding the cause of more efficient transportation facilities, according to Stanley W. Smith, president of Smith Brothers, Peerless distributors for Southern California. Commenting upon this fact, Smith, who recently returned from a visit to the Peerless plant in Cleveland, said:

"It has been demonstrated by the Peerless organization in its many years of successful automobile building, that efficiency is greatly improved when a car is manufactured practically in its entirety in one plant and under the complete direction of one organization. A trip through the immense Peerless factory, now operating at capacity to satisfy a demand that has oversold its product, is an education.

"Take for instance those departments devoted to making and finishing Peerless bodies, both open and inclosed, that have always been made in the Peerless works at Cleveland, instead of assembled from different points. There are six kilns of 300,000 lumber feet capacity, where selected white ash is treated under perfect heat control for a period from twenty days to two months. After the seasoning it is cut, shaped, joined and assembled by a corps of experts of long standing in the Peerless organization.

"The bodies are stamped from eighteen-gauge sheet steel, and the use of this metal insures perfect rigidity and strength, but makes it possible to have positive and permanent contact where metal meets metal, by the use of spot welding and oxy-welding, which cannot be done where the metal used is aluminum."

RUBBER SOLVENT.

Only pure unvulcanized rubber is soluble. However, if the pure rubber is shredded into small particles and covered with mineral naphtha or pure benzine, it will be reduced to a gelatinous liquid. In case a quick drying solution is desired, carbon disulphide should be used as a solvent.

STATION DE LUXE GASOLINE

Here's an Automobile that Never Even Gets a Chance to Breathe.

A 1917 Chalmers touring car owned by Mack Ervin, local representative of Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, which has been driven more than twice around the world as far as distance is concerned and is still going like a million dollars. And most of the mileage has been made in the Yosemite country, where roads are not always what they might be. According to Erwin the Chalmers is as much a stranger to a service or repair shop as Jack Dempsey is to army training.

RUNS UP BIG MILEAGE.

Discovered! An automobile that has traveled a little more than twice the distance around the world. And this car is sirght in Los Angeles.

Mack Erwin, local representative of Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, probably has done more traveling up and down the State, in and over the mountains, since 1917, than any other one person in California.

These Statewide tours have been made at all times of the year. In fact, Erwin starts another long jaunt tomorrow and in the same Chalmers car that he purchased from Greer-Robbins back in 1917.

When it is considered that a good part of the mileage mentioned above has had as its locale the countless miles of mountain grades between here and Camp Curry, and these trips having been made in all kinds of weather, it may be said that the car has given a perfect demonstration of its sterling qualities.

According to Erwin, the only expense that he has had with the Chalmers has been in the purchase of gasoline, oil, grease and minor service details. The car has proved itself to be exceptionally easy on tires, the Horseshoe Cords with which it has been equipped for the past three years having given exceptional service, while several letters praising them on this score have been received by Roy Meads of the Pacific Rubber Company. In addition to the above, Erwin declares that in all the time he has been driving his car he has never had to have a single part replaced or repaired.

A large shipment of Yosemite Valley booklets, containing descriptive matter of the park and its facilities has just been received by Erwin. They will be available for distribution at 623 South Spring street. Erwin's trip will cover a period of two months and nearly every city, town and village on the way to Yosemite.

HIGH-GRADE "FOUR" IS ADDED TO LINE.

BELIEVE THAT DUPONT AND OWEN MAGNETIC MAKE EXCELLENT TEAM.

Announcement last week that the Gaffney Motor Sales Company had taken over distribution for Southern California of the DuPont car, a product of the famous DuPont interests of Wilmington, Del., created not a little interest along the row.

For the last two years this firm has handled the Owen Magnetic, the famous "car of a thousand speeds," and has been very successful in its introduction here among discriminating motorists. Members of the firm, however, desired to add to their line a car somewhat less expensive, appealing more to the average run of automobile owners, but they were unwilling to take over the distribution of a car that had not been proven by actual test or without a factory behind it that had the highest reputation for honesty and fair dealing.

After careful examination, technical and otherwise, of a number of high-grade cars they finally decided upon the DuPont four. This was due, in part, to the established reputation of the DuPont interests, and partly to the excellent features of design and mechanical construction possessed by this car.

Advantages of Regrinding Cylinders Over Other Methods

Third in the series of talks by the Cylinder Grinders of Los Angeles

THERE are three methods of finishing a cylinder—reaming, boring and grinding.

Reaming and boring are similar—grinding is vastly different.

The advantages in favor of the grinding method are apparent because—

1. The biggest percentage of car manufacturers today use this method to finish a cylinder.
2. Regrinding produces a smooth, glass-like surface, while the surface left by other methods is more or less porous, and subject to rapid wear.
3. The grinding machine produces an accurate hole, absolutely square with the base of the cylinder. In reboring or reaming it is the tendency of the cutting tool to follow the bore and the soft spots in the iron.
4. Reboring cuts into the side wall, often leaving it dangerously thin. Regrinding exerts little pressure on the side wall, and cuts only to the exact depth desired.

Regrinding adds thousands of miles to the life of your car, and will bring back that "power and pep" which have become lost through leakage in the cylinders.

Watch for the next advertisement after this, "When to Regrind."

Los Angeles, California.

Dear Sir:

Good gasoline is a very important factor in racing. That's why I have used Richfield for the last three years. I have tried all kinds of gasoline, but when I ship your gasoline East for the big races there, you may know what I think of Richfield gas. I never expect to use anything else.

RICHFIELD

The Gasoline of POWER

"Sarles First at Uniontown!"

—the headlines that flashed across the continent Saturday, June 18th, when Roscoe Sarles broke the Uniontown track record in the Sixth Annual Trophy race for 225 miles in 2:18:20!

Sarles thinks so much of Richfield that he expresses it clear across the country to win races—and it's the same high gravity Richfield gas you get at the Richfield service station around the corner—wherever you see the Richfield sign.

You may not need 98 miles an hour, but you do want the steady, uniform power—the quick pick-up and long economical mileage you get only from Richfield.

RICHLUBE MOTOR OILS

WAYS TO STOP AXLE NOISES.

Suggestions by Authority on This Subject.

Glenn R. Keith Says Racket is Due to Ten Causes.

Broken Gears is Often Reason for This Trouble.

"Rear axle noises may be brought about by any one or more of the following conditions: Worn or broken gears; worn differential or pinion bearings; warped gears; maladjustment of differential unit or pinion; inaccurately cut gear teeth; misalignment of differential unit and pinion; lack of lubrication; dirt and other foreign matter on gear teeth; sprung axle housing, or gears too hard," declared Glenn R. Keith of the Standard Automotive Steel Company, distributors of the Standard eight in Southern California.

Discussing the subject of eliminating gear noises from the rear axle, Keith stated: "It is necessary to get the proper backlash or play between gears and also to obtain proper tooth contact. The simplest method of checking up tooth contact is to spread some red lead over the gear teeth, operating the pair for a few minutes to obtain markings. Examination of teeth then will show just where contact is being made. Contact too deep or too slight may cause a noise. In order to alter the degree of contact it is necessary to shift the differential unit or the pinion. The former is generally held in place by collars which when loosened allow the entire unit to be moved toward or away from the pinion. Improper backlash may cause a most disagreeable hum which will be even in tone usually if all other conditions are met.

"Shifting of the differential unit is accomplished almost in the same way in all axles; that is, by loosening collars and locks which hold the unit in place.

"If gears are so far out of mesh that no results can be obtained through usual method pursued to remedy such a condition, or if new gears have to be placed in the axle, remove peep hole plug for observation, and set gears with back flush, as a starting point, and proceed in the usual way to effect such an adjustment.

"After making adjustments make sure all locking keys, cotters, wires etc., are replaced and all bolts and cap screws are properly drawn up. If running a car to try adjustments, all bolts and cap screws must be tightened."

SAYS AUTO INDUSTRY IMPROVING.

Stanley W. Smith States That Increased Factory Efficiency is Cause.

By constantly striving to increase factory efficiency, the automotive industry of the United States is improving its products, and by so doing, is aiding the cause of more efficient transportation facilities, according to Stanley W. Smith, president of Smith Brothers, Peerless distributors for Southern California. Commenting upon this fact, Smith, who recently returned from a visit to the Peerless plant in Cleveland, said:

"It has been demonstrated by the Peerless organization in its many years of successful automobile building, that efficiency is greatly improved when a car is manufactured practically in its entirety in one plant and under the complete direction of one organization. A trip through the immense Peerless factory, now operating at capacity to satisfy a demand that has oversold its product, is an education.

"Take for instance those departments devoted to making and finishing Peerless bodies, both open and inclosed, that have always been made in the Peerless works at Cleveland, instead of assembled from different points. There are six kilns of 300,000 lumber feet capacity, where selected white ash is treated under perfect heat control for a period from twenty days to two months. After the seasoning it is cut, shaped, joined and assembled by a corps of experts of long standing in the Peerless organization.

"The bodies are stamped from eighteen-gauge sheet steel, and the use of this metal insures perfect rigidity and strength, but makes it possible to have positive and permanent contact where metal meets metal, by the use of spot welding and oxy-welding, which cannot be done where the metal used is aluminum."

RUBBER SOLVENT.

Only pure unvulcanized rubber is soluble. However, if the pure rubber is shredded into small particles and covered with mineral naphtha or pure benzole, it will be reduced to a gelatinous liquid. In case a quick drying solution is desired, carbon disulphide should be used as a solvent.

STATION
DE LUXE GASOLINE

Here's an Automobile that Never Even Gets a Chance to Breathe.

A 1917 Chalmers touring car owned by Mack Ervin, local representative of Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, which has been driven more than twice around the world as far as distance is concerned and is still going like a million dollars. And most of the mileage has been made in the Yosemite country, where roads are not always what they might be. According to Erwin the Chalmers is as much a stranger to a service or repair shop as Jack Dempsey is to army training.

RUNS UP BIG MILEAGE.

Discovered! An automobile that has traveled a little more than twice the distance around the world. And this car is sirght in Los Angeles.

Mack Erwin, local representative of Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, probably has done more traveling up and down the State, in and over the mountains, since 1917, than any other one person in California.

These Statewide tours have been made at all times of the year. In fact, Erwin starts another long jaunt tomorrow and in the same Chalmers car that he purchased from Greer-Robbins back in 1917.

When it is considered that a good part of the mileage mentioned above has had as its locale the countless miles of mountain grades between here and Camp Curry, and these trips having been made in all kinds of weather, it may be said that the car has given a perfect demonstration of its sterling qualities.

According to Erwin, the only expense that he has had with the Chalmers has been in the purchase of gasoline, oil, grease and minor service details. The car has proved itself to be exceptionally easy on tires, the Horseshoe Cords with which it has been equipped for the past three years having given exceptional service, while several letters praising them on this score have been received by Roy Meads of the Pacific Rubber Company. In addition to the above, Erwin declares that in all the time he has been driving his car he has never had to have a single part replaced or repaired.

A large shipment of Yosemite Valley booklets, containing descriptive matter of the park and its facilities has just been received by Erwin. They will be available for distribution at 623 South Spring street. Erwin's trip will cover a period of two months and nearly every city, town and village on the way to Yosemite.

HIGH-GRADE "FOUR" IS ADDED TO LINE.

BELIEVE THAT DUPONT AND OWEN MAGNETIC MAKE EXCELLENT TEAM.

Announcement last week that the Gaffney Motor Sales Company had taken over distribution for Southern California of the DuPont car, a product of the famous DuPont interests of Wilmington, Del., created not a little interest along the row.

For the last two years this firm has handled the Owen Magnetic, the famous "car of a thousand speeds," and has been very successful in its introduction here among discriminating motorists. Members of the firm, however, desired to add to their line a car somewhat less expensive, appealing more to the average run of automobile owners, but they were unwilling to take over the distribution of a car that had not been proven by actual test or without a factory behind it that had the highest reputation for honesty and fair dealing.

After careful examination, technical and otherwise, of a number of high-grade cars they finally decided upon the DuPont four. This was due, in part, to the established reputation of the DuPont interests, and partly to the excellent features of design and mechanical construction possessed by this car.

Advantages of Regrinding Cylinder Over Other Method

Third in the series of talks by the Cylinder Grinders of Los

THERE are three methods of finishing a cylinder—reaming, boring and grinding.

Reaming and boring are similar—grinding is vastly different.

The advantages in favor of the grinding method are apparent because—

1. The biggest percentage of car manufacturers today use this method to finish a cylinder.
2. Regrinding produces a smooth, glass-like surface, while the surface left by other methods is more or less porous, and subject to rapid wear.
3. The grinding machine produces an accurate hole, absolutely square with the base of the cylinder. In reboring or reaming it is the tendency of the cutting tool to follow the bore and the soft spots in the iron.
4. Reboring cuts into the side wall, often leaving it dangerously thin. Regrinding exerts little pressure on the side wall, and cuts only to the exact depth desired.

Regrinding adds thousands of miles to the life of your car, and will bring back that "power and pep" which have become lost through leakage in the cylinders.

Watch for the next advertisement after this, "When to Regrind."

A beautifully finished Pierce-Arrow chassis now on display in the salesrooms of the local distributors. The chassis is characteristic of Pierce-Arrow and is a wonderful piece of mechanism. Many owners and prospective owners are flocking in to get an idea of what makes the wheels go 'round in a Pierce-Arrow.

PIERCE CHASSIS ON VIEW.

On a tour of the United States to give owners and prospective purchasers of high grade motor cars an opportunity to study the finished workmanship of the Pierce-Arrow motor car, a polished chassis, valued at many thousands of dollars, arrived in Los Angeles this week and is on special display in the showrooms of William E. Bush, distributor of Pierce-Arrow motor cars in Southern California.

After two weeks' exhibit at the Bush showrooms at 1701 South Grand avenue, the Pierce-Arrow polished chassis will be sent East, according to L. R. Wadsworth, general maanger of the pioneer Los Angeles motor-car concern.

Aside from its unusual neatness and attractiveness, the chassis clearly shows the fundamental mechanical features that have won added prestige and fame for Pierce-Arrow. The sturdy frame, long wheelbase and durable, flexible springs readily tell the story of Pierce-Arrow ease of riding. The unusually large area of braking surface is another feature of safety that is self-evident.

The adjustable steering column is adaptable for any type of body, whether standard or custom built, it being subject to change in position by merely a slight adjustment.

The Pierce-Arrow dual valve motor, now in its third year, that has brought greater fame to that pioneer make of motor car, also is a source of keen interest and study by the hundreds of particular motorists who already have inspected the polished chassis.

FUEL VAPORABILITY.

Motorists are often puzzled to know whether the fuel that they are getting is of reasonably volatile grade, as such things go at the present time. The following is a simple test that will give some hint in this connection: Pour a few drops of the gasoline on a sheet of clean white paper and note how long it takes to dry off and whether it leaves a greasy stain or discoloration. If it does it may be known as a heavy fuel containing non-volatile impurities.

ARE STILL TALKING OF NEW RECORD.

World's Mark Set by Paige Stock Model Car Causes Comment.

Comment is still coming in, according to "Biz" Clark of the A. E. Evans Company, Paige distributor here, concerning the world's record performance of a Paige "6-66," driven by Ralph Mulford on the speedway at Uniontown, Pa. This car broke all world's records for stripped stock car chassis from five to 100 miles in officially sanctioned runs. Included among the new marks established by the Paige was the one-hour mark, Mulford being officially accorded eighty-nine miles, against eighty-three established at Sheepshead Bay Speedway, June 28, 1917.

In the train of the official world's stock chassis record, made January 1 of this year, when a Paige "6-66," Daytona model, covered a measured mile in 35.01 seconds, a rate of 102.8 miles an hour, the Uniontown performances of nonstop runs cap the climax to a long series of events that establish the Paige "6-66" in an unassailable position of supremacy, according to Heller, for power, speed and stamina.

The Paige performances at Uniontown, as at Daytona, Fla., when the mile mark fell, were under the observation of official representatives of the American Automobile Association's racing board. As the Paige reeled off the miles, an electric timing device recorded the speed to the fraction of a second. In the morning, the Paige lowered the record of five, ten and twenty miles, and in a thrilling nonstop run in the afternoon, new world's records for twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five and 100 miles, besides the new hour mark, were rung up.

SPEND HUGE AMOUNT ON AUTO TIRES.

Expert Says Bill Amounts to as Much as is Expended for Highway Improvement.

"The United States spends as much every year for tires as it spends for improvement of its highways," declared H. J. Coger of the Troy Motor Sales Company, Lafayette distributors, in talking over the recent action of the State Highway Commission and the automobile clubs working toward an enduring surface on our paved-road systems.

"The entire bill alone amounts to a billion dollars a year. When you consider that the Panama Canal cost $375,000,000 and the Woolworth Building, tallest in the world, cost only $12,500,000, why a billion seems to mean little more. The value of all the passenger vehicles manufactured in 1919 was $1,461,785,925.

"Motorists are beginning to realize that the road surfaces are responsible for the size of their tire bills. For instance, the effect on the tire of driving over a street paved with sheet asphalt, and the effect from driving over a surface like sandpaper is widely different. The passage of a tire over millions of sharp-edged sand crystals on a rigid road means minute lacerations and pitting of the surface of the tire, followed by disintegration.

"The saving in tire bills alone in a great many instances would make up for the extra expense of the smooth pavement throughout the State where travel is at all extensive."

INNOCENTLY DOES THE IMPOSSIBLE.

MOTORIST IN MAXWELL DRIVES WITH FULL LOAD OVER TREACHEROUS DUNES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Not knowing that no other machine had ever succeeded in driving over the half-mile of deep and steep sand dunes that lie between the Mad River Beach and Eureka, a party of five San Franciscans calmly drove out and visited the shipwrecked United State battleship Milwaukee and steamship Corona.

Although the wheels of the car were often buried in the sand up to the axles, at no point was it necessary to lighten the load or use chains, shovel or boards.

The Maxwell climbed steadily over the deep, soft sand, the engine running just as smoothly as though the car were on the highway.

Every motorist who has driven a short distance on level sand knows what a terrific strain it is upon the car; but think of driving a half-mile over young mountains of sand! But those San Franciscans were quite anxious to see the historic shipwrecked boats and let nothing stand in the way of their desires.

The U.S.S. Milwaukee ran aground and sank Jan. 13, 1917, while endeavoring to rescue the United States submarine H-3, which had run aground. Although the submarine was afterward saved, the Milwaukee had to be abandoned.

The Corona, a large merchant ship, bearing a valuable cargo, sank on March 1, 1907. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been lost by salvage companies endeavoring to secure the cargo. Even now another salvage company is endeavoring to raise the ship.

SPEED COPS FLOCK TO METER TESTING.

Among the regular visitors at the Stewart Products Service Station are the motorcycle officers of the Los Angeles city and county forces. They come at regular intervals to have the speedometers on their motorcycles compared with the master instrument at the local Stewart station in order to make sure that they are indicating speed with absolute accuracy.

Motorcycle officers are frequently asked by motorists on the road to test their speedometers for them by riding beside them for a little ways.

For this, as well as other reasons, the motorcycle officers like to be sure that their speedometer equipment is always in perfect condition.

PLATINUM CONTACTS.

It is not an unknown practice among sharp dealers to substitute nickel silver for genuine platinum in ignition contacts. Here is a simple test to discover the imposition. Take a few filings from the contact and place them in a chemical test tube with a small quantity of strong nitric acid and apply a gentle heat. If they are nickel silver the filings will dissolve and color the acid green, or if they are plain silver they will dissolve, though a little more slowly. Genuine platinum will not be affected at all by the acid, in fact it can only be dissolved by boiling in a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acid, called by chemists aqua regia.

MAKES RUN TO FRISCO IN A HURRY.

Mrs. Louise Rowell Hits Fast Time in Oakland on Road to Bay City.

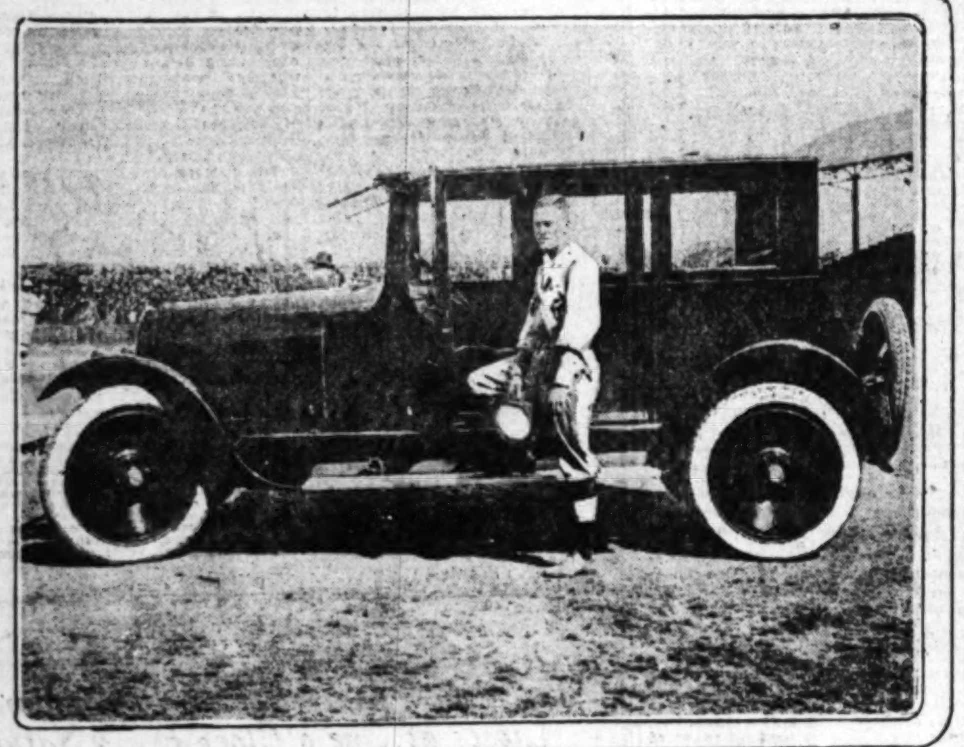
While not besieging the crown of the speed kings of the world, Mrs. Louise Rowell of 395 Twenty-Third street, San Bernardino, is entitled to recognition for her drive from Los Angeles to San Francisco in her Oakland sedan, when she traveled the distance between the two cities in sixteen hours flat.

In figuring her time, Mrs. Rowell noted the hour of morning when she left Los Angeles and again took final note of the hour at night when she reached her hotel in San Francisco. It was just sixteen hours between the times and this allowed nothing for stops along the way.

"We didn't lose much time along the road," says Mrs. Rowell. My two passengers and myself decided that we would try and see how quick a trip we could make, after we had traveled somewhere around 135 miles and were averaging good speed, so we cut our stops down to the fewest possible and kept going.

"My speed was never over thirty-five miles an hour, yet we turned in an actual average for the distance of thirty-one and two-tenth miles an hour, which showed that we were on the move most of the time and that the Oakland maintained its speed consistently, considering all the towns through which we passed at slow speed.

"I have always been an enthusiastic admirer of the Oakland and just to show my friends that all I have claimed for my car is true, I made a record of all gasoline used and the average for the trip was a little over twenty miles to a gallon, while on lubricating oil the car averaged in excess of 750 miles to a gallon. We put no water in the radiator nor did we have any punctures, so all in all I am more than pleased with the outcome of the trip."



A Big-League Baseball Star and His Big-League Motor Car.

Roger Hornsby, the Cardinal star, recently purchased an Apperson Sedan to travel back and forth to the ball park. Have to hand it to the ball players, they certainly have an eye when it comes to automobiles.

ANCIENT CAR HAS ENVIABLE RECORD.

HUDSON SEDAN GOOD AS NEW AFTER RUNNING MANY THOUSAND MILES.

Is the old as good as the new? That was one of the mooted questions in the Reliability Run at Big Bear, and so far as we know has been definitely decided to date. Here are some facts submitted by E. O. Wayne, who is an expert mechanician in motor-car maintenance and operation. Mr. Wayne conducts repair work in the Black Cat garage on South Broadway and is thoroughly competent to render judgment. This is what he says: "Dr. Charles F. Nelson of this city bought a Hudson supersix sedan in 1917 from Harold L. Arnold—to date the speedometer shows 52,908 miles, but in 1918 the speedometer was out of commission for one whole month during which time the car was driven fully 1000 miles. So that the service of the car has been at least 54,00 0miles in forty-five months, or has averaged 1200 miles per monht continuously during the nearly three and three-fourths years since the car was purchased."

This remarkable old Hudson has been constantly under the watchful eye of Mr. Wayne, as he is the only man who has serviced the car except in emergency when the car was out of town.

Today this sedan is in the finest of mechanical condition and the supersix motor purrs along as smoothly as the first day it came from the factory. The valves have been touched up an average of every eight months. The bearings have never been taken up. Occasionally the ignition system needed new breaker points and new brushes, but the total mechanical replacements have been less than $50.

ONLY ONE TYPE OF TIRE BEING MADE.

CALIFORNIA TIRE COMPANY IS DISCIPLE OF THEORY OF SPECIALIZATION.

Concentrated energy spells efficiency whether it be in the realm of the professions or in the field of industry, is the belief of Leon S. Utter, local distributor for the new California cord tire.

"The physician who specializes in the treatment of a particular disease inspires confidence in those suffering from that ailment," says Mr. Utter by way of illustration. "The specialist in any other line of endeavor, you might mention, is always the most recognized.

"It is this theory of efficiency that is behind the new California cord tire, which is manufactured by the California Cord Tire Company in one size and one style only. It stands to reason therefore, that a product which is the result of specialization should most nearly approximate the oft-heralded goal of perfection."

Price Slashing on Lexingtons is Substantial.

Champions of pre-war prices have received with enthusiasm the announcement early last week of a reduction of from $200 to $600 in the prices of Lexington motor cars.

The reductions cover all series "S" and series "T" models, the former being equipped with Continental motors and the latter with the new Ansted engine. It was the Ansted-motored Lexingtons that jumped into fame last september by winning first and secong in the memorable Pike's Peak hill climb. The same power plant enabled a Minute-Man Six to climb two of the steepest grades in Los Angeles on high gear recently. These inclines were the Baxter street and Crestmont Heights, never before conquered in high gear.

Running all the way from San Francisco to Camp Curry, Yosemite Valley, in intermediate gear, and carrying three passengers, is another remarkable feat performed by an Ansted-motored Lexington, according to information received by Francis C. Davidson of the Lexington Los Angeles company, local distributors, from the Charles H. Kaar Company, distributors in the Bay City. The run, the authenticity of which is attested to by an official observer representing the San Francisco press, is extremely noteworthy, when it is considered that the trip was made in ten hours and forty-five minutes, on an average of 12 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and that no water was added to the radiator.

WANT MONEY'S WORTH ALL AROUND TODAY.

AVERAGE MAN LOOKS OVER CARS PRETTY CAREFULLY BEFORE BUYING.

At this particular period in the economic history of our country, it behooves every one of us to forget our pride and lay aside our traditional sentiments regarding things we have always felt we must have and get right down to brass tacks on a real saving basis in order that we may once more bring our modest old American dollar back to the purchasing power from which it was deposed by the recent World War upheaval.

This is the sentiment expressed by a prominent Los Angeles business man to Harris M. Hanshue on the occasion of his recent purchase of a "made new" Apperson automobile from the Apperson factory branch during their present buyers' market sale of high-grade used cars.

"We all like to buy and own brand new things," continued this gentleman, "but when a sound business man realizes that he is sacrificing from 1100 to 2100 hard-earned simoleons on the altar of this fictitious sentiment, it certainly makes him stop and think. For instance, I have just bought from you an automobile that has only been driven a few thousand miles, and that has been so thoroughly made new in your shop that even these miles have been put back into it; the car has been refinished so that its appearance is the same as new, and I am ahead just $1875 on the deal, and am satisfied I have purchased just as good an automobile for all practical purposes as if I had spent the full new car price. That is what I call sound horse sense."

Factory Turns Out Cars From Ground Up Now.

The first production of Cadillac cars is now going through the new plant recently completed in Detroit.

J. E. Brown, Los Angeles manager for Don Lee, received notification last week that all departments are now operating in this plant, which is declared by industrial experts to be one of the best adapted to its purposes of any in the automotive industry. The factory is also one of great size, occupying a forty-seven-acre site. The new plant is regarded as one of the finest in the automobile business, and a tribute to the Cadillac Motor Car Company, and its steadily growing success in the production of Cadillac cars during the last twenty years.

"Among the nineteen cars of the price of Cadillac or above," according to H. H. Rice, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, "more buyers have preferred the Cadillac than all other cars put together. This preference, which has been increasing year by year, has in a large measure made desirable the concentration of Cadillac manufacture. This is done in the new factory, which the company has built as fine as it knew how, just as it has always built the best car it knew how to build."

Walking four stories above the street, one can start at the west end of one of the new Cadillac factory buildings and go approximatey 1000 feet in an east direction before reaching the eastern walls of another Cadillac building with which it is joined. From north the south it is joined. From north to south Practically all main structures are four stories high. Normally more than 7000 employees work for the company.

CAN BUY BONNER TUBES HERE NOW.

Users of Bonner tubes and many who have been anxious to secure them will be interested in the announcement that they can now be secured in Los Angeles.

Mr. T. M. Miller, well known Los Angeles business man, has for some time realized the possibilities and the demand for such a tube as the Bonner tube. The factory, with increased production, is now able to handle the Southern California trade and Mr. Miller states that the new concern, the Bonner Tube Company of Southern California, will be distributors for Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico.

The Bonner tube is an air-filled, nondeflatable inner tube that is guaranteed not to deflate, from road tread puncture, for one year.

SHELLAC VARNISH.

To make a shellac which serves admirably as a cement for insulating electric wiring, fixing gaskets, and in similar operations, dissolve flake shellac in alcohol. The mixture may be kept in a wide-mouthed bottle, the cork of which should be waxed to prevent its sticking.

Stutz Coupe Has Pleasing Lines and Quiet Motor.

Matching the mechanical perfection and engineering superiorities of the Stutz engine and chassis is the beautiful coupe just received by the Walter M. Brown Company. It is a distinctive, dignified, artistic closed car with pleasing lines and design and built by custom makers to the most exacting standard of Stutz quality and Stutz beauty and grace of appearance.

"The body of the Stutz coupe is full aluminum," says W. H. Court, sales manager. "All woodwork used in the construction of the body is the finest wood, every piece selected carefully to make it conform with the high, quiet dignity and impressive simplicity of design.

"The interior is roomy and luxuriously appointed to the minutest detail, including smoking set and heater.

"Four persons are accommodated comfortably. The driver's seat is slightly forward. The main seat is for two and the extra seat at the left of the driver folds under the dash when not in use. There is a carrying compartment directly in the rear of the driver's seat and a convenient arm strap and rest for the occupant of the extra seat.

"Ultramarine blue is the color of this exclusive coupe, with a black body line above the window lines. The fenders, wheels and splash apron are treated in black enamel.

"The driver's seat is upholstered in blue Spanish leather, while the other seats, as well as the remainder of the interior color scheme, is of a bluish-gray wool cloth material of the highest grade. All interior hardware is of satin nickled finish.

"The electric dome light flashes on when the door is open, illuminating the interior and the steps for persons entering or leaving the car. It is controlled also by a push button inside the car."

ANOTHER SCHEME TO FOOL AUTO THIEVES.

RINGS ALARM WHEN CAR IS BEING TAMPERED WITH OR STOLEN.

No automobile owner who has his car stolen should complain when there is such a device on the market as the Helsbels Alarm Lock, according to O. H. Kepley, president of the firm that is producing this latest contrivance to give auto thieves the blues. It seems that anyone who loses an auto now is guilty of criminal negligence

A Helsbels is not merely an automobile lock, but an alarm which attracts attention to the car if it is being tampered with. The device is silent while the owner is with the car, but screeches for help if the auto is touched while the owner is absent.

CLUTCH DRAG.

It happens on occasion that the engine slows down when the clutch is disengaged, whereas exactly the reverse should be the case. Generally the engine gets the blame, when in reality the trouble is due to the fact that the clutch does not entirely disengage. Sometimes in these cases there may be a rasping of the gears when shifting; this latter condition would naturally follow, since the clutch does not leave the flywheel properly. The basic cause of trouble is very probably wear in the throwout collar. In this way when the clutch pedal is pushed down all the way, the clutch moves outward only a little; not enough to permit the engine to run idle. If the clutch is of the cone type, a hissing is likely to result, because of facing slipping around in the flywheel.

SCOFFER BECOMES BUYER.

How a clever salesman, and a capable car together were able to turn a scoffer into a prospect and finally a customer is a story that is being recounted by the sales force of the Union Motors Company, Maxwell distributors.

It all happened right in Los Angeles. A certain Los Angeles man who owns a couple of large and expensive cars had a friend in the Maxwell distributing company, and it so happened that that friend invited him to ride downtown to his office one day. The ultimate result was that the owner of the expensive cars ordered a Maxwell coupe for town use. Let him tell the story of his conviction in his own words:

"I only rode in the car because I happened to know one of the executives of the comany, and when he offered to take me downtown I jokingly remarked about his car. Before we had gone six blocks, however, I was interested in his car because of his smooth running motor. I knew, of course, it was economical, but I did not realize what a [illegible] ful riding car it really was.

"Doubtful over the [illegible] motor I casually asked [illegible] to take me up [illegible] hills, and after that [illegible] was completely convinced [illegible] Maxwell offers one of the [illegible] values on the market [illegible]

MAKES RUN TO FRISCO IN A HURRY.

Mrs. Louise Rowell Hits Fast Time in Oakland on Road to Bay City.

While not besieging the crown of the speed kings of the world, Mrs. Louise Rowell of 395 Twenty-Third street, San Bernardino, is entitled to recognition for her drive from Los Angeles to San Francisco in her Oakland sedan, when she traveled the distance between the two cities in sixteen hours flat.

In figuring her time, Mrs. Rowell noted the hour of morning when she left Los Angeles and again took final note of the hour at night when she reached her hotel in San Francisco. It was just sixteen hours between the times and this allowed nothing for stops along the way.

"We didn't lose much time along the road," says Mrs. Rowell. My two passengers and myself decided that we would try and see how quick a trip we could make, after we had traveled somewhere around 135 miles and were averaging good speed, so we cut our stops down to the fewest possible and kept going.

"My speed was never over thirty-five miles an hour, yet we turned in an actual average for the distance of thirty-one and two-tenth miles an hour, which showed that we were on the move most of the time and that the Oakland maintained its speed consistently, considering all the towns through which we passed at slow speed.

"I have always been an enthusiastic admirer of the Oakland and just to show my friends that all I have claimed for my car is true, I made a record of all gasoline used and the average for the trip was a little over twenty miles to a gallon, while on lubricating oil the car averaged in excess of 750 miles to a gallon. We put no water in the radiator nor did we have any punctures, so all in all I am more than pleased with the outcome of the trip."

ANCIENT CAR HAS ENVIABLE RECORD.

HUDSON SEDAN GOOD AS NEW AFTER RUNNING MANY THOUSAND MILES.

Is the old as good as the new? That was one of the mooted questions in the Reliability Run at Big Bear, and so far as we know has been definitely decided to date. Here are some facts submitted by E. O. Wayne, who is an expert mechanician in motor-car maintenance and operation. Mr. Wayne conducts repair work in the Black Cat garage on South Broadway and is thoroughly competent to render judgment. This is what he says: "Dr. Charles F. Nelson of this city bought a Hudson superaix sedan in 1917 from Harold L. Arnold—to date the speedometer shows 52,908 miles, but in 1918 the speedometer was out of commission for one whole month during which time the car was driven fully 1000 miles. So that the service of the car has been at least 54,00 0miles in forty-five months, or has averaged 1200 miles per monht continuously during the nearly three and three-fourths years since the car was purchased."

This remarkable old Hudson has been constantly under the watchful eye of Mr. Wayne, as he is the only man who has serviced the car except in emergency when the car was out of town.

Today this sedan is in the finest of mechanical condition and the superaix motor purrs along as smoothly as the first day it came from the factory. The valves have been touched up an average of every eight months. The bearings have never been taken up. Occasionally the ignition system needed new breaker points and new brushes, but the total mechanical replacements have been less than $50.

A Big-League Baseball Star and His Big-League Motor Car.

Roger Hornsby, the Cardinal star, recently purchased an Apperson Sedan to travel back and forth to the ball park. Have to hand it to the ball players, they certainly have an eye when it comes to automobiles.

ONLY ONE TYPE OF TIRE BEING MADE.

CALIFORNIA TIRE COMPANY IS DISCIPLE OF THEORY OF SPECIALIZATION.

Concentrated energy spells efficiency whether it be in the realm of the professions or in the field of industry, is the belief of Leon S. Utter, local distributor for the new California cord tire.

"The physician who specializes in the treatment of a particular disease inspires confidence in those suffering from that ailment," says Mr. Utter by way of illustration. "The specialist in any other line of endeavor, you might mention, is always the most recognized.

"It is this theory of efficiency that is behind the new California cord tire, which is manufactured by the California Cord Tire Company in one size and one style only. It stands to reason therefore, that a product which is the result of specialization should most nearly approximate the oft-heralded goal of perfection."

Price Slashing on Lexingtons is Substantial.

Champions of pre-war prices have received with enthusiasm the announcement early last week of a reduction of from $200 to $600 in the prices of Lexington motor cars.

The reductions cover all series "S" and series "T" models, the former being equipped with Continental motors and the latter with the new Ansted engine. It was the Ansted-motored Lexingtons that jumped into fame last september by winning first and secong in the memorable Pike's Peak hill climb. The same power plant enabled a Minute-Man Six to climb two of the steepest grades in Los Angeles on high gear recently. Gentlemen: We sold Tom Bacon 2 35x5 McClaren Autocrat Cord tires several months ago, and he came in the store last week and told the writer that he had received 12,000 miles on the original tread and had had them retreaded. The party who retreaded them told Mr. Bacon that it was the best cord that he had ever seen, and that he would guarantee his retread for 6000 miles.

When you know that these tires were used on a Pierce Arrow car in the stage business, operating from Bakersfield to Los Angeles, you will more fully appreciate this wonderful performance.

In conclusion will say that it is certainly a pleasure to sell the McClaren Tire.

SUPER-SIX

TRAP GUN AND ROD

BY TOM MARSHALL

[This is the eighty-ninth of a series of articles dealing with trapshooting, hunting and fishing by Capt. Tom Marshall, a noted authority on the great out-of-doors.]

Everybody up on your toes. Major-league baseball magnates indorse trapshooting as their players' line of diversion. Trapshooting teaches one to concentrate, eliminating scattering or rambling thoughts, enabling you to intensely specialize on the accomplishment of desired results. Successful trapshooting is the assembling of a combination of physical and mental requirements coupled with experience, only acquired through intelligent practice, making possible the putting into action, the fine art of trigger tickling.

ALL IMPROVED.

Every desirable angle in life is materially improved through a course in concentration. Business, social, domestic, outdoor or sport life is brought to a higher standard of efficiency, when you are taught to combine and instantly bring into action the essential element which spells success. They are incorporated, but lying dormant, in every person's system. To become an expert trapshot requires intensive and aggressive training and thought, coupled with intelligent practice, ability to concentrate and shoot each and every target in practice, with the same care one would shoot the winning target in the Grand American Handicap.

This brings into simultaneous action eyes, brain, nerves, disposition and trigger finger. The eyes first locate an anticipated object, the mind conveys information of its appearance, with instructions to the nerve centers of velocity, altitude, direction and necessary lead. The nerves, in turn, command, at the logical instant, the contracting of the trigger finger, which releases the load at the psychological moment to accurately connect with the flying object. The disposition endows you with the power to forget the grand stand and correctly swallow, when it becomes necessary. This is a concert of action, enabling all faculties to co-ordinate and function in unison.

REAL SUCCESS.

Continuous concentration is the trapshooter's slogan of success. Once acquired, it becomes an asset to be utilized in every phase of life. Business men possessing concentration are better qualified to gaze into the mysteries of the crystal globe, delving into the future with a greater degree of business acumen. In connubial life dispositions are materially improved, objectionable moods obviated and a disposition to sail off at a tangent, curbed. In sports life we cite you to good golf, which means ability to compute distance, wind variation, velocity, avoiding hazards and forgetting the gallery. Technique of stroke, ability to drive or punt, is acquired by intelligent practice, coupled with concentration.

In the sports world of baseball, we have shooting fans. Presidents Ban Johnson and Tener, Managers Comiskey, Speaker, McGraw and Stallings. Players Cobb, Mathewson, Bender, Plank, Coombs, Jackson, Davis, Johnson, Ruth, Baker and Killifer, with hundreds of others. They universally approve trapshooting, claim it quickens the eye, teaches distance and velocity, induces concentration, which gives ability to read and outwit adversaries.

PROXY SPORT.

Baseball is a proxy sport. Eighteen players only are permitted to contest. Spectators, as official bench warmers, compose the balance of the attendance. In excess of 1000 people have personally contested in one trapshooting event, representing every State in the Union. No admission fee is ever charged at the gate, regardless of the trapshooting headliners contesting. Large galleries are always attracted, who enjoy the innovation of seeing hundreds of men and women participating and competiting in a line of sport, where every success is based upon individual effort. The records of the American Trapshooters' Association show the greatest increased interest, offered by any line of sport. Over 500,000 trapshots in America; 4100 active gun clubs in America; 15,400,000 guns have been manufactured and are in the hands of the sportsmen of America. One-fourth of the population are conversant with the use and handling of fire arms in America.

Trapshooting is today the major sport of America. We have six leading sports, divided into two classes; spectators and participants. In the first division, we have baseball, football and boxing, where you find few contestants and many spectators. The second section, branded participants cover trapshooting, golf and tennis, listed and based on popularity. Red-blooded sportsmen have seen the light. The click of the turnstiles has been supplanted by the crack of the scatter gun. Spectators' ranks are deserted to join the great army of participants. There is no possibility of "tossing a monkey wrench into the machinery of the trapshooting game," unless contestants are accessories to the fact, which is akin to cheating one's self in the game of solitaire. Trapshooting is the national game.

TACOMA SPEED EVENT NEXT ON CALENDAR.

SARLES, WINNER OF UNIONTOWN CLASSIC, IS ENTERED IN NORTHERN RACES.

The spotlight which hovered recently over the Uniontown Speedway, is due to shift to Tacoma on July 4, after which it will be switched southward to the big racing bowl at Cotati for the auto classic of August 7.

Now that the 225-mile grind over the Uniontown track has become a matter of history, members of America's premier field of auto drivers have but one more hurdle to cross before turning their cars to the North Bay Counties Speedway, nearly finished, according to word from Jack Prince, veteran track builder.

Most of the drivers who entered cars in the Uniontown test are expected to put in an appearance at Cotati, after the racing at Tacoma on July 4. The Cotati tryouts are scheduled for July 10 and by then Jack Prince has given assurance that everything will be in readiness for the reception of incoming drivers.

Roscoe Sarles, winner of the Uniontown event, is practically certain to be among those reporting at Cotati. At the Pennsylvania track Sarles crossed the finishing line in his Duesenberg three-quarters of a lap in front of Eddie Hearne, driving a Revere. Sarles's time was 2:18:20, and he led the field all the way. Eddie Miller, who secured third honors, also driving a Duesenberg, is another candidate, according to late reports, for Cotati honors.

EMSCO BRAKE LINING IS A LOCAL PRODUCT.

INDUSTRY IS FLOURISHING DUE TO ADMIRABLE POLICY OF MANUFACTURERS.

Probably only a few motorists in Southern California realize that there is an industry in Los Angeles given up to the manufacture of brake lining. It is a fact, however, that the E. M. Smith Company for nine years have been manufacturing brake linings and now are operating on a very extensive scale in this line, manufacturing the product completely in their own plant.

Many of the best-known automobile dealers in Los Angeles, as well as all along the Pacific Coast, have been using Emsco brake lining, as this local product is called, in their service departments for a long time, and they have been very enthusiastic in their praise of the quality of this local product, as compared with any other procurable.

The success of this local product has been due entirely to the fact that the E. M. Smith Company have had just one idea in mind in making a brake lining and this idea has been to build the very best product that it was possible to put together.

In order now to give motorists better brake service, they are not only carrying the news of Emsco brake lining to the general public, but they are opening up service stations all over the State, where it will be possible for motorists to get expert service on their brakes.

CHEMICAL DECARBONIZER.

The following is a chemical decarbonizer that will help in cases where the carbon formations are not too hard: Alcohol, 50 parts, 15 parts of ether and 32 parts of 5 per cent ammonia solution. About half an ounce of compound should be poured into each cylinder when the engine is hot at the end of the day's run and should be allowed to stay over night. The mixture should be sprayed all around the combustion chamber

WITH THE CHECKER PLAYERS.

NOTES AND PROBLEMS.

PUBLICATIONS IN THE REALM OF CHECKERS.

By John Dougherty.

June 26, 1921.

Chess and Checker Headquarters, 520 Union League Building, corner Second and Hill streets. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information concerning the club, see or write the secretary, D. M. Bowen, at the clubrooms.

All communications intended for this department should be addressed to John Dougherty, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal.

Among the Fans.

W. J. Nichols and M. L. Davis played their finals in the unrestricted tourney last week, and the former won, 3 to 1 and 5 draws. Mr. Nichols now holds both the restricted and unrestricted club championship.

J. B. Hanson found conditions not up to expectations at Long Beach and gave up his concession there. The City Dads will not allow prizes of any kind given at the concessions there, in fact, they will hardly allow you to carry matches on the Pike, so there is not much inducement for one to spend his money for anything but popcorn and hot dogs.

Mr. Alburtus is improving rapidly and will leave the hospital in a few days.

L. M. Lewis of St. Louis is contemplating a trip to the Coast in the near future.

The boy wonder at chess, Sammy Rzeschewiski, is scheduled to give a simultaneous exhibition at the L.A.A.C. tomorrow evening.

H. B. Reynolds and J. T. Bradford have played four ten-game sittings in Cleveland the past month. The first sitting was a tie, 1 to 1 and 8 draws, but Reynolds won the next three by the scores of 2 to 1 and 7 draws; 3 to 1 and 6 draws, and 3 to 2 and 5 draws.

J. T. Bradford and Asa Long (the 16-year-old wonder) played a ten-game sitting at Toledo, O., on Decoration Day, which was won by Bradford, 3 to 0 and 7 draws.

Checkers in the Schools.
(American Checker Monthly.)

The late Prof. Greenwood of Kansas City had in mind the introduction of checkers as a class subject in the schools. Recently the Los Angeles Polytechnic Institute placed the game on its recreational program. Occasionally we hear of college chess and checker clubs with their tournaments and team matches in midwinter while college athletics are hibernating. But the real move toward recognizing the educational value of checkers is now being made in Australia by H. F. Treharne, B.A., of Sydney, editor of the New South Wales Teacher and Tutorial Guide, who devotes a column regularly to the game with the object of showing teachers how to teach the game as a class subject in the schools of New South Wales.

The Rendezvous Chess Club of South Pasadena is holding intercommunity contests at the clubrooms located at Mission and Fair Oaks avenue from June 22 to July 1 daily, including Sunday. The entertainment is to commemorate the eighty-fourth anniversary of Paul Murphy. All classes of players are invited. Ladies are invited to join the game. Miss Ethel Julian of Pasadena, who played in the club's entertainment last fall will be hostess. Bring your chess men and board. Come one, come all, come great, come small.

PROBLEM NO. 543.
Author unknown.

The following problem was contributed me by E. H. Payne, St. Louis, Mo. It was published several years ago in A. H. Barker's column, then being run in the St. Louis Republic. I am setting the problem one move advanced from the original problem and stating the terms, White to move and draw, while the original terms (with the Black king on 31 being a single man on 30) were stated "Black to move, what result?" I have never seen the author's solution, so do not know what his conclusions were, but I know Mr. Burke found the draw and has had considerable fun with it with the various experts who have visited St. Louis. Send in solution and see if you have solved it correctly.

LEARN WHAT IT'S ABOUT!

Why Not Give Your Battery as Much Chance as You Do Your Tires?

A surprising number of motorists, taking out their first car, have not the slightest idea where their storage battery is located. Some are entirely unaware that they have a battery and that the operation of the starter and lights—and in most cases ignition—is wholly dependent upon it and its well being.

The result is that the battery is ignored and oftentimes harmfully abused. Not until it runs down and fails to do work does the owner begin to investigate.

"Most battery troubles that come to our attention," says A. J. Tobey of the Western Auto Electric Corporation, distributors of Willard Threaded Rubber Storage Batteries, "are due to lack of knowledge of the function of the storage battery and the attention it requires.

"If motorists could realize that a storage battery is a perishable article, is highly sensitive to abuse and neglect, a great deal of inconvenience and expense would be saved. In this respect the battery is no different than any other part of the motor car.

"Just as driving over glass and nails abuses tires and running a motor without oil will burn out bearings, so will lack of care and attention bring the storage battery to grief.

"The average car owner knows what constitutes tire and motor abuses and he avoids them. He would do well to find out what abuses his battery, what attention it requires, and why—to get acquainted with it and its operation. First-season motorists, particularly, would save themselves considerable expense and annoyance by acquainting themselves with their storage battery and its needs."

HAYNES STOCK CAR MAKES NEW RECORD.

TIME BETWEEN KOKOMO AND CHICAGO IS CLIPPED ON ROUGH DIRT ROADS.

A new speed record between Chicago, Ill., and Kokomo, Ind., has just been established by a Haynes fifty, stock in every respect. This news was received here last week by Jack Bennel, western sales representative of the Haynes factory, who is here arranging for a further allotment of these cars for this territory to meet the tremendous demand.

The distance between the Haynes factory at Kokomo and Chicago is exactly 172 miles, and the new record established was four hours and twenty-five minutes. The regular passenger train time between the two cities is four hours and fifteen minutes.

Clyde Isenhour, the Haynes dealer at Kokomo, drove the record-smashing car, according to the letter to Bennel. Road conditions prevented an even more sensational record, it declared.

Mitchell

Mitchell Motors have placed a new model car on the market that bids fair to rival the five-passenger touring type in popularity.

It is a seven-passenger touring car—a really "big" car—and Lew Warner, of Warner Motors, local Mitchell representatives, has been pleasantly surprised over the rapid establishment of the "Big Brother" Mitchell as a standard type.

"It's true," rambles Lew, "that lots of people have come into our place looking for a large car, and we have had to 'sell' them on the small one—they seldom tear themselves away without taking a ride in it, anyhow. But I honestly didn't think the demand was large enough to warrant the manufacture of a seven-passenger car. But that's probably because we most always sold a five-passenger car to the prospective purchaser of the larger one—we couldn't realize the possibilities, you see, because we sold automobiles anyway.

"But—oh, boy!—you should see the crowds that give this big car the once-over. They all look at it first. If they want a big car we'll sell it to them right off the bat, but you know how it is—there are lots of folks who are attracted by the magnificent beauty of a large car, who would be much better off with a small one. After they have looked at the big one, they reluctantly drift across the floor and appraise the smaller one. And if they're really looking for a five-passenger car, they seldom go farther.

"Fortunately, too, the seven-passenger was placed on the market just prior to the price reductions, so that when the recent cut came we were able to offer the "big" Mitchell for two hundred dollars under the original price—and, believe me, it is some car for the money!"

OWEN Magnetic

AUTOMOBILE engineers since the beginning of the industry have sought to simplify the driving mechanism of the motor car. Noisy gears and clutches have been endured because they were believed to be a necessary evil—there was no other way. Even before the U. S. Government began its experiments with magnetic drive in its battleships, the designers of the Owen had perfected a system which eliminated noisy gears, clutch and transmission by means of an electric drive.

Smoothness of operation, flexibility of control and reserve power immediately available when needed, were among the results of their labors. Later practically the same system was adopted in our Navy and now nearly all the huge battleships and dreadnaughts are so driven, including the New Mexico and the new California. Tried out through years of satisfactory service, the Owen Magnetic stands out as a lasting monument to the foresight and ingenuity of its designers—THE CAR OF THE AGE.

Look Who's Here! Pat Higgins—Proud Father of a New Lincoln.
Charley Orr, house manager of the Wilshire Country Club, pointing out contemplated additions to the club's horticultural setting to P. J. (Pat) Higgins, well-known athlete and former coach. Pat is standing in front of his brand new Lincoln touring car. View taken at south end of the clubhouse.

GOLFER, ERGO MOTORIST.

Why is a golfer?

The answer to this mooted query is generally, "Because he is a motorist."

And if you want more proof of the statement simply interrogate Pat Higgins.

The ancient and beloved outdoor sport has been passed down to us from the originators who eked out an existence in the land of the thistle and purple heather. Its battle for worldly recognition with other favorite pastimes has been a stormy one until now it is considered one of the healthiest stimulants for the tired business man, the representatives of the fair sex and for the youth.

During the past two years the game of golf has developed into an institution. It has become the vogue, and in Southern California it has leaped with bounds to the point where it has hit the classification of being a craze!

Ofttimes, golf has been cruelly assaulted with acrimonious epithets. Some have declared it a game simply for the old folks. It has even been crucified with the exclamation, "No red-blooded man wants to chase a white pill over a couple of dozen hills; it is a pastime for the person who has been raised a pet, etc."

But to those who are acquainted with the athletic career of Pat Higgins, the foregoing statements are branded as inane. The illustrious Pat has indulged in some of the roughest sports known. At one time he held amateur boxing titles; is considered one of the best known exponents of the judo and jiu-jitsu sport; has participated in wrestling matches under the American catch-as-catch-can rules; was selected on the All-American Rugby team and has indulged in numerous other branches of sports.

When he is not busy refereeing boxing or wrestling matches, Pat drives out to the Wilshire Country Club in his newly purchased Lincoln eight. He is an ardent motorist and just recently received delivery on a new Lincoln car from the Walter M. Murphy Company.

FRANKLIN FEATURES LIGHT CAR.

Ralph Hamlin Shows Advantages of "Less Weight Below the Springs."

The other day a prospective Franklin purchaser, in considering the fact that the weight and number of parts below the springs had been reduced to a minimum on this famous air-cooled car, asked Ralph Hamlin of what particular advantage this less weight below the springs was.

Hamlin entered on quite a lengthy discussion of sprung and unsprung weight, detailing the greater comfort secured in having practically all the weight above the springs, and pointed out the disadvantage of having much weight below the springs, such as loss of power, etc.

As a concrete example he cited the fact that an ordinary person, carrying a thirty-pound pack on his back, can walk all day and not feel particularly uncomfortable. But just place this weight at the hips, or fifteen pounds on each leg, and the lower the weight the harder it is to walk, until, with the weight below the knees, it would be agonizing to cover even a few hundred feet.

This comprehensive comparison is a most convincing sales argument, and though Hamlin admits the majority of motor-car manufacturers are now giving great consideration to this problem, he claims the Franklin Automobile Company, which pioneered the sprung weight theory, has reduced power losses and excessive wear to a minimum, through proper observance of this indisputable fact.

BUSINESS BOOMING, SAYS TIRE DEALER.

FRED THOMPSON DECLARES VOLUME OF SALES INCREASING EACH MONTH.

"Business booming," says Mr. G. Fred Thompson of the C. Fred Thompson Tire Company, distributors of McClaren tires for Southern California and Arizona.

"During the first fifteen days of June our volume of business increased about 30 per cent over any other fifteen-day period during the past eight months.

"McClaren tires have dropped in proportion with other standard tires and are now priced much lower than they were several months ago. This means that if the same number of tires were sold according to the former price of weeks ago, our sales increase would have averaged better than 40 per cent.

"During all the preceding months we have sold McClaren tires on actual performance in mileage, which users had received.

"Krause & Roult, the largest tire distributors in San Diego, after a thorough test with the McClaren Autocrat Cord tire against many other cords, over the mountains into Imperial Valley and boulevard on stage work, found that the McClaren Autocrat Cord gave them fully 30 per cent superior service over any other make in this test. In Oct. 2, 1920, they gave to C. Fred Thompson Tire Company, a contract which called for $20,000 worth of McClaren Autocrat Cords and the immediate delivery at that time of $4700 worth of these tires to be used on stage work over this hard drive. They have never regretted having given same, as the McClaren Autocrat Cord has given phenomenal service."

NEW SUPERINTENDENT ASSUMES HIS DUTIES.

EARL SPENCER, FORMERLY OF PIERCE-ARROW COMPANY, JOINS LEACH PLANT.

Nationally known as a motor expert and engineer and connected with the Pierce-Arrow company for many years, Earl B. Spencer, who, during the war, was engaged in the building of the Hispano-Suiza aircraft, has become connected with the Leach Biltwell Motor Car Company, 4800 Santa Fe avenue, Los Angeles, in the capacity of production superintendent.

For nearly six years, Mr. Spencer was plant engineer at the Pierce-Arrow factory and for three years was assistant general superintendent there. During the war period, he was in charge of the organization manufacturing aircraft and at the time he severed relations with the Pierce-Arrow, he was superintendent of testing and shipping.

In his new capacity at the Leach factory he will actively oversee the construction of the Leach special motor, which was designed by Harry A. Miller of Los Angeles.

SECOND CUT MADE BY MOON COMPANY.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRICE SLASHING MADE BY P. W. WISDOM.

The announcement of the reduction in Moon prices, effective July 1, and which was made public last Sunday, is the second slash made by the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis, since last October, according to P. W. Wisdom, manager of the western division, with headquarters in this city.

The five-passenger touring with wooden wheels beginning the first of next month will sell for $2285 and same model with disteel wheels for $2450, delivered here. The seven-passenger will sell with wooden wheels for $2850 with $165 to be added in case of disteel wheel equipment. The sedan and the coupe, wooden wheels, will sell for $3335, with an additional charge of $165 for disteel wheels. The new and snappy roadster will sell for the same price as the five-passenger open job.

"The second reduction makes a total slash since last October of $400," said Wisdom. "It may be remembered that the Moon was among the very first cars to make any real big reduction."

HOBLITT NAMED SALES MANAGER.

TAKES UP IMPORTANT DUTIES FOR AJAX RUBBER COMPANY.

Ajax Rubber Company, Inc., announces the appointment of Frederic M. Hoblitt as general manager of sales, succeeding F. E. Dayton, who has resigned to enter another field of activity. Mr. Dayton will become affiliated with Cross & Brown, real estate brokers, on July 1. News of Mr. Hoblitt's appointment was made public today by Joseph C. Weston, president.

Mr. Hoblitt, who joined the Ajax organization recently, is widely known in the automotive and tire fields. Prior to his affiliation with Ajax, he was president and treasurer of Quick Tire Service, Inc., a corporation which operated as tire distributors, maintaining stores in a number of cities.

In the days when the Alco car, manufactured by the American Locomotive Company, was among the conspicuous higher-priced cars, Mr. Hoblitt served as sales manager for the automobile division of the American Locomotive Company. Before his identification with Alco, he was an important factor in the sales organization of the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

THINNING VARNISH.

Ordinary turpentine is a satisfactory medium for thinning enamel or varnish, as most motorists know. Some varnish manufacturers supply a special thinning liquid, which should be used in this instance. When it is desired to produce a quick drying enamel, try using alcohol for thinning.

CHALMERS

TRIP BY MOTOR CHEAPER.

BY J. A. CARLIN,
Secretary W. P. Herbert Company.

The pleasure comfort of traveling by automobile needs no comment. However, frequently, even today, people who own automobiles leave them at home when making a trip with the family to San Francisco, the Yosemite, or the Big Trees, because they think it cheaper to go by rail.

This is a fallacious idea. A little simple arithmetic can be applied. If the family consists of only three people, the combined railroad fares to San Francisco and return would be $110.40, without Pullman. Figuring fifty gallons of gasoline, which is allowing only seventeen and a half miles to the gallon at the present rate of 25 cents per gallon and three quarts of oil would make the actual outlay in cash less than $15, and figuring depreciation and wear and tear on tires, car, etc., it would still be well under $25. Hotels and meals would just about check against dining cars and sleeper. In other words, the cost of running an automobile to San Francisco and return would be less than the round trip fare of one person, and a touring car will accommodate five or seven. Even the best of Pullman cars nowadays are either under ventilated or over ventilated. They are either drafty and cold or hot and close, either dusty or stifling.

Salesmen or business men traveling from one town to another by automobile eliminate the time lost in waiting for trains and stage connections. When a man's business is completed in a town he can start immediately with his car. A business man gains in prestige when he visits his people by automobile.

WANT PARTS STATIONS.

In rushing through a petition indorsed by the largest users of truck and passenger car fleets throughout the United States, the Draymen's Association and the National Commercial Haulers' Association, according to an announcement made this week, are demanding protection from manufacturers in their present equipment and in future buying by the establishment of authorized parts service stations all over the country, where genuine replacement parts can be had without delay.

The petition is to unite all parts manufacturers in having stations where the dealer, garage or repair men can obtain parts immediately when necessary, without the loss of either time or money on his own part, or on the part of the owner.

That there are a few parts service stations along the Coast already established is true, but at the same time they are far too few to relieve the present situation to a great extent, and not all of the manufacturers are represented in these stations—certainly not all of those who will be represented when the present movement carries out its objective.

The petition has obtained the indorsement already of the Standard and Union Oil companies, the ice companies, and all of the larger trucking concerns and contractors, some of whom have gone so far as to signify their intention of buying, in the future, only cars or trucks which manufacture their own parts and units in one factory, which maintains complete parts service. This point, detrimental to dealers in assembled cars and trucks, serves as an incentive for them also to indorse the movement, obtaining at the same time complete protection in parts supply and relief from the investment in a large stock of parts.

That the movement also is of great interest to every private car owner also goes without saying, as parts service stations would greatly facilitate necessary repairs from time to time.

DEPLORES RADICAL STYLE.

Up-to-dateness in automobiles means more than style, is the declaration of Fred Rutledge of the Rutledge Motor Company, local distributor for the new National sextet.

"Rather is the last word in motor-car construction even to anticipating the demands of tomorrow's purchasers," he says, elaborating on his statement. "It doesn't mean radical or freakish design, but ultra improvement in the essentials of both engine and body building.

He points to the new National sextet as the best available example of what he means by automobile up-to-dateness. He goes on to say:

"Up-to-dateness in every detail of construction has featured each of the twenty years of National development. National engineers were first to adopt each new practical innovation. An instance, which takes one back fifteen years in the history of the American automobile, is the six-cylinder type of motor. Another instance evinced in the new sextet models is the road-hugging lowness made possible by resting the body on brackets several inches below the upper edge of the chassis frame, thus, dropping the body sides three and one-eighth inches closer to the ground without sacrifice of road clearance.

"Proof of the ability of the National people to anticipate the future conception of efficiency is found in the six-cylinder motor, more automobiles being now equipped with that type of power plant than all others combined. Proof that the same ability is even more inherent now will be found when tomorrow's cars begin following the 1921 National ideas of car construction.

"The new National sextet is in reality tomorrow's car built today on the foundation of many yesterdays of successful achievement."

BUICK AWARDED TROPHY.

Presentation of the Yosemite Lodge perpetual challenge trophy to Manager R. F. Thompson, of the Howard Automobile Company, by William Sell, Jr., manager of the Yosemite Lodge, was one of the pleasant occurrences during the past week along automobile row.

This bronze plaque is one of the most beautiful trophies ever offered for motor car competition, and now occupies a prominent place among the many trophies which have been won by Buick cars for breaking records of all descriptions, as well as pioneering the way over roads of California and neighboring States.

Being a perpetual challenge trophy, this plaque will remain in the possession of the Howard Automobile Company until it has been won by some other automobile firm with a car in competition with other cars to reach the floor of Yosemite Valley via the regular automobile roads when they are open for motor car travel.

The trophy will be awarded to the car that proves its power and reliability in traveling over roads, reaching Yosemite Valley ahead of all other competitors, after the winter season is over. No stunt or trick run will be recognized by the donors of this trophy. The winner must undergo the same gruelling experience which the new Buick model had in its historic run to the national park.

NEW DEVICE OFFERED TO CAR OWNERS

Simple Means of Testing Motor Car Headlights is Perfected.

Are you violating the automobile headlighting law of your State, or county, or city?

Experts say that ninety-nine out of every hundred headlamps are out of focus. That means that you are not only, in all probability, violating the law, but that you are wasting good light, casting road courtesy to the winds, and endangering, perhaps, the lives of others on the highways.

Every headlighting device designed to eliminate dangerous glare is constructed to operate with lights in focus. When motor car headlamps are out of focus, protective devices are of little value, their vital purpose being destroyed.

Yet, adjustment of lights to put them in focus is as simple as putting air in a tire or putting gasoline in a tank. The difficulty has been that so few motorists had the knowledge necessary to properly focus their lights. And ordinary methods are so difficult and tedious light focusing is neglected.

But the fact is the focusing of lights is the matter of but a minute or two, with the proper equipment. With the idea of performing a real national service for the motorists of the country, and for others, who use the highways, the Warner-Patterson Company of Chicago, manufacturers of Patterson lenses, have provided an accurate focusing device.

The device is simple. It consists of a circular piece of cardboard, of about the size of your lamps. In about the middle of this board, two small holes are stamped out. Printed instructions for the use of the device are printed on the cardboard.

The focusing of a lamp bulb is accomplished by moving the bulb forward or backward as the case may require. The car during the operation should stand on a level surface about fifty feet from a garage door or some other solid background.

The Essential Thing.

Another Auto Club Suggestion for a Week-End Tour.

Two days or more should really be taken for this run to Warner's Hot Springs. The route leads out through Riverside, Elsinore, Temecula and Oak Grove to the springs and returns over the southern route from Elsinore. Roads are in excellent shape all the way.

OWNERS' SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

Question: Would it benefit the operation of my 1916 runabout to install a V-type radiator? I have been told that this type is more efficient than the ordinary flat radiator. What do you think? G.

A.: It is claimed that the V-type radiator gives better cooling effect, simply because it has a greater cooling area than the flat type. Undoubtedly the V-type cuts down the wind resistance somewhat. Beyond these and the appearance which is liked by many people, there will be little difference in the two types.

Q.: I am having trouble with a metallic ringing sound between the universal joint and the axle of my car, which makes its appearance when I am operating with clutch out. Can you tell me how to get rid of it? H. C. H.

A.: Try tightening the dust collar on the universal and the noise will vanish.

Q.: Is the distributor of the magneto timed with the breaker points on the armature? H. J.

A.: Yes. If the magneto is connected with the drive so that the points separate when the No. 1 cylinder is in firing position, the distributor arm must be on the No. 1 segment.

Q.: My engine seems to run all right when standing, but as soon as it is called upon to bear a load, it seems to lose all "pep" and the best I can get is about twenty-two miles an hour. Also does burning out your carbon by oxygen hurt the engine? K. F.

A.: There is no question that your trouble is caused by poor mixture and from indications it is too rich. Your carbureter is adjustable and if you will turn the needle as far down as it will go and then turn it back two turns you can get a fairly good mixture, which can be further changed by other adjustments. Run as lean as possible. If after making the adjustments suggested you still have trouble, write me again. As to burning out the carbon in the presence of oxygen, this will not injure the engine, if the work is properly done. Of course even iron when incandescent will burn in an atmosphere of oxygen, but there is little chance of a rough spot on the piston or cylinder head becoming incandescent. You should be careful about spark plugs when using oxygen, the better way being to remove them and plug the holes, or feed the oxygen through the spark plug holes.

Q.: I have had a great deal of fuel trouble and have not been able to find the cause. A mechanic looked over the carburetor, said it was O.K. and the motor even runs fine for him. When I get on the road the motor dies because it doesn't get gas to the carburetor. Does the vacuum tank ever give trouble? X. Y. Z.

A.: Vacuum tanks rarely give trouble, but even so, in your case it is likely that the linkage from the tank float to the controlling valves in the top of the tank is not working right, causing the float to stick and not admit fuel to the tank as it should. Also, the tank float may have a small hole in it. If you understand the vacuum tank take off the top cover, which removes the float mechanism also, and examine the works.

Q.: Why does water in the gasolene start such a fuss, yet you can send water into the air intake or into the cylinders and get better running? B. V.

A.: Because the water in the fuel has to pass the nozzle in the carburetor, and, being hard to lift, the water temporarily stops fuel flow and causes misfiring. When you feed water through the air intake into the cylinders you avoid the nozzle.

Q.: I have a chance to buy a wrecked car at a very low price, but I am afraid because the price is so ridiculously low. It is a popular make, but badly smashed. The motor and drive seem all right. Do you advise me to take it? B. H.

A.: The trouble with buying a wreck is that after it is fixed up it never seems like the same car. You do not mention the make nor the price you will have to pay for it. At any rate you must be careful in buying a wrecked car. First, determine what parts are injured beyond repair, then find out if you can get the parts from the maker. Even parts for some popular makes are hard to get. Find out what the new parts will cost. Then figure the cost of repairing the other parts. Usually this means labor charge for straightening the front axle, fenders, etc. You must be certain that the clutch, gear set, rear axle, etc., have not been thrown completely out of alignment, necessitating a dismantling of the whole chassis.

AUTO RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY THINGS.

GREATEST BENEFIT IS STIMULATION OF BUILDING OF BETTER HIGHWAYS.

Most of us in this generation take the automobile and the motor industry as a matter of course. We are interested in it only as to what it does for us directly, such as helping us get from place to place as conveniently as possible or in clearing up our transportation problems.

We do not stop to consider the large benefits it has given to humanity and business as a whole or how it has helped develop the wealth or resources of the world.

M. O. King of the Case Motor Car Company, distributor of the Case Car for Southern California and Arizona, has made a long and careful study of the results of the automotive industry as a whole and has summed them up.

"In the first place," said Mr. King, "the automobile industry has created wealth by increasing land values. It has brought the farmer nearer to his market, making the occupation a more profitable and pleasant one. It has greatly increased the personal efficiency of all business men who avail themselves of its time and labor-saving advantages.

"It has more than aided the salesman to cover his territory. It has made it possible for him to cover even more territory, in other words to do more work, to do it better, quicker and at much less expense.

"One of its greatest benefits is that it has directly stimulated the building of thousands of miles of better highways, thus bringing prosperity to hundreds of towns and cities formerly handicapped because of their inaccessibility."

EXCELLENT ROAD IS MADE BY PRISONERS.

INSPECTION PROVES HIGHWAY TO BE SPLENDID EXAMPLE OF WORK.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, June 24. — An inspection of the work being done by the county prison camp on the Mill Creek road, the main road into Big Bear Valley during the summer, was made during the week by County Supervisors, members of the county grand jury, road men of the county and city officials of Redlands and San Bernardino.

The entire day was spent in the inspection which proved that excellent work is being done by the prisoners in rebuilding the county roads for the heavy traffic which has been occasioned by the great number of automobiles using the mountain roads.

The financial reports show that during the past twelve months about $24,000 was spent in the work of the camp on the roads in the mountains. The present year will show an increase in this to almost $30,000, it is believed. But the inspection also shows that value has been received in the widening of the roads, the cutting down of grades and the building of culverts to take care of the swollen streams during the spring freshets.

The average number of prisoners in camp was twenty-five, the number of days' labor was 7900, the cost of grocers about $6500, and there were 36,000 meals served. The average cost per meal was 17½ cents and the average cost per man each day was $2.17. The pay roll for the foreman, guards and cook was $6927.38 and the prisoners were paid 35 cents a day for their work.

GUINNEY WANTS NEW WORLDS TO CONQUER.

IS STARTING OUT TO SMASH ALL RECORDS FOR USED-CAR SALES.

Mr. Felix Guinney of the Don Lee used car department is out to break all records for sales of renewed Cadillacs for one year.

His record for the season of 1920-21, which ends the last of this month, has already exceeded any previous year in amount of money, and before the week is over the old record as to number of cars sold should be broken. The fiscal year comes to a close June 30.

In line with his annual policy, Guinney is conducting his regular year-end sale. In addition to offering many types of Cadillac cars that have been thoroughly rebuilt and overhauled in the Don Lee shops, Guinney has also placed special prices on his entire line of used cars. On account of the class of people purchasing Cadillac cars, the cars traded in on Cadillacs are of the better class.

No car is ever sold by the Don Lee used car department that is not first thoroughly inspected in the repair department, and the sales card which is attached to each car tells the exact condition and just what work has been done on that particular car.

FAGEOL
COMPOUND TRUCKS

Horses and Buggies have been satisfactory for many years, but are out of date now. You don't buy them now, you buy up-to-date automobiles.

THEREFORE

Why buy old style trucks because of what they used to do. They may run all right, but they are out of date now and will be far more out of date before they wear out.

Investigate Fageols first, they are truck leaders. They have as good design, material, workmanship and backing as other good trucks, and IN ADDITION have the FAGEOL 7-SPEED COMPOUND TRANSMISSION and PATENTED SPRING OILING SYSTEM, enabling Fageols to deliver in FASTER Time at Less EXPENSE.

"WESTERN AUTO" can supply any type of tire you need and save you money on any of them. And they all carry "Western Auto's" guarantee.

SAVE MONEY ON TIRES

Four tires, but each type supreme in its class and priced about 20% to 40% below list on account of our huge purchasing for 21 stores.

FIDELITY TIRES
are made expressly for Fords, Chevrolets, Maxwells, Overlands and Dorts. The Fidelity Rubber Company, concentrating on the 30x3 and 30x3½ size only, put out a remarkably fine tire for the price, but with the big savings made possible by "Western Auto" distribution makes their value extremely uncommon. They are guaranteed for 6000 miles and are strictly first quality and fresh stock.

NEBRASKA TIRES
A standard quality, standard weight tire, that is certainly proving up to the reputation made in the "Cornhusker" State, where they are manufactured. Their guarantee of 6000 miles is backed by "Western Auto" and that insures you of satisfaction; for we will be here tomorrow and next year to back up our guarantees. It pays to deal with a reliable house.

PHARIS TIRES
The Pharis Tire has been handled by "Western Auto" for nearly eight years, with excellent success and increasing popularity. It is a high quality standard tire of proven merit, as our host of satisfied customers throughout the country will testify. The Fabric Tires are guaranteed 7000 miles and the Cords 10,000 miles.

INDIA TIRES
After all is said and done, the of a tire can only be figured run its mileage. Even at price, the cost of Indias is low in the long run—but with of about 20% we offer you dia—"America's Best"—Supremely able. Fabrics guaranteed 8000 10,000 miles. (30x3½, 12,000

This intensely interesting series of photographs, taken by Joseph Mattingly on the occasion of his second trip into the Far North, represent only the scenic side of Alaska. Strange as it may seem to many, Alaska is a land rich not only in coal, gold, copper oil and other valuable minerals, but there are vast areas that offer, when transportation becomes available, splendid opportunities for stock raising and agricultural pursuits.

Next Sunday's rotogravure section will contain series of photographs of interesting persons, places and things in the city of Long Beach.

STANLEY
IT WILL NOT BREAK

Always shown upside down and falling—why?

"It will not break"

IN every advertisement for the Stanley Vacuum Bottle, the bottle is shown upside down. In each instance it is in the act of falling.

The artist has chosen this method because it tells the unusual story of the Stanley Bottle in a simple and striking manner. This bottle is made entirely of steel. There is no glass in it. No fall or blow can break it!

There are no replacements—no "refills" with the Stanley. The first cost is the last cost.

The Stanley Bottle is lined with blue Amalite, a mineral coating fused into the steel itself. This keeps the bottle always sanitary, and will neither rust nor tarnish.

Stanley Bottles come in pint, quart, two-quart and carafe models. The new Stanley Lunch Kit is equipped with the pint size bottle. Look for the name Stanley on the bottle. If your dealer does not carry the Stanley, send us his name and address. Stanley Insulating Company, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Factory: Great Barrington, Mass.

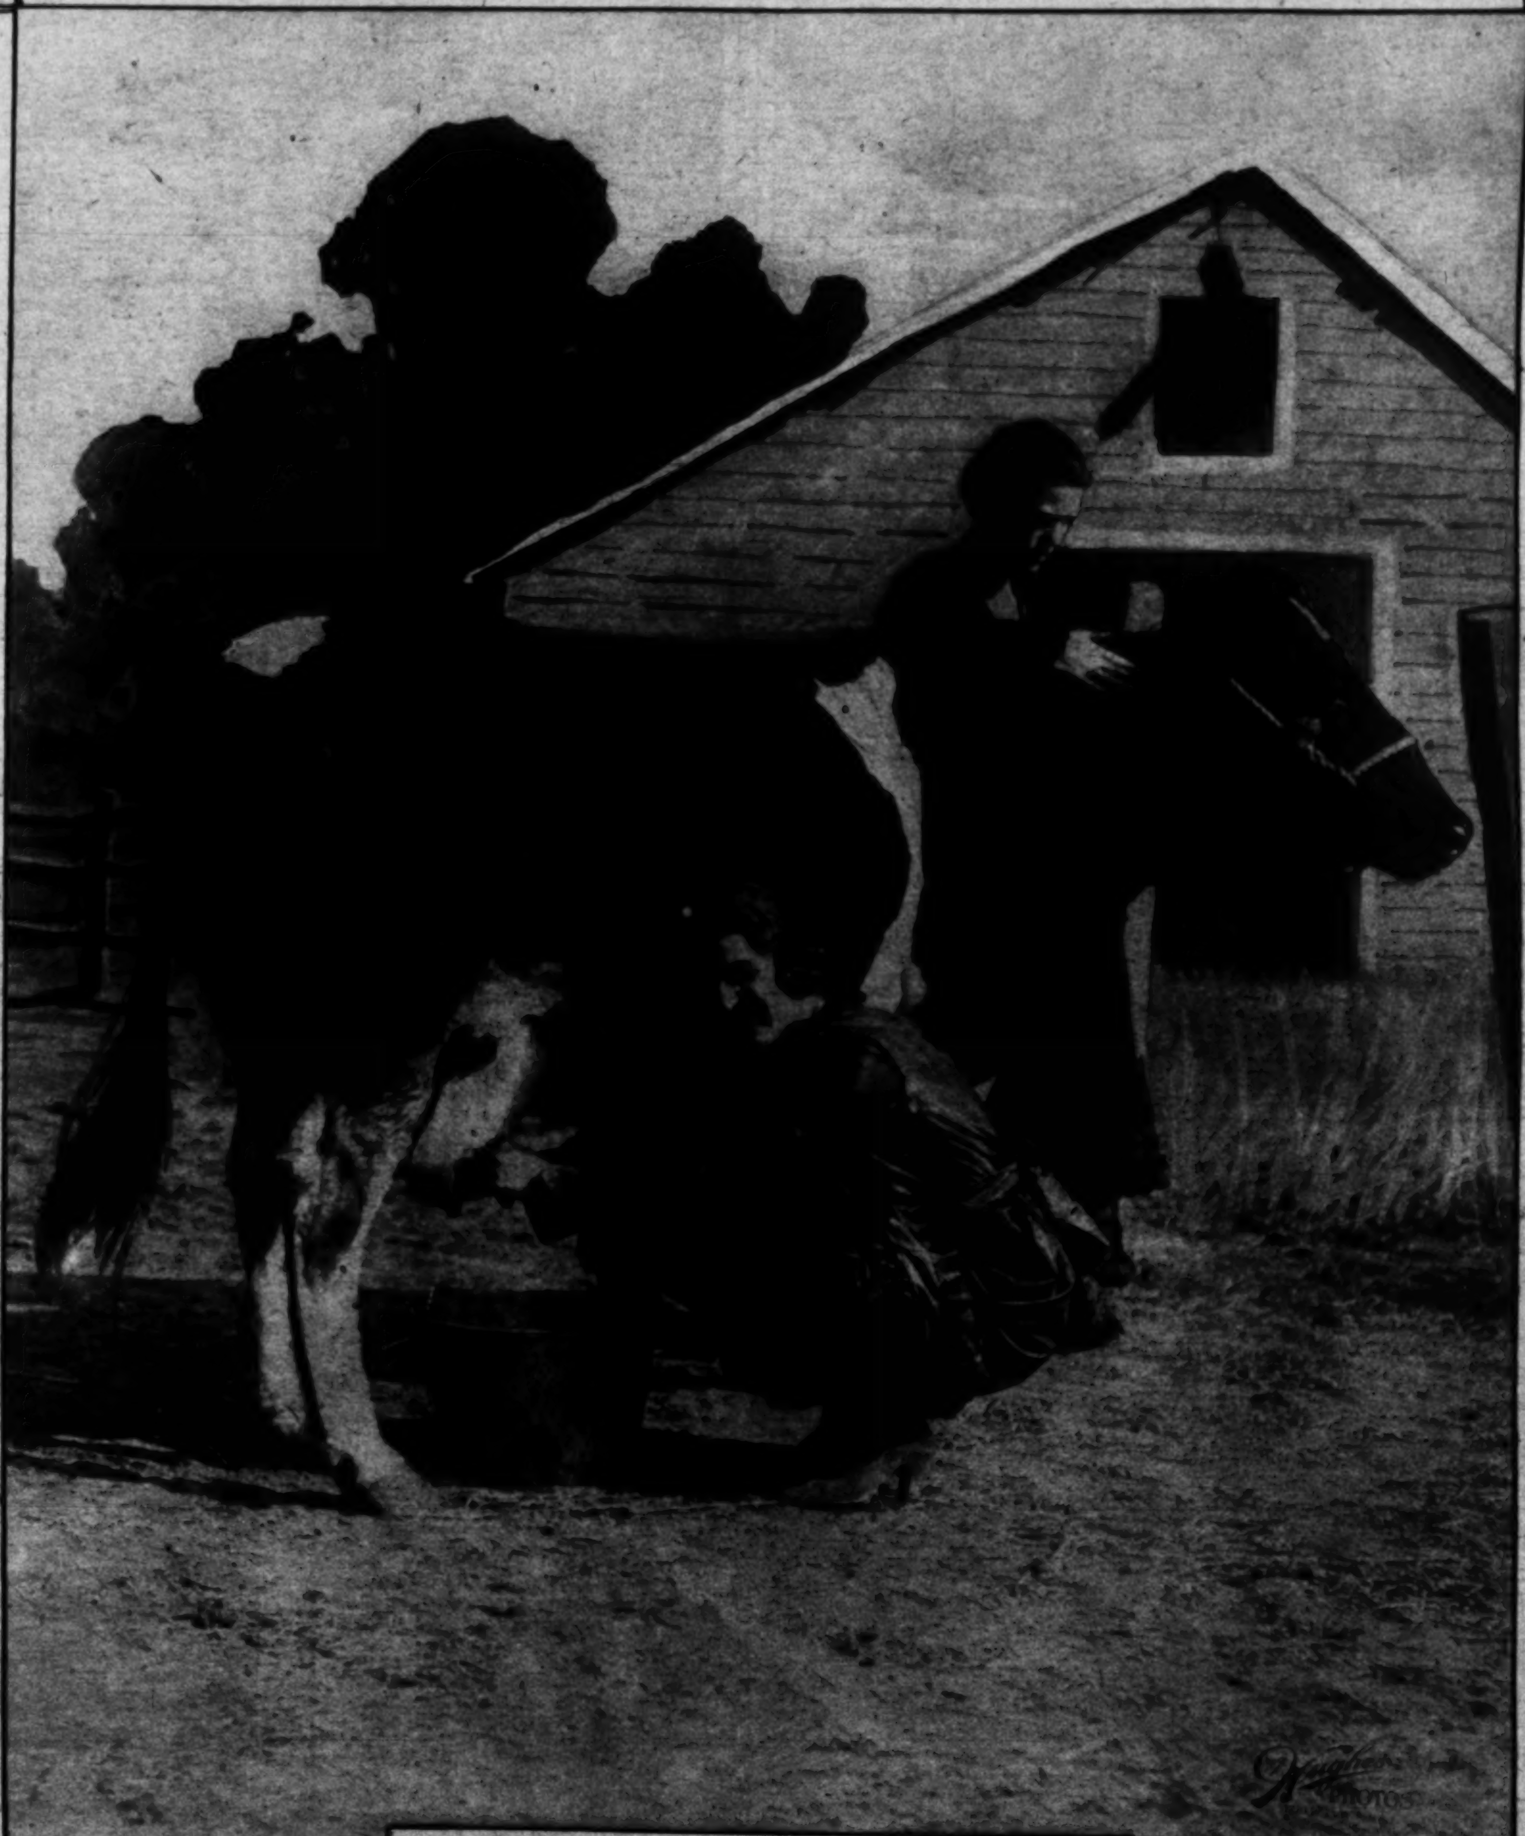
PROGRESS AND PRODUCTION

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 26, 1921.



A Penny for Bossie's Thoughts on City Girls.

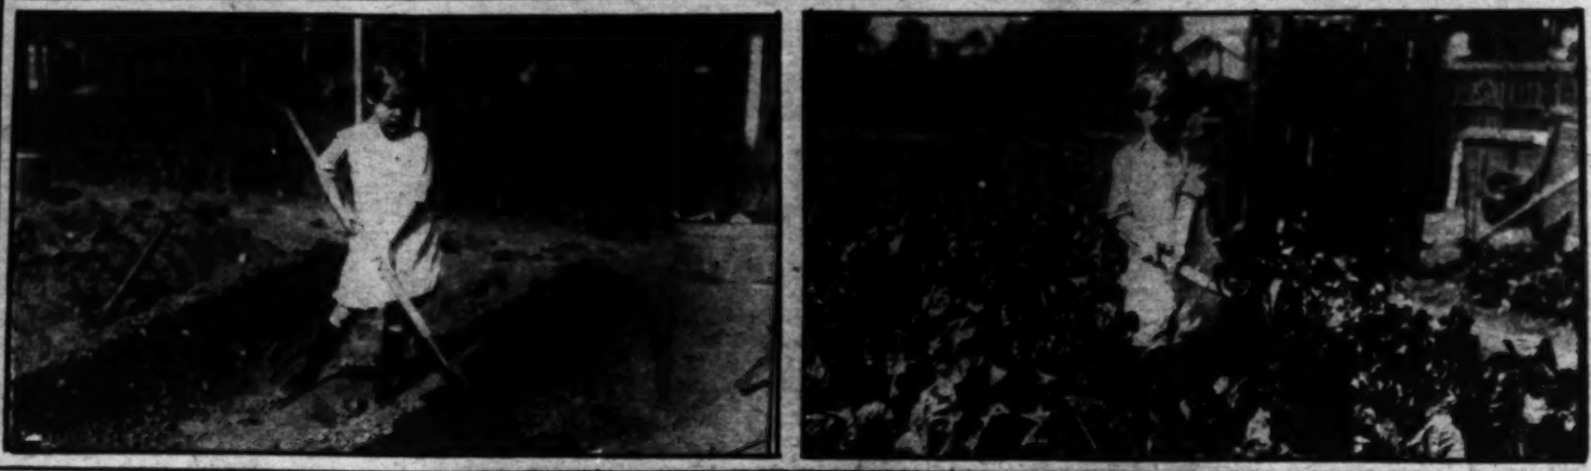
The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

NEXT to the pepper tree in popularity and preferable to it for some places and purposes, stands our grand live oak. Next comes Acacia dealbata, the silver wattle, a truly glorious tree when in bloom The choice of many is Acacia Melanoxylon, the blackwood. This tree needs a rich, deep soil and will not withstand drought. Many other Acacias make fine street trees, but all may be seen in the nurseries and their chief points ascertained by comparison. Jacaranda ovalifolia, if kept pruned, is very suitable for street purposes, and when in bloom would present a more beautiful sight than any mentioned, though it is somewhat tender. So, too, will the oleander amply repay proper care if trained as a tree, yet it is unpopular because always infested with black scale unless an annual cleaning is given. For dry sections few will prove more popular than Ceratonia Siliqua, St. John's Bread or carob tree. This tree is not yet thoroughly appreciated; it makes a marvelous growth under most discouraging circumstances and remains a very pleasing color. In extremely dry locations none will surpass Eucalyptus viminalis, of drooping habit, and Eucalyptus polyanthema, slower of growth, but much hardier. In planting any of these trees you cannot make the holes too wide or too deep. If you have but $1 to spare for each tree, put three-fourths of it into digging the hole.

What's the Use!

How can a fellow think thoughts on a typewriter with a mental picture like this swimming between his eyes and the keyboard?



If the youngsters show the least interest in gardening, give them little plots of their own to work in.

Egyptian Paper Plant.

A company is being started with Belgian capital to exploit papyrus, which grows in great abundance in the Belgian Kongo, near Elizabethville. Analyses have shown this plant to contain 37.8 per cent cellulose. A bleaching process has been discovered, and the company which has been granted a concession, intends to put up, at a cost of 2,500,000 francs, a plant which will have a production capacity of 20,000 tons of pulp.

A Contribution.

Those who desire their flowers to give the most satisfactory results should know how to make the most essential fertilizers for them in their own home. "Take an old earthern jar and break up a lot of bones in small pieces and place in the jar. Then make a strong solution of lye and pour this over the bones. After it has stood several days, stir with a stick or old iron spoon, and the mixture will become a sort of mush. This, when applied properly to the soil about the roots of flowers, will supply every important need. Nitrogen, lime, phosphoric acid and potash are in this mixture. A teaspoon to a gallon of water is sufficient if applied twice a week. Plants that are in a sickly condition due to poor or unfit soil may be given a little more, or the application may be made a little more frequent. A little soot taken from the kitchen stove will assist in providing nourishment to starved plants. It can be added to the mixture—[U. T. T.

Changing Plant Sex.

The following is submitted without comment. The United States Department of Agriculture in 1914 issued Bulletin No. 32 of the Hawaii experiment station, entitled, "The Papaya in Hawaii." On page 26 occur the following statements: 'The complete change of a male tree to one purely female, with fruits of the form of the ordinary diocious papaya, is perhaps the most remarkable. A well-authenticated case of this character has been reported and the tree in its present state has been examined. . . . Dr. John T. Gulick, a scientist of wide reputation, whose studies in evolution, published by the Carnegie Institution, would alone be sufficient to establish his accuracy of observation and statement, has kindly furnished this station with the history of this tree, which has grown in his garden. 'When the tree was a year and a half or two years old, it had produced only staminate flowers. It was then six feet high, and we cut the limbs and the top of tree, that were in the way of a clothesline. It was not till many months later that we noticed that the new branches were bearing fruit and that the flowers were all pistillate. During the three years that have passed since its head was cut off it has developed ten branches . . . all of them producing pistillate flowers and fruit.

Honorable Horticulturists.

In glancing over the last annual report of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, we find that among the life members, one Charles F. Curtis joined in 1856, a membership of sixty-five years. No other closely approaches this record. Of those holding life memberships forty or more years there are one of fifty-five, Walter S. Barnes, one of fifty-four, Frederic Amory; four of fifty-one, two of fifty, four of forty-nine, three of forty-eight, four of forty-seven, and fifteen between this term of service and forty years; a total of thirty-five decided veterans in the uplift of horticulture. Of this number but one lives among us, Charles H. Hovey of South Pasadena (forty-nine years,) though Walter Raymond of hotel fame has held a life membership for thirty-one years.

Book on Begonias.

Los Angeles has a man, one well suited to a scientific task, who has for many years devoted all spare time to the study of the begonia family. He not only has gathered up every species and variety of begonia and Begoniaceae available, but all the literature, foreign and domestic. A Congressman provided all such matter available at the national Capitol, had copies made, etc., so far as the Federal government's resources go. Foreign countries have lent their aid. Scientists in the same or kindred lines have collaborated. Hundreds of dollars has been spent for express and postage. The manuscript is the most complete of any compiled on the subject. It is an aggregation or congregation of all that has gone before and all that has been learned since publication of other monographs on begonias. 'All this is preliminary to asking the questions: Who will read this record of a life-long work of love? And who will publish it, that we who wish may read?

Soil Moisture.

One of the chief points of value in a well-pulverized soil is its moisture-holding capacity, without which no soil is of high order. It is to hold water that we introduce organic matter, as well as to feed the plants, for humus holds soil moisture best; but pulverization alone is highly effective.

The Rise and Fall of Poultry Breeds.

CHANGING STYLES IN FOWLS. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

Eight-pound Dark Cornish hen, owned by Clyde M. Hill, Los Angeles.

THE rise and fall of breeds is indeed an interesting study in the evolution of kinds and varieties. Those who have been "in the game" for a score of years and over can readily recall the popularity of certain breeds and also their decline. This is not always explainable on economic grounds, for it is a well-known fact that all breeds and varieties are good when in the hands of good breeders. Will some reader with vision and imagination, based on practical grounds, tell us why White Wyandottes are better than the Silvers, Buffs and Columbians; or why White Leghorns outstrip the Browns 100 to nothing; or why White Orpingtons (some years ago popular all over this country) are almost obsolete on commercial farms? Why should the Dorking, the table breed of England, be eclipsed by the Sussex—the latter a fluffy feathered bird, while the former is more closely feathered like the Cornish? How we can imagine a chorus of voices proclaiming that it is purely along practical lines that certain breeds become dominant and others commercially recessive. Really! What about the Australian strain of Black Orpingtons with egg records from 180 to 309 per hen? And how do you account for the records made by Plymouth Rocks, Brahmas and Anconas, none of which are white in plumage? And while high fecundity is individual rather than racial, it is nevertheless a function not restricted to a particular breed or variety.

Surely, we should like to see all the better breeds more evenly in evidence than they are at present. It is a matter of some regret that a white-shelled egg has the "edge" on a brown-shelled egg in the atmosphere of the market. Its only advantage being that it is more rapidly and economically candled; in all other respects there is practically no difference, conditions being alike. It has always seemed to us that the brown egg possessed greater powers of resistance to breakage; but of this we have not conclusive evidence. Certain it is, however, that a case of extra selected brown eggs is quite as alluring to the gratification of the sense of sight as white, while as palate ticklers they certainly are "just as good." The exploitation of breeds is not an individual function—every breeder is only interested in the exploitation of the particular one he is handling; but if standard poultry, as exemplified in the American standard is to be perpetuated along lines that really count we submit that there are a number of breeds and varieties that will require attention pretty soon, if they are not to lapse into the limbo of forgotten things. The absence of poultry shows in towns of the size of Los Angeles only emphasizes a situation that is not entirely to the liking of the fancier spirit, and which is certainly not stimulating a wider interest in the breeding of our races of domesticated fowls. How does it strike you, Mr. Fancier, and what about the economic problems involved?

A Simple Candler.

Eggs can be candled with the aid of an oil lamp and a shoe box if nothing better is available.

Break-down Behind.

"Break-down behind" at times occurs in flocks where the feeding is too abundant. The symptoms are a dropped abdomen, frequently accompanied by diarrhoea, and in extreme cases the head is carried erect and the whole body almost perpendicular. On handling the bird, the abdomen appears to be several times its normal size. Recently a correspondent called attention to troubles with his birds along these lines. E. Cobb says in the Feathered World that the trouble is almost always caused by overfeeding or the feeding of too much fattening foods such as corn or potatoes. A fowl probably starts by laying a few soft-shelled eggs, owing to the lower portion of her oviduct (which clothes the eggs with their shell coverings) being disorganized through fatness, and as the overfatness increases, the fowl, in its endeavor to pass an egg, ruptures itself, with the result described. Alter conditions by discontinuing giving corn and other fattening foods, cut the ration down one-half for some weeks. This applies to the flock generally; as for the ailing ones, there is a chance of saving them, but ruptures do not appeal to us even a little bit. Prevention is more efficient; and besides, it is also much cheaper.

What you need when preserving eggs in water glass.

Swat the Rooster.

That is a slogan that most of us are familiar with, and one quite generally observed among egg farmers in California. Down in Louisiana, however, one Harley L. Williams has a way of driving home a truth by the use of illustrations, the one dealing with the swat-the-rooster idea being reproduced on this page. It certainly is suggestive and forceful. Mr. Williams estimates that as a result of this sort of propaganda, 10 per cent more people are producing infertile eggs in Louisiana now than a year ago.

The Cornish Fowl.

In England, and for that matter also in America, the number of varieties of the popular Cornish breed have been increased to four, namely, the Dark, the White and the Red Laced Red, and the Jubilee, the last a product of the English fancy. Of these, the Dark is the most popular, closely followed by the Laced. In our judgment the Whites are not so much in evidence as they were several years ago. For the most part all three varieties come reasonably true to type and color scheme of plumage, particularly the Dark. Our illustration is that of one of Clyde M. Hill's Dark Cornish hens, a good specimen in symmetry, head and leg points and color markings. Her weight (eight pounds) maintains the sterling (eight pounds) maintains the fowl.

Faults in the Color Scheme.

Those of us who are familiar with exhibition and standard qualities will appreciate the following skit on the color scheme of plumage and head and leg points in poultry (besides some "doings" with yellow yolks) published in the May 27 issue of Wallace's Farmer:

He was starting out in the poultry business. She was telling him a part of what she knew. "Say," he asked, "if these chickens are all pure-bred, and all White Wyandottes, why do some of them have yellow legs, some yellowish legs, and some just legs?"

"Yellow is the standard color for the leg of White Wyandottes," she explained. "In a very vigorous male you will sometimes find a streak of red on the legs, but the standard does not count this either a disqualification or a defect. However, a hen that has been laying a long time will lose the yellow from her legs, and a pullet that has too pale or dull a color may be brightened as to leg color by keeping a pan of water where she has to step into it in going in and out of the henhouse, or by keeping her on a grass run.

"I broke a couple of soft-boiled eggs this morning," he told her, and the yolk of one was yellow as could be, and the yolk of the other was pale. Why was that?"

"If they had not come from the same yard, I would say that the hen that laid the yellow yolk had been feeding on sprouted oats or other green food, while the light-yolked hen had not."

He grinned: "You hit it right; the light yolk was a cracked egg I got in a setting. My hens have been getting sprouted oats. How about the white in the red ear lobes of that hen over there? I thought the lobes should be red all over."

"So they should; if a Wyandotte shows any positive enamel white in the ear lobes it is cut one-half to two points. However, that is not enamel white, it is a paleness caused by lack of circulation. That hen has been broody. When her comb reddens the white will go. In young males, this is sometimes remedied by gentle massage with vaseline."

"Look, there is a feather with black on a White Wyandotte!" he exclaimed. "I can't show her!"

"Haven't you read what the standard committee has to say about that: 'To pull undesirable feathers on any variety, except sickle, main tail, primary and secondary feathers, is not considered faking.'"

"I thought when I got into a solid color breed I would not have trouble with off-colors," he complained. "I've had as much bother keeping cream and buff and black out of the feathers and growing them with web, fluff and quills pure white as I would have had with a laced breed—to say nothing of the eyes, which must be reddish-bay, and the face, comb, wattles and ear lobes, which must be bright red."

"Terrible, isn't it?" she quizzed.

"Yes, maybe; but it surely is interesting."

Imitation the Sincerest Flattery.

Since the California egg has not only invaded the New York market, but has crowded the eastern local product to second place, it is not at all surprising that the New Jersey poultrymen are organizing in order to standardize their product and attempt to match our eggs in quality. The movement along co-operative lines in that State hopes to sign up the product of something like 300,000 laying hens, grade and pack along advanced lines, with the object in view of handling their own business much as the California Co-operative Poultry Associations are doing. Headquarters will be maintained in Trenton, with large packing-houses in Tom's River and Vineland and a sales office in New York City. There may be those among our readers who see in this movement a menace to the supremacy of the California egg in the New York market; but to our way of thinking it will be a negligible quantity. Our heavy shipments are at a season of the year when the eastern hen is fighting cold weather rather than laying eggs. Besides, New York and New Jersey climate is not quite "up" in these qualities that afford business activity for the American business hen that inspires her to "shell out" in California. Yes, verily!

The only way to keep a record on Biddy.

Is the Leaven Working?

Sometimes a good thing which does not command immediate recognition, will, if kept in the public mind, sooner or later come into its own. For some years now we have been trying to convince the organized poultry farmers on the advisability of exploiting the nutritive values of their products. Other lines of production broaden their markets and increase demands for their particular goods, therefore, why not the poultry industry? Our contention has been that an increase of three eggs per week per capita of population in any given section would at once stabilize the market and clean up all surplus stocks of hen fruit. This idea has finally dawned upon the poultry fraternity at large, with the result that the American Poultry Association has been asked to inaugurate a national advertising campaign advocating the wider use of the greatest and most popular breakfast food on earth. Frank E. Mussehl, professor of poultry husbandry in the Nebraska University, tersely puts the proposition as follows:

"If the consumption of eggs in this country could be increased by an advertising campaign to the extent of one egg per person per week (which would not seem to be a very difficult matter) it would mean an increase of 105,000,000 eggs consumed per week, or 5,460,000,000 eggs per year. This is on a basis of an increase of fifty-two eggs per person per year, or a grand total of 15,166,666 cases, running thirty dozen to the case. Think about that—then ask yourself whether or not you feel that such a campaign ought to be undertaken, and whether it should be the duty of our one and only national poultry organization to undertake it."

Suppose an intelligent advertising campaign covering the country actually would increase the consumption half an egg a day per capita of population, how many 250-eggs-per-year super hens would it require to supply the demand? That certainly is some problem for organized poultrymen to think about.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

Impressive Figures.

THE census of agriculture for California, taken in connection with the regular Federal counting of noses in 1920, has just been published from Washington in what is called a "preliminary announcement." Anyone who likes to pore over figures and absorb the lessons of "cold statistics" will find this report most interesting. It covers a little of everything, agriculturally speaking, and tells a wonderful story of development. The latter is what will hold the attention of the average person. City and country people alike will read with amazement and pride of the enormous increase in farm values in the State in ten years and of the growth of important agricultural industries as revealed by the Federal count. Trained economists and students of social conditions will doubtless get enlightenment and edification out of the statistics on financial incumbrances on farms, proportion of native to foreign-born operators, and so on. Mr. Average Man would get more out of this kind of figures if Uncle Sam had seen fit to elucidate a little by telling just what percentage of the so-called "foreign" classification is represented by orientals, what is meant by "colored" farmers, and a lot besides that isn't any too clear. Maybe something more detailed along these lines will be forthcoming later.

The number of California farms in 1920 is given as 117,670, an increase of 33.4 per cent over 1910. The farms counted at the last census contained 29,365,667 acres, of which 11,878,339 acres are stated to be improved land. The value of all farm property on an. 1, 1920, is given at $3,431,021,861, as compared with $1,614,694,584 for April 15, 1910. The value of land and buildings jumped from $1,450,601,488 in 1910 to $3,073,811,109 in 1920. The value of implements and machinery on farms climbed from $36,493,158 to $136,069,290, while live stock gained in value from $127,599,938 to [illegible]1,462. The growth of power farming is undoubtedly responsible for the huge increase in the value of the machines used to handle and harvest crops, while the growth of interest in better stock must have had an appreciable effect on the stock valuation. Cattle show an increase in numbers of from 1,8[illegible]26 to 2,008,037. Sheep increased from 1,5[illegible]288 to 2,400,151. The 1920 figure for swine is 909,272, and a footnote in the census report says the 1910 figure "would not be comparable." Horses declined in number from 445,849 to 402,407 and mules dropped from 66,910 to 63,910. Poultry increased from 5,665,964 to 10,426,648. The value of cattle in 1920 is given at $120,681,446, and that of swine at $13,850,907.

The enormous increase in value of yearly production is probably the most striking thing of all in the report. Higher prices prevailing at the time of the last census, of course, account in part for the fact that the totals for the various crops are so much higher than a decade before, but, even making due allowances for this difference, the figures are calculated to make the Californian swell with pride. For all crops, the value jumped from $146,526,151 in 1909 to $587,600,591 in 1919. (The census in each instance covers the year previous to the gathering of the figures.) Cereals climbed from $28,039,826 to $108,570,469; other grains and seeds from $7,318,211 to $38,349,277; hay and forage from $42,206,252 to $96,121,846; vegetables from $12,121,958 to $47,377,921; fruits and nuts from $50,206,869 to $270,910,698, and other crops from $6,133,035 to $26,270,380.

ARE WE MAKING THE MOST OF OUR GROWING POSSIBILITIES?

Editor Farm and Tractor Section:

EVER since the writer can remember he has heard of the grandeur of California. He used to wonder as a boy if he would ever be permitted to behold its glories. When he finally reached his coveted "Land of Caanan" he found that it, like all the other places he had visited, had its drawbacks as well as its good points.

We of California justly feel that we have one of the finest States of the Union. We take pride in the fact that California produces such wonderful fruits and other products and that this State is well known to the world.

We want to remember, however, that we cannot eat all our productions and that if we did we would not have any outside cash to draw on and would soon become bankrupt. We must sell our products and in so doing come into competition with other sections of the country that produce the same things we do. And in order to meet this competition, we must have as good, or preferably, better goods than they have.

Custom and prejudice govern most people in their selections. Because a majority of growers plant certain crops, others think they must do the same and in time we settle upon some particular varieties, plant them to the exclusion of all others and if a new variety is suggested, turned it down unceremoniously.

The past season we have been particularly unfortunate with our lemons. It has been laid to excessive freight rates, disadvantageous rates of foreign exchange, overproduction, or at least production in excess of demand, competition of foreign lemons and a dozen other things.

So far we have never heard it suggested that there might be a difference in the quality of the fruit that would explain, partially at least, the lack of demand for our lemons. While it is likely to cause me to be accused of high treason, I will say that as a personal experience, I conducted a high-grade summer resort stand in the East for eleven seasons and that I would always pay from $1 to $1.50 a box more for Palermo and Messina lemons than I would for Californias. They were well worth it when it came to using them. The Sicilian fruit had more body, more pulp and went further in making lemonade and other mixed temperance drinks.

Is it not possible that we might improve on our present stock variety of Eurekas so that we might compete in quality with the Mediterranean fruit, even though they could sell it cheaper?

In talking with the buyer for a large fruit house, in Los Angeles not long since, he made this remark: "I would like to buy California grapefruit, but I cannot sell it. My customers demand Arizona fruit." In the East the Florida grapefruit is considered superior to the California and brings a higher price.

The writer does not believe that Florida or Arizona can raise any finer flavored grapefruit than can be raised in California. But—have we the best possible variety? Is the Marsh's seedless, the commonly grown variety of this section, the last word in California grapefruit? The common complaint is that it has more bitterness, thicker skin and less juice and pulp than the Arizona and Florida fruit. If our growers will take the trouble to look into it closely, it will be found that the fruit is of a different variety. It differs in shape, texture and color.

Several years ago the writer secured some buds of a leading Florida variety and these have been in bearing two years. This fruit is of the same shape, color and texture as the other two mentioned, has a thin skin and so little bitterness that we pick it from the tree and peel and eat it as we do an orange, without sugar. We have a Marsh's seedless growing near these trees which is far different, having all the characteristics of the commonly grown Marsh's seedless, and which has to be sugared to make it palatable. It has thicker skin, less juice and an average of three or four seeds to a fruit, while the other variety mentioned does not average over one seed to the fruit, two seeds being uncommon and many fruit being absolutely seedless.

EVEN OUR ORANGES.

We know that the navel orange reaches its greatest perfection in California, that the navels of Florida do not begin to compare with the California fruit, but—is the navel the ultimate in oranges? Please do not think this an effort to belittle the navel orange, or to detract in any way from the prestige of California as a fruit-growing section; but the great question is: Are we actually making the most of our possibilities?

As an example of the attitude toward the accepted varieties, four years ago the writer got some buds of the Lue Gim Gong orange with the intention of trying them out. In a conversation with one of the highest authorities on citriculture in this section, he was advised not to. Those trees fruited and our family all agree that the Lue Gim Gong is one of the finest flavored oranges we ever ate, resembling the Hart, a great favorite in the East. The trees seem to thrive here and it is our opinion it will become a strong competitor of the Valencia, particularly if the claim that it will hang on the tree for two or three months (or even six months) without deteriorating, proves true.

It is not to be wondered at that many are shy of new varieties. We have been fooled so much by "plant wizards" that it is necessary to prove a new plant before it will be taken very seriously; but everything presented is not "spineless" cactus and if we are to maintain our lead in horticulture, we must keep up with the procession in the production of the best-appearing and finest-flavored fruits.

The effort to put only reliable nursery stock on the market through the organization of a bud selection association is a laudable one and should have been taken up before. Had there been such an association, properly supported, years ago, there would now be fewer "drone" trees to be worked over.

Another very detrimental custom has been that of seeking the cheapest nursery stock obtainable under the idea that "a tree is a tree." Such practice has led unscrupulous growers to produce trees on the cheapest possible plan—any kind of seedlings, any kind of buds and any kind of planting.

TOO MUCH CARELESSNESS.

The most important part of any orchard outside of the best varieties, is the root system of the trees. On one occasion we watched a man plant orange seedlings. He had taken the job by the contract and was anxious to get through as quickly as possible. He was putting those little seedlings in the ground at the rate of 300 an hour; five every minute, one every twelve seconds. All he did was to stick a trowel in the ground, pull the dirt a little to one side, grab a seedling, shove it unceremoniously into the ground, without regard to the position of its roots and push the dirt up

POSSIBILITIES OF RICE GROWING IN THIS STATE CLEARLY SHOWN.

BY O. R. ABERNATHY.

LESS than ten years ago, an experiment on a quarter section of land, by 1919, planted on 155,000 acres, and—with a value of $24,831,000, ranking fourth among this State's field crops—rice has well been called "The Wizard Crop of Central California." No other State crop, in fact, has experienced such rapid increase in acreage planted or has brought as great wealth—both to land owners, by enhanced land values, and to producers, by large and profitable yields—as has rice.

Rice has been produced in South Carolina since 1695, from there being later carried into other Southern States. Not until 1911, however, when 160 acres were planted in the Sacramento Valley, was it proven that rice could be made a commercial success in California. Now, our State is rapidly crowding Arkansas out of third place in extent of acreage planted; while our acre yields exceed those of any other State. California's average annual yield per acre over the five-year period (1915-19) was sixty-three bushels, while her nearest competitor in this respect (Arkansas) secured only forty-three bushels.

To better realize the wonderful producing ability of rice compare it with that of other cereals in the State, as given by the Bureau of Crop Estimates. The 1919 yield per acre of corn is given at thirty-three; oats and barley, thirty; wheat, sixteen and one-half bushels. The superior yields of rice are secured chiefly because (1) the crop is irrigated—hence its water requirements are assured, and (2) rice possesses wonderful reproducing power—from ten to thirty stalks (each yielding many grains) being produced from one seed. As to money value, the 1919 acre-yields of rice ($150) were exceeded only by potatoes, onions and hops—all three of which required expensive cultivation.

On a trip last summer through the Central California rice fields, the writer saw and heard of scores of men who had become independently rich through several seasons' production of this heavy yielding crop; saw orientals and Americans, who had started out a few years ago with little money, but plenty of nerve and the will to work, now enjoying the income of bank presidents.

Perhaps the most wonderful fact in connection with the story of rice in California and the benefits and fortunes it has brought

STATE CROP CONDITION SAME AS LAST YEAR.

After a review of the producing regions in June, California reporters of the Bureau of Crop Estimates announce that the composite condition of all crops in the State was about 3.7 per cent below their ten-year average condition, and practically the same as on June 1, 1920. Fruit crops do not look so good, and field crops look a little better than they did last year.

Fruit crops of the Eastern States are away below normal, the condition of apples being 41 per cent of normal, that of peaches 45 per cent and of pears, 43 per cent. A larger percentage of the fruit crops raised in California this year, therefore, will be sent East.

A summary of the report of the bureau on the condition of California crops, expressed in percentage of their ten-year averages, follows:

Hay, 103.6 per cent; pasture, 103.6 per cent; wheat, 102.6 per cent; barley, 101.3 per cent; cantaloupes, 101.1 per cent; lemons, oranges and sugar beets, 100 per cent; alfalfa, 98.9 per cent; oats, 97.6 per cent; olives, 95.7 per cent; berries, 91.4 per cent; peaches, 90.1 per cent; prunes, 88.5 per cent; walnuts, 88.5 per cent; almonds, 84.5 per cent; cotton, 81.5 per cent; beans, 78.6 per cent; pears, 76.3 per cent; apples, 70.7 per cent; apricots, 64.3 per cent.

The area sown to barley this year is 10 per cent less than that of last year, or 1,125,000 acres, for this year's crop.

The condition of sugar beets is about the average for the last ten years. The acreage is a little in advance of the 1920 crop.

Although the lima bean planters who got in their seed before the first of the May rains are rewarded with lusty vines, the crop generally suffered from the drought and cool weather, much replanting being necessary, and the acreage is undetermined, but is believed to be a little less than that of last year.

It is believed that there will be a 325-000-ton peach crop this year, as compared with 345,000 tons last year.

GROWERS HOPING FOR LOWER FREIGHT RATE.

REDLANDS.—The citrus growers will be forced by the railroads to cling to the all-sea route method of getting California oranges and lemons into the hands of people in the East unless there is an immediate and drastic reduction in freight rates, in the opinion of F. C. FitzGibbon, the traffic manager of the Mutual Orange Distributors here.

"We have made no tests in shipping oranges by water," said Mr. FitzGibbon, "but we have shipped several carloads of lemons from our La Verne house, by boat, through the Panama Canal. This shipment was successful in every way, and we feel that speedy fruit carriers can be built that will deliver our product to the East by water route within three or four days of the best time of freight on the railroads.

"So far, we have not had more than 2 per cent of decay, on the water, which is the average in rail shipments."

BUREAU TO FORM DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

BAKERSFIELD.—For the purpose of forming a dairy department of the Kern County Farm Bureau to conduct cow testing and inspection activities within the bureau, a committee has been appointed by J. J. Deuell, president, composed of P. J. McCuthcheon of Old River, Charles Smith of Rosedale and A. T. Nelson of Arvin. The county dairy inspector now makes complete monthly inspections and handles all similar work, including occasional cow testing, but directors of the Farm Bureau believe that the activities of the county can be supplemented to a valuable extent through the farmers' organization.

The Farm Bureau will hold a meeting in Bakersfield soon to consider the present status of plans to organize a county irrigation district.

ORCHARDIST TAKES UP POULTRY RAISING.

YUCAIPA.—J. O. Shuey, apple grower of the valley, is going into the poultry business on a large scale, having brought in 1500 baby chicks from San Gabriel Valley. This brings his total well above 2000 and from them Mr. Shuey hopes to get close to a thousand pullets with which to start his chicken business. He has built modern poultry houses and is convinced that the poultry business and fruit growing can be combined in a most profitable manner. He has selected the hite Leghorn because he believes it to be the greatest egg producer, the amount of care required and food cost considered.

Mr. Shuey has for some time been watching the experiments made with poultry in connection with citrus orchards in the Redlands and Fontana sections and also the experience of Rous Brothers in Yucaipa in having poultry with their apple orchard. He believes that a thousand hens will provide about all the fertilizer that will be needed for his orchard. He is the third farmer of the Yucaipa Valley to go into poultry raising on a commercial scale and indications are that several others will follow suit within a year or so.

GRASSHOPPER CONTROL.

When cutting the first crop of alfalfa it will always be noticed that young grasshoppers where present, keep moving over into the standing alfalfa. They never fail to do this. When this first cutting is made, if uncut strips about a sickle bar in width are left, every thirty or forty yards across the field, it will be found that, in a day or two, practically all of the young hoppers will be concentrated on these strips. It simply bunches or traps the hoppers where they can be poisoned with the poisoned bran mash with a great saving of time, labor and material.

TREATMENT OF VINES.

BAKERSFIELD.—In the Weed Patch district two important vine treatment demonstrations were held recently, conducted by Farm Adviser Myron A. Rice and A. K. Peterson, chairman of the vineyard improvement committee of the farm bureau. At the last meeting of the Weed Patch farm center J. J. Deuel, president of the farm bureau, discussed power and irrigation rates.

More than 2100 acres of grapes were planted in Tulare county this year.

port, W. B. Gemmell. At this meeting it was decided to leave the price of hay the same as at present, which is $18 for loose and $21 for baled. F. W. Phelps, general manager of the State Alfalfa Growers' Association, gave an extensive talk on legal problems of the parent organization. Approximately 72,000 more eggs, or about $3000 worth, will be laid in the vicinity of Pomona during the next year and a half, due to plans now being made for poultry club programs for high school students, it was announced here by L. R. Y. Hoover, prominent poultryman of this city and one of the committee of three appointed by the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau to organize and supervise poultry clubs throughout the county.

PIG CLUB AWARDS.

PRAIRIE CENTER. — Edgar Teachout, age 13, took first prize with a Poland China pig in a 100-day feeding contest in Prairie Center Pig Club, winning the silver cup and trip to Davis in the fall. Lloyd Tyler, 12, took second with a Duroc-Jersey and gets $10 in gold, besides the trip to Davis. George Todd and William McNutt, as second and Davis, while Howard Glover and Roy Baxley, winners of fourth and fifth, receive $5 each. Harry Stewart took first prize of $5 in the pig judging contest, while George Todd and William McNutt ,as second and third, received $3 and $2, respectively. All prizes were awarded at the annual picnic held by Prairie Center Farm Bureau in Keeley's Oak Grove. The Prairie Center Farm Bureau center covers districts from Poplar to Lindsay, in Tulare county. Eighteen boys, ranging in age from 12 to 18 years, under direction of C. M. Wineman as president and Farm Adviser C. M. Conner have taken active interest in the Pig Club. R. L. Ralston, agricultural club leader from the agricultural college at Berkeley instructed the boys as regards judging, considering class, quality and condition.

ADVISES ORCHARDISTS.

LINDAY.—Tulare county's plant pathologist, Dr. P. A. Boncquet, in talking to peach growers, recently, said: "To bring a peach orchard back to heavy bearing, heavy pruning is essential. It may also help to bring back a vineyard, but with all deciduous trees, any kind of summer pruning, tipping and thinning out of the leaves will unquestionably still further the appearance of the plants. Trees sick on account of being overfed with nitrogen and water, will never be benefited by any kind of pruning. Trees sick with fungus diseases will not be improved much by heavy pruning. Sick orange trees, pruned heavily during the winter, under some circumstances will be reinvigorated. This heavy pruning must be on the dead wood, or "near-dead" wood. In cases of overfeeding, the ration must be balanced. You must plow deep, irrigate frequently, fertilize so as to balance plant food, and stop forming a plow-pan with discs and cultivators."

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

COACHELLA.—The date crop of the Coachella Valley, amounting annually to from forty to seventy-five tons, is to be handled co-operatively by the Tropical Date Company, recently organized. The company becomes a member in the California Date Growers' Co-operative Association. Its members control a large acreage, set out to all of the standard varieties. Officers elected are: R. H. Postlethwaite, president; G. M. Beach, vice-president; B. K. Martin, secretary-treasurer. The coming season's crop is to be packed in the plant of the Coachella Valley Packing Association, membership of which includes the Tropical Date Company, Menakher Date Gardens and the properties of George M. Beak, B. K. Martin and Mrs. C. R. Russell.

SELL FORTY HOGS.

HEMET.—Forty head of Duroc-Jersey hogs, bred by the Charnock Ranch, were recently sold to the Doheny Oil Company of Santa Susana at a consideration above $6000. C. H. Tyler, manager of the Charnock Ranch, reports this as the largest sale of pure-bred hogs ever closed in this vicinity.

POTATOES REPRESENTED.

SAN BERNARDINO.—The potato growers of San Bernardino county have a fully organized department now, with a committee in each center and a county chairman elected by the chairman of the center committee. This county chairman will have a seat on the board of directors of the county organization. Having completed the organization according to the requirements of the constitution, the potato growers will become a department of the farm bureau through the action of the board at the next meeting. This will make eleven departments on the farm bureau and it is being found the most efficient way in which the farm bureau organization can function in order to be of the most use to all the different interests represented by its members. The departments and their heads are as follows: Swine, Alex Wilson, Guasti; dairy, Edward Bost, Chino; deciduous, George P. Weldon, pomologist, Chaffey Junior College of Agriculture; citrus, R. O. Price, Upland; home, Mrs. M. A. Kipf, Redlands; boys' and girls' clubs, Dr. B. R. Crandall, San Bernardino; sheep, J. J. Prendergast, Redlands; poultry, J. E. Hauser, Fontana; pest control, J. P. Coy, San Bernardino (county horticultural commissioner;) Mojave Valley, Dix Van Dyke, Daggett; publicity, Mrs. S. U. Stewart, Del Rosa.

SPIDER IS FEARED.

BANNING. — Red spider is making inroads into Banning orchards of almonds and prunes. Infested orchards are being heavily dusted with sulphur to check the pest. The damage thus far has been slight, but growers are taking no chances. The red spider sucks the sap in the leaves, causing them to turn yellow, thereby decreasing their functioning and depleting the vitality of the tree. Its presence is indicated by this yellowing of the leaves.

FIRST FAIR SUCCESS.

ONTARIO.—The first annual fair of the Chaffey Junior Farm Center staged last week on the Chaffey High School campus proved a marked success. On display were more than 100 chickens, many turkeys, geese, pigeons and ducks, fifty rabbits, forty hogs and a goodly showing of goats and high-bred cattle. There were also large honey bee exhibits, showing the bees at work, truck garden displays, showings of plant diseases and their cures, a miniature peach orchard and many other things of interest. The fair was staged in the great new auto sheds of the school, which were thronged with visitors during the two days it ran. Practically all the exhibits were by members of the Junior Farm Center and gave the visitor an excellent idea of what is being accomplished along the line of project work in the Chaffey College of Agriculture. Many prizes were awarded in poultry, hog and cattle classes.

HAY LOOKING BETTER.

YUCAIPA.—How about hay? That's the question among both dealers and farmers. That their crops were damaged by late rains enough to affect the price appreciably is conceded by most of the farmers. It is generally expected that good hay will bring from $25 to $30 a ton, and dealers of Redlands, Riverside and San Bernardino are buying very largely on that basis. Before the spring rains, it was felt that the price for good hay this year would not be more than $20 a ton. The hay that was cut before the first heavy rain, and there was but little of it in this section, has suffered so that it will not be worth anything, except for fertilizer. That cut between the two rains fared better, and there will only be a small amount of that lost. The hay has been turned over, and in most instances when thus treated, is good. The foothill hay came through in much better shape than that of the lowlands.

Imperial Valley Sugar Beet.

This monster beet came from just south of Calexico in Lower California. It was planted the first week in January and harvested the first week in June.

VISIT CITRUS STATION.

WHITTIER.—So successful was the farm bureau excursion to the State Experimental Station at Riverside last month, that another was planned by the citrus men for Friday, June 17. Problems of the pests that infest citrus groves as well as the soil and growth of the trees were all taken up and explained by illustration at the station, in the laboratories and upon the grounds. The guests were met by the State employees at Box Springs road near Riverside and escorted to the Experimental Station.

FRUIT TO LOS ANGELES.

FAMOSA.—Two carloads of apricots are leaving here daily for market from the Kern County Land Company ranch, where 600 acres of deciduous fruits, including apricots, peaches, plums and prunes, are coming into bearing. The apricots are going to Los Angeles. First plums were shipped to the Los Angeles market from the ranch of Ed Deming in the Vasco district south of here two weeks ago. Fresh fruit is also being shipped now from the Edison, Weed Patch, Shafter, Delano, McFarland and Loma Park districts of Kern county.

WATER USERS MEET.

PHOENIX.—F. A. Reid, president of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association, has returned from a trip to Washington in the interest of the appeal of the users for a cancellation of the construction charge of $1.13 for 1921. He reports the Reclamation Service in a receptive mood, and at a meeting of users held recently, efforts to have the charge held in abeyance for the year were continued.

PRICES UNCHANGED.

POMONA.—At a recent meeting of the Chino Alfalfa Growers' Association held at the high school auditorium at Chino, the following members were elected to serve as a board of directors for the coming year: E. C. Daniels, J. W. Bickmore, E. S. Haynes, A. J. Leavitt, S. A. Minnich, E. L. Daven-

HOPE TO MAKE FAIR REPRESENTATIVE EVENT.

SAN FERNANDO.—The San Fernando Valley Fair, which will be held from September 13 to 18, is taking on big proportions. The chambers of commerce from every valley town have whole-heartedly indorsed the committee's plans. With this unified support, the committee believes it sees its way clear to make the San Fernando Valley Fair hold an official importance to Southern California comparable with that of the State Fair in the north. It cannot be questioned, they say, that a big, centrally located annual fair will be of inestimable value to the farm owners and operators, and to all dealers in tractor, truck, implements and accessory, and in dairy and poultry supplies.

The coming fair will be the official 1921 show of the American Poultry Association, a live stock and dairy show, agricultural and horticultural exhibit, and will include a large tractor and implement working demonstration and still show.

Grounds for the fair, comprising 700 acres have been laid out; arrangements are made for housing facilities; and the leasing of ground space is going forward at a rapid pace.

BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

TERRA BELLA.—Grain harvesting has started in the Terra Bella section, early indications being that the yield is to be considered better than expected. The price has advanced some, wheat having sold for $2.25 per hundred. Reports are that the quality of grain is quite good, the berries being large and plump. Late rains and cool weather during May did much to save a crop that at one time seemed doomed.

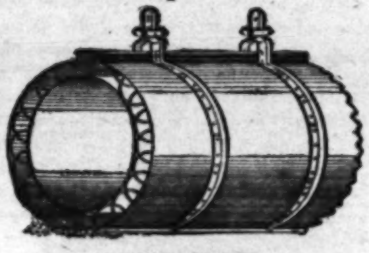
Bonelli System Monolithic Concrete Pipe for All Purposes.



PATENT ALLOWED.

Concrete when properly mixed and poured wet between two forms as contemplated in the Bonelli System, and then allowed to remain contained between the forms for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours before removing the outside forms, makes a concrete pipe that will not leak at all after a few days' time, and will stand a pressure according to the thickness of the wall you make and the reinforcing that is put in it. We pour as many feet or miles as are desired, making a continuous jointless pipe with all Ts, Crosses, Elbows, Outlets, Gates, Stand Pipes, Plugs, Expansion Joints, Valves, etc., made and set at the same time without any joints to leak or bother. Local economic conditions regulate the kind of inside forms to be used, which are of great variety. A better pipe for less money. THIS YEAR'S BUREAU TRAVEL CONFERENCE.

BY A. DELEGATE.

Monday morning, May 23, at 8 o'clock, some 120 farmers, representing the forty county Farm Bureaus of California, assembled in Agricultural Hall, Berkeley, to join with some forty farm advisers and agricultural extension workers in the annual Farm Bureau Travel Conference excursion, conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service. It was a personally conducted trip, lasting six full days, and covered 650 miles through nine San Joaquin Valley counties, where agricultural extension and farm bureau activities were observed and studied. The conference adjourned at Bakersfield, following a farewell dinner given in the dining-room of the Hotel Southern.

Forty-three automobiles, each numbered, kept in line, making 100 miles or better each day and following an exact schedule. Everything ran like clockwork under the direction of Prof. B. H. Crocheron, director of Agricultural Extension, who was in charge of the conference. At 5:30 o'clock each morning the bugle sounded the rising call At 7:55 the bugle sounded "all aboard" and at 8 o'clock sharp the whistle blew for "on our way."

It is difficult, indeed, to give any comprehensive idea of the impressions registered on the Los Angeles county delegates in the brief space allotted—they are too many. About all that can be done is to mention a few which interested us particularly.

We were impressed with the magnitude of the Farm Bureau movement in California and with its wide variety of activities. We were particularly struck by the morale and spirit of the Agricultural Extension Service, a splendid lot of young men devoting themselves to the advancement of California agriculture and well worthy of the support of Farm Bureau members and farmers everywhere.

Coming down to particular impressions, we had very strongly impressed upon us the urgency of the alkali and drainage problem of the great San Joaquin Valley. We saw literally thousands of acres of land, once fertile vineyards and orchards, which are today barren wastes on account of reckless and wasteful use of irrigation water, and thousands of acres more which in a few years will be in the same condition unless preventive measures are undertaken soon.

We had heard of the thousands of acres of grapes planted during the past two or three years. We had opportunity to see the enormous plantings which have occurred during recent years. It is apparent that the next five years will witness a very large increase in California's output of table grapes. We noticed that many of these new plantings are being trellised, which we learned was to encourage heavier yields.

We were most favorably impressed with the agriculture club work going on in the various counties, the pig clubs, calf clubs and the like. It was evident that the communities are behind the boys and girls in this work, the banks lending the club members liberally according to their needs. In a similar way it was clearly apparent that the work of the home demonstration agents is securing splendid results in most of the counties visited.

We attended one of the now famous Farm Bureau fat hog auction sales at McFarland, where we saw seven carloads of hogs sold at auction at better than 1 cent over San Francisco prices and 2 cents above the Chicago market. We were told that as a result of these Bureau sales not only does the farmer receive more money, but that the quality of the hogs in the valley has greatly improved. We saw co-operative owned cotton gins, community canneries, and many other co-operative enterprises, all outgrowths of the Farm Bureau movement.

We spent the better part of a day in the Tul re county citrus districts and were agreeably surprised at the fine color and good setting of fruit on the orchards which have been well cared for and fertilized.

We noticed that the long system of deciduous pruning is in general use in most of the fruit districts of the San Joaquin Valley and were told of the universal increase in yield attending its use.

We visited many points of interest, including the famous Kearney Vineyard at Fresno, owned by the University of California; the Delhi Land Settlement Colony, and the Hoover Ranch in Kern county.

We visited dozens of demonstration and test plots laid out by the Agricultural Extension Service in the various counties and heard the results given. We were fed with facts and figures under high pressure for six full days, but managed to absorb a few ideas, at least, as we jolted over many roads not so good as those we are accustomed to.

TO ORGANIZE SECTION

REDLANDS. — A district branch of the California Alfalfa Growers' Association will be organized in the Imperial Valley, as a result of a recent visit of association directors there, according to Arthur Gregory of Redlands, one of the directors who made the trip. He was accompanied by H. R. Moses of Hemet and H. W. Hammond and W. A. Harlow of Riverside. They spoke before interested crowds of farmers in El Centro, Brawley, Calexico and Calipatria. The proposition of organizing the district was well received. The alfalfa shipment from the Imperial Valley is not large, the greater part of the acreage being pastured. The farmers last year shipped only 250 tons, but that was abnormal, as many alfalfa fields were torn up to make way for cotton. With the aid and co-operation of the State association, it is believed that the tonnage shipped from the valley can be greatly increased.

Don't let the weeds take your summer garden.

COWS MAKE HIGHEST RECORDS IN MAY.

The record of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau Cow-Testing Association for the month of May shows a very creditable production. There were 3378 cows tested in forty-six herds. The average production of these cows in the association for the month was 981 pounds of milk and 393 pounds of butter fat, the highest average production ever made in the Los Angeles county association. The average percentage of butter fat was 4 per cent. There were 1300 cows that produced over forty pounds of fat, and 611 cows that produced over fifty pounds of fat. The average production has been steadily increasing since the association started three years ago. The production made at the present time is one of the best arguments in favor of testing in the association, the bureau men say, showing that the dairymen are really weeding out their poor producers.

Following is a list of the winners in the county dairy cow competition for May:

THE FINE ART OF PRESERVING EGGS.

BY V. O. HANSEN.

Now while the hens are laying plenty of eggs rated at 30 to 40 cents per dozen, let us be thinking of next fall when eggs will be soaring and the hens will be thinking the nest is like a Saturday bath—something to get into once a week.

Preserving eggs is a practice that should be indulged in by more folks with back yard flocks, for, having once tried to preserve eggs, and realized the amount saved by not having to buy fresh eggs when the top price is reached, the householder will be keeping it up each year.

The two methods that are most practical are packing in solids, such as bran, oats or barley, or in liquids, such as water glass or lime water.

To pack in bran, place a layer of two inches of bran in a box. The eggs are placed in this foundation (big end down) close together, but not so they will touch. Then place another layer of bran deep enough for the foundation for the second layer of eggs, and so on. The reason for standing the eggs on the big end is so the yolk will not settle on the shell. Salt, oats, or barley can be used instead of bran. However, bran is the cheapest and gives the best results. In using salt, oats or barley, be sure to keep in a cool, dry place. Sawdust or shavings cannot be used successfully because of the bad flavor from the pitch being taken by the eggs.

In Denmark, large numbers of eggs are pickled each year. The eggs are placed in trays, each holding ten dozen, and the trays are stacked and placed in tanks, each tank holding several thousand eggs. The eggs are preserved in lime water or water glass. Lime water is usually used because of being much cheaper. The objection to lime water is that it hardens the shell.

Water glass (sodium silicate) is commonly used and will preserve eggs in edible condition for from six to nine months. For convenience, let us figure on fifteen dozen eggs. A five-gallon crock will hold the eggs. Clean the crock; heat about three gallons of water to the boiling point and cool; place two and one-half gallons of the cooled water in the crock, and add one quart of water glass, and stir well. Place the eggs in the crock, all at one time, or a few at a time, as gathered, being careful not to crack any. Cover the eggs by about two inches of water glass, and cover the crock tight to prevent evaporation.

For best results, the eggs should be clean, fresh, and preferably infertile. If an egg is only slightly soiled a cloth dampened with vinegar may be used to remove stains, but eggs should never be washed with water or soap and water, as water removes the protective coating on the shell and may tend to cause the contents to spoil. Never use badly soiled or cracked eggs. They may spoil all the others.

Fresh eggs preserved according to these directions can be used satisfactorily for cooking and for the table. If, however, preserved eggs are to be boiled, a small hole should be made with a pin in the larger end of the shell before placing them in the water, to allow the air in the egg to escape when heated, and thus prevent cracking.

THE EGG MINIMUM.

The average novice can reasonably expect to get an average of at least ten dozen eggs per hen per year from his small flock in the back yard. On the basis of two hens to each member of the family this will give twenty dozen eggs a year to each person, which amount is about half way between the average of farm and city consumption. No back-yard poultry keeper should be satisfied with less than this, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Every back-yard poultry keeper should try to get as much more as possible. To provide an egg a day for each person, two hens would have to lay 183 eggs each a year.

FAIR WILL ECLIPSE THOSE OF THE PAST.

SACRAMENTO.—The board of directors of the 1921 California State Fair met here last week in an all-day session to further plans for the exposition to be held September 3 to 11, inclusive. The sentiment was expressed by President H. A. Jastro and other members of the board that this year's fair will eclipse any of by-gone years, both in the point of attendance and the quantity and quality of exhibits.

Director Ellis Franklin of Colfax, in charge of the educational departments of the fair, said that his department especially would be of such magnitude that it will be necessary to locate additional space aside from the large building now used exclusively for that purpose. It was agreed that the list of live-stock entries from all parts of the State will go beyond the 2000 mark; that a great poultry exhibit is assured, and that the number of county exhibits will be larger than last year's. The exhibits of farming machinery, tractors, pumps, trucks and various harvesting machines will be more extensive this year. Exhibits of products of the land also will be more complete and larger, because the State has grown agriculturally.

FIGURES SHOW MARCH OF FARMING IN STATE.

California's agricultural achievements in the ten years between 1910 and 1920 are graphically shown by cold statistics compiled by the Director of the Census, and just made public. Probably no other State in the Union can show such a gratifying general advancement in agriculture.

The number of farms in the State when the census was taken in 1920 was 117,670, containing 29,355,667 acres, of which 11,878,339 acres were improved land. This is an increase of 33.4 per cent in the ten years in the number of farms; 51 per cent in total farm acreage, and 4.3 per cent in improved acreage. Twenty-nine per cent of the land area of the State was in farms, and 40.4 per cent of the farm land was improved. The number of white farmers was 111,184. The value of all farm property was $2,431,021,861 in 1920, an increase of 112 per cent in ten years.

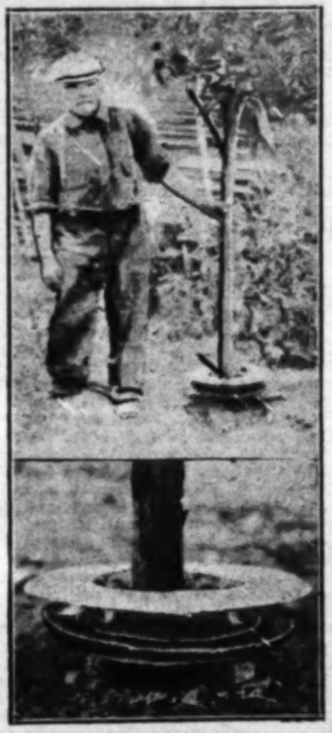
There was a vast difference between the value of crops in 1919, the year covered by the last census, and 1909. In 1909, the value of all crops was $146,526,151. For 1919, the value was $587,600,591. Fruits and nuts in 1919 were valued at $270,910,698. The value of other crops was: cereals, $108,570,469; other grains and seeds, $38,349,277; hay and forage, $96,129,246; vegetables, $47,377,921; other crops, $26,270,380.

Here are the figures on live stock, poultry and bees:

	Apr. 15, 1910	Jan. 1, 1920
Horses	445,849	402,407
Mules	66,910	63,419
Cattle	1,809,226	2,008,037
Sheep	1,525,228	2,400,151
Hogs	....	909,272
Chickens	5,665,964	10,426,648
Hives of bees	201,023	180,719

The number of dairy cattle in 1920 was 778,951, and of beef cattle, 1,229,086. The value of all cattle last year was $120,681,446.

The total production of milk in 1919 was 276,424,216 gallons, as compared with 229,460,000 gallons in 1909. There were 64,123,885 dozen eggs gathered in 1919, and in 1909 41,022,395 dozen.



A Moat for Defense.

V. Marsico, Watts, and the "protector" he has devised to keep crawling pests from going up the trunks of trees. It consists of a galvanized iron cylinder, at the top of which is a trough to be filled with crude oil. Sand is packed in the lower part around the tree. The "roof" overhead keeps leaves from dropping into the "moat" to form a bridge. The inventor claims it is a success for keeping trees "clean."

ALFALFA MEN FORM AN ASSOCIATION.

BAKERSFIELD.—Hoping to sign up 80 per cent of the alfalfa growers of Kern county, cultivating approximately 10,000 acres, a committee from the Kern County Farm Bureau has launched the Kern County Alfalfa Growers' Co-operative Association for the marketing of the crop at a remunerative figure. J. J. Deuell, president of the Farm Bureau, said that the new organization does not propose to hold the crop for abnormal prices, but aims to protect the growers from the disaster of an unresponsive market. Officials of the Farm Bureau are confident that practically every alfalfa grower in the county will enter the new organization, which, it is said, will be purely a co-operative body.

County Dairy Inspector G. P. Penfield visited 127 dairies in Kern county during the past month. Fourteen operators were found to produce milk containing not more than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. One dairy was quarantined for smallpox, and two sanitation notices were served requiring local operators to improve conditions at their dairies or suffer prosecution under the State statutes.

Out of 102 scales inspected on Kern county ranches during the past month by R. R. Lucas, County Sealer of Weights and Measures, thirty-two were found incorrect and were readjusted.

Announcing an

Expert Field Service For Southern California Groves

Field-tested methods for controlling citricola scale are now offered to you by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. A clean-up campaign throughout the fruit-producing districts of Southern California will be conducted from the company's headquarters in the H. W. Hellman Building, Los Angeles. Have your grove examined free of charge by Frank B. Herbert, assistant entomologist, and his aides. They will advise all growers desiring information about

Spray Control of
Citricola Scale Black Scale Red Spiders

Prepare at once for your bigger profits this year. Apply to YOUR problems the results of actual field work and scientific research secured by Balfour-Guthrie experts under Chief Entomologist Paul R. Jones. They have established the supremacy of Universal Orchard Spray for citricola scale control. It was used on 20,000 acres of groves in Tulare county last year—and Tulare won thereby the record of being the cleanest citrus county in California.

Your grove, too, will look best and produce the most fruit through continuous use of Universal Orchard Spray. Mr. Herbert will work shoulder to shoulder with you. He will center his attention on YOUR spraying problem—no other business as a side line. Strengthen your trees, encourage healthy foliage, and so assure your bigger harvest. Attain these results by employing the time-tested methods of a long-established California business institution. Remember! Balfour-Guthrie experts are back of you in this campaign.

Send today for your free copy of new citrus bulletin prepared by our expert entomologist, Paul R. Jones.

OVERLOADING STOCK IN CARS IS FOLLY.

It makes quite a difference in the profits of the farmer stock raiser whether he obtains 8½ cents per pound for his hogs as meat or from one-half to three-fourths cent per pound for them as dead hogs and soap-grease material. Which of these prices he obtains frequently depends upon how the animals are loaded in the cars. Many shippers, either through ignorance or in an effort to save a small amount of freight, overload or improperly load their live stock when sending it to market, and thereby run great risks of sustaining serious losses through crippled or dead animals.

With freight rates at their present levels there is a strong temptation to economize on this item of expense by crowding a few more animals into an already well-filled car. Representatives of the Bureau of Markets, however, who see thousands of carloads of live stock unloaded at the great central markets, are of the opinion that if farmers and stockmen could see the condition in which much of the live stock reaches the stockyards they would be impressed not only with the folly of overloading, but also with the absolute necessity of taking every precaution against injury and death of the animals while in transit.

Overloading is one of the commonest, and at the same time most serious, mistakes made by the inexperienced or careless shipper. It seems such an easy matter to crowd just a few more animals into a car, and the fact that once in a great while an overloaded car will go through without serious mishap seems to urge the shipper on to tempt fate just once more. The wise shipper, however, will have nothing to do with this false economy. He will lay down a hard and fast rule to load only as many animals in the car as can ride comfortably, and from this rule he will not deviate.

The chances of loss through overloading are greater in warm weather than in cold. Temperatures may be such at the time of loading that the animals are fairly comfortable, but before they reach market the weather turns suddenly hot, with the result that anywhere from one to twelve animals suffocate. This is particularly true of hogs. The shipper should remember that stock cars frequently stand in freight yards completely hemmed in by trains of box cars. Under such circumstances, if the animals are crowded in the car and the weather is hot, overheated and dead animals are almost certain to result.

Another mistake frequently made is to load mixed stock without proper partitions. When two or more species of live stock are shipped in the same car they should generally be kept separate by building strong partitions. This is particularly important when large animals are shipped with smaller ones. For instance, cattle should never be loaded with calves, hogs or sheep without being separated. As a rule, hogs should be partitioned from other small stock, such as calves and sheep, and should never be allowed to run under cattle. Bulls should always be securely tied at one end of the car.

It has been found that shipping live animals any considerable distance is an undertaking always fraught with some risk. This risk, however, may be materially reduced, in the opinion of department specialists, by following a few simple, common sense rules such as those suggested above.

The exact number of animals that should be shipped in a car, naturally, varies with the size of the car, the size and kind of animals, the length of haul, the season of the year, and weather condition. There can be no variation, however, in the general rule that the animals should have sufficient room to be reasonably comfortable, and that the car should be so partitioned that large animals cannot trample the smaller ones, and that aggressive and quarrelsome animals cannot injure those with a more quiet and timid disposition.

Even at the present comparatively low price of live stock a single dead or crippled animal invariably represents a substantial loss, and in many instances wipes out the profit on the shipment.

This could have been avoided by proper loading.

SOUTHERN ARIZONA IS HIT BY DROUGHT.

TUCSON.—Ranges in the eastern and southern counties of Arizona are in critical shape. Conditions have declined during the past month in these counties, and feeding is general over the greater part of the drought-stricken area. In some instances stockmen are finding it difficult further to finance their operations.

In contrast to the critical conditions in the eastern and southern counties, is the favorable outlook for summer feed in the higher altitudes in the northern counties. In Mohave and Coconino counties, ranges are reported in very good condition, except in some parts of eastern Coconino county. Navajo and Apache counties report feed conditions satisfactory in the southern districts, but poor in the central and northern sections, due to the dry weather and late spring. In Yavapai county, conditions are spotted, being reported as favorable in the higher altitudes, but only fair to poor in other parts of the county. Gila county conditions are reported fair to poor.

tional herds during July, the first month of the cow-testing year.

A grade cow in the Earl Graham dairy herd at Compton has finished a ten-months' record of 740 pounds of butter fat from over 18,000 pounds of milk. A junior three-year old pure-bred in this herd has made 12,1[illegible] pounds of milk in 120 days.

The following monthly classes for the next dairy cow competition of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau were announced at the recent dairy meeting at Burbank: Class A, highest producing purebred heifer; Class AA, highest producing grade heifer; Class B, highest producing purebred cow; Class BB, highest producing grade cow; Class C, best five cows in herds of twenty or under (purebreds;) Class D, best five cows in herds of over twenty (purebreds;) Class E, best five cows in herds of under sixty (grades;) Class F, best five cows in herds of 60 to 150 (grades;) Class G, best five cows in herds of over 150 (grades.)

At four prominent sales of Jersey cattle held in the East during National Jersey week, 278 head brought at auction the grand total of $324,690, or an average of $1168 each. The T. S. Cooper sale at Coopersburg, Pa., on May 30, resulted in an average of $857 on eighty-four animals, with a top price of $3500 paid by R. J. Fleming of Canada for the 6-month-old bull calf Simone's You'll Do Fontaine. On June 2 Meridale Farms of Meridith, N. Y., made an average of $1203 per head on seventy-two individuals, the top price of $10,000 being paid by S. A. Guy of Shreveport, La., for the cow Golden Cymbeline. W. R. Spann & Sons of Morristown, N. J., held their sale on June 3, when an average of over $1000 was made on seventy-six head. On the following day, June 4, occurred the L. V. Walkley sale at Southington, Ct., where forty-six head sold for an average of $1954, and a new record price was made for a Jersey cow when $18,000 was paid for Gamboge Oxford Gem.

R. B. Easson, poultry extension specialist of the University of California, has been secured by the Agricultural Extension Service of Los Angeles county, to conduct a series of poultry culling demonstrations during the week of July 11, under the auspices of the newly organized Poultrymen's Department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. Mr. Easson will be remembered by many poultrymen from his previous work in the county. The series of culling demonstrations held last year by Mr. Easson proved very attractive to poultrymen and from present indications there will no doubt be an increased interest this year. A complete schedule of the demonstrations will be announced soon.

The California Leghorn Breeders, Inc., of Lemon Grove, about ten miles east of San Diego, is an association of poultrymen recently formed to promote better breeding stock. George W. Masterson, a prominent poultry breeder and judge, is manager of this newly formed organization, and the modern plant now being built and equipped at Lemon Grove will surely be appreciated by the poultry breeders of that section. All breeding stock will be carefully selected, range bred and trapnested, and it almost goes without saying that under the management of Mr. Masterson, the venture will prove to be a success.

Farm News of the Great Southwest.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

COACHELLA.—The date crop of the Coachella Valley, amounting annually to from forty to seventy-five tons, is to be handled co-operatively by the Tropical Date Company, recently organized. The company becomes a member in the California Date Growers' Co-operative Association. Its members control a large acreage, set out to all of the standard varieties. Officers elected are: R. H. Postlethwaite, president; G. M. Beach, vice-president; B. K. Martin, secretary-treasurer. The coming season's crop is to be packed in the plant of the Coachella Valley Packing Association, membership of which includes the Tropical Date Company, Menakher Date Gardens and the properties of George M. Beak, B. K. Martin and Mrs. C. R. Russell.

SELL FORTY HOGS.

HEMET.—Forty head of Duroc-Jersey hogs, bred by the Charnock Ranch, were recently sold to the Doheny Oil Company of Santa Susana at a consideration above $6000. C. H. Tyler, manager of the Charnock Ranch, reports this as the largest sale of pure-bred hogs ever closed in this vicinity.

POTATOES REPRESENTED.

SAN BERNARDINO.—The potato growers of San Bernardino county have a fully organized department now, with a committee in each center and a county chairman elected by the chairman of the center committee. This county chairman will have a seat on the board of directors of the county organization. Having completed the organization according to the requirements of the constitution, the potato growers will become a department of the farm bureau through the action of the board at the next meeting. This will make eleven departments on the farm bureau and it is being found the most efficient way in which the farm bureau organization can function in order to be of the most use to all the different interests represented by its members. The departments and their heads are as follows: Swine, Alex Wilson, Guasti; dairy, Edward Bost, Chino; deciduous, George P. Weldon, pomologist, Chaffey Junior College of Agriculture; citrus, R. O. Price, Upland; home, Mrs. M. A. Kipf, Redlands; boys' and girls' clubs, Dr. B. R. Crandall, San Bernardino; sheep, J. J. Prendergast, Redlands; poultry, J. E. Hauser, Fontana; pest control, J. P. Coy, San Bernardino (county horticultural commissioner;) Mojave Valley, Dix Van Dyke, Daggett; publicity, Mrs. S. U. Stewart, Del Rosa.

SPIDER IS FEARED.

BANNING. — Red spider is making inroads into Banning orchards of almonds and prunes. Infested orchards are being heavily dusted with sulphur to check the pest. The damage thus far has been slight, but growers are taking no chances. The red spider sucks the sap in the leaves, causing them to turn yellow, thereby decreasing their functioning and depleting the vitality of the tree. Its presence is indicated by this yellowing of the leaves.

FIRST FAIR SUCCESS.

ONTARIO.—The first annual fair of the Chaffey Junior Farm Center staged last week on the Chaffey High School campus proved a marked success. On display were more than 100 chickens, many turkeys, geese, pigeons and ducks, fifty rabbits, forty hogs and a goodly showing of goats and high-bred cattle. There were also large honey bee exhibits, showing the bees at work, truck garden displays, showings of plant diseases and their cures, a miniature peach orchard and many other things of interest. The fair was staged in the great new auto sheds of the school, which were thronged with visitors during the two days it ran. Practically all the exhibits were by members of the Junior Farm Center and gave the visitor an excellent idea of what is being accomplished along the line of project work in the Chaffey College of Agriculture. Many prizes were awarded in poultry, hog and cattle classes.

HAY LOOKING BETTER.

YUCAIPA.—How about hay? That's the question among both dealers and farmers. That their crops were damaged by late rains enough to affect the price appreciably is conceded by most of the farmers. It is generally expected that good hay will bring from $25 to $30 a ton, and dealers of Redlands, Riverside and San Bernardino are buying very largely on that basis. Before the spring rains, it was felt that the price for good hay this year would not be more than $20 a ton. The hay that was cut before the first heavy rain, and there was but little of it in this section, has suffered so that it will not be worth anything, except for fertilizer. That cut between the two rains fared better, and there will only be a small amount of that lost. The hay has been turned over, and in most instances when thus treated, is good. The foothill hay came through in much better shape than that of the lowlands.

Imperial Valley Sugar Beet.

This monster beet came from just south of Calexico in Lower California. It was planted the first week in January and harvested the first week in June.

VISIT CITRUS STATION.

WHITTIER.—So successful was the farm bureau excursion to the State Experimental Station at Riverside last month, that another was planned by the citrus men for Friday, June 17. Problems of the pests that infest citrus groves as well as the soil and growth of the trees were all taken up and explained by illustration at the station, in the laboratories and upon the grounds. The guests were met by the State employees at Box Springs road near Riverside and escorted to the Experimental Station.

FRUIT TO LOS ANGELES.

FAMOSA.—Two carloads of apricots are leaving here daily for market from the Kern County Land Company ranch, where 600 acres of deciduous fruits, including apricots, peaches, plums and prunes, are coming into bearing. The apricots are going to Los Angeles. First plums were shipped to the Los Angeles market from the ranch of Ed Deming in the Vasco district south of here two weeks ago. Fresh fruit is also being shipped now from the Edison, Weed Patch, Shafter, Delano, McFarland and Loma Park districts of Kern county.

WATER USERS MEET.

PHOENIX.—F. A. Reid, president of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association, has returned from a trip to Washington in the interest of the appeal of the users for a cancellation of the construction charge of $1.13 for 1921. He reports the Reclamation Service in a receptive mood, and at a meeting of users held recently, efforts to have the charge held in abeyance for the year were continued.

PRICES UNCHANGED.

POMONA.—At a recent meeting of the Chino Alfalfa Growers' Association held at the high school auditorium at Chino, the following members were elected to serve as a board of directors for the coming year: E. C. Daniels, J. W. Bickmore, E. S. Haynes, A. J. Leavitt, S. A. Minnich, E. L. Daven-

HOPE TO MAKE FAIR REPRESENTATIVE EVENT.

SAN FERNANDO.—The San Fernando Valley Fair, which will be held from September 13 to 18, is taking on big proportions. The chambers of commerce from every valley town have whole-heartedly indorsed the committee's plans. With this unified support, the committee believes it sees its way clear to make the San Fernando Valley Fair hold an official importance to Southern California comparable with that of the State Fair in the north. It cannot be questioned, they say, that a big, centrally located annual fair will be of inestimable value to the farm owners and operators, and to all dealers in tractor, truck, implements and accessory, and in dairy and poultry supplies.

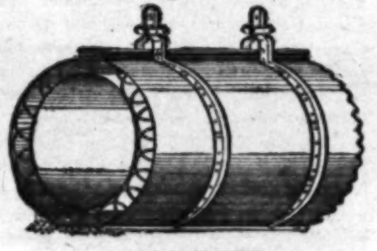
The coming fair will be the official 1921 show of the American Poultry Association, a live stock and dairy show, agricultural and horticultural exhibit, and will include a large tractor and implement working demonstration and still show.

Grounds for the fair, comprising 700 acres have been laid out; arrangements are made for housing facilities; and the leasing of ground space is going forward at a rapid pace.

BETTER THAN EXPECTED.

TERRA BELLA.—Grain harvesting has started in the Terra Bella section, early indications being that the yield is to be considered better than expected. The price has advanced some, wheat having sold for $2.25 per hundred. Reports are that the quality of grain is quite good, the berries being large and plump. Late rains and cool weather during May did much to save a crop that at one time seemed doomed.

Bonelli System Monolithic Concrete Pipe for All Purposes.



PATENT ALLOWED.
Concrete when properly mixed and poured wet between two forms as contemplated in the Bonelli System, and then allowed to remain contained between the forms for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours before removing the outside forms, makes a concrete pipe that will not leak at all after a few days' time, and will stand a pressure according to the thickness of the wall you make and the reinforcing that is put in it. We pour as many feet or miles as are desired, making a continuous jointless pipe with all Ts, Crosses, Elbows, Outlets, Gates, Stand Pipes, Plugs, Expansion Joints, Valves, etc., made and set at the same time without any joints to leak or bother. THIS YEAR'S BUREAU TRAVEL CONFERENCE.

BY A. DELEGATE.

Monday morning, May 23, at 8 o'clock, some 120 farmers, representing the forty county Farm Bureaus of California, assembled in Agricultural Hall, Berkeley, to join with some forty farm advisers and agricultural extension workers in the annual Farm Bureau Travel Conference excursion, conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service. It was a personally conducted trip, lasting six full days, and covered 650 miles through nine San Joaquin Valley counties, where agricultural extension and farm bureau activities were observed and studied. The conference adjourned at Bakersfield, following a farewell dinner given in the dining-room of the Hotel Southern.

Forty-three automobiles, each numbered, kept in line, making 100 miles or better each day and following an exact schedule. Everything ran like clockwork under the direction of Prof. B. H. Crocheron, director of Agricultural Extension, who was in charge of the conference. At 5:30 o'clock each morning the bugle sounded the rising call At 7:55 the bugle sounded "all aboard" and at 8 o'clock sharp the whistle blew for "on our way."

It is difficult, indeed, to give any comprehensive idea of the impressions registered on the Los Angeles county delegates in the brief space allotted—they are too many. About all that can be done is to mention a few which interested us particularly.

We were impressed with the magnitude of the Farm Bureau movement in California and with its wide variety of activities. We were particularly struck by the morale and spirit of the Agricultural Extension Service, a splendid lot of young men devoting themselves to the advancement of California agriculture and well worthy of the support of Farm Bureau members and farmers everywhere.

Coming down to particular impressions, we had very strongly impressed upon us the urgency of the alkali and drainage problem of the great San Joaquin Valley. We saw literally thousands of acres of land, once fertile vineyards and orchards, which are today barren wastes on account of reckless and wasteful use of irrigation water, and thousands of acres more which in a few years will be in the same condition unless preventive measures are undertaken soon.

We had heard of the thousands of acres of grapes planted during the past two or three years. We had opportunity to see the enormous plantings which have occurred during recent years. It is apparent that the next five years will witness a very large increase in California's output of table grapes. We noticed that many of these new plantings are being trellised, which we learned was to encourage heavier yields.

We were most favorably impressed with the agriculture club work going on in the various counties, the pig clubs, calf clubs and the like. It was evident that the communities are behind the boys and girls in this work, the banks lending the club members liberally according to their needs. In a similar way it was clearly apparent that the work of the home demonstration agents is securing splendid results in most of the counties visited.

We attended one of the now famous Farm Bureau fat hog auction sales at McFarland, where we saw seven carloads of hogs sold at auction at better than 1 cent over San Francisco prices and 2 cents above the Chicago market. We were told that as a result of these Bureau sales not only does the farmer receive more money, but that the quality of the hogs in the valley has greatly improved. We saw co-operative owned cotton gins, community canneries, and many other co-operative enterprises, all outgrowths of the Farm Bureau movement.

We spent the better part of a day in the Tul re county citrus districts and were agreeably surprised at the fine color and good setting of fruit on the orchards which have been well cared for and fertilized.

We noticed that the long system of deciduous pruning is in general use in most of the fruit districts of the San Joaquin Valley and were told of the universal increase in yield attending its use.

We visited many points of interest, including the famous Kearney Vineyard at Fresno, owned by the University of California; the Delhi Land Settlement Colony, and the Hoover Ranch in Kern county.

We visited dozens of demonstration and test plots laid out by the Agricultural Extension Service in the various counties and heard the results given. We were fed with facts and figures under high pressure for six full days, but managed to absorb a few ideas, at least, as we jolted over many roads not so good as those we are accustomed to.

TO ORGANIZE SECTION

REDLANDS. — A district branch of the California Alfalfa Growers' Association will be organized in the Imperial Valley, as a result of a recent visit of association directors there, according to Arthur Gregory of Redlands, one of the directors who made the trip. He was accompanied by H. R. Moses of Hemet and H. W. Hammond and W. A. Harlow of Riverside. They spoke before interested crowds of farmers in El Centro, Brawley, Calexico and Calipatria. The proposition of organizing the district was well received. The alfalfa shipment from the Imperial Valley is not large, the greater part of the acreage being pastured. The farmers last year shipped only 250 tons, but that was abnormal, as many alfalfa fields were torn up to make way for cotton. With the aid and co-operation of the State association, it is believed that the tonnage shipped from the valley can be greatly increased.

Trellising of Grapes is on Increase in San Joaquin Valley.

COWS MAKE HIGHEST RECORDS IN MAY.

The record of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau Cow-Testing Association for the month of May shows a very creditable production. There were 3378 cows tested in forty-six herds. The average production of these cows in the association for the month was 981 pounds of milk and 393 pounds of butter fat, the highest average production ever made in the Los Angeles county association. The average percentage of butter fat was 4 per cent. There were 1300 cows that produced over forty pounds of fat, and 611 cows that produced over fifty pounds of fat. The average production has been steadily increasing since the association started three years ago. The production made at the present time is one of the best arguments in favor of testing in the association, the bureau men say, showing that the dairymen are really weeding out their poor producers.

Following is a list of the winners in the county dairy cow competition for May:

THE FINE ART OF PRESERVING EGGS.

BY V. O. HANSEN.

Now while the hens are laying plenty of eggs rated at 30 to 40 cents per dozen, let us be thinking of next fall when eggs will be soaring and the hens will be thinking the nest is like a Saturday bath—something to get into once a week.

Preserving eggs is a practice that should be indulged in by more folks with back yard flocks, for, having once tried to preserve eggs, and realized the amount saved by not having to buy fresh eggs when the top price is reached, the householder will be keeping it up each year.

The two methods that are most practical are packing in solids, such as bran, oats or barley, or in liquids, such as water glass or lime water.

To pack in bran, place a layer of two inches of bran in a box. The eggs are placed in this foundation (big end down) close together, but not so they will touch. Then place another layer of bran deep enough for the foundation for the second layer of eggs, and so on. The reason for standing the eggs on the big end is that the yolk will not settle on the shell. Salt, oats, or barley can be used instead of bran. However, bran is the cheapest and gives the best results. In using salt, oats or barley, be sure to keep in a cool, dry place. Sawdust or shavings cannot be used successfully because of the bad flavor from the pitch being taken by the eggs.

In Denmark, large numbers of eggs are pickled each year. The eggs are placed in trays, each holding ten dozen, and the trays are stacked and placed in tanks, each tank holding several thousand eggs. The eggs are preserved in lime water or water glass. Lime water is usually used because of being much cheaper. The objection to lime water is that it hardens the shell.

Water glass (sodium silicate) is commonly used and will preserve eggs in edible condition for from six to nine months. For convenience, let us figure on fifteen dozen eggs. A five-gallon crock will hold the eggs. Clean the crock; heat about three gallons of water to the boiling point and cool; place two and one-half gallons of the cooled water in the crock, and add one quart of water glass, and stir well. Place the eggs in the crock, all at one time, or a few at a time, as gathered, being careful not to crack any. Cover the eggs by about two inches of water glass, and cover the crock tight to prevent evaporation.

For best results, the eggs should be clean, fresh, and preferably infertile. If an egg is only slightly soiled a cloth dampened with vinegar may be used to remove stains, but eggs should never be washed with water or soap and water, as water removes the protective coating on the shell and may tend to cause the contents to spoil. Never use badly soiled or cracked eggs. They may spoil all the others.

Fresh eggs preserved according to these directions can be used satisfactorily for cooking and for the table. If, however, preserved eggs are to be boiled, a small hole should be made with a pin in the larger end of the shell before placing them in the water, to allow the air in the egg to escape when heated, and thus prevent cracking.

THE EGG MINIMUM.

The average novice can reasonably expect to get an average of at least ten dozen eggs per hen per year from his small flock in the back yard. On the basis of two hens to each member of the family this will give twenty dozen eggs a year to each person, which amount is about half way between the average of farm and city consumption. No back-yard poultry keeper should be satisfied with less than this, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Every back-yard poultry keeper should try to get as much more as possible. To provide an egg a day for each person, two hens would have to lay 183 eggs each a year.

FAIR WILL ECLIPSE THOSE OF THE PAST.

SACRAMENTO.—The board of directors of the 1921 California State Fair met here last week in an all-day session to further plans for the exposition to be held September 3 to 11, inclusive. The sentiment was expressed by President H. A. Jastro and other members of the board that this year's fair will eclipse any of by-gone years, both in the point of attendance and the quantity and quality of exhibits.

Director Ellis Franklin of Colfax, in charge of the educational departments of the fair, said that his department especially would be of such magnitude that it will be necessary to locate additional space aside from the large building now used exclusively for that purpose. It was agreed that the list of live-stock entries from all parts of the State will go beyond the 2000 mark; that a great poultry exhibit is assured, and that the number of county exhibits will be larger than last year's. The exhibits of farming machinery, tractors, pumps, trucks and various harvesting machines will be more extensive this year. Exhibits of products of the land also will be more complete and larger, because the State has grown agriculturally.

FIGURES SHOW MARCH OF FARMING IN STATE.

California's agricultural achievements in the ten years between 1910 and 1920 are graphically shown by cold statistics compiled by the Director of the Census, and just made public. Probably no other State in the Union can show such a gratifying general advancement in agriculture.

The number of farms in the State when the census was taken in 1920 was 117,670, containing 29,355,667 acres, of which 11,878,339 acres were improved land. This is an increase of 33.4 per cent in the ten years in the number of farms; 51 per cent in total farm acreage, and 4.3 per cent in improved acreage. Twenty-nine per cent of the land area of the State was in farms, and 40.4 per cent of the farm land was improved. The number of white farmers was 111,184. The value of all farm property was $2,431,021,861 in 1920, an increase of 112 per cent in ten years.

There was a vast difference between the value of crops in 1919, the year covered by the last census, and 1909. In 1909, the value of all crops was $146,526,151. For 1919, the value was $587,600,591. Fruits and nuts in 1919 were valued at $270,910,698. The value of other crops was: cereals, $108,570,469; other grains and seeds, $38,349,277; hay and forage, $96,129,246; vegetables, $47,377,921; other crops, $26,270,380.

Here are the figures on live stock, poultry and bees:

	Apr. 15, 1910	Jan. 1, 1920
Horses	445,849	402,407
Mules	66,910	63,419
Cattle	1,809,226	2,008,037
Sheep	1,525,228	2,400,151
Hogs	....	909,272
Chickens	5,665,964	10,426,648
Hives of bees	201,023	180,719

The number of dairy cattle in 1920 was 778,951, and of beef cattle, 1,229,086. The value of all cattle last year was $120,681,446.

The total production of milk in 1919 was 276,424,216 gallons, as compared with 229,460,000 gallons in 1909. There were 64,123,885 dozen eggs gathered in 1919, and in 1909 41,022,395 dozen.

A Moat for Defense.

V. Marsico, Watts, and the "protector" he has devised to keep crawling pests from going up the trunks of trees. It consists of a galvanized iron cylinder, at the top of which is a trough to be filled with crude oil. Sand is packed in the lower part around the tree. The "roof" overhead keeps leaves from dropping into the "moat" to form a bridge. The inventor claims it is a success for keeping trees "clean."

ALFALFA MEN FORM AN ASSOCIATION.

BAKERSFIELD.—Hoping to sign up 80 per cent of the alfalfa growers of Kern county, cultivating approximately 10,000 acres, a committee from the Kern County Farm Bureau has launched the Kern County Alfalfa Growers' Co-operative Association for the marketing of the crop at a remunerative figure. J. J. Deuell, president of the Farm Bureau, said that the new organization does not propose to hold the crop for abnormal prices, but aims to protect the growers from the disaster of an unresponsive market. Officials of the Farm Bureau are confident that practically every alfalfa grower in the county will enter the new organization, which, it is said, will be purely a co-operative body.

County Dairy Inspector G. P. Penfield visited 127 dairies in Kern county during the past month. Fourteen operators were found to produce milk containing not more than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. One dairy was quarantined for smallpox, and two sanitation notices were served requiring local operators to improve conditions at their dairies or suffer prosecution under the State statutes.

Out of 102 scales inspected on Kern county ranches during the past month by R. R. Lucas, County Sealer of Weights and Measures, thirty-two were found incorrect and were readjusted.

Announcing an

Expert Field Service For Southern California Groves

Field-tested methods for controlling citricola scale are now offered to you by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. A clean-up campaign throughout the fruit-producing districts of Southern California will be conducted from the company's headquarters in the H. W. Hellman Building, Los Angeles. Have your grove examined free of charge by Frank B. Herbert, assistant entomologist, and his aides. They will advise all growers desiring information about

Spray Control of
Citricola Scale Black Scale Red Spiders

Prepare at once for your bigger profits this year. Apply to YOUR problems the results of actual field work and scientific research secured by Balfour-Guthrie experts under Chief Entomologist Paul R. Jones. They have established the supremacy of Universal Orchard Spray for citricola scale control. It was used on 20,000 acres of groves in Tulare county last year—and Tulare won thereby the record of being the cleanest citrus county in California.

Your grove, too, will look best and produce the most fruit through continuous use of Universal Orchard Spray. Mr. Herbert will work shoulder to shoulder with you. He will center his attention on YOUR spraying problem—no other business as a side line. Strengthen your trees, encourage healthy foliage, and so assure your bigger harvest. Attain these results by employing the time-tested methods of a long-established California business institution. Remember! Balfour-Guthrie experts are back of you in this campaign.

Send today for your free copy of new citrus bulletin prepared by our expert entomologist, Paul R. Jones.

OVERLOADING STOCK IN CARS IS FOLLY.

It makes quite a difference in the profits f the farmer stock raiser whether he obains 8½ cents per pound for his hogs as eat or from one-half to three-fourths cent er pound for them as dead hogs and soapease material. Which of these prices he btains frequently depends upon how the nimals are loaded in the cars. Many shipers, either through ignorance of in an ffort to save a small amount of freight, verload or improperly load their live stock vhen sending it to market, and thereby run great risks of sustaining serious losses through crippled or dead animals.

With freight rates at their present levels there is a strong temptation to economise on this item of expense by crowding a few more animals into an already well-filled car. Representatives of the Bureau of Markets, however, who see thousands of carloads of live stock unloaded at the great central markets, are of the opinion that if farmers and stockmen could see the condition in which much of the live stock reaches the stockyards they would be impressed not only with the folly of overloading, but also with the absolute necessity of taking every precaution against injury and death of the animals while in transit.

Overloading is one of the commonest, and at the same time most serious, mistakes made by the inexperienced or careless shipper. It seems such an easy matter to crowd just a few more animals into a car, and the fact that once in a great while an overloaded car will go through without serious mishap seems to urge the shipper on to tempt fate just once more. The wise shipper, however, will have nothing to do with this false economy. He will lay down a hard and fast rule to load only as many animals in the car as can ride comfortably, and from this rule he will not deviate.

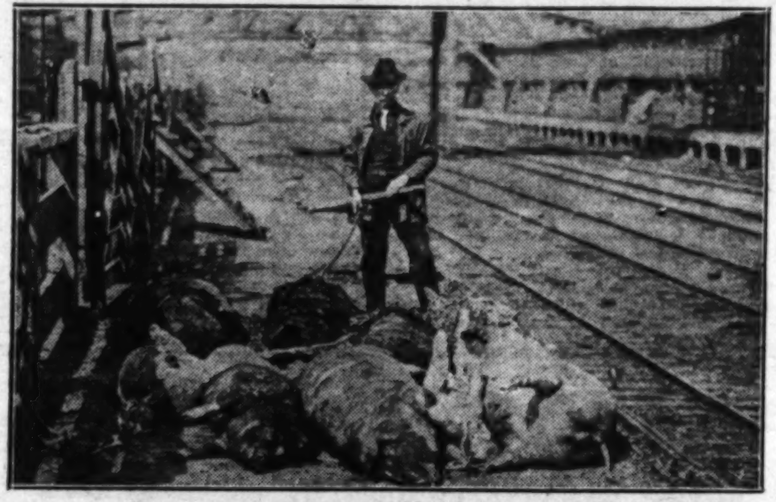
The chances of loss through overloading are greater in warm weather than in cold. Temperatures may be such at the time of loading that the animals are fairly comfortable, but before they reach market the weather turns suddenly hot, with the result that anywhere from one to twelve animals suffocate. This is particularly true of hogs. The shipper should remember that stock cars frequently stand in freight yards completely hemmed in by trains of box cars. Under such circumstances, if the animals are crowded in the car and the weather is hot, overheated and dead animals are almost certain to result.

Another mistake frequently made is to load mixed stock without proper partitions. When two or more species of live stock are shipped in the same car they should generally be kept separate by building strong partitions. This is particularly important when large animals are shipped with smaller ones. For instance, cattle should never be loaded with calves, hogs or sheep without being separated. As a rule, hogs should be partitioned from other small stock, such as calves and sheep, and should never be allowed to run under cattle. Bulls should always be securely tied at one end of the car.

It has been found that shipping live animals any considerable distance is an undertaking always fraught with some risk. This risk, however, may be materially reduced, in the opinion of department specialists, by following a few simple, common sense rules such as those suggested above.

The exact number of animals that should be shipped in a car, naturally, varies with the size of the car, the size and kind of animals, the length of haul, the season of the year, and weather condition. There can be no variation, however, in the general rule that the animals should have sufficient room to be reasonably comfortable, and that the car should be so partitioned that large animals cannot trample the smaller ones, and that aggressive and quarrelsome animals cannot injure those with a more quiet and timid disposition.

Even at the present comparatively low price of live stock a single dead or crippled animal invariably represents a substantial loss, and in many instances wipes out the profit on the shipment.



This could have been avoided by proper loading.

SOUTHERN ARIZONA IS HIT BY DROUGHT.

TUCSON.—Ranges in the eastern and southern counties of Arizona are in critical shape. Conditions have declined during the past month in these counties, and feeding is general over the greater part of the drought-stricken area. In some instances stockmen are finding it difficult further to finance their operations.

In contrast to the critical conditions in the eastern and southern counties, is the favorable outlook for summer feed in the higher altitudes in the northern counties. In Mohave and Coconino counties, ranges are reported in very good condition, except in some parts of eastern Coconino county. Navajo and Apache counties report feed conditions satisfactory in the southern districts, but poor in the central and northern sections, due to the dry weather and late spring. In Yavapai county, conditions are spotted, being reported as favorable in the higher altitudes, but only fair to poor in other parts of the county. Gila county conditions are reported fair to poor.

tional herds during July, the first month of the cow-testing year.

A grade cow in the Earl Graham dairy herd at Compton has finished a ten-months' record of 740 pounds of butter fat from over 18,000 pounds of milk. A junior three-year old pure-bred in this herd has made 12,1[illegible] pounds of milk in 120 days.

The following monthly classes for the next dairy cow competition of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau were announced at the recent dairy meeting at Burbank: Class A, highest producing purebred heifer; Class AA, highest producing grade heifer; Class B, highest producing purebred cow; Class BB, highest producing grade cow; Class C, best five cows in herds of twenty or under (purebreds;) Class D, best five cows in herds of over twenty (purebreds;) Class E, best five cows in herds of under sixty (grades;) Class F, best five cows in herds of 60 to 150 (grades;) Class G, best five cows in herds of over 150 (grades.)

At four prominent sales of Jersey cattle held in the East during National Jersey week, 278 head brought at auction the grand total of $324,690, or an average of $1168 each. The T. S. Cooper sale at Coopersburg, Pa., on May 30, resulted in an average of $857 on eighty-four animals, with a top price of $3500 paid by R. J. Fleming of Canada for the 6-month-old bull calf Simone's You'll Do Fontaine. On June 2 Meridale Farms of Meridith, N. Y., made an average of $1203 per head on seventy-two individuals, the top price of $10,000 being paid by S. A. Guy of Shreveport, La., for the cow Golden Cymbeline. W. R. Spann & Sons of Morristown, N. J., held their sale on June 3, when an average of over $1000 was made on seventy-six head. On the following day, June 4, occurred the L. V. Walkley sale at Southington, Ct., where forty-six head sold for an average of $1954, and a new record price was made for a Jersey cow when $18,000 was paid for Gamboge Oxford Gem.

R. B. Easson, poultry extension specialist of the University of California, has been secured by the Agricultural Extension Service of Los Angeles county, to conduct a series of poultry culling demonstrations during the week of July 11, under the auspices of the newly organized Poultrymen's Department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. Mr. Easson will be remembered by many poultrymen from his previous work in the county. The series of culling demonstrations held last year by Mr. Easson proved very attractive to poultrymen and from present indications there will no doubt be an increased interest this year. A complete schedule of the demonstrations will be announced soon.

The California Leghorn Breeders, Inc., of Lemon Grove, about ten miles east of San Diego, is an association of poultrymen recently formed to promote better breeding stock. George W. Masterson, a prominent poultry breeder and judge, is manager of this newly formed organization, and the modern plant now being built and equipped at Lemon Grove will surely be appreciated by the poultry breeders of that section. All breeding stock will be carefully selected, range bred and trapnested, and it almost goes without saying that under the management of Mr. Masterson, the venture will prove to be a success.

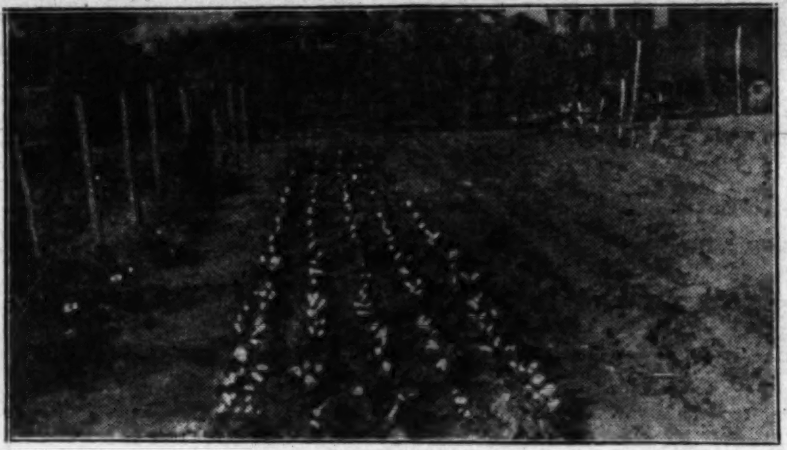
LET'S HAVE A LOOK AT THAT HOME GARDEN. HOW GOES IT?

BY ROSS H. GAST.

LET us look over the garden now. We have been enjoying onions, radishes, turnips, cabbage, with perhaps a few early string beans. Beets are ready to pickle, and the lettuce has headed nicely. The potatoes have been rudely turned from their beds by a spade. We are pleased with the results so far, but are perhaps undecided as to what we want to plant at this time. Then, too, we are a bit doubtful about the care of our tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, sweet corn, and beans. As to the tomatoes, I have found that they need little care at this stage. Fact is, they are contrary, and sometimes when we think we are doing well by them, they die on our hands, or else remain fruitless. Tomatoes need little water, if any, during the month of June. One good irrigation before they have begun to bloom, will be sufficient. Then cultivate, keep down the weeds, and keep a careful watch for the various pests that are liable to attack them. I notice that the commercial tomato growers around the Redondo Hills section have begun to spray with Bordeaux Mixture. It would be a good idea for us to follow suit. One thing that goes a long way toward keeping the tomato free from disease and pests, is to keep the soil beneath the vine open, and friable. If it is damp and moldy, then the vines are the more susceptible to blight, and other diseases, and are less resistant to the ravages of the tomato worm.

Cultivate your cucumbers and melons frequently, and carefully, so as not to injure the vines. Do not over-irrigate them. When they seem in need of water, let it run slowly through furrows that you have made about eight inches from the base of the plant.



A Well Ordered Home Garden.

YOU CAN INTERCROP.

If you have just planted your cucumbers and melons and have planted them as you should—in hills, four and a half feet each way, you may profit by intercropping. Bush beans, like the Six Weeks or Canadian Wonder, can be planted between the hills, and taken out as the first crop matures. Your second crop of radishes and turnips may be planted between rows of some other vegetable that is is slower in maturing.

If the cucumber beetle visits you, spray with arsenate of lead. There is little danger from him, though you may be visited by other pests. Sprinkle a little air-slacked lime over the vines as a preventive. Sometimes, when the "cumbers" or melons are quite young, the diabrotica attacks them. The diabrotica (or diabolical, as they should be called,) are what we sometimes erroneously refer to as the "green ladybug." They are hard to control, but repeated sprays of arsenate of lead, one ounce to one gallon of water, is the best remedy.

Sweet corn should be well on its way, and beginning to "tassel out." The suckers ought to be removed early, and again at this time. In removing them, be careful that you do not loosen the roots of the main stalk. Corn will stand a great deal of water now, if properly applied, and should be cultivated regularly. Run the water down between the row, but do not allow it to get too close to the stalk. Hoe the ridges between the hills loose and free from weeds.

If you have not planted your corn yet, or if you wish to put in a later planting, try the Golden Bantam sweet corn. It matures quickly, and is a very good variety for the home garden. To get the best results from your sweet corn in a small plot, plant the seed in soil that has been wet thoroughly, and spaded well, with a good mulch prepared. Always plant more than four rows to insure proper pollination. Plant in hills thirty inches apart, in rows three feet across. Do not cultivate, nor irrigate the planting, until it is about six inches high, then furrow, and irrigate. Thin each hill out to three strong plants, and keep the suckers down. Golden Bantam corn, planted now, will mature in two months and a half.

ARE YOU PICKING BEANS?

Some gardeners have been picking fresh string beans from their gardens for some time. Those who have Kentucky wonders, or other pole beans, will find that if they will pole them carefully, and cultivate well, even if the first crop has been taken off, the beans will set on for several weeks. Bush beans do not bear so long. Now is a good time to plant a plot of Henderson bush limas for dry beans, and a Scarlet Runner trellis. The Henderson Bush is a very prolific lima, and the best flavored of all. The Scarlet Runner is an old-fashioned bean, that has never been planted extensively here. They will cover an arbor, and the blossoms are large and very beautiful. The pods are edible, if picked when they are young and tender. When the frost kills the vine, they can be cut back, mulched with straw, and will do well the next year.

The plot that you have reserved for your fall planting of potatoes, to put in about the last of July, should be fertilized and spaded now, and left till planting time, with a good mulch to keep it from drying out. But be sure that you do not spade under anything that will not decompose, for scabby potatoes are usually the result of course manures. If you like to try new varieties you might plant the Early Triumph potato this fall. It is a round, red potato, and many people recommend it.

Radishes, turnips, beets and lettuce may, of course, be grown at any time of the year in Los Angeles. They will mature rapidly in the summer months. For the present planting the White Icicle radish, the Purple Top Globe, the Early Egyptian beet, and the Iceberg lettuce are the most suitable varieties.

As the summer advances increase the water supply in your garden, and do not neglect to cultivate after each application. The maintenance of a mulch during the hot weather will save you a great deal of water and grief.

If any part of your garden is infested with wire worms, now is the time to clear off all the growth on that particular plot, and turn over the soil, so that it may bake out. Do not mulch it, nor water it at any time during the summer. This method is the best way to fight the wire worm, and surely the most practical.

Above all, keep up the good work. Buy that big straw sun hat, and man the hoe. Let the neighbors envy that "gardening guy" next door.

Our Possibilities.

against it with one hand while he grabbed a new seedling with the other. It does not require a plant expert to know that seedlings thus planted would have their roots bunched and "corkscrewed" so they never could produce a root system to support a good, strong, well-bearing tree.

Buds should be selected from heavy-bearing trees and from fruiting branches. But in order to produce large nursery stock in a short time, buds from sucker wood have been used in some cases and today our farm bureau men are giving demonstrations showing orchardists the latest methods of topworking these drone trees into bearing trees. This, however, takes two to four years' time and adds heavily to production costs.

The same might be said of some of the deciduous fruits, and those contemplating setting out orchards should be very sure that they patronize reliable growers who have the best buds of the desired varieties. The Tuscan peach is an example of the introduction of inferior budwood in the south, so that the true variety has been [illegible] the Ontario to distinguish it. Tuscans brought from the north to the cannery at Burbank last season were so different from some of the local grown that one would hardly consider them the same variety.

Anything of this kind will soon be noised abroad and if a prejudice is once established, it takes years to overcome it. Therefore, one cannot be too careful of his varieties.

The Fruit Growers' Exchange has done a wonderful work in this connection and the experiments in citriculture at Riverside have shown many things that should be more widely known and acted upon by our growers.

California is primarily a fruit-raising country, but the foothill lands suitable for citrus culture are so high in price that all drones will have to be eliminated. Production must be at the maximum both as to quality and quantity, or a financial loss results.

Southern California's fame has extended all over the world. Our prestige is established. Let us keep it. The East and Middle West look to us for a large percentage of their canned fruits. We should be untiring in our search for the best and be satisfied with nothing else. Prejudice should be discarded, the small financial costs of experiments should be forgotten and we should concentrate on the job of making Southern California's products really the finest in the world.

W. H. BACH.

CONTROL OF SLUGS.

Garden slugs are serious and destructive pests on the Pacific Coast. They are voracious, reproduce often and in large numbers, and feed upon nearly every variety of plant life. Control practices usually adopted against insect and other animal pests are of little use in repressing garden slugs. Extensive experiments conducted in Oregon, point to the efficiency of the following poison bait: "Calcium arsenate, one part by weight to sixteen parts of chopped lettuce. If lettuce is not available use cabbage, kale or clover. The poisoned bait should be scattered in small heaps at frequent intervals over the slug-infested area. Spraying foliage with liquid Bordeaux mixture or dusting with commercial dry Bordeaux mixture, also has met with success.

The Livestock Bulletin.

BY ROBERT T. LYANS.

W. H. Dupee, owner of Edgemoore farm of Santee, San Diego county, has recently been making some important sales of pure bred Guernsey cattle. To Dr. Wessels, whose ranch is located at Chino, he has sold ten head; to F. B. Naylor of San Diego, he has sold twenty-two head, besides selling many young bulls in various parts of the country, including one to D. O. Brant of Owensmouth. A son of the great breeding bull Masterpiece went to Minnie F. Miller of Salt Lake City. A son of Pencoids Golden May Secret was sold to A. A. Cook of Brawley. A yearling bull went to R. F. Chapman of San Diego. Veda's May King, the grand champion Guernsey bull at the Los Angeles Live Stock Show last fall, has been sold to a Maryland breeder, while the cow, Pearl Rose of Beaver Ridge, with a butter fat record of 687 pounds in a year as a two-year-old, has been purchased by a New York breeder. In December Mr. Dupee sold sixty head to Lowell Gable of Paoli, Pa. Mr. Dupee will soon begin fitting for the fall show circuit. He reports that the demand for good Guernseys is growing better every day. His herd now numbers about seventy head, half of these being mature cows. Thirty heifers have been bred to his chief herd sire, Masterpiece, which bull, Mr. Dupee is convinced, is the best male ever developed at Edgemoore.

Sundrie Sunbeam Girl.

This ten-year-old cow on the Hartsook ranch, Lankershim, produced 1033.74 pounds of butter in a year.

Winsor ranch of Bonita recently purchased eight head of pure-bred Jersey cattle from the Ed Cary herd at Carlton, Or., which brings the Winsor herd up to fifty head of registered stock. The Oregon shipment included four females and a bull calf sired by Rosaire's Olga Lad, two females sired by Poppy's St. Mawes and one by Susie's St. Mawes, the two first mentioned sires being gold medal bulls. This speaks highly for the Cary herd. Beauty's White Sox, the bull at the head of the Winsor herd, is siring some fine calves. He was made reserve grand champion at Riverside last fall.

E. R. Burroughs, owner of Tarzana Ranch of Van Nuys, has purchased the entire Catalina Island herd of Berkshire hogs formerly owned by J. E. Maurer of Los Angeles. The lot consists of about eighty head, including the boar Marimon Champion Peer, which will head the Tarzana herd. Marimon Champion Peer was sired by Anchorage Leader 2d., and out of Anchorage Lenore 10th. Besides raising pure bred Berkshires, Mr. Burroughs has a small select herd of Guernsey cattle, the females having been purchased at the Hollow Hill Farm dispersion, while his herd bull was obtained from the Brant Rancho of Owensmouth.

Marimon Champion Peer.

Hog prices secured at auction sales of the California Farm Bureau Marketing Association have shown an upward tendency recently, according to reports from D. H. Bitner, manager of the association. Top prices several weeks ago dropped as low as $7.30, but are now becoming stronger, their stock to the Los Angeles or San Francisco markets, successful bidders handling this part of the negotiations. Week before last twelve carloads of hogs sold through the marketing association, bringing a total to the consignors of $16,506.96.

The dairymen's department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau has completed rules and regulations for the cow-testing work to be done the coming cow-testing year, which will run from July 1, 1921, to June 30, 1922. The work will be done in compete with pure-breds. A number of requests have come in for membership in the association from districts where no testing work has been done previously. Anyone interested in having cow-testing work done should immediately communicate with the Farm Adviser's office, 361 Courthouse, as plans are already under way for the coming year's work and unless such requests are in early it may be impossible to test addi-

MOLASSES

"—I feed Molasses when feeding for the fairs,"

Says Mr. J. E. Thorp, Lockeford, Cal.

Mr. J. E. Thorp, owner of Mossdale Herd, is an experienced breeder and his judgment on feeding is valuable. He says in a recent letter to us, "I feed Camo Molasses every year when feeding stock for the fairs, and like it very much."

But Camo Molasses is not a force-feed. True enough, it gives your stock that sleek, glossy appearance, but it builds good, solid flesh, increases milk production, and keeps stock in the pink of physical condition.

Get our booklet telling all about Camo Molasses. Every man who feeds stock should know more about a feed that does so much and does it so cheaply. Send a post card today and the booklet will come to you by return mail.

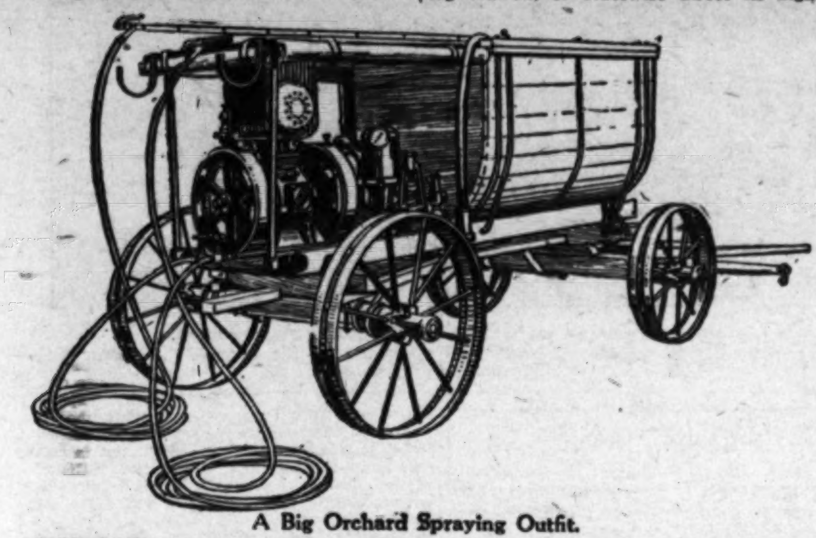
IMPROVED SPRAYERS.

BY HERBERT A. SHEARER.

Modern sprayers are made in many sizes and for many purposes. Fruit sprayers are more talked about, probably, because fruit tree spraying machines are the largest of the sprayer family and their work is more spectacular.



A Big Orchard Spraying Outfit.

But the various small sprayers, from the two-horse portable farm engine size down to the little foot bracket or hand plunger pump, all have their important work to do, and we are better off at the end of the stables and hen houses whenever we can invent an excuse to keep the misty vapor going.

Recent improvements in spray nozzles interest every farmer who has kept up with the new things in the sprayer line. The various hollow bibs and valve chambers designed to fine the spray give it a whirling send-off, or otherwise direct its flight through the air, or to increase its penetrating qualities, add value to the various spray machines.

The improvements include small as well as large sprayers. Some of the small, rather innocent-looking hand or foot power sprayers will deliver a forceful argument against any opposition in their line. And within their limits they may be just as effective as the larger ones.

For use around the farm buildings and in the garden, the smaller sprayers are the only ones to use. This does not mean that the little fellows are offered as a substitute for something better or more powerful. It happens that the small sprayers are the best there are, and up to this minute they are the best that can be built for the purposes mentioned.

In some of the warmer sections of the country there are as many as five different kinds of lice that infest poultry. The small sprayers can get after every one of them and at the same time eradicate some of the smaller trouble venders called microbes, parasites and germs.

Garden pests have multiplied beyond the capacity of the most learned entomologist to enumerate them. But we can kill most of them and discourage the others with repeated shotgun dose of Bordeaux mixed with some of the special poisons that have been tried out and found capable of killing predacious insects.

Formerly the larger sprayers had an air-tight tank to hold the liquid spray mixture. Air was forced into this tank to give the pressure necessary to produce a spray. About 100 pounds was considered sufficient under conditions prevailing, say twenty years ago, but progress has devised new ways of fighting insects and fungus diseases that have been propagated or discovered since.

The best orchard and field spraying machines are similar in general appearance to those in use at that time. But a close comparison will show many changes in detail and it is the so-called little things that count.

It is easy to waste enough liquid spray mixture to misty fog a large apple tree by just slacking away on the pressure gauge. Large sprayers for orchard and field work are now built with a special pressure regulator, so designed that the engine pumps the spray liquid against an air cushion somewhat on the same plan as the windmill, or gasoline engine force pump, as it is generally rigged to force water up into the overhead tank.

But the sprayer air chamber is connected with a regulator that holds the spray liquid under a uniform pressure of 200 or 250 pounds, according to the way it is set. When the liquid in the air chamber reaches the required pressure the machine is ready to do its best work. The hose nozzles will then deliver the penetrating foggy spray to the hidden recesses of leaf and blossom.

The pump is generally designed to pump a little more liquid than the nozzles can deliver when they are all open, so the manufacturers have invented relief mechanisms that act as a safety valve to permit the excess liquid to flow back into the wagon supply tank. This plan allows the engine to keep on running while the pump forces in just enough liquid to keep the pressure constant. In this way the machinery takes care of the forceful feeding of spray liquid into the spray nozzles at a uniform pressure and the surplus is taken care of automatically so the men have nothing to do but handle the spray rods.

BABY TRACTORS DO A VARIETY OF TASKS.

BY H. A. SHEARER.

Some of the small garden tractors are advantageously used to cultivate and to do other useful work in large fields on good-sized farms.

All of the so-called one-horse tilling implements may be and are operated behind these small tractors. In addition to ordinary field implements and machines, many special bab ytractor seeders and planters and soil-working devices have been invented for special purposes.

Among the most important attachments is the riding cart.

These little tractors are tireless travelers. It is estimated that one of these can travel twenty-five miles during the day. This is enough walking for anyone where it is necessary to walk, although the makers of the little iron houses and their attachments are now getting away from the walking idea. From his perch over the implement the operator now uses his feet in guiding and adjusting the tool.

The expense of running a baby tractor figures between $1.50 and $2 per day for oil, gasoline and depreciation, I find. This is figured according to ordinary farm use, such as diversified farm practice would naturally require during the different seasons and using the little tractor as a chore-boy between field jobs.

Nearly every farm could use a small gasoline engine to work the pump, turn the cream separator, saw wood, irrigate jobs garden and perform many other light jobs that used to discourage the boys and girls and send them away to the city. Thousands of farms are equipped with different kinds of small stationary engines to do these chores, and the little educated machine that will go and find work and when one job is finished hunt up another, is getting to be popular for the same kind of work.

In one sense we put the farm pump engine on wheels and convert it into a mobile farm hand with a strong arm and willing digging propensities. Give it a row to hoe, feed it with gasoline and grease its joints to keep them limber and it will do its share toward "a small farm well tilled and a large barn well filled."

BROWN ROT CONTROL MEASURES PLANNED.

Because of the sudden and virulent outbreak of brown rot of citrus fruits, this year no control measures backed up by experimental data have been worked out that are positively known to be applicable to this particular case. However, data is being gathered, and the disease is being kept constantly under observation, and it is hoped that some control measure may be available before next season.

From the experience of the past with the disease in citrus orchards, and from a few observations of different orchard treatments on brown rot, the indications are that Bordeaux lime-sulphur treatment will probably prove to be satisfactory control measures. This latter remains, however, to be confirmed by experiments. Observations made recently seem to show rather conclusively that the brown rot is decreasing in its activity, as it was anticipated it would, with the change to bright and warmer weather. What may occur next year is hard to predict. However, it seems advisable to take whatever precautions that are apparently needed and hope that this year's occurrence may be simply a sporadic outbreak, and may not occur again, or that the above measures may prove adequate for control. Because of the lack of definite information regarding recommendations as to procedure, some suggestions may not be amiss.

The manner in which the infection seems to have taken place and the subsequent development of the disease would indicate that a fall spray of Bordeaux on all nursery stock would be a good form of insurance.

Evidence is at hand, according to the California Department of Agriculture, indicating that there is considerable soil infection in nursery yards. If this is correct, and if weather conditions are favorable for development of the disease in these yards next year, it may be very desirable to change the place for heeling in the trees, where it can be done conveniently. If it is not practicable to change yards, it would probably be advisable to plow or spade up the land, and spray the soil one or more times in the late summer or early fall with a good strong Bordeaux mixture.

In heeling in trees, more care should be given to this operation. The trees should not be covered too deeply, and drainage should be provided to prevent water standing around the roots.

AS A CITY MAN SEES THE FARM BUSINESS.

Editor Farm and Tractor Section:

About every so often, blithesome young college professors of economic agricultural courses and so-called investigating specialists of the United States Agricultural Department set forth on a pilgrimage of publicity with statistics disseminated through all the newspapers of the country to show how the farmer is tending toward the "down-and-out" condition, and going to the demnition bow-wows generally.

Naturally, the farmer, and the agricultural papers that have to sponsor the farmer, "lap up" such statistics and further spread them, with the proverbial grumble that belongs appropriately to the situation.

As time goes along, the only result of the statistics is that the farmer is still going along in the abiding satisfaction, comfort and profit of his farm home, occasionally adding another automobile to his present stock on hand.

Nothing is surer than this—that the man who bases his action on statistics picked up from a few sections against the actual satisfactory conditions of the farm home as seen by his own eyes is going to lose.

These remarks are suggested by the study of a syndicated article, just now going the entire rounds of the daily and weekly press, as well as of agricultural papers, reporting the findings of an investigation of farm incomes of 185 farmers visited in three sections, Washington county, Ohio; Clinton county, Indiana, and Dane county, Wisconsin. These are running under general headlines to the effect that the farmer does not have an average of over $500 in cash, after netting 5 per cent and over on his investment in addition to his food, fuel and house rent.

These figures are used to account for the drift of the rural population to the cities. An amusing side of the statistics is shown in the statement that farmers' food, fuel, house rent, etc., are estimated to be worth $359 per year, practically $30 per month! One dark bedroom in New York, looking out on a court, costs more than that! The food consumed on the farmer's table and taken from his farm, his fuel and his house rent, all reckoned at $30 per month, make the prices of the city seem profiteering, indeed.

But how many ministers, teachers, city clerks, employees in city conditions, the increasing number of the unemployed now occupying the park benches, are making 5 per cent on any investment and banking [illegible] food are accounted for.

Only recently one of the largest of New England mills has ordered a 15 per cent cut on wages all around with the advice that it is a case of "take it or leave it" for any employee. This cutting down of forces and reducing of salaries show tightening in town and city conditions, none of which touches the farmer or his farm; that will still continue, as in times past, to produce his living and an excess to bank. Whether this excess be large or small depends, as in all businesses, upon the industry and capacity of the farmer himself and not upon farming as an ever profitable industry.

But let us leave the fallacy of drawing general conclusions from a few instances, and take the general situation itself just as it is.

The American farmer today owns as much property as the combined valuation of all the railroads, all the manufacturing industries and all the banks in the United States, and in addition owns a goodly share of these banks, factories and railroads.

It is hard to convince one that the most general and the most abiding satisfaction, comfort and profit lies elsewhere than in a farm home, when on a Saturday night, in the average village, there not being space in front of the local "movie" house, miles of automobiles are parked on side streets, hundreds of them, all owned by farmers, in to see "the pictures." This situation is common in New England, all along the Atlantic Coast, in the Middle West and the West and Northwest; in fact, all over the country.

As long as there are 105,683,188 mouths to feed in these United States, the American farmer is bound to have a profitable job in addition to the satisfaction and comfort of a sure home.

And whether the high cost of living in the city and town shall continue to take all that the average city man can earn from whatever income he may nominally make or whether the falling demand for other goods than food, a lowering of wages all around, or a city depression resulting from readjustment conditions may come along, nevertheless, farmers, in the food-producing business, can be sure that they are in the safest and most genuinely profitable business in the world. Whatever the general business atmosphere prevailing, there is for the farmers the most optimistic situation ahead for continued safety, a good home and a good living, and a little balance in the bank.

PLANTING ACALA COTTON.

THERMAL.—Onion growers are planting Acala cotton on land that has raised a crop of Bermudas this year, believing that the crop will come to harvest before frost threatens. The Thermal Cotton Gin Company is furnishing the seed, and the demand for seed for next year's planting in California is so great that farmers raising a crop this year will be able to sell it at twice the price of Egyptian seed, it is believed.

JUNE CONDITIONS IN THE FRUIT CROPS.

A report on the condition of the various fruit crops in California on June 1 was issued last week by E. E. Kaufman of the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service. Some fruits like apples and pears, according to the report, were slow to show the effects of the freeze late in April and now indicate shorter crops than expected. All fruits except citrus suffered damage and are very spotted, making estimates of condition and forecasts of production a difficult problem. The report follows:

Apples—The condition of apples is estimated at only 58 per cent of a normal, as compared to 73 last year and a ten-year average of 82. A forecast based on present conditions indicates about 4,900,000 boxes for this year's crop.

Apricots—No change is indicated in the condition of apricots the past month, being 45 per cent of a normal on June 1, as compared with 55 last year and a ten-year average of 70.

Cherries—The promised bumper crop of cherries suffered from both frost and rain and is estimated at only 63 per cent of a normal, as compared with 80 one year ago.

Peaches — The condition of peaches improved 2 points during May, being now 73 per cent of a normal, compared to 87 last year and a ten-year average of 81. The improvement was confined to the San Joaquin Valley. The indicated production is for a crop of about 325,000 tons, as compared with 345,000 tons last year.

Pears—The condition of pears declined during May; 20 points in Sacramento county and 25 points in Placer county, the two largest producing sections of the State. The State condition is 61 per cent of a normal. Last year it was 70 at this time, with an average condition of 80 for ten years.

Plums—The plum crop is particularly spotted as the frost hit some varieties harder than others. Conditions are about the same as last year, or 70 per cent of a normal.

Prunes — The prune crop was not damaged quite as much as early reports indicated and it is now estimated to be 69 per cent of a normal. Last year the condition was 76 on June 1 and the ten-year average is 78.

Olives—June 1 is just about blossom time for the olive crop, and further than to state that there was a good blossom and the setting of fruit depends on weather conditions, but little can be said of this crop.

Citrus—Oranges maintained their promise of one month ago and the condition is about 92 per cent of a normal as compared with 94 last year and a ten-year average of 92. The June drop is still to be reckoned with so a forecast of production is impossible at this time. The lemon condition is given at 100 per cent.

Almonds — The almond crop improved slightly the past month, but is still only 60 per cent of a normal, as compared with 60 last year and a ten-year average of 71. Riverside and Stanislaus counties report a normal crop with total production probably larger than last year. The crop is spotted and hard to estimate.

Walnuts—Walnuts this year are 77 per cent of normal. Last year the condition on June 1 was 80 and the ten-year average is about 87.

Grapes—Detailed reports on grapes are usually not made until July, but owing to the widespread interest in the results of the April frosts, a special inquiry was made of the condition as of June 1. Figures are not available for the comparison with the same date for previous years. The frost was more severe on some varieties of table grapes than others, Malagas apparently being hit hardest. This again brings about a spotted condition that is hard to estimate. Tulare escaped with but slight damage, while Fresno, among the leading table grape counties, suffered most. The condition for the State is placed 70 per cent of a full crop. Wine grapes apparently suffered the most damage and only 65 per cent of a normal crop is reported for the State, although conditions in the different counties vary from 15 to 100 per cent.

The raisin crop is particularly spotted and hard to estimate. Fresno county, producing 70 per cent of the whole crop, reports a condition of 65. Conditions vary in different parts of the county from 10 per cent to almost a full crop. Tulare, the next largest producing county, reports a condition of 90 per cent.

EXPERT REPORTS ON RUBBER PLANTINGS.

William McCallum, representing the Continental Rubber Company of Arizona, inspected the Guayule rubber plantation at the University Farm at Davis last week and reports to G. W. Hendry of the university staff that the plants are in splendid condition and making a satisfactory growth. Other demonstrations have been established in the Salinas Valley and near Escondido in San Diego county. When the crops have matured a comparison will be made of yields in these different localities and the quality of the rubber produced. There is a possibility that more extensive plantings will be made in California if these preliminary experiments give promise of a satisfactory and profitable yield of this new crop.

The Guayule rubber plant is a native of Mexico, where it has been practically exterminated by the rubber companies which have harvested millions of dollars' worth of rubber from it in recent years. The only commercial plantings at this time in the United States are situated forty miles east of San Diego, where 200 acres have been planted, and 600 acres near Continental, Ariz.

SINGLE-STALK PLAN OF GROWING COTTON.

The close-spacing, more commonly known as the single-stalk method, of cotton culture, consists primarily in spacing the cotton plants so close in the row—a hoe width apart—that the lower or vegetative branches do not develop, and the growth of the plant goes directly into the upper or fruiting branches, permitting them to begin the development of blossoms and bolls earlier and giving them more nourishment and more light.

The cultural ideal under the new system is a cotton plant with only the single, erect, central stalk bearing numerous well-developed fruiting branches, but none of the vegetative branches or secondary stalks. The suppression of the vegetable branches is easily accomplished by leaving the young plants close together in the rows. Thinning is deferred until the plants are some six to eight inches high.

NOW SHIPPING DRIED FRUIT BY STEAMSHIP.

Dried fruit shipments from California have arrived at New York, steamer Edward Luckenbach, out of San Francisco via Panama Canal, in fine condition. The cargo was made up of peaches, pears, apricots and prunes, and met with universal approval on inspection.

The Canal route is becoming popular, not only because of low freight rates, but also because of good time schedule and the excellent way dried fruits carry.

PACKING DEMONSTRATED.

SHAFTER.—Hartler Truax, investigator in marketing for the United States Department of Agriculture, and L. J. Weishaar, supervising instructor of the standardization service of the California department, have conducted a series of demonstrations in this district on the correct methods of packing potatoes for market. Many carloads of potatoes are leaving the Shafter-Wasco district weekly for southern and eastern consumption. The potatoes are packed in sacks, each weighing 110 pounds, from 280 to 300 sacks being shipped in each refrigerator car. The approximate weight of a carload of potatoes is 33,000 pounds. Potatoes are now being shipped also from the Edison district east of Bakersfield.

TRACTOR ECONOMY IS UNIVERSAL DEMAND.

Ever since the day of the first steam tractor, the user of farm power machines has demanded economy and efficiency in operation, and manufacturers of tractors have striven to perfect machines which will meet this demand. To be satisfactory to the modern farmer a tractor must be economical in its operation, but must be easy to repair, and able to convert fuel into tangible horse power and satisfactory draw-bar pull. The tractor manufacturer, to properly serve the farmer, must have conveniently available, a stock of parts and service mechanics to help out the user in an emergency.

There should also be a corelation between the implement and tractor, and the combined unit should give immediate response to the will of the operator. A special line of implements should be secured for the tractor, as this is far more practical than trying to adopt horse-drawn tools to the machine.

Make Your Auto Earn More

Without spending a cent for additional motive power, you can turn your automobile into an expense-saving profit-earning hauling unit.

A small amount invested in a light two-wheel Reliance Trailer to hitch-up behind your car makes you independent of truck or wagon for a great deal of your transportation needs.

With this combination you can move many kinds of produce, especially small lots, far cheaper than by truck or wagon, and in much faster time. Distant markets are easier to reach with perishable products.

But be sure you get the right sort of trailer. Trailer building is a specialty. Reliance Trailers are made by experts who thoroughly understand trailer requirements. Reliance Trailers give best results. Write for full details and name of our nearest dealer.

INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINE PRINCIPLES.

BY E. J. STIRNIMAN.

Engines driven by explosions which take place within the cylinder of the engine are called internal combustion, while those obtaining power from fuel burned outside of the cylinder are external combustion. The steam engine is an external combustion engine and the gasoline or oil engines the internal combustion type.

The internal combustion engine may operate on one of two or more systems or series called cycles. The engine's operating method receives its name according to the number of strokes that are required to complete a cycle. A cycle is a complete set or series of events which must take place in their respective order in the engine cylinder. The system or series of strokes most ordinarily used are the two and four stroke cycles. The crankshaft of an engine revolves through two revolutions having four different strokes to complete a series of events, it is called a "four-stroke cycle," while if one revolution or two strokes complete the series, it is a "two-stroke cycle." Most of the tractor and automobile engines are four-stroke cycle.

The principle of the internal combustion gas engine is similar to that of a gun—that is, the power is obtained by the rapid expansion of a substance. The bullet is driven out of a gun barrel by the pressure of the gas generated when the charge of powder is ignited. The part in an engine that we can compare with the bullet is the piston, which receives the force of rapid expansion. One end of the cylinder is open and the other has two or four small openings which are mechanically operated. The piston is connected through the open end of the cylinder to the crankshaft by a connecting rod. The crankshaft, being free to rotate, receives through the connecting rod the power impulse which has been given the piston, converting the oscillating to rotary motion.

An example of changing rotary to oscillating motion, which is the reverse of that of an engine, is the windmill. The velocity of the wind through the wheel causes it to rotate. This rotary motion is changed to oscillating through the pitman wheel and connection, giving the pump rod the same action found in an engine cylinder.

The four strokes, or operations of the four-stroke cycle engine, are: intake, compression, power and exhaust. The first operation in firing a gun, or securing an explosion in the cylinder of a gas engine is to fill the combustion space with combustible material. This is done in the engine by the stroke of the piston towards the crank end of the cylinder drawing in combustible material through an opening available by the mechanical operation of a valve on the head end of the cylinder. This operation or event is the intake stroke. The piston, having completed its outward stroke, is driven back into the cylinder. The valves having closed, soon after the end of the intake stroke, there is no opening in the head end of the cylinder for the combustible material to escape, so it is compressed. Having completed the intake and compression strokes, the compressed material is ignited, which results in an expansion due to the heat generated. This expansion forces the piston out toward the crank end of the cylinder and is called the power or working stroke. The fourth operation, or exhaust stroke, is performed by the return movement of the piston back into the cylinder, driving the burnt material out through another mechanically operated passage, the exhaust valve.

During these four strokes, two revolutions, which complete the cycle, only one stroke gives momentum to the fly wheels. The other three strokes, or remaining one and one-half revolutions, the fly wheels drive the piston preparing for the next power stroke.

In the successful operation of an internal combustion engine, as found on our present-day tractor and automobile, there are four things absolutely essential:

(1.) A proper mixture of combustible material in the cylinder.
(2.) Good compression.
(3.) Satisfactory ignition (properly timed.)
(4.) Proper valve action.

Rice Growing.

is that much of it is being produced on land originally worthless, except for poor grazing, but which rice is reclaiming and fitting for other crops.

The larger part of California's rice crop is now produced in the Sacramento Valley. While most of this valley's soil ranks with the richest in the State, it also contains many thousands of acres of heavy, tight (so-called) "goose lands," which white alkali covers so heavily as to resemble hoar frost. These lands formerly furnished only poor grazing, and were worth approximately $5 acre. Rice has increased their value to about $100 per acre; and, when planted thereon for three years, fits them for other crops by washing off and down into the soil the alkali—through its extensive flooding method of irrigation. When considering all these facts, it is no wonder that, practically within the last five years, rice has risen to be California's fourth most valuable field crop.

Its progress is closely linked up with irrigation, for its water requirements are far heavier than those of any other California crop. The first few years its production was limited, the crop being mainly grown near, and irrigated from, the Sacramento River. It was not until dependable methods of securing water from wells were provided that the great increase in rice planting commenced. California is rich in underground water supplies; but to make these available for rice, a well pump was required heavy enough to lift big volumes of water, and mechanically efficient enough to run continuously for from sixty to ninety days, a serious breakdown during this time being fatal to the crop.

With California's abundant underground water made available by reliable pumping equipment, the planting of rice increased rapidly, spreading throughout the northern Sacramento Valley and on into the San Joaquin, until its money value among the State's field crops is now exceeded by those of only wheat, barley and hay. Rice mills sprang up, adding to the wealth and prosperity which this "wizard" crop has been bringing the State.

These conditions continued until the fall of 1920, when rice suffered the same misfortunes that overtook other crops throughout the United States—a big crop—no market—and falling prices.

Southern rice growers and millers rose to meet the occasion by putting on an extensive advertising campaign, costing about $300,00; this is being followed up by house-to-house educational and sales canvassing in some cities with excellent results. In Pine Bluff, Ark. (19,280 population) five cars (200,000 pounds) of rice were sold locally in one week. Big sales canvasses have been made in a number of cities, principally inaugurated by Arkansas rice growers, and heavy selling has resulted. California came into line with its "Rice Day" and is now taking timely and saving interest in seeing the producers of its newest wonder crop "out of the woods.'

Although the area in the United States adapted to rice production is limited, California is fortunate in that it possesses several thousand of these acres. There seems to be no doubt about the future of the crop. The Americans now consume less rice per capita than almost any other nation on earth chiefly because they do not, as a people, know its high food value, nor the best means of preparing it. With a larger consumption secured through educational advertising and sales canvasses and a consequent stabilizing of the market, rice will continue as a "wizard crop," to shower financial blessings on its growers and on the State.

In order to meet the demands of a greatly increased population, men of the Van Nuys district have established berry experimental plots adjacent to the city. W. P. Whitsett, in field of Plum Farmer blackcap berries.

Cuthbert red raspberries have been tried out, and not found wanting. This variety does not sunburn as some others tried out in the southern part of the State.

COINCIDENT with the cutting up of large San Fernando Valley ranches comes the demand for crops which will yield a greater gross income to the five-acre farmer. In the vicinity of Van Nuys a large number of small ranches have been established, and effort is being made to find crops adapted to the region which will enable more families on small acreages to live in comfort and to educate their children in the excellent institutions of this agricultural center. It is believed by many that berry culture is the answer to this problem.

President McCormick of the Los Angeles City Board of Education, and Susan M. Dorsey, Superintendent of Schools, recently appeared at a strawberry festival, at the home of W. P. Whitsett, Van Nuys, an event which signalised the appearance in the San Fernando Valley of the famous Shasta Banner strawberry, a development of the California wild strawberry. When Mr. McCormick and Mrs. Dorsey addressed those gathered, the reason for their attendance at this event was made evident. They asserted that Van Nuys was to become the center of agricultural education in the city of Los Angeles, the center of the greatest agricultural region on the American continent. Mrs. Dorsey stated most emphatically that she would use her best efforts in getting more people into the country. She believed that the security of American institutions lay along that line—inducing more people to take up small parcels of land, and farm them, living in security and comfort, and she outlined a plan for a junior college of agriculture at Van Nuys.

The berry project follows logically along these lines. In order to provide a living for the people who are to come to the small farms of the San Fernando Valley, W. P. Whitsett and other men of Van Nuys have conducted experimental plots with berries during the past two years. Almost every variety tried has proven well adapted to conditions in the valley, especially the strawberries and blackberries.

Mr. Whitsett, in March, last year, planted about two acres of Banner strawberries, brought from the slopes of Mt. Shasta, and he and associates set out about thirty acres of blackberries and raspberries. The varieties of blackberries tried were the Marlborough and Lanten, and the Plum Farmer blackcap, while the Cuthbert red raspberry was given prominence. The vines thrived, and, on the occasion of the launching of the junior college plan this year, gave evidence that berry culture in the San Fernando Valley was practicable. Although the picking of both strawberries and bush berries is more laborious than the gathering of fruit from trees, the returns have, in the past few years, been commensurate with the labor expended.

Because of the practical monopoly of the berry growing business in Los Angeles county by orientals in the past decade, data on costs of picking, culture and pest control have been very meager, but both the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau and the State Department of Agriculture have agreed to aid the Van Nuys men in their berry project, and it is believed that a large acreage of berries in the aggregate will be set out next winter.

One of the advocates of more berries on the farm, Mrs. Lillian Boulanger, Van Nuys, in her patch of Brandywine strawberries. She sold $78 worth of these berries from a patch 40 by 60 feet in size.

Huge Poultry Plant Developed by Orchard Corporation.

BY ROBERT T. LYANS.

The mammoth poultry plant of the Fontana Land Company in San Bernardino county.

THE specialty farmer has become a fixture in Southern California. Whatever the direction we travel in this favored section, we see evidences of specialized farming. One farmer is specializing on deciduous crops, another on citrus, another on beans, while still others are concentrating on live stock. This is all well and good, for if all our likes and dislikes were to be centered around one particular crop the cost of importation of foodstuffs would become a dangerous factor in our food expense account. By specializing on a particular crop, the individual farmer or breeder becomes perhaps better qualified for success, as he naturally devotes all of his time to the perfection of the particular crop to which he adapts himself, and consequently produces a superior product, which, in turn, brings a greater reward to the one who produced it.

There is one underlying principle however, which the tiller of the soil cannot disregard if he expects to camp long on the trail of success. That principle is the maintenance of soil fertility, the dynamic which produces the bumper crop. The farmer who robs the soil, and does not put back, is spelling doom for himself in the long run. Realizing this important fact, many farmers are becoming more and more interested in live stock as a solution of the problem of soil fertility, which fact in itself is one of the reasons why pure-bred live stock and poultry are on the increase in this section, as well as other sections where sane agricultural methods are practiced.

Almost every lover of the soil is also a lover of good live stock or poultry, and it seems very fitting that this dual purpose combination of stock or fowls with plant or fruit crops should rapidly come to take the place of a single crop proposition. The farmer who produces field crops for live stock, which in turn supply fertilizer to the soil, is working in a cycle that insures against loss. Likewise, the fruit grower with a flock of poultry is assured of a double crop on the same land, and has a combination that will go far toward keeping up soil fertility. It is a combination, too, which is being favorably carried out on many Southern California ranches.

A notable example of combined fruit and poultry operation on a large scale is to be found on the big ranch of the Fontana Land Company in San Bernardino county. The Fontana ranch is some forty-eight miles east of Los Angeles and comprises around 18,000 acres, extending approximately six miles east and west and four miles north and south. The ranch begins at the base of the Sierra Madre Mountains, and extends south nearly to the Jurupa Hills. In addition to immense orange groves, the owners have made quite extensive plantings of lemons, grapefruit, peaches, apricots, walnuts and grapes. The tract is divided into twenty units, each unit having complete equipment and a foreman in charge.

To solve the fertility problem, extensive cattle and hog-feeding plants, as well as a huge poultry establishment, are being operated. The poultry department of the ranch is in charge of E. J. Hauser, formerly extension poultry specialist of the University of California, and a man with both scientific training and practical experience. Mr. Hauser is a firm believer in the poultry and orchard combination. Eggs, meat and fertilizer are being produced under his direction, while the young trees are growing to the producing age, after which time income will be derived from both hens and trees.

The Fontana poultry plant covers about twenty acres and at the present time contains about 20,000 chickens, including both young and old stock. The present hatching capacity is 12,000 chicks at a setting, although the well-ventilated incubator cellar, constructed of cement, is large enough for a 50,000-egg hatching equipment. The big hot water incubators, which are run with coal as fuel, have turned out an average of 85 per cent of all fertile eggs set. Ninety per cent of all chicks hatched are successfully raised, according to Mr. Hauser, while single instances are cited of less than 2 per cent mortality in broods of 500.

So-called runts, or small chicks, are separated from the rest and given pens by themselves, and soon catch up with the rest with this extra care. Mr. Hauser trapnests to prove that the hens are producers, although by selecting early maturing pullets and late moulters, he is assured of a high egg production. He insures against disease by thorough vaccination and is planning this year to mix his own vaccine, thereby insuring its freshness.

The Fontana poultry house for 500 hens resembles in design that recommended by the poultry division of the University of California. It is of the shed roof type, sixteen feet wide and 100 feet long. The houses all face south.

It is generally conceded that nitrogen in the form of organic matter is superior to the same element in mineral form. Most commercial fertilizers contain more or less mineral matter. Poultry manure is all organic, containing from 1 per cent to 3 per cent nitrogen, .50 per cent to 3 per cent phosphoric acid, and .80 per cent to .90 per cent potash, and has a fertilizer value of from $10 to $15 per ton, depending on moisture content. The United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 192 estimates that poultry manure is worth twice as much as hog manure, and three times as much as horse or cow manure. It is possible to get 100 pounds of fertilizer per hen per year if hens are confined and all droppings saved. On this basis 1000 hens would produce fifty tons per year worth from $500 to $750 per year, which in itself is a considerable item.

It seems most reasonable that a flock of 1000 carefully selected hens, showing a conservative profit of $1000 per year and producing in addition $500 worth of good manure with which to fertilize the orchard, would be a good investment for about any fruit grower and that the net return from a horticultural project so linked with poultry raising would be greater than that from one in which poultry was left out of the program. The Fontana ranch people say the thing has worked out most satisfactorily in their own experience. The problem of the loss of soil fertility is bound to confront every grower sooner or later and live stock and poultry in conjunction with growing operations seem to afford the best solution of the difficulty.

Just a few of the thousands of young birds in the Fontana runs.

CARE THE KEYNOTE OF SUCCESS IN HATCHING.

Between making or losing money in raising chickens there is only a narrow margin. Contrary to many persons' ideas, no magic road leads to success in this work. Care and attention to detail are what make one man succeed, while another one with similar equipment fails.

The following suggestions on incubation are given by poultry specialists:

Have everything ready beforehand, and start your hatching operations early in the year.

A well-ventilated cellar is the best place to operate the incubator.

The machine should be operated according to the manufacturer's directions.

See that the incubator is running steadily at the desired temperature before filling it with eggs. Do not add eggs to a machine during incubation.

Turn the eggs twice daily after the second and through the eighteenth day.

Cool the eggs once daily, according to the weather, from the seventh through the eighteenth day.

Turn the eggs before caring for the lamp.

Attend to the machine carefully at regular hours.

Keep the lamp and wick clean.

Test the eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days.

Do not open the machine after the eighteenth day until the chickens are hatched.

Eggs saved for hatching purposes should not be subjected to high or low temperatures.

In cold weather place from ten to thirteen eggs under the hen; in warm weather from thirteen to fifteen.

Always try the hen on china or nest eggs before setting good eggs.

Given proper care and attention, the hen is the most valuable incubator for the farmer.

Use insect powder freely to exterminate lice when necessary.

If several hens are set in one room, it is desirable to confine them to their nests.

Straw and hay make good nesting material.

Broody hens should be moved to the permanent sitting nest at night.

While grain is a good feed for setting hens, water, grit and dust baths should also be provided.

All eggs should be tested by the seventh day, which often makes it possible to reset some of the hens.

GUINEA CHICKS ARE EXCELLENT RANGERS.

Guinea chicks are fed in much the same way as chickens, but they require less feed, as they are natural rangers and can be trusted to find enough seeds of weeds and grasses, bugs, insects and green vegetation in the fields to supply much of their living. For the first thirty-six hours after hatching no feed is required, as the sustenance from the egg is sufficient to nourish them for this period. The first meal may consist of a little hard-boiled egg mixed with bread crumbs, or bread may be soaked in milk, squeezed partly dry, and fed in small bits. Clabbered milk also is very good.

Three times a day is as often as they need to be fed, one feed consisting of clabbered milk or the bread and egg or bread and milk mixture, and the other two of chick feed. If the coop is placed in a field or pasture where green feed is available, the guinea chicks can secure this for themselves; otherwise, sprouted oats, dandelion leaves, lettuce or onion tops cut fine should be furnished, say government poultry experts. Water, grit and fine oyster shell should be before them always.

By the end of the first week the young guineas will be finding enough worms and insects to take the place of the egg or milk feed, so this may be eliminated and chick feed given morning and night. If clabbered milk is available, however, it can be continued with excellent success, since guineas are very fond of variety in their ration and it is conducive to quick growth. As the birds grow older, whole wheat, oats and cracked corn can be substituted gradually for the chick feed.

Tuberous Begonias

Among the various bulbous plants suitable for Summer and Autumn flowering, nothing can exceed the beauty of a bed of choice tuberous Begonias. The classes of the various strains which we offer you below are of absolutely unsurpassed quality—the doubles have flowers equal to the finest Camellia in form, but twice the size. The singles have flowers which attain a diameter of 6 to 7 inches They will begin to blossom by the first of July and continue without intermission until the advent of Winter frost. The plants are all started into growth in 3-inch pots and are sure to grow and blossom.

Giant Single Tuberous Rooted Begonias

A wonderfully fine selection of the very largest type, blossoms of immense size, containing all colors mixed including White, Cream, Salmon, Golden Yellow, Crimson, Scarlet, etc. Each, 35c; per doz., $3.50.

Single Frilled Tuberous Rooted Begonias

A magnificent class of single tuberous rooted Begonias. Edges of the petals are frilled and serrated. Blossoms 5 to 6 inches in diameter. Mixed colors, including shades of Salmon, Cream, Blush, Orange, Pink and Pure White. Each, 35c; per doz., $3.50.

Double Flowering Tuberous Rooted Begonias

Our strain of these is absolutely of unsurpassed quality. Flowers are beautiful Camellia shape, form double to the center, immense in size, produced on stiff upright stems. This strain, as in the foregoing, contains all colors from purest white to darkest crimson, with intermediate shades. Each, 35c; per doz., $3.50.

NOTE—Tuberous Begonias are of easy culture. Planted in a shady, well enriched bed, they will flower continuously from July until November. Owing to the Federal Horticultural quarantine, none of these bulbs can now be imported. The stock we offer is of our own growing and of unexcelled quality.

AMUSEMENTS IN EARLY CALIFORNIA DAYS.

BY J. M. SCANLAND.

BEFORE the American occupation of California, and even for several years afterwards, the amusements of the natives consisted of bull fights, bull and bear fights, horse racing, cocking mains, playing monte, national celebrations, church festivals, pastoral plays, revolutions and wedding processions. At this time, or the end of the romantic-Arcadian age, there were about 7000 Spanish speaking persons; 200 Americans, and about 200 other "foreigners," mainly English and French. There were about 10,000 "domesticated" Indians. The number of "wild" Indians in the mountains was not known. In this favored country of a mild climate and fertile soil the needs of the natives were few and easily obtained. Little labor was necessary, and hence seeking amusements formed the serious side of life. They lived for pleasure, wealth was secondary. They were far removed from the turmoils, financial panics and wars of the old world, and cared little for their parent government, Mexico. Furthermore, they had revolutions of their own as a diversion.

There had never been a theatrical performance, minstrel show, or circus, and still the people were happy. The nearest thing to a circus was a "maroma," which was a trick horse show, composed of three or four trained horses and their riders. It was brought from Sonora to Los Angeles by Jose Flores, and exhibited in the plaza. Flores made money, remained, and a few years later, headed a revolution against the Americans after Los Angeles had been captured.

In talking of the "good old times that come no more," the late Don Antonio Coronel told me of an incident in the production of a "pastorella," or little pastoral, which came near being tragic. During the performance, some of the decorations caught fire from the candles, and there were screams more realistic than artistic. One of the characters, "Lucifer," rushed upon the stage, put out the blaze, and the performance continued. The plot of the pastoral was simple, and the "beginning, the middle and the end" contained a moral. There were ten characters, six females, three men and a boy. The females represented shepherdesses, the men were, Lucifer, a tragedian; another was a hermit, and the other, Bartolo, was a vagabond, with a comedy role; and the boy impersonated the Archangel Gabriel. The play began by the discovery of the shepherdesses on the stage; the archangel appears and announces the birth of the Savior, and exhorts them to go to the manger. On their way, the heavy villain, Lucifer, attempts to stop them. He tempts them with promises of wealth, etc., if they will not go. The archangel appears, and there is an argument in which he confutes the temptations of Lucifer. The hermit and the comedian Partolo appear, and the archfiend, Lucifer, is overwhelmed, and retreats, after the manner of Faust in the opera. The play was interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, and Bartolo introduced comicalities, after the manner of the leader of the chorus in the earliest Greek plays. The chorus or orchestra consisted of a violin, guitar, harp and flute. The characters were impersonated by prominent citizens. At the performance referred to by Don Antonio Coronel, the role of Lucifer was played by Gen. Andres Pico. The celebration of Christmas usually lasted about two weeks, during which time there were bull fights in the plaza in the afternoon, horse racing on the track near by, a pastoral play at night, and, of course, dancing and gambling. Bull fighting was the national amusement of the Spanish speaking people, and it was regulated by government orders, and in favor of the bull baiters. It was ordered that the tips of the horns of the animals should be sawed off so as to prevent disastrous accidents to the men, who tortured the animal. On a moonlit night, a few days before the "grand event," several Mexicans, with lariats and the carcass of a bullock in a cart, went to Bear Canyon, near the pueblo, and after placing the bait near the stamping grounds of the bears, would conceal themselves. When Bruin appeared one of the men threw the noose of his lariat over the head of the bear, and another likewise lassooed his feet, when, with a tightening of the lariats the bear was thrown hors de combat. The animal was brought to the plaza and chained until the day of the fight. At the beginning of the ceremony the bear's bonds were loosened so as to give him about twenty feet leeway. The bull was then turned in, and given the freedom of the ring. The fight was viewed with gripping interest by the spectators—men, women and children, and the victor was cheered with shouts of "Viva, Oso!" or "Viva, Toro!" The spectators placed bets on their favorites, and the judges gave the contest to the one who held his ground the longest. One of these "events" had a serio-comic ending. The bear had dispatched the bull, and in his heroic struggles had unloosed his chain. He then broke for liberty, when the enthusiastic cheers were changed to screams, and a scramble for the outside. In rushing up the tier of seats the bear suddenly stopped in front of a large negro leaning against a post, and whose face was as black as tar. His mouth was wide open, and his big eyes showed a large circle of white. The animal quickly sidestepped, and went over the top a few feet distant. When it was known that the bear was safely beyond the pueblo, several of the most daring men re-entered the inclosure. On the top seat, leaning against a post, was the negro, with his mouth wide open as if shouting, and his large eyes turned upward. He was in a dead faint, and the only one in the arena. However, a bottle of whisky restored him. Pompey, the negro, had come to Los Angeles with his former master, from the South, and had worked for him two years believing that he was still a slave. A fight between a bull and a bear was an extraordinary attraction. Contests between bulls, with the tips of their horns sawed off, was a tame affair in comparison.

About the beginning of the American era, a "reform" legislature passed a law prohibiting "bull fighting and other barbarous amusements." A Los Angeles justice of the peace, with the wisdom of a Solomon and a Lycurgus combined, handed down a decision that the law was unconstitutional—on the grounds that bull fighting was not an "amusement." The judgment was based no doubt from the standpoint of the bull. Brutal prize fights were not prohibited by law, and all forms of gambling were permitted to exist. The gambling hells were run night and day, and seemed to have no doors.

An open air free-for-all was the "Hanging of Judas." He was not only hanged, but burned, and regularly at each yearly celebration. An effigy of Judas Iscariot, stuffed with straw, was put upon a platform and after his death sentence was read by the master of ceremonies, he was hanged by the neck until dead. Then, those selected for the part fired holes into his body, and in order to make sure of his death, it was set on fire. Bells were then rung, a miniature cannon was fired, and the people shouted and hooted as the flames enveloped the representation of the archtraitor. Firecrackers were burnt in quantities, and the people marched in procession through the streets which had been illuminated with lanterns along the line from the place of execution.

In addition to the church festivals there were four national holidays—September 15, the anniversary day of Mexico's independence; February 24, March 2, and September 27. On Mexico's natal day, there were salutes fired by the cannon at the presidios, and as Los Angeles was not a presidio, the church cannon was brought into action. There was music in the plazas, bull fights, horse racing, gambling, fireworks at night, and a "grand ball." While amusement was the main feature in horse racing, there was any amount of betting. This added to the interest. If a rancher was short of cash, he bet a flock of sheep, drove of horses, or herd of cattle. And the loser delivered them promptly.

There were private and public balls. The first were for the better classes; the others for everybody. Almost every social gathering ended with a dance; sometimes interspersed with singing. In nearly every home the young ladies and young men could either play or sing, and all could dance. These accomplishments were taught them from early youth. There were several varieties of dances—in couples, groups of four, by one person, and the contradanza, which was a medley or combination of other dances, and gave room for a larger number of revelers. The solo dance was executed by a young lady celebrated for her gracefulness and excellence in the art. She stood straight, her head slightly turned toward the right shoulder, her eyes modestly cast downward, and her hands naturally resting at the sides of her dress, holding it at an angle with her ankles so as to show the movements of the feet. The duo was the addition of a man, also noted as one of the best dancers. The figures were intricate and charmingly executed. The couple kept steps in unison with each other, and also with the music. Applause always followed these artistic exhibitions, and, of course, in this land of flowers, bouquets were showered upon them in profusion. Refreshments were served at intervals. Some of these balls were expensive, for example: Don Jose Maria Covarrubias, president of the committee of arrangements, made the following report of a public ball given at Los Angeles in August, 1845: Putting floor in condition, $30; ten pounds of spermaceti for lights, $15; four musicians, $24; four servants, $4; barrel of aguardiente, $30; barrel of wine, $16; half barrel of angelica, $10; twelve bottles champagne, $36; olives, $10; cakes and crackers, $30; cheese, $10; fruit, $10; sugar, $3. Considering the quantity of wine, the function was evidently a success.

A feature of some of the private dances was improvisation by the dancers. The young Romeo would sing a couplet to the young lady who had upset his reason, and she would trill back another as her heart prompted.

Weddings were celebrated by a procession and music. The "happy couple" were escorted from the church to their home, and after the wedding breakfast, there were dancing and outdoor sports, including feats of horsemanship and races. At night there was another dance. The festivities lasted from one day to three or four, according to the financial standing of the bridegroom.

Serenading was a popular pastime, and at nights, especially when the moon shone, lovers stood at the iron-barred windows of their ladies and gave vent to the sorrows of their hearts to a guitar accompaniment. One young Romeo, who was wasting his sweet notes at the wrong window, was arrested on the complaint of the young lady on the charge of disturbing the peace. The alcalde summoned him to appear in court, accompanied by his guitar. Romeo sang a few notes when the alcalde raised his hand and said: "Stop singing, play on!" A few twangs, and the alcalde cried, "Enough! Did you play that tune?"

"Yes; Your Excellency," replied the musician.

"Then this Honorable Court will fine you $2."

A LITTLE TALK ON THRIFT.

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

THE story is told that many years ago a Yorkshire spinner, while in London one day, found some silk waste knotted together with sticks, leaves and dirty rope-ends.

"What is this?" he asked, pointing to the heap.

"Oh, it is simply rubbish—cast off odds and ends that it is impossible to make use of," was the reply.

But he knew that he had conceived a thought something might be done with the discarded silk waste. So he bought the trash for a trifle, and, as he carted it away, he was greeted with laughter and derision.

But he knewk that he had conceived a great idea.

For ten years he experimented with methods of utilizing waste from the textile mills. Then one day success came to him. His thrift and industry were rewarded. A machine was produced which, at a very small cost, transformed the waste of the rubbish pile into a beautiful fabric. The foundation for a great industry and a great fortune was laid, and a tremendous saving of hitherto wasted material was effected.

If we were to go into the history of all the great business industries of the world and all the great fortunes that have been created it is safe to say that we should find that each had its origin in some such manifestation of thrift. It is true that fortunes have been made through speculation or the discovery of gold or oil or through some other caprice of luck. But where great wealth has been so quickly or accidentally amassed in most cases it has in turn been quickly thrown to the winds of dissipation, extravagance or reckless judgment, excepting where the possessor happened to be of a thrifty mind. Delve as deeply as we may into the annals of any notable and permanent business success and we shall find that thrift is the rugged framework of the structure.

This is a lesson that every young man in America today who is striving to get ahead in a business way should learn. He must have courage, initiative and a restless aggressiveness. He must have good judgment, equilibrium and patience. He must have the quality of hard work and the fortitude to stand knocks and blows. And at the very heart and core of all his activities there must be thrift.

Until he understands this fact all his efforts to attain success in the business world will be unavailing.

THE GARAGE OF ENCHANTMENT.

point quickly. For Mr. Jenkins did look slightly surprised.

"My sister-in-law gave up her work in the library last month, Mr. Jenkins—"

"Yes, I remember. She spoke to me. I offered her a letter, but—"

"First, then, let me ask you—did she tell you what she was planning to do?"

"No, I believe she spoke of some interesting traveling."

"Exactly!" George C. spoke with nervous emphasis. "She left us in the dark, too—her sister and brother."

"Really! Indeed!"

"Fact! She—she even misled us."

"Really, you astonish me!"

"Don't I, though! We—my wife and I—couldn't have been more astonished if you yourself, Mr. Jenkins—" he hesitated.

"Miss Brown has always been so quiet and conscientious," observed that gentleman somewhat hurriedly. "Has she—disappeared?"

"Worse than that!"

"No!"

"Yes!" George C. was beginning to enjoy the situation. "You see there has always been a side of Henrietta's nature that we couldn't quite get at. And there was something queer about the evenings she spent in her study—locked in, mind you with a talking—"

"Have you any knowledge as to where she is now?"

"Yes. I'm getting at that. Her explanation was that she was going as secretary to the Russian dancer, Loupova."

"She would make an excellent secretary," mused Mr. Jenkins. "Steady, unimaginative, accurate in small matters—"

"It's the only thing she could do, with her training. Well, she's been very good about it in one way. My—my own affairs have had something of a setback—through a serious illness—and—this is rather personal—she has sent money to her sister every week—so much money, indeed, that it's been rather difficult for us to—well—hm'm!" George C. compressed his lips. "Let me lay this before you." He drew a folded page of a newspaper from a breast pocket. "Every week she has written us her address for the following week—but always General Delivery in a new city. For instance, she was in Minneapolis last week, and St. Paul the week before, and Kansas City before that. This week she's in Milwaukee."

"Indeed!"

"Yes. And now look at this. It's from the New York Times of Sunday." George C. spread out the newspaper page. "Dramatic sheet. I happened on it by the merest chance—" He ran a thin finger down a column. "Just cast your eye on that!"

Mr. Jenkins read aloud as follows:

"'Manhattan Operahouse—Thirty-fourth street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues. Second triumphal month—Mme. Loupova and her original complete Russian ballet!"

"Well!" cried the dignified Mr. Jenkins, nearly forgetting his perfect suburban composure. "Well!"

"You get it, don't you?" George C. was saying, excitedly. "Loupova's been right there in New York! Henrietta's been fifteen hundred miles away from her, shooting all over the place!"

"It's most surprising," mused Mr. Jenkins. "Just what did you wish me to do about it, Mr. Battie?"

"Well—you see, here are you and I, the only men who've had any interest in her. You were, in a way, her employer. There's no telling—"

Mr. Jenkins brought a firm hand down on the arm of his chair.

"The simple thing is to go right up there to Milwaukee and find her."

"Yes. That's the thing!"

"Then if you can take tomorrow off, I should be glad to drive you up there."

In his account to his wife of the scene in the impressive mansion on lower Chestnut avenue, George C. found himself making more of an impression on the tired little woman than for a number of years preceeding.

No Miss Henrietta Brown was registered at any of the principal hotels of Milwaukee. At the General Delivery window in the central postoffice no information could be had.

"What it comes down to," said Mr. Jenkins as they sat over a late luncheon, "is to stay down there in the postoffice awhile and watch."

George C., who had no fur coat, had felt the cold during the long ride up, and was now sneezing. Mr. Jenkins sent him home on an afternoon train; and himself stood near the general delivery window until 7 o'clock. By that time he was hungry again, and his feet hurt. He decided to stay over night and continue his vigil on the morrow. Then he had dinner and drifted into a vaudeville theater.

Those few who had known Elberforce Jenkins twenty-five years earlier found difficulty in accepting him as the settled, dignified figure he had become. Back in the middle eighteen-nineties, as a thin, suave youth, with (it was felt) more money to spend than was good for him, he had on numerous occasions mildly distressed the transplanted New Englanders, who mainly composed the original population of Sunbury.

When the "augmented orchestra" broke into the weirdly delightful opening measures of the "Marche Miniature," by Tschaikowsky, and a slim little masked dancer bounded on the stage—in the slightest of costumes, a bewitchingly grotesque little figure, softly and beautifully lighted and set out against a background of shimmering draperies—Mr. Jenkins experienced a thrill the like of which he could not remember in a swift glance back over his whole existence.

The little person was at once exquisitely graceful, amazingly active, quaint. He thought of sprites and elves and hamadryads, of wet oak leaves glistening under a slanting November sun.

"She's a true artist," Jenkins reflected, "probably a Russian, or perhaps a Hungarian. Certainly no American or British person ever danced like that. In the abandon of that strange artistry spoke out the free spirit of a finely daring soul." And so little Miss Henrietta Brown was driven from his mind.

Mr. Jenkins had meant to watch during that next day in the postoffice, but it had abruptly become necessary to adapt the routine of his life to a new and great emotional experience. Accordingly he ran back to Chicago during the day to put his business house in order; and returned to spend the evening again at that vaudeville house.

After the performance, on the second evening of his great experience, Mr. Jenkins stood timidly, self-consciously, like a bewildered boy, with collar turned up and hat pulled down, in an alley doorway, and gazed out of a shining dream at a slim little person who wore an impenetrable veil and stepped into a closed motorcab to be whisked off into the unfriendly night.

On a December evening in the city of Washington the Masked Dancer bounded off the stage and stood panting, behind draperies. With her dainty head poised slightly to one side, she listened to the roar of the applause from the great audience. Through the mask her nearly black eyes snapped with excitement. Her little hands were tightly clenched. It was, she felt, the great moment of her life; for out there sat the dignified President of the United States, applauding happily. Time and again she returned to sink on her heel in a curtsy that was in itself a little feat in delicate acrobatic balancing.

She turned her shoulders to the waiting maid, who drew a wrap about her. Then she found her path blocked by the stout person of Mr. Gentle, and the delighted sparkle left her eyes.

"Just a minute, dear!" said he.

"Please let me by," she answered.

"No, I won't," he retorted. "Not yet! It's all right, this stuff—not speaking to me. You needn't think I care a damn. But if it's getting so you won't even let me talk business with you, then what's the use o' my trying to do all this for you?"

He was raising his voice. She loathed him. She knew now he was drawing $750 a week for the "act" that still paid her the "two hundred and a half" of the original agreement.

"Well," she asked, to quiet him, "what is it?"

"That millionaire's here—sitting in the third—"

"Mr. Gentle, if you—"

"My dear, you got to listen! I'd like to know who you think you are, anyway! While you're about it, why don't you walk out front there and insult the President. Here's this Chicago millionaire—I've looked him up, I tell you! He follows you to Indianapolis and Columbus and Akron and Detroit and Cleveland and Buffalo and Albany and Boston and—"

"I will not listen!"

"You gotta! You're going to hear what I've done about it."

Frightened, she stared through the mask.

"He's made up to me. We had a talk today. I tell you he's a real swell. He says you're too wonderful for this vaudeville game. Asked if you were married. Well, I asked if he wouldn't feel like putting up for a big show next year—play a Broadway house. He jumped at it! We've got him hooked. But he says he's got to meet you. So I told him—"

"Mr. Gentle—"

"Now, just you go it easy. I'm only bringing him up to your suite for a call at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. I'll stay right in the room if you like."

With a breathless exclamation she rushed past him and ran up the stairs to her dressing-room. The rest of the evening was a fever, the night a worse than sleepless horror.

She refused to see them, but knew they would come. She wore a tailored street suit, and put on the hat with the heavy veil hanging about her face and head. Whoever he was, whatever his infatuation for the Masked Dancer, he was not to see Henrietta Brown.

They did come—promptly. The maid announced them, with a respectfully shrewd glance:

"It's Mr. Gentle and that—gentleman."

Her heart sank. Her depression deepened into something near despondency. . . . Breathless, miserable, she moved weakly into the parlor.

They stood by the window. They turned. Mr. Gentle moved forward with his oiliest smile. The other man turned expectantly. It was Mr. Jenkins.

During a brief moment Miss Brown swayed, fighting silently for breath. Then, without a sound, she fled into the bedroom and bolted the door.

Twenty minutes later the maid came in from the hall, through the other door, with a note.

"He's been sitting there, writing it," she explained.

But she neglected to explain about the five-dollar bill that was crumpled in her left hand.

Her fingers trembling, Miss Brown read a straightforward proposal of marriage. He told her, with the frankness of an emotional boy, his name, his financial condition—more, indeed, than his neighbors in Sunbury would know until his will should be read. And he didn't so much as know her name!

The effect on Miss Brown was that of an utter panic.

Then Mr. Gentle was back, storming in past the maid

"So you think you can insult him like that, eh! Insult him, me, everybody! After all I've done for you! God knows—"

She sat white and still.

"Well," he cried, "what you got to say for yourself?"

"Nothing." It was hardly more than a whisper. "Mr. Gentle, I'm going home."

"Going? When?"

"Today—now."

"But good Gawd!"

"What will you take to release me?"

"Don't talk crazy. I can't release you. How can I? We're all booked up. And we've got a fortune in sight—money—real hard money!"

"You could release me if I were ill."

"Well, but—"

"I am ill. I want the contract back. I'll pay you $500 for it."

In the end the amazed Mr. Gentle had to accept her offer.

George C. and his wife sat by the table that still bore the unwashed dinner dishes.

Henrietta stood in the doorway, pale but otherwise natural, wearing her last winter's topcoat and turban.

"I put my bag down in the hall upstairs," Henrietta was saying. "I'll unpack as soon as I get back from the library. They'll hardly have my trunk here before morning."

"Have you had anything to eat?" asked George C., sternly.

"I picked up a bite of supper in the Chicago station."

"But what are we to think?" cried Mrs. George C. "What—are—we—to think?"

"It isn't that we don't appreciate all you've done," put in George C. "The money—but—"

"Suppose you just try keeping still?"

With which brisk remark little Miss Brown stepped out and sharply closed the front door.

As she left the discordant household behind, her spirits quietly and unaccountably rose. The library building seemed to smile comfortably at her like an old friend who knew, and knowing, forgave much.

Miss Wombast, at the desk, greeted her with an embrace. "My dear, go right back into the office and hang up your things!"

Miss Brown demurely obeyed. She lingered, pursing her lips, smiling faintly, while a touch of color stole into her cheeks.

From the bosom of her dress she drew a crumpled letter which she spread out on the desk and read slowly through.

Then, suddenly holding it aloft, she lifted one foot, spun up on her toes, whirled gayly, exuberantly, and then went dipping and spinning across the room.

At an extraordinary little gasp from the doorway, she came down flat on her feet. Mr. Jenkins stood there. His face was gray.

Both stared. Miss Brown felt her knees shaking.

He stepped into the room, and so nearly forgot himself as to push the door behind him.

The situation was saved momentarily by a sudden descent of the blessed spirit of mischief on Miss Brown.

"I'm sure you must have wanted your letter back," she murmured, and gave it to him. She slipped out and joined Miss Wombast at the outer desk.

It was all of twenty minutes before he came out, and bowing stiffly, left the building.

It was excitingly pleasant—above all else so far on this delightful evening—to go about with Miss Wombast, putting the piles of returned books away, making out the postcard notices of overdue charges, switching off lights and looking up. Her impulse was to delay and linger, but she walked brightly home.

At the foot of the front steps, however, she stopped short. One of the parlor shades had not been drawn quite down. A caller sat within. She tiptoed close and peeped. There he was—Mr. Jenkins, looking strangely grave, visiting with the Batties.

Her pulse fluttered. For a moment she clung to the porch railing; then she walked softly around to the garage and locked herself in. The air there was musty, but she dared not raise a shade. She turned on the desk light, looked with alien eyes at her old piles of "work," unaware of the cold. . . . Then the knock came, and she had let him in. He was standing by the desk looking gravely down at her where she had sunk into the chair. His eyes burned in hollows.

"I can't accept this letter." This she caught and dimly understood. "It is yours. Again I offer it to you."

The room danced about her—the stove, the bookcases, the old talking machine.

She heard herself saying:

"I'm too confused to talk. It's all strange—I've been through so much."

She heard him saying:

"I have been through everything. Out in that world I lost you. But now I find you here."

Then she: "I can't talk now!"

Her temples throbbed. Her eyes filled. How—how could they ever—he and she—find the possible bridge of words across the gulf of confusions that yawned between them.

Then [illegible] heart whispered brightly, wonderfully, that it knew a way.

Can be Done.

A Scotsman, anxious as usual to make a bit hit upon the idea of collecting old tins and pieces of scrap iron.

Having accumulated a good collection, he sent them to a local marine store. Somehow or other they went astray, however, and were delivered to the wrong place.

Imagine his surprise the next morning when he received the following letter from a garage.

"Dear Sir—Your motor car to hand. We have never seen a worse smash, but we will do our best to put it together again. We send you herewith an estimate for the [illegible] of repairs and approximate date of delivery."

Some Progress.

"I'm not at all sure," said the profiteer's wife to the head master of the fashionable preparatory school, "how your school is going to suit my dear boy."

The head master smiled confidently.

"You need not worry about that, madam," he said, "we've taught him how to hold his knife already."—[Tit-Bits.

This Thing Called Money.

WE USED to be told that there was a little bunch of old codgers in a dingy room in London who had strings on all the money in the world. They could say when we would have good times or when we would have bad times. The price of wheat was their secret. If England owed money she paid it with cheap wheat; and if money was owing to England, she collected in dear wheat.

Anyway, it was something like that. It is a deep subject, and a very mysterious thing in the bargain. And we were all talking about it, the other night, in the house on the mesa, in the green Verdugo Hills.

The subject came up through a remark made by the man who reads the papers. I see they have been counting the money in the vaults of the United States treasury at Washington, said the man who reads the papers, and they find that we have one-third of all the gold there is in the world.

We have $3,200,000,000 in gold, said the man who reads the papers, and there is only $9,000,000,000 altogether from Dan to Beersheba, he said.

It was a pretty big sum to grasp, and we were free to say that we hadn't the noodles to do it with, when the man who used to be a statistician spoke up.

Well, said the man who used to be a statistician and who still can't get shut of his old habits, as the saying is; well, maybe I can put it to you in a way that you can understand, he said.

If you were to take all this gold that you are talking about, said the man who used to be a statistician, after he had figured awhile with his lead pencil on the back of an envelope, it would require 2000 five-ton trucks to haul it away.

Or, said he, if you were to melt that gold and make a road of it twenty feet wide and a half-inch thick, the road would reach from the green Verdugo Hills to the pleasant town of San Fernando.

"Fawncy!" exclaimed the man who used to be an Englishman, as he reached over for the tobacco can and filled his pipe again.

By ginger, it staggered us, as the saying is, when the man who used to be a statistician put it to us that way, so that even a child could understand it.

But, it staggered us, just the same, and we all smoked along in silence for several minutes before anybody said another word.

And it was the Viking who broke the silence at last. By gollies, said the Viking, this makes John D. Rockefeller a bigger man than we thought him to be. They say John D. is worth a billion, which means that he has one-third of all the money in the United States—himself, just single-handed and alone.

Pooh, pooh, said the man who used to be a statistician, then. This gold is just that much gold, that's all; there's lots of what they call money besides that. Your bank check is money, your promissory note is money, your mortgage and bonds and lots of other pieces of paper are money. Why, said the man who used to be a statistician, this gold we are talking about wouldn't pay the salaries of the movie actors in Hollywood for a year.

Ah, let's quit thinking about it, said the man who has the phonograph. It gives me a headache, he said. Let's drop the subject and I will play you a tune I got the other day in the roaring town.

And the tune he played was a fine tune, too. It is a tune that goes by the name of "The Blackberry Blossom," and it has a soft, soothing lilt to it.

Youth's Delusions.

A YOUNG man has written a letter to the unworthy and blundering Conductor of this page, in which said letter said young man says that he has just graduated from a university and that he has decided to become a journalist, and wouldn't we please be so kind as to advise him as to which newspaper it would be most advantageous for him to connect himself with.

Youth is, indeed, the happiest time of life, if for no other reason than that it is filled with so many delightful delusions.

Now here is a boy, and no doubt a nice boy, who thinks that all he has to do is to decide what he wants to be and then have somebody arrange it for him. Of course, we believe that a man can be what he wants to be, but he won't find it easy. We can tell him that.

We take it that this boy means that he wants to be a new paper man. A journalist is quite another thing, you know. Newspaper men haven't just what you might call the highest respect for what are known as journalists. Not that journalists are not all right, too—in their place.

Now, above all other callings in this world, a man must be born to the trade of newspaper making. It is a thing that cannot be learned in schools, although schools pretend to teach it. And, while there are college men, here and there, who have become good newspaper men, they are the exception.

It is also a thankless calling. There is no other man in the world that renders the service to humanity that the newspaper man renders, yet it is the man in another calling that gets the credit. But, for all that, you couldn't coax a newspaper man to work at any other job. The thing is in his blood. And it has its own rewards, at least for him.

Our answer to this boy is to ask some editor for a job, get kicked around for awhile, and then he will know for himself whether or not he has the making of a newspaper man in him.

Lay of Ancient Rome.

Oh, the Roman was a rogue,
He erat was, you bettum;
He ran his automobilis
And smoked his cigarettum;
He wore a diamond studibus
And elegant cravattum,
A maxima cum laude shirt,
And such a stylish hattum.

He loved the luscious hic-haec-hoc,
And bet on games and equi;
At times won; at others, though,
He got it in the nequi;
He winked (quo usque tandem?)
At puellas on the forum,
And sometimes even made
Those goo-goo oculorum.

He frequently was seen
At combats gladiatorial,
And ate enough to feed
Ten boarders at Memorial;
He often went on sprees
And said, on starting homus,
"Hic labor—opus est,
Oh, where's my hic-hic-domus?"

Although he lived in Rome—
Of all the arts the middle—
He was (excuse the phrase)
A horrid individ'l;
Ah, what a different thing
Was the homo (dative hominy)
Of far away B. C.

THOMAS YBARRA.

A Lady From Town.

THERE was a lady from the roaring town came up to spend a while in our Verdugo Hills, not long ago. It was to restore her nerves that she came. A doctor told her it would do her good, and for her to breathe the air and to drink lots of the water, and to take walks.

Well, sir, she didn't stay more than two days, or maybe three. It seems that she didn't like our ways, nor the ways of the crickets and the gray squirrels and the rabbits and things that have made their homes in our hills since the time Adam was a boy.

She was reported to a meeting of the Millionaires Club, which, in turn, reported her for action to the women of the Verdugo Hills, but it was too late. She had fled.

The idea of the Millionaires Club was for the women to take the lady in hand and see what they could do for her.

From all that we can learn—and we have been at great pains to make a full investigation of the case, the lady from the roaring town resented most the action of three men who were, namely, the Professor, the Viking and the man who plays the flute.

And what they did was to speak to her on the road, one evening, when she was taking a walk. All they did was to bid her "good evening." But she was furious. She said how dared these men speak to a lady to whom they had never been introduced. And she packed up and went back to the roaring town the very next morning.

You see, the way it is in the green Verdugo Hills, we speak to anybody we meet, man or woman, whether we have been introduced or not. We are old-fashioned, we suppose, but it is our way.

But, in the roaring town, it seems, that you can't say "good evening" to a lady to whom you have not been introduced.

The Blue Kitten.

WHEN Socrates came up to the Verdugo Hills the other day, to spend a few days in his tent in the chaparral, what do you suppose he brought with him?

Well, sir, it was nothing less than a kitten—a blue kitten, and most the prettiest little fellow you ever laid eyes on.

And, of course, it was a kitten, born and reared as far as it was reared, which wasn't much—in the roaring town. It had never been outside of the four walls of a house since the day it was born until Socrates brought it in his pocket up to the green Verdugo Hills.

So when a couple of the neighbors dropped in on Socrates, there he was sprawled before his tent smoking his pipe and watching his little blue kitten taking its first adventure in the wilderness.

By gollies, said Socrates to the neighbors, I have been having the time of my life, as the saying is, watching that blue kitten getting acquainted with the folks here in the chaparral. He has just finished a fight to the limit with a grasshopper, and the grasshopper won. Look at the kitten, said Socrates. He is over the ropes right now, taking the count.

But, how about your pet mouse? asked the neighbors. When this kitten gets to be a little bigger won't he make short work of your mouse?

No, sir, he won't, answered Socrates. I am going to see to it that they are the best of friends. There's no reason on earth why they shouldn't be; and they will. The mouse was here first; this is his native heath; and this little boy "Blue" is just an invader. I'm going to make him understand that, and to treat my pet mouse accordingly.

And, of course, it can be done. There was a time when all God's creatures lived in peace together, and they would do so again if the world would only put itself to rights once more.

Beans and Monkeys.

THERE was a piece in a paper, lately, stating that another one of these scientific chaps has condemned beans as an article of diet.

We rise to protest. We rise to protest even at the risk of incurring the displeasure of the other end of this magazine, conducted by our esteemed and learned friend, Dr. Harry Brook.

What's the matter with these fellows, anyway, that they are all the time taking a slam at beans?

This particular scientist says that he fed monkeys on beans and that it made them dull and listless. But what's a monkey got to do with a human being, we would like to ask? Darwin to the contrary notwithstanding, as the saying is.

Is the professor to whom we refer wholly ignorant of history? Has he never observed the story of Boston and the traditions of California, not to speak of other parts of the world, not so important, it is true, but still parts of the world?

Did not Longfellow, Whittier, Bryant, Lowell, Emerson, Thoreau, John L. Sullivan and all those of the renowned "Boston School" of poets, naturalists, philosophers and prize fighters eat their morning dish of beans as regularly and as religiously as the morning came?

Where were braver men or more beautiful women ever found than were found in the early days of California? And was not beans their chief article of diet?

We need say no more. They can call the bean the "Faba vulgaris," all they like; and say it doesn't agree with monkeys, all they like; but beans still remain fundamental.

They have been eaten with great success ever since the world began, and that was about 200,000,000 years ago.

"Just California."

EVERY now and then a Californian goes into the outlands, across the rim of the Mother Mountains, upon either business or pleasure bent.

And when he is in the outlands, and the farther east he goes, when he is asked if he is from the West he should answer no, and say I am from California. And while he is at it, he should be sure to say it right—"Kah-lee-for-r-r-nia." Being sure to make the "a's" broad and to burr the "r" good in the third syllable.

Then the outlander will probably come back at you and say, well, California is in the West, isn't it? And then you must reply that no, it is not in the West; it is west of the West.

It will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth that you will be saying then. And, besides, you will have the authority of Theodore Roosevelt for it.

When Theodore Roosevelt was President of the United States and visiting California, he made a speech at San Buenaventura, among other places, and in which speech he said this:

"When I am in California, I am not in the West. It is west of the West; it is just California."

He got it right, as the saying is. It was a habit with Theodore Roosevelt to get a thing right. And, at times, he could say a beautiful thing, as well as to say something that was hard-headed or that meant a fight. And this was a beautiful as well as a very true thing that he said about California.

Caesar divided Gaul into three parts. Roosevelt divided the United States into four parts—the East, the Middle West, the West and California.

End of the World.

IF THERE be people who are worrying that the end of the world is at hand—and there appear to be a number of people who are doing it—we feel like telling them that they are spending their time in a poor way. The Bible says that the world will not come to an end until all wars have ceased and a thousand years of peace have followed. And, if any man can see the least sign of the cessation of wars, we should like to hear from him and to know upon what grounds he bases his conclusion.

The Married Life of Helen and Warren.

elen is the Gullible Dupe of a Glib Promoter and Lure of Easy Money.

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

N FLUTTERING wonderment Helen turned from the telephone and flew out to the kitchen.

"Cora, there's a gentleman coming up. ow him into the library—say I'll be right ."

"Mr. Drexel! Who was Mr. Drexel? Why as he calling on her? He had phoned up at it was something 'personal.'"

Pleasantly excited at this break in the motony ot a long hot afternoon, Helen ressed with eager expectancy.

A final fluff of powder, a final glance into e mirror at her blue-organdied slenderness, d she hurried into the library.

From a chair by the window, a tall man ose to greet her. In spite of the heat he ooked cool and faultlessly groomed. His ight gray suit was of a distinctive cut and n the desk beside him lay an expensive Panama hat.

"Mrs. Curtis?" bowing with elaborate courtesy. "I hope I 'm not intruding. I have just come from Mrs. Holden on the ninth floor."

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Holden," murmured Helen inanely, still bewildered.

"I have an exceptional proposition here of which Mrs. Holden took advantage—and she thought you also would be interested," drawing a leaflet from his pocket. "I represent the Marvin Oil Company which just now ofers a most extraordinary opportunity for a gilt-edged investment.

"Oh, I—I'm afraid you'd have to see Mr. Curtis," faltered Helen.

"Ah, but it's Mrs. Curtis I want to interest. It's the woman investor we are trying to encourage—because we have something so absolutely safe."

Helen listened politely to the many forceful arguments that followed, but she was mainly intent upon how she could word a firm but gracious refusal.

Impressed by Mr. Drexel's deep, rich voice and ponderous importance, it was going to be hard to say "No."

He spread before her an imposing array of circulars from which he glibly quoted facts and figures. He emphasized the 30 per cent annual dividend and guaranteed that within six months the stock, now a dollar a share, would be worth three. Mrs. Holden had taken five hundred shares and would probably take more.

"But Mr. Curtis would never consent to my investing in any oil stock. He's very skeptical about most stocks and particularly about—"

"Ah, Mrs. Curtis, I admit there have been many fake oil securities on the market—but because of that would you condemn them all? Think of Standard Oil! The people who invested in that thirty years ago are millionaires today. That is the opportunity I offer you now!"

He paused to emphasize this point, and to touch his moist forehead with an exquisite gray silk handkerchief.

"Oil is the world's most essential commodity. All the great ocean liners are being turned into oil burners. It saves the labor of coaling and one fireman can do the work of ten. Now we have a property here that we guarantee will yield 500,000 barrels a year, to say nothing of acreage still undeveloped. New wells are being opened up every week."

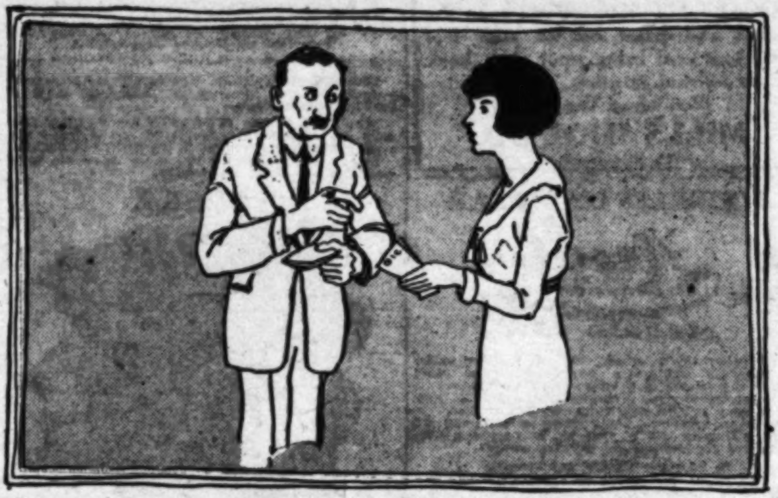
Another half hour of trip-hammer arguments in his resonant voice and Helen began to waver. There was that fifty dollars she was saving for a linen suit.

"Oh, no, not five hundred shares," as taking the sale for granted he started to fill out a certificate. 'Fifty is all I could possibly invest."

"You're missing a very rare opportunity, Mrs. Curtis. But of course," with a note of condescension, "if that is all you feel you can spare—"

"His disappointment was evident. His attitude conveyed that her surroundings would have indicated larger resources.

She felt almost apologetic, as though she had taken much of his valuable time with but little return.



It was not until after his departure that the doubts and misgivings which all along had clouded the background of her thoughts, loomed largely.

She had invested $50 in oil stock. And she had given him the money! She knew nothing of this man or his company! She had weakly yielded to his persuasive arguments because she had not had the courage to say "No."

Now she thought of a dozen excuses—a dozen ways of saying "No," with dignity and firmness. But he had made her feel that it was almost an obligation for her to invest. He had been positively patronizing in accepting her $50, implying that his time was worth more than that.

The more she thought of it the more indignant she grwe. How could she have been so foolish? Mrs. Holden! She would ask her about it, at once.

A moment later she had the Holden apartment on the phone, but the maid informed her that Mrs. Holden was out and would not be home before dinner.

The rest of the afternoon Helen spent in poring over the Marvin Oil circulars, trying to reassure herself that her $50 was safe. Certainly the arguments seemed convincing. The one that gave her the most comfort she read again and again.

"With the progressive and sound policy of its management, plus the enormous potential value of the vast areas of its holdings that have not as yet been touched, and the high efficiency of its producing, transporting, refining and marketing organization—the Marvin Company is rapidly reaching that point where it will rival even the Standard Oil."

It was after 6 when Warren came home—hot, tired and irritable. Grumbling at the heat, he did not notice Helen's worried abstraction until they were almost through dinner.

"What's the matter with you?" gulping down his third glass of ice water. "You're not very chipper."

'Oh, it's just the heat," not looking up from the radish she was peeling.

"Want to go to a roof tonight? Good show at the Rotterdam."

Helen had never felt so poor. After her outlay of $50, she shrank from the thought of Warren squandering more at an expensive roof.

"No, dear, it's too hot. We'll be much cooler here. Oh, don't drink any more ice water—you'll be sick."

If she could only tell him about it! But she dared not. He would be rabid if he found she had invested in any oil stock.

"You can't beat this for heat," grouched Warren, when he turned on the fan in the library. "Not a breath from those windows. Hello, where'd this come from?" stooping to pick up a circular the fan had blown to the floor.

MARVIN OIL COMPANY
EXTRAORDINARY OPPORTUNITY FOR THE CONSERVATIVE INVESTOR. 30 PER CENT ANNUAL DIVIDENDS GUARANTEED.

'Humph, same old bunk. Didn't know you were on a sucker list."

"That's a company Mrs. Holden's in—she bought 500 shares."

"Don't you believe it! Holden wouldn't let her touch any oil stock with a forty-foot pole."

"But, dear, it must be all right," excitedly. "I know she took $500 worth—and he said she might take more."

"Who said that?"

"Why, the representative—the man that sold the stock," reddening.

"Huh, one of those oil sharks been gunning around? Got a nerve to horn in here. What in blazes made you see him?" flinging the circulars into the waste basket.

"Oh, dear, I want to look those over," she started to rescue them.

"See here," sternly, "What're you holding out on me?" His keen gaze riveted on her flushed face.

"Why, nothing, dear," tremulously. "I just wanted to—"

"You weren't fool enough to fall for any fake stock promoter's hot air?"

"It isn't a fake! Mrs. Holden took $500 worth and I—" desperately, "I thought I could take fifty."

"What's that?" explosively. "You didn't give him the money?"

She nodded, gulping back the tightening lump in her throat.

"You hand out $50 to any smooth-talking promoter who happens to blow in?"

"Call up Mrs. Holden," hysterically. "She'll tell you it's all right. She wouldn't have taken 500 shares if—"

"Don't believe she did!" he snorted, turning to the telephone. That's only part of the con to rope you in. Hello, give me the Holdens' apartment."

With shrinking dread, Helen waited, her hands clasped tight.

"Mrs. Holden? This is Mr. Curtis. A man was here this afternoon trying to sell some oil stock to Mrs. Curtis. He said you'd bought 500 shares. Is that right? . . . Not a penny's worth. I thought so. . . . Yes, most of 'em are crooks."

Slamming up the receiver, he confronted Helen savagely.

"Well, he's trimmed you for fifty bucks, all right! You don't deserve to have it back—but I'm not going to let that bird get away with it."

Jerking out the desk drawer that held his business stationery, he selected one of his letterheads. His mouth grimly set, the next ten minutes he wrote with rapid, wrathful strokes. Then he whirled about with a vigorous, "Now listen to this:

"I find that my wife, Mrs. Warren E. Curtis, through false representation made by your agent, subscribed today for $50 worth of stock in the Marvin Oil Company.

Am returning the stock certificate by bearer and demand the return of the $50.

I might add that in my practice I have co-operated with both Federal and State authorities in investigating questionable flotation schemes and you will find it more to your advantage to return the $50 than to have any publicity given this matter."

"Guess that'll bring 'em to time," he reached for an envelope. "They won't like it, but they'd rather cough up fifty than be shown up."

"Oh, dear, how could I have been so—so gullible?"

"Next time one of these de luxe hold-up artists tries to hypnotise you—just switch 'em down to my office. I'll tell 'em where they get off."

"If I only had!" tearfully contrite.

"Well, cheer up, Kitten! Smarter folks than you have fallen for a line of smooth talk and the prospect of easy coin. "Thirty per cent dividends and your money trebled in six months! Always plenty of suckers to swallow that bait!"

When a slim little masked dancer appeared Mr. Jenkins experienced a thrill.

A Tale of Life and Love of the Prim Little Assistant Librarian—The Masked Dancer—Sunbury's Biggest Man.

THE Public Library Board of Sunbury held its meetings in the office that opened off the rear of the bookstacks. Here were assembled, on a certain evening in autumn, the gentlemen and ladies of that body. Mr. Overton of the bank was there, his hair was white now, his manner utterly calm. Mrs. William B. Snow, a well-preserved elderly lady, with views regarding proper reading for the young, sat beside young Mr. David MacLouden, whose financial gift reached always toward funds for the new building. Miss Wombast, librarian for thirty years, being ill at this time, her place at the secretary's desk was occupied by her assistant, Miss Henrietta Brown.

Mr. Elberforce Jenkins presided, a tall, quiet man of perhaps 45, who had inherited considerable wealth and made a great deal more—a man of dignity and standing, a widower, and a backer of the Chicago opera.

Mr. Jenkins disposed of the business of the meeting, and the members of the board set out for their various homes.

Left alone, Miss Brown deftly tidied up the desk, then moved about with quick, birdlike steps, replacing books and switching off the lights. During her residence in Sunbury she had come to be accepted as useful on committees; but no one ever saw her at a dance or walking with a man. She might have been under or over 30, but must have looked an old maid at 20. She never talked—never exhibited emotion.

She tripped briskly along Simpson street to the rented house that she spoke of as "home." Here lived her married sister, Mrs. George C. Battie, younger than Miss Brown, faded and tired from the demands of three young children and unending housework.

Mrs. Battie sat darning stockings. Overhead two of the children were crying vigorously.

"What's the matter with them?" asked Miss Brown.

Her sister sighed. "George always says that if I don't let them cry it out, we'll never have any discipline here. . . . What are you going to do?"

"Going out to the study."

"I wish you'd stay and talk to me. Maybe you think it doesn't get on my nerves too—with George staying in town evenings, and all the worries. . . . What do you do out there, anyway—all alone? Sometimes it seems as if we don't know you at all."

"You know I can't work in here."

"But if it's work, why don't we see results from it once in a while? And what kind of work needs a talking machine playing fox-trots? Have you supposed, all these years, we couldn't hear it—and wonder a little? Seems to me that you're—"

"You'd better go to bed, Mary," said Miss Brown quietly. "The music helps me with my work." And she went out through the kitchen into the back yard. . . .

Miss Brown had made over the small garage at the rear into a simple den, with desk aid chair, book cases, an old-fashioned round stove, a closet, and an inexpensive rug that was tacked to the floor.

She bolted the door behind her, switched on the drop-light. A soft radiance shone on the desk, with its neat piles of papers and reference books. She moved about drawing down the window-shades, and put a little coal on the fire. She sank into the desk-chair, drew toward her one of the piles of papers and fingered it.

But her eyes lfited to the cheap talking machine that stood on a small table between the book cases; then strayed to the door—she seemed to be listening. A flush crept high on her thin cheeks. The nervous eyes burned with an inner fire. She spread out a few of the papers, looked intently at them; then she replaced them on the pile and pushed that back in its place.

Then she disappeared behind the screen in the corner. Five minutes later she stepped out, attired in a light shirtwaist and gymnasium bloomers, her feet bare. And now it was evident, that this little woman had the divine gift of grace.

She moved slowly, rather lazily, about the rug, flexing her muscles—drawing her thin arms sinuously up over her head and lowering them, rising on tiptoe and swinging first one leg and then the other in a smooth, wide arc. She stood, next, with feet a little apart, lifted her arms and bent very slowly backward until her hands touched the floor, then ran lightly on hands and feet in a circle as wide as the rug.

Next Miss Brown turned a handspring, as neatly and lightly as the most expert acrobat; then another; then a rapid series. She laid a sheet of note-paper on the rug, stood on it, and threw a backward somersault, alighting squarely on the paper. She amused herself next with a few dance steps of an intricate pattern and rhythm.

She now started the talking machine playing Tchaikowsky's "Marche Miniature," and leaped into a dance. The steps were in a sense her own—a composite of bits she had seen done, and steps remembered from childhood.

There were occasional crudenesses in the transitions from step to step and posture to posture, but her quick intelligence and amazingly alert activity covered these, actually converted them into character nad color. . . . As her breath came more quickly and her bright cheeks and sparkling eyes told of the happiness she found in this perfect physical freedom, her thin face took on a degree of elfin beauty. . . . She danced a Strauss waltz, then one of the fox-trots her sister had complained of—a grotesque, made up of bounding jerky steps and lightning spins and pirouettes.

Then for a time, wrapped in an old robe, Miss Brown sat moodily before the stove. Even her sister had forgotten how prettily she had danced as a little girl, but poverty had come, and work. The sensitiveness of a thin, shy child had hardened into a forbidding self-consciousness. She could never become reconciled to that wild strain in her breast. It was bitterly real. Live with if she must. At times it terrified her.

Of recent years she had taken to arranging afternoons off and slipping into Chicago to see dancing. She slipped furtively into vaudeville houses.

Some day, she reflected as she stared grimly at the redly glowing squares of mica in the stove door, they would find her out.

During this autumn the Batties fell on troubled ways. George C., caught in the general financial confusion that followed the war, gave out. Finally they carried him to a cot in the public ward of the Sunbury hospital. His wife struggled against a rising wave of debt. Henrietta dipped into her slender savings account to help with milkman and grocer, and then took to selling her small Liberty Bonds, one by one, at a loss.

With an intensity that seemed at times to be rising into a fever of the nerves, Miss Brown sought relief in her secret outlet. She developed new steps and transitions. Looking for a novel by Henry James in an obscure corner of the book stack, she forgot herself and was nearly caught pirouetting, by two high school boys. This frightened her.

Late in October the incomparable Loupova appeared in Chicago. Miss Brown for weeks planned an afternoon off.

During the dancing, sitting alone in a front seat of the gallery, her spirit soared to the heavens as the exquisite little dancer floated about the stage. To the soft lighting and beautiful scenery, to the atmosphere of an exotically bewitching art, her starved nature opened and responded like that of an eager child. She lost her self-consciousness in an illusion that enveloped her and illuminated all that was real in her curiously dual life. She found herself going, like one in a dream, up a littered alley and knocking at a stage door.

Dreamily persistent, asking and waiting and asking again, Miss Brown found herself at length in the presence of two men—men who were fat and rough, and wore their hats tipped back and neglected to remove their cigars when they spoke. That they were rude seemed wonderfully not to matter.

She heard her own voice insisting on an opportunity to exhibit her skill. They had to consent. Otherwise she would have had to insist further. It was Destiny. It was what life had been really about all these years. . . . At half-past 7 they would see her; here on the dim, wonderful stage!

She caught the five-forty out to Sunbury, threw her dancing costume into a handbag, and caught the six-thirty back to town.

For a miserable hour she waited about the stage door, but the men did not come; the doorman mercifully let her inside then; and still she waited.

From a shadowy corner she watched Loupova as that greatest of dancers, exercised back stage; and there Miss Brown listened to the rolling waves of applause that greeted the Russian beyond the wings.

Later the two men were there; still smoking cigars; and without a self-conscious thought she presented herself before them. It was arranged then, grudgingly, that she should dance after the performance. She was given a dressing-room, where at once she prepared herself, and then, in an agony of desire for she knew not what, waited.

A languid young man sat at a piano. He couldn't play the "Marche Miniature." Impatient to begin, she cried: "Oh, play anything—a waltz—a fox-trot!"

Shaking with fright, she ventured on a few tentative steps; then, hardly aware of waht she was doing, she danced.

They talked excitedly afterward. The fatter man patted her shoulder. The languid pianist addressed her as "My dear!" The slender woman in the coat of real Russian sables, who had applauded, proved to be Loupova herself.

"But just what is it you want?" asked the less fat man. "I can't very well take you into my company."

Miss Brown was silent. For the first time this evening she was uncomfortably aware of her unconventional costume.

"How about this?" It was the fatter man speaking. He was, it transpired, a Mr. Gentle. "I can get you vaudeville bookings in a minute. I'll pay you well—what do you say to two hundred and a half?"

"Two hundred and a half?"

"Two-fifty a week. And your railroad fares and hotel rooms. And a maid, if you want one. What's your name?"

"Oh, I couldn't tell you that! I—I don't know that I could appear in public. I couldn't let people see me—" Miss Brown was now in utter confusion.

"But what's it all about, then? What did you come here for?"

"Perhaps—if I could wear a mask, or something of that sort—I couldn't let them see my face. And if I could get away—"

Doubtless they thought her crazy. She weakly asked herself if she were. Her temples were hot. She felt that she must run off, hide, scream.

On Saturday evening Mr. Jenkins looked in at the Public Library. Miss Brown, who had planned grimly to call at his home on Sunday, asked for a word with him.

"I've been wondering how to tell you this, Mr, Jenkins—" she began.

"Nothing unpleasant has happened, I trust," said he with the composure that had apparently never been ruffled, looking down at her with an impersonally gracious sort of kindness.

"Oh, no, Mr. Jenkins! And now that Miss Wombast is better, it— You see, it has been necessary for me to earn more money. And an unexpected chance has come to me—some interesting traveling. I'm afraid I—"

"I'm sure we shall miss you very much, Miss Brown." He spoke with a courtly precision. "But if you feel that you will better yourself by making the change, of course we would not wish to stand in your light. If you wish, I will give you a letter."

"Oh, no," she cried, "I sha'n't need a letter, thank you very much. It's all arranged."

To her sister, that evening, she explained:

"I'm going away tomorrow."

"Going—away?"

"It's all right, my dear. You'll have George at home again soon. I have a good position. For a while, until George gets back to work, I'll send some money every week."

"But what on earth, Henrietta! You mean—"

"I decided not to consult with you. You've had enough on your mind"

"But where are you going?"

"Traveling."

"Where?"

'All around the country. It's all right."

"But what is the job?"

"Oh—secretary. And companion."

"Who to? Henrietta it seems to me—if you're—"

"Now, do be quiet. Do you think I'm not old enough to take care of myself? I appreciate the compliment."

"But you haven't even told me who it is! Or where you'll be! Aren't we even to have an address? It seems to me that you're—"

"Silly, I told you I would be traveling! Of course I'll send you addresses from time to time."

"It sounds fishy to me, if you want to know—"

"Really, I don't want to know!"

"But—who—is—this—woman?"

Miss Brown swallowed down a lump that rose in her throat.

"It's—it's Mme. Loupova," she said, and turned white.

"Mme. Lou—What—who on earth?"

"The Russian dancer. She's really a very dignified person—a great artist."

Five weeks later George C. Battie called up Mr. Elberforce Jenkins at his home on lower Chestnut avenue and asked if he might come to discuss an exceedingly important matter.

George C. was thin and subdued after many weeks in the hospital. His suit was worn to a smooth luster on elbows and back. He was the sort of insignificant figure you see occasionally on early and late suburban trains and promptly forget.

"It's about my sister-in-law, Miss Henrietta Brown," exclaimed this person, seated in Mr. Jenkins' spacious living-room and lighting one of Mr. Jenkins' cigars.

"Oh, indeed? No trouble, I trust," murmured Mr. Jenkins, exhibiting a mildly polite interest.

"I have come to you because we need advice. My wife is beside herself with worry."

George C. felt that he should get to the aching of our heads! When we attend upon the greasy gourmet and watch him stuffing himself till the very sauces he swallows seem to work out in drops through his skin, nobody thinks it possible that we may feel positively ill with disgust and repulsion. Of course there are some waiters who become hardened—who feed their clients as a farmer feeds pigs or turkeys for killing, with no thought about it—but there are others more sensitive—like you and me, Hans—and for such as we are, the constant serving of food to the guzzling gormands of London is not an appetizing business. We deserve all the tips we can get—and we may take them with an easy conscience, Hans.

"But you must have patience. When you work up to be as I am, a head waiter—a Person in Authority—you will be more at liberty; you can turn away when the dishes are being served by the men who are under your orders; you can walk to and fro and perhaps inhale fresh air at an open window; you will not be compelled to watch the animals feed too closely. But you will have to suffer a great deal first—and you will suffer without sympathy.

"Not a soul ever thinks of a waiter's damaged digestion—a waiter's lost appetite. You must be patient."

Diet as a Business Asset.

AN INCREASING number of employers are beginning to realize that diet is a business asset in promoting efficiency among their employees.

"Vital Facts on Right Eating and Right Living" is a booklet containing facts collected from various sources (including the Care of the Body) by Richard Mayer, cotton merchant, of 200 Summer street, Boston. The advice given is sound and practical. There is also a list of health books and magazines.

On the other hand, in a weekly magazine, published by Sherman Clay & Co., a music company, I find a page entitled "Eating to Keep Fit," by Eugene Lyman Fiske, medical director of the highly subsidized and largely advertised "Life Extension Institute." Here is the dietetic advice given:

"Start off the day right with a light yet adequate breakfast of oatmeal and dates, milk, corn muffins, butter, coffee (if insisted upon, but not advised, as part of an ideal diet,) and sugar.

"The mid-day lunch should never be heavy, and it must be nourishing and palatable—kidney bean stew, whole wheat bread, prunes and cornstarch pudding.

"Dinner can be more elaborate but should never be made an opportunity to overload the stomach. For a plentiful dinner—lamb stew, potatoes, carrots, bread, butter, apricots and milk.

"The above is daily food sufficient to keep fit any man or woman who works in an office or store."

This is a typical "regular" dietary—about as bad as it could be.

Chicago Ahead.

FIFTY-THREE persons were killed by automobiles, in Chicago, during May, while in Los Angeles only twenty-seven met death in this way.

This will not do at all. The Chicago of the Southwest cannot afford to let the stockyard city get ahead of us. Something should be done about it.

"Relativity."

NO THIS isn't Einstein, but common sense.

There are a great many people who lack what phrenologists call the organ of "size." They cannot distinguish between the relative importance of things. To some, the drinking of a glass of claret is on a par with the defrauding of a widow.

Hence the many "cults" and "movements" and "reforms," that stir up a stink, for a time, but get us nowhere.

Try to be sane. Some things are bigger and more important than others.

"Beggar my Neighbor."

IN PLEADING anew for a disarmament agreement between the naval powers, Senator King referred to suspension, until a few months ago, of Great Britain's capital ship construction program. The new British plan for four super-Hood vessels of 55,000 tons of displacement, he said, appeared to be "an answer to the challenge" of this nation in proceeding with the 1916 program. The super-Hoods, he declared, [illegible] in the American Navy "ineffective if not obsolete."

When I was a boy, there was a card game called "beggar my neighbor."

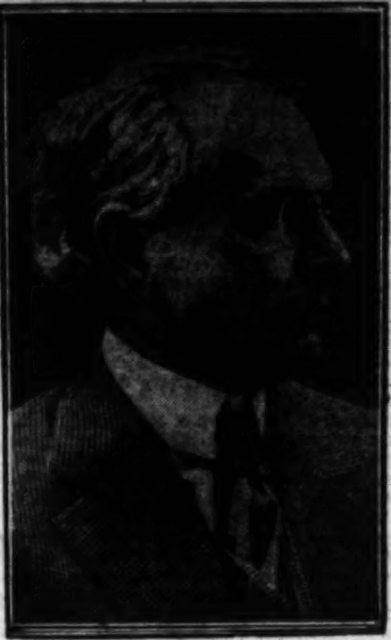
Music Translated into Color and Form

BY EDWIN HAYNES



WILLIAM MAUSLEY THOMAS. Eminent physicist, inventor of the Unision-Color instrument, electric welding and the process by which nitrates are extracted from the atmosphere.

MORE and more the secrets of nature are being discovered. By establishing relations between as yet little known vibratory forces, a method has been devised of automatically translating music into colors, an accomplishment hitherto inconceivable, as once were the telegraph, telephone, electric light, phonograph, airplane, and the wireless transmission of messages and of the human voice over lands and seas. This instrument not only translates music into colors, but projects upon the screen colored figures representing the notes sounded, which assemble into countless combinations of geometric forms of great beauty. It moreover makes practical the development of a color language whereby spoken words can be comprehended by sight alone. The invention of such an instrument requires an extensive knowledge of physics and long continued patient industry.

An inventor of high degree in some respects resembles the poet. Both have vision and see things in their deeper relations. The poet broods over his new thought and molds it into meter and rhyme; the inventor has a conception, which he makes fit known facts and laws by experiment, and one day he announces a new discovery. Often an inventor indulges in rhapsody over his devices with a frenzy akin to that of the rhyme-maker. It is his poetic faculty causing him to see visions. What he knows may warrant his extravagancies, although many, lacking in imagination, may regard him as only a dreamer of dreams.

The inventor of the instrument for translating music into colors is William Maulsby Thomas, now of Los Angeles. He began his quest for secrets of nature forty years ago. When a student he anticipated Tyndall in announcing that there are only three primary colors, red, green and violet, instead of seven as held by Sir Isaac Newton. This claim he proved to the college professors and his fellow-students by spinning a top painted with red, green and violet, which by its revolutions caused the colors to coalesce and produce white. The intermediate colors of the spectrum band are formed by the lapping of the primaries—orange and yellow being formed by the fusion of red and green in varying proportions, and blue and indigo by the combination of green and violet.

The Process of Welding Metals by Electricity This Inventor's Work.

AN EARLY discovery of this inventor was a process of welding metals by the agency of electricity. He was engaged at the time in effecting an improvement of the arc-light by capping a copper or brass rod with iridium. This invention resulted in the extensive adoption of electric welding in the industrial arts to the great advantage of manufacturers. He was also one of the first investigators to evolve a method of extracting nitrates from the atmosphere. His discoveries in this field were extensively reported at the time by the Scientific American and other leading technical journals. During the last five years he has devoted himself to problems relating to colors, including color photography, color-music and mechanical color designing.

The perfection of his unison color-music instrument, as he terms it, is one of his recent and important achievements. As the problem involved the translation of one vibratory force, acting through air as a medium, automatically, into the terms of another vibratory force, operating through another and finer medium, the accomplishment is of unusual interest. The instrument not only translates sounds into colors, but projects them upon a screen in an infinite variety of beautiful forms. The modus is such that the notes of a singing voice, of a single musical instrument, of any number of voices and instruments, as in opera or concert, the harmonies of a symphony, are all translated with equal facility and precision.

Agencies Which Produce Sound and Colors.

A BETTER understanding of the subject is gained by taking into account the agencies which produce sound and colors and some of the analogies existing between music and colors. As is well known, sound is produced by air vibrations of varying intensities, impinging upon the tympanic membrane which separates the outer from the inner ear. If these impulses flow smoothly and have a perfect periodicity the result is music; when there is an irregular succession of shocks which jar the auditory nerves the result is noise. The human ear is limited in its range of hearing musical sounds. Vibrations of less than sixteen a second have the effect of a succession of shocks only, and consciousness of sound entirely ceases when the vibrations exceed about 38,000 a second. The range of music is ordinarily about seven octaves, although for some persons it is as many as eleven octaves. The pitch of sound is determined by the rapidity of the air vibrations and the intensity of sound by their amplitude. Colors are produced by vibrations of varying frequencies conveyed to the retina of the eye through a medium, which has been defined as luminiferous ether, but which the discovery of the electron may cause to be given another designation. According to physicists white solar light is a blending of lights of different colors, which have different degrees of refrangibility. A natural object does not create its color. When the light of the sun impinges upon it, the body absorbs some of the constituent color lights of the solar ray and rejects others. It is the rejected portion of white light which gives the natural body its color.

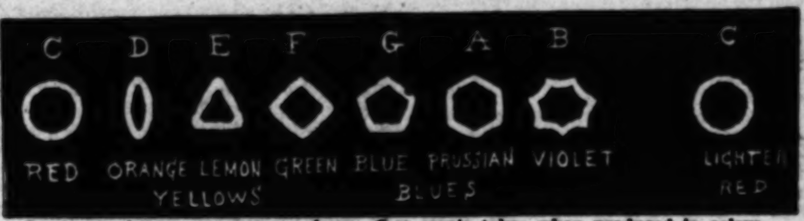
Some Analogies Between Music and Colors.

AS REGARDS the analogies existing between music and colors, since the time of the old Greek philosophers allusions have been made to the fact that colors in some respect resemble sound. Modern speech and literature abound in words and phrases which indicate that sound and color are to some extent associated. A color is sometimes described as loud or quiet, music as bright or colorful. Dull, somber, gay, gloomy, flamboyant, harmonious, discordant, strong, delicate and many other words are applied to both colors and music. A striking analogy was disclosed when Newton obtained the spectrum band by passing a ray of sunlight through a prism, showing that there is an octave of color as of music. The limitations to the audibility of sound vibrations have a parallel in the limitations to the visibility of light vibrations, which become invisible below the red at the lower end of the spectrum and also above the violet at the upper end of the spectrum. Another interesting correspondence between sound and color consists in the fact that the rate of vibration at the upper end of the musical octave is double the rate at the lower end, and that the same numerical relationship exists between the vibrations at the upper and lower ends of the color octave. The musical octave is repeated at different pitches, as is well known and well illustrated by the organ or pianoforte; the color octave also varies in degrees of intensity corresponding in a manner with musical pitches. There are also harmonies and discords in music; and enjoyable harmonies and contrasts and displeasing almost painful contrasts in colors.

Geometric figures representing forms that music takes when produced on the screens.

First Attempt at Color-music Made in England.

SOME years ago in England these analogies prompted an attempt to develop color-music or an art of mobile color. It was contended by its advocates that combinations and sequences of color into which time relations could be introduced would be capable of acting upon the emotions in a manner somewhat analogous to that by which they are affected by music. To demonstrate this theory A. Wallace Rimington, professor of Fine Arts, Queen's College, London, designed an instrument, which he calls a color-organ. In pursuit of his object of expressing ideas by sequences of colors he used musical methods by establishing relations between the spectrum band and the musical octave; by giving the color-organ a keyboard and providing for its control by the use of stops; and by making provision for higher and lower color octaves. This instrument is extremely complicated with its colored slides, pneumatic control-tubes, and intricate and delicate mechanisms, and is almost as costly as a public building. Its capacity is naturally limited to the manipulation of the keyboard by the executant. The colors displayed on the screen are formless. Color-music, disassociated with audible music, has never had many adherents; as an accompaniment of audible music it makes a wider appeal to favor. Exhibitions by the color-organ, in accompaniment with orchestral music, are well attended in Europe and in this country. The purity of the colors and the many unusual tones and tints are attractive features but interest in the display is principally aroused by its novelty. With its many limitations the color-organ is far from satisfactory. Its principal defect is its inability to give form to the colors projected upon the screen.



Geometric figures representing forms that music takes when produced in colors.

New Instrument Translates Music Into Colored Forms Automatically.

AS COMPARED to the color-organ the new instrument has improved upon its predecessor in several important respects. The two instruments are constructed upon entirely different principles. While the Thomas invention does not convert sound vibrations into color vibrations the effect is the same as if that impossibility were accomplished. It presents a striking contrast to the other instrument in its proportions; whereas the color-organ is exceedingly complicated and costly the new device is so simple and compact that it is almost as portable as a suitcase and is comparatively inexpensive. In the results produced by the two instruments there is a still greater contrast. The color-organ is limited to a display of colors, in sequence, without form, in correspondence with a musical score adapted to the keyboard alone; the union-color instrument gives a representation in colors of all kinds of vocal and instrumental music and of all kinds of sound automatically. Whatever the sound vibrations may be they are translated into the corresponding color vibrations and made visible in color and form upon a screen, simple sounds as well as music—the bark of a dog, the mewing of a cat, the hoot of an owl, the cry of a wild beast, the noise made by a passing road cart. So responsive is the instrument to all sounds that in the translation of music, extraneous noises must be excluded. In the translation of the music of a piano, violin, phonograph, or other instrument, it can be confined to the music alone by making an electrical connection between the musical and union-color instrument. It is a curious and interesting fact that this protection can also be given to vocal music. At a recent exhibition of the Thomas invention, during the singing of a solo one of the auditors gave an exclamation of delight. No provision having been made to exclude extraneous sounds the exclamation was registered upon the screen with the characteristics of the note sounded as to color, form and tempo.

The most striking feature of the invention to the casual observer and one that greatly differentiates it from the color-organ is its faculty of giving form to the colors displayed. For each note of the musical octave there is a well defined, invariable, geometric form. The colors take on all kinds of shapes: waving lines, bars, circles, triangles, quadrangles and other geometric figures in infinite variety. An opera, an orchestral performance of a symphony, would present on the screen a succession of colored forms wonderful to behold. A translation of an opera by Wagner would display at intervals whirling masses of color forms in correspondence with the sudden outbursts of clangtones characteristic of that composer. It is within the capacity of this instrument to embellish all kinds of music, each according to its nature and quality.

The comparatively low cost of the Thomas instrument will admit of its use in the operahouse, concert halls, theaters, churches, the home, wherever music is produced. To get an instrument in readiness to translate the performances of an orchestra, chorus or church choir it is only necessary to place it in a suitable position, connect it with an electric light of sufficient power and provide a screen for the color forms.

Should the embellishment of music by such an instrument become extensively practiced it will have, the inventor says, an educational influence of far-reaching importance. In many the color sense is only slightly developed. The untrained mountaineer or tiller of the soil misses the beautiful color displays which abound in nature. Much is missed also, in nature and art, by dwellers in cities and towns, otherwise well educated, because of their limited knowledge of color values. Their color perception, improved by the frequent observance of translated music with its presentation of the finer shades of color, would materially increase their capacity for enjoyment. A walk through city streets or a ride into the country would afford them much of interest otherwise unobserved.

A curious and interesting feature of the device is that it can be used to advantage in the training of students of vocal and instrumental music. The synchronism of the air and light vibrations is so complete that an error committed by the student will be instantly registered upon the screen. If a note is correctly sounded the color figure will be quiescent; if erroneously sharped it will turn on its center in one direction, while if flatted it will turn in the opposite direction. The eye will thus assist the ear in attaining precision.

A Color Language for Deafmutes May be Worked Out.

A STILL more important use of the instrument will be its employment for the instruction and entertainment of deafmutes. It is the intention of the inventor to develop a color language. This will be phonetic in character and as readily comprehended as the oral language of which it will be a translation. The advantage of such a language is obvious; it would remove the barrier between a lecturer or reader and the deafmutes addressed in a classroom or public auditorium.

Owing to the refinement of their sense of sight deafmutes may be able to derive great enjoyment from music translations as regards the forms and colors displayed; and it is also within probability that they can follow the dialogue of speaking dramas as phonetically depicted by the union-color instrument.

CARE OF THE BODY.

times he came and lanced those inflamed tonsils, but 'didn't hit the spot' as he said, so I had to bear it, until they broke of their own accord.

"Finally I went to a 'specialist' in Ann Arbor, Mich., and he 'sliced them off.' I thought my troubles were ended then. Soon after I came to California, in hopes that climatic conditions might help me.

"Every winter the same old story—tonsilitis and quinsy again. I went to a doctor and he sliced them off again. My tonsils reminded me of tomatoes, sliced in two. They just seemed to be full of those mucous plugs, that I could taste, if I ever had the least bit of a cold.

"Finally, after a severe attack of quinsy, another 'specialist' told me that as soon as I regained my strength I should have those tonsil stubs taken out entirely, and my troubles would then be over. So I did that. Words cannot describe the torture and agony I endured. He proceeded to take the roots out. He said they couldn't come out whole for they had grown to my throat since being so mutilated on those previous occasions. How this specialist condemned any M.D. that would cut off, or slice off a person's tonsils. "Why," he said, "it's like cutting down a weed only to grow again, and they only get full of mucus and it decays in them and keeps them irritated and inflamed all the time.'

"Yes, my sore throat was to be ended now, but was it? I say it wasn't. I still had those mucus plugs in the throat and I could see the same conditions existing farther down the throat. I could see it would be my neck off, if I went to any more specialists. It made me do some thinking, after reading the Care of the Body, and I figured it out like this: That is not food lodging and decaying, but it is filth from my blood, trying to get out.

"After following your advice for a week, I can see the swelling going out of my throat, and only one faint trace of a spot in my throat. I hope to get my blood completely cleaned out of all that waste, that has been accumulating for years.

"My advice to other sufferers is—don't let anyone touch a knife to the throat. Get back farther than that, to the blood, and you won't have any diseased tonsils."

In the Daily Mirror (London) Dr. Kynaston writes:

"It may be thought that unnecessary operations for adenoids and tonsils are a small matter compared to a cure for consumption, but it is not so. In this week's British Medical Journal stress is laid upon the fact that nasal catarrh precedes consumption; that 80 per cent of cases in dispensary practice suffer from this complaint.

"Now, the essential factor in my treatment is that adenoids and enlarged tonsils are not a disease, but are merely the result of nature's method of defending the body from the assaults of catarrh germs, which invariably prepare the way for the invasion of the deadly tubercle bacillus.

"It is, therefore, not surprising to find that spinal, hip joint and other tubercular diseases are usually preceded by nasal catarrh.

"The unjustifiable removal of enlarged tonsils and adenoids destroys nature's defensive mechanism, and most of the little sufferers from tubercular diseases have succumbed only because they were left defenseless, by having been unnecessarily submitted to this surgical abomination."

As the Waiter Sees It.

HAVE you ever thought what a waiter in a restaurant or hotel has to endure? Following is from an article in an eastern magazine by Marie Corelli. The chief waiter is speaking to a revolting subordinate:

"Hans, my boy, you will get over it. I suffered in the same way once—I thought I should never be able to stand it. The steady, determined eating and drinking of persons who have never known either hunger or thirst seemed to me like a [illegible] or a crime.

"To be a waiter in a fashionable restaurant involves much self-denial—much endurance! Nobody thinks of this—no one imagines the revolt of our stomachs—the

Fight on The Rio Tonto Reservation

BY WILLIAM SPARKS.

THE horse wrangler had just brought in the "remuda," or herd of saddle horses, when Liscomb, the range boss, gathered up his riata and running enough of it through the hondo, or eye, to make a loop large enough to catch his horse with, flung it out on the ground in front of him with a twist that removed its several kinks. He then strode away from the bunch of cowboys, who were standing around the cook's campfire toward the horses; saying, as he went:

"Catch your best horses this morning, fellows, for we are going to have a hard day's work. We'll go over to Middle Prong and work Brushy Basin, and bring in all the steers we find, that are fat enough for beef, as we come back."

The cowboys reluctantly left the warmth of the blazing campfire, and going to their saddles that were lying scattered around on the ground, where their horses had been unsaddled the evening before, picked up their ropes. Then walking over to where the remuda had been driven into the horse corral, each of them flung his loop over the horse he intended to ride that day.

"I'll ride Dynamite, I believe," said Joe Turnbull, the broncho buster, as he deftly flipped his rope over the head of a large black in the center of the bunch of now restless horses. As the rope fell around his head, the animal gave a leap and snort that proclaimed it to be what cowboys call "An outlaw horse." That is, one that had never been thoroughly broken, and that was always ready to pitch and buck at every opportunity.

As the black surged through the milling horses, Joe threw himself backward and clutched the straining rope with his left hand. His right, also grasping it, was braced against his right hip, while his bootheels were digging into and plowing up the ground as the bounding horse almost dragged him into the remuda.

"I think I'll ride Rusty today," said a short, gray-eyed youngster, named Maxson, as he flung his rope over another flashing-eyed bronco, a dun with black mane and tail, whose red nostrils were swelling with disgusted snort as he gingerly stepped out of the corral and followed his captors to the waiting saddle.

All the other horses that were caught up were gentle, and there was no further commotion until Joe, his left hand stretched out toward his horse's head and grasping the rein and cheek-strap of the bridle, pulled the black's muzzle around toward him as he grabbed the saddle-horn with the other hand, and leaped into the saddle, his feet finding the stirrups as he leaped.

He had no more than hit the saddle when the black gave a great bound. Then, stopping for the fraction of a second, he humped his back like an angry cat, and as Joe dug the spurs into his sides, leaped and whirled in mid-air, coming down on the ground with stiff legs, and a jar that could be easily felt by the now deeply interested cowboys. With his head down between his feet, he bucked straight away for a dozen leaps, and then whirling, first to the right, and then to the left, he kicked, and reared, and kicked, with insane fury.

It was a useless exhibition, so far as the black horse was concerned. But the watching cow-hands enjoyed it greatly, yelling words of encouragement to the horse and advice to the rider, neither of whom paid the slightest attention. At last the rider felt the animal beneath him give a slight quiver, and knowing he had conquered for that day, his right hand reached up to his head and grasped his hat. Swinging the hat in a wide circle, as he again raked the horse's ribs with his spurs, he struck the black's flanks with a noise almost as loud as a rifle shot. The horse bounded ahead and made for the level valley, over which they must travel. As he settled down to a steady run, the rider looked back over his shoulder with a grin. "Wild horses, and wild men," he cried as he slapped the running bronc's flank with his hat again and again.

Maxson, after some difficulty, got the saddle and bridle on his bronc, and winding his rope into a coil, stepped up to the horse's side, and removing the loose end of the saddle string from the saddle horn, wound it round the coils of hemp. Then placing it over the horn again, he had his rope ready for instant use.

The bronc had stood quietly while this was being done, with his head turned slightly toward the man at his side, just enough that his now sleepy looking eye could see all that was being done. "Hell," said Maxson, "he ain't goin' to do anything this morning," and he drew his paper and tobacco out of his pocket and commenced rolling a cigarette.

"Don't you think," said Liscomb, "he won't do anything on a frosty morning like this—" The sentence was never finished, for the horse had measured the distance now, and with a leap he whirled and let both iron-shod heels drive at his master.

But Maxson was not so careless as he appeared to be, and when the horse's heels arrived at the point where the cowboy's abdomen had been an instant before, they found only empty space.

The horse instantly resumed his sleepy pose. The cowboy finished rolling and lighting his cigarette and, picking up the bridle rein that had been lying on the ground, he flipped it over the horse's head. Then grasping it and a handful of mane in his left hand, and the stirrup with his right, he placed his foot in the latter, caught the saddle-horn and swung into the saddle.

The horse stood sullenly for several seconds. The cowboy clucked to him, like a mother hen to her chickens, but it had no effect. Then, gently at first, he slapped the horse's sides with the quirt that hung by a thong from his wrist.

The horse's feet did not move, but the man felt the bronc's body swelling as he drew in his breath for the struggle the rider now knew could not be averted, and with a shrill yell, he slashed and spurred, with quirt and rowel, as the animal sprang into action.

For several moments the big dun pitched and slashed out with his hind feet. Then, suddenly stopping, with a jerk that almost sent his rider over his head, he "sulled" and refused to move. Maxson sat patiently for a moment or two, until the horse seemingly believing his rider was off his guard, without the preliminary movement of a muscle, gave a great bound and came down on the ground with stiff, set legs. His arched back immediately dropped to its normal position, but as he gave another leap, again humped up with the speed of a suddenly released spring.

But although Maxson showed some signs of what one of his watching companions called embarrassment, he still held his seat. At last the horse, seeming to realize that he could not shake off the cause of his trouble in that way, gave a great leap and, rearing up on his hind feet, fell over on his back.

There was now a chorus of advice and imprecations from the watchers. For a horse that falls back in an attempt to injure his rider is the most thoroughly despised of all horses. "Kick his ribs in!" said Johnny Hopkins. "Jump on his head!" yelled Billie Boudin. But Maxson, his head bare, and his breath coming in gasps, paid no attention to them. At last he said to Liscomb, who had mounted and rode up to where Maxson was standing by the prostrate horse's head:

"He'll be all right now. I'll let him lay a minute or two, and when he gets up, he'll be through for the day. He seems to have just so many tricks in his box that he must pull off whenever he feels like things ain't goin' right. When he's got 'em all off his chest, the show's over until he gets the sulks again."

Sure enough, after a moment or two of waiting, when Maxson shook the bridle rein and clucked to him, the horse rolled over until his front feet were doubled back under him, and his hind feet drawn up as though he was taking a well-earned rest. Then, as Maxson gently tapped him with his quirt, he threw out his front feet and, with a lunge, arose to a standing position. Sneezing the dirt from his nostrils and mouth, he turned as mild an eye as any old carriage horse could show upon his late antagonist. Then, taking a step toward him, reached out and rubbed the chaps of the latter with his nose in an almost affectionate manner.

"You see," said Maxson, who was a native son of the Golden State, while most of his companions were from Texas, "he's all right, he's a mighty smart horse, but he has evidently been broken by some double-cinched Texan, and he thinks all this is a part of the play, and that he has it to do." And with a look of scorn at the double-cinched saddles of his friends, he stepped to the stirrup and swung into the seat.

Liscomb led off in the direction Joe had taken, and, turning the pack mules and extra saddle horses in behind him, the others, following at a slow trot, soon overtook the horse-breaker, who had stopped to wait for them as soon as his bronc had become quiet enough to stand.

Both camp and range were on the Rio Ponto Indian Reservation in Arizona; where only those who had contracts to furnish beef to the Indians, or for the soldiers stationed at the agency and fort, could get permits to run cattle. Sheep were not permitted on the reserve under any circumstances.

There had been reports circulating among the cow camps for several months of trouble brewing between the cowmen and sheepmen of New Mexico, and only a few weeks before, a prospector, who stopped over night at the Flying H camp, had told them a large band of New Mexican sheep had been driven across the line dividing the two territories, and onto the K L cow range.

But he had given a detailed and circumstantial account of how the two brothers who owned the K L brand, with their sons and ranch men, had attacked the sheep camp just before daylight and, after shooting up the camp of the surprised Mexican herders, had rode among the stampeded sheep and killed a hundred or more as a warning to sheep owners who might cast covetous eyes on the fat grass land of the K L range.

The Mexican herder, he said, had gathered their woolly charges together as soon as the cowmen rode away and started back for the already overstocked ranges of New Mexico.

Although the promptness of the K L people in taking action to protect their property at once, before the country was overran with sheep, was highly commended by the Flying H cowboys, they had no personal interest in the matter. The Flying H cattle ranged on the Indian reservation, and even if the sheep should come that far, the cowmen on the reserve had only to notify the Indian agent, and soldiers or Indian police would remove the intruders at once.

There had been many so-called wars on the western ranges between cowmen and sheepmen, for cattle and sheep will not run on the same range if it is stocked to a point anywhere near its capacity. The scent of sheep is very obnoxious to cattle that have not been accustomed to them from calfhood, and when sheep are brought upon a cow range, the cattle will drift, or leave the neighborhood of the places where the sheep are run, for other feeding grounds.

Sheep also destroy the range they feed upon, when run as they were in those days, before there was any regulation of the industry by either State or nation. The Federal government now permits sheep on only certain parts of the Forest Reserve, but at the time we are writing of, no one had even dreamed of Forest Reserve; and there was no authority higher than themselves to partition out the public domain into ranges for either cattle or sheep.

The Legislatures of Arizona and New Mexico have since passed laws that provide sheep men with specific routes to move their sheep over when traveling from breeding ground to lambing ground, or from summer range to winter range and shearing pens. And sheep in cow ranges are so regulated by law that trouble between the two industries are seldom heard of now.

In the old days, the cowmen were the first to occupy almost all the stock ranges of the West; but after a time men of less adventurous temperament discovered that sheep, of a breed that would produce both good wool and good mutton, were very profitable.

There had been sheep in New Mexico almost since the days of Coronado, and after the country had been subdued by the cowmen, several Americans purchased bands of the scrubby, mangy, Mexican sheep, and proceeded to cross them with sheep of the best wool and mutton varieties. Sheep multiply very quickly when the conditions are right, and as the native Mexican soon discovered the value of their breeding herds, when properly cared for, it was not long until the sheep ranges were overstocked, and if new ranges were not found, the sheepmen not only could not increase their herds, but many of the sheep they already owned would die for want of food.

This was the state of affairs in Northwestern New Mexico at the time this story began. Sheep on the open range must be driven in close-herded bands to protect them from wild animals, and loss by straying. Herded closely together as they travel over the grass land, especially during seasons of drought, they bite the grass close down to the ground, much shorter than either cattle or horses, which has a tendency to stunt the grass, or prevent it from growing so quickly as it otherwise would do.

Then, their sharp-toed little feet dig into the dry ground and destroy the roots so that in many places it has been possible to stand on a high point and discern the exact route, or feeding ground, of sheep, several years after they had disappeared from the range.

As the sheep increased, and the ranges were eaten out, the sheepmen would employ fighting men, usually renegade Mexicans from Mexico, to protect their sheep herders, and send them over onto the ranges of the cowmen. Of course, if the cowmen did not drive further on to a new range or sell his cattle, usually at a great loss—for the exodus of the sheep always comes in dry seasons when the cattle were too poor for beef, and in many instances too poor to be driven off the range—they would die of starvation.

The cowmen felt a proprietary interest in the land where his cattle roamed at will, although it was—except in certain instances where men of large capital had acquired Mexican land grants—public domain. Neither did he like to have strangers come in and displace him without paying one cent of damages, or even apologizing for their behavior.

For, at that time, when Indians and outlaws still made the frontier a trifle hazardous, the men who owned sheep and the men who owned cattle were on different breed. There was more and quicker money in sheep. The wool would often pay all the expenses of running them, and leave a good profit. And the meat of the sheep, when they became too old for wool, would bring as much per pound as the finest beef steer.

But it was very seldom that a cowman would become a sheepman. There was a decided difference in the temperament and character of the men who went into the two lines of industry. The cowmen were usually open-handed, free spenders of money, who enjoyed a life in the open, riding among their herds, and living among the cowboys.

Sheep owners seldom lived near their ranges, and only gave them such supervision as was necessary to see that their foremen attended to their duties. No man ever heard of a successful sheepman parting with a dollar he could hold fast to. In fact, most of the big bands of sheep were owned by bankers, who looked to the ultimate dollar in profits, and who cared not at all for the imponderable things that unconsciously drew and held men in the cattle business.

When the sheep ranges became overstocked, the owners gave their foremen orders to employ Mexican bad men to protect their sheep, and to move the herd over onto the ranges occupied by the cowmen's cattle. But in no instance did a sheepman himself go with these herds when there was known danger of trouble. Cowmen—that is, real cowmen, who had grown up with their herds, not capitalists who had only invested money in cattle—when their property and rights were threatened, usually led their men when the trouble began.

The cowman, of course, claimed that although his herds ranged over the public domain, it was rightly his range, because he had first utilized it. The sheepman, in his own defense, pointed to the fact that the ranges were public property, and belonged as much to one man as to another. He said, too, that the only reason the cowman did not try to occupy the sheep ranges was, that because of the antipathy of cattle to sheep, and that the sheep kept the grass eaten down so short that cows could not exist.

But none of these things affected the cowboys of the Flying H ranch. It was one of the largest cow ranches in America. The owners—like most of the sheep owners—were eastern bankers who never visited the ranch, but depended entirely upon the manager and superintendent to look after their property. They were as impersonal to the men who rode their range as any other stranger, and, while the cowboys, of course, felt a certain loyalty to the great ranch, they were not fighting men and, had they known that the sheep were on the range, they would certainly have indignantly refused, had anyone suggested that they should kill or be killed in a controversy that did not concern them. And they knew, too, that there was no necessity for any more trouble than was required to ride to the agency and report the presence of trespassers on the reservation.

There were seven cowboys in the party—Dan Warren, Ed Hopkins, Pete Sibley, Tom Maxson, Joe Turnbull, Billy Boudin and Bruce Liscomb, the range boss. Sibley had ridden into camp the evening before with orders from the foreman to Liscomb to gather several hundred beef steers for the next delivery on the beef contract for the Indian Agency, and they were now starting out to gather the cattle.

The valley that separated the hills in which their camp was located from the hills in which Brushy Basin was situated was several miles in width. Long before they had crossed it the sun came out, but it was a midwinter morning, and as the altitude reality suffering from a psychosis, or mental perturbation, induced by unreasoning fear on the part of the deluded sufferer."

Any dog is likely to go mad in hot weather, if it is fed on rotten food, which causes worms, is deprived of water, and treated brutally. Men go mad on the desert, and froth at the mouth, when they are out of water, under a burning sun. No one, however, thinks of accusing them of hydrophobia.

Following, on this subject, from the Troy (N. Y.) Standard, is good. The writer was commenting on the cruelty of people who go away for a vacation and leave their faithful dogs to thirst and starvation:

"A dog wanders away from his owner, or, with careless disregard, the master loses heed of the bewildered animal in a city throng. Frightened, and his usual level wits topsy-turvy, the dog runs about, seeking to find his way home. He gets tired and thirsty, his jaws become foam-flecked, just as do those of a horse driven hard in the summer sun. Impish boys, whose hearts know no tenderness, see the dog running about and stone him as they chase him. The dog, fleeing from his pursuers, stung by missiles and frightened by yells, naturally snaps at those who try to stop him.

"Immediately the cry goes up, 'Mad dog.' A crowd pursues the animal until he is cornered, shot and killed. The people, not the dog, are mad."

Venia Kercheval writes:

"We probably would never be cursed with such a thing as rabies, were it not for the fact that animals are deliberately artificially inoculated with the disease, in serum factories and laboratories, and they may get loose, accidentally, or otherwise, but this is the only genuine menace that I know of."

"Captains Courageous."

A FEW weeks ago the Gloucester fishing schooner Esperante, winner of the international championship fishing races, last fall, foundered at Sable Island after striking a submerged wreck. The crew were saved.

These hardy fishermen, depicted by Connolly in his stories, and by Kipling in "Captains Courageous," who sail "out o' Gloucester" with their little craft in gales that make captains of ocean liners hesitate, are among the salt of the earth, and a credit to American manhood.

Jewish Nationality.

WILL C. WOOD, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has ruled that Jewish religious schools are not included in the foreign language school bill signed by Gov. Stephens. The law applies only to languages taught in foreign nations, and the Jews do not constitute a nation, Wood said.

Many Jews claim they are a scattered nation, and seek to materialize their nationality in Palestine.

Cost of Ignorance.

THE cost of medical treatment has increased until it causes bankruptcy and ruin among those who are so ignorant and foolish as to resort to "eminent physicians," "specialists," trained nurses and hospitals, all stumbling blocks in the way of health.

Merely from a financial viewpoint, it would well pay you to learn how to live, so that you will not get sick.

Subsidized Drama.

WE SUBSIDIZE public libraries; why not a public playhouse where sterling dramas may be presented?

The stage has largely replaced the printed page among millions. Producers say it does not pay to put on really good plays. I think they are mistaken. The community theater at Berkeley, Cal., more than pays expenses. A municipal theater should at least "break even." Or, if it lost something, it would still be a good investment.

Why Babies Die.

HUNDREDS of thousands of babies die in this country every year, because the mothers cannot nurse them. An ever-increasing number of women find themselves in this deplorable condition. Why? Because they eat largely of devitalized or starvation foods, lacking the essential mineral elements.

Nothing can fully take the place of mother's milk. Bottle-fed babies may look plump, but they have no resistance, and Writing in Physical Culture, Alfred McCann declares that 150,000 of the quarter millions of infants that die every year in the United States might be alive, if they were breast fed.

By eating right of natural foods, during pregnancy, mothers may insure milk for their infants and an easy delivery.

Tonsils.

IT IS encouraging to note that an increasing number of intelligent physicians are protesting against the criminally absurd mania for cutting out the tonsils—necessary organs of the body—to cure diseases that are due to the accumulation of waste matter in the blood, of which inflamed tonsils are only a symptom. One of my consultants, a Long Beach woman, thus tells her experience:

"Since a child I have been subject to attacks of tonsilitis and quinsy. I had one of the 'very best' doctors attending me. Three

Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD, when adhering closely to the body, cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended, so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 298, St. Louis, Mo., for Free trial Plapao and the information necessary.—[Advertisement.

Fight on The Rio Tonto Reservation

BY WILLIAM SPARKS.

THE horse wrangler had just brought in the "remuda," or herd of saddle horses, when Liscomb, the range boss, gathered up his riata and running enough of it through the hondo, or eye, to make a loop large enough to catch his horse with, flung it out on the ground in front of him with a twist that removed its several kinks. He then strode away from the bunch of cowboys, who were standing around the cook's campfire toward the horses; saying, as he went:

"Catch your best horses this morning, fellows, for we are going to have a hard day's work. We'll go over to Middle Prong and work Brushy Basin, and bring in all the

"Don't you think," said Liscomb, "he won't do anything on a frosty morning like this—" The sentence was never finished, for the horse had measured the distance now, and with a leap he whirled and let both iron-shod heels drive at his master.

But Maxson was not so careless as he appeared to be, and when the horse's heels arrived at the point where the cowboy's abdomen had been an instant before, they found only empty space.

The horse instantly resumed his sleepy pose. The cowboy finished rolling and light-run cattle. Sheep were not permitted on the reserve under any circumstances.

There had been reports circulating among the cow camps for several months of trouble brewing between the cowmen and sheepmen of New Mexico, and only a few weeks before, a prospector, who stopped over night at the Flying H camp, had told them a large band of New Mexican sheep had been driven across the line dividing the two territories, and onto the K L cow range.

But he had given a detailed and circumstantial account of how the two brothers was nearly 6000 feet, the rarified atmosphere was still quite cold.

As the sheep increased, and the ranges were eaten out, the sheepmen would employ fighting men, usually renegade Mexicans from Mexico, to protect their sheep herders, and send them over onto the ranges of the cowmen. Of course, if the cowmen did not drive further on to a new range or sell his cattle, usually at a great loss—for the exodus of the sheep always comes in dry seasons when the cattle were too poor for beef, and in many instances too poor to be driven off the range—they would die of starvation.

But as they rode along, they joked and whistled and sang, in the way men who live in the mountain solitudes often do, when thrown together for a round-up or drive. When a jackrabbit sprang up near the cavalcade, Sibley drew his six-shooter and fired four shots at him as he disappeared in a ravine. Then, spurring his horse, he rode up to Boudin. "Loan me four or five cartridges," he said. Boudin eyed him with simulated disgust. "Not today. You just come from headquarters ranch and store. Why didn't you buy yourself some cartridges."

"I intended to," said Sibley, "but I forgot about them."

"Well, quit shooting at jackrabbits for a while, then. Cartridges cost 5 cents apiece; you might just as well throw the money at them as the lead; you never hit anything, anyway."

"Oh, give me enough to load my gun with," said Sibley. "We'll be going to the agency with this bunch of steers, and I'll get some and pay you back."

"I'll give you three. That's all I can spare. There are lots of deer in the basin, and I'm hungry for venison," said Boudin, drawing three cartridges from the loops on his belt and handing them to Sibley.

"If this outfit gets any venison, Dan will have to bring it in," said Hopkins. "You will never get to see any more of a deer than his white tail going over the brush; you make too much noise to get one with a six-shooter."

The country they were going toward was very brushy and rough, and in running through the brush, or in roping any wild steer that might try to break out of the hold-up bunch, a rifle would be very much in the way. For that reason all except Warren, who carried a light saddle gun, had left their rifles in camp, although all but Turnbull carried six-shooters.

"Maxson, take Ed and Billy and ride up on that mesa to the left, and turn any gentle cattle you find down into the gulch at the forks for a hold-up bunch," said Liscomb, "and," he added, "if we are not there ahead of you, wait until we come."

Hopkins, Maxson and Boudin galloped off to the right, toward a low, flat-topped mesa, while the rest of the cavalcade, encumbered with pack mules and saddle horses, turned up a narrow gulch that opened out here in the valley. The gulch grew narrower, until it became a canyon. The trail wound around among trees and boulders for several miles, but at last they came to the forks where the trail left the creek and ran up a long ridge to the rim of Brushy Basin. Just as they arrived at a point where they could see the open country ahead of them, Liscomb reined up his horse and, pointing at the ground, ahead, said, "There have been sheep here this morning. Where the devil do you suppose they come from?"

"Maybe that bunch of Mexicans the K. L. outfit got after, circled and came down into this country," said Turnbull.

"Well, if they did, they will soon have to get out," said the range boss. "We'll notify the agent when we get in with this bunch of beef, and have them fired off the reservation."

As the party rode out at the head of the canyon, they saw the sheep camped near the trail they must follow to reach the Brushy Basin by the shortest route.

A small, low corral had been built of loose rock on a slight eminence above a spring of water. From the inside of this there arose a small volume of smoke. Liscomb and his party could see Maxson and Hopkins standing among eight or nine Mexicans inside the corral. The three cow ponies were standing, with bridle reins thrown over their heads, a short distance below the camp. The gentle cattle Maxson and his companions had brought along to use as a decoy herd, into which they could drive the wild cattle of the Basin, were grazing on the trail some distance from the sheep corral.

As Liscomb and his men turned the pack and saddle animals up the point, they heard the crack of a rifle. With the sound of the gun, the crowd of men in the corral sprang into swift action. Maxson, Hopkins, and the Mexicans sprang out over opposite sides of the wall, firing at each other as they did so. At the same time, shots were heard from the opposite side of the gulch. Several bullets struck the rocks near them, and glancing off, buzzed and sang like monster hornets, as they flew away. "Come on," yelled Liscomb, "They are fighting up there." And, followed by his men, he spurred up to the corral. He drew his gun as he rode, and fired at the nearest Mexican. But the back of a cow pony, bouncing over a steep hillside, is a very unsatisfactory gun platform, and none of the shots of either the Americans or the Mexicans seemed to have any effect, until the riders were right upon the latter, when several of them fell. The others ran for the brush, two of them dropping their empty rifles as they ran, for the fight had started so suddenly that they had left their cartridge belts when they leaped over the walls, and probably thinking the mounted cowboys would follow them, they disencumbered themselves of their useless weapons.

"Look out," yelled Sibley, "they are shooting at us from among them cedars across the gulch. Look out!"

Warren, who had already leaped from his horse, drew his rifle from its scabbard and, squatting down on the ground, aimed at an object that he had seen move among the cedars that were about 200 yards distant.

With the crack of his rifle, a puff of smoke and loud report came from the spot he had fired at, and instantly the body of a man appeared from behind the trunk of a tree where the smoke was hanging.

"You barked him," cried Sibley. "He couldn't hide all his carcass behind that tree. He's making for that big boulder; get him before he gets there, or he'll get every one of us fellows, out here in the open!"

Warren threw his rifle to his shoulder and aimed at the running Mexican, who could be plainly seen beneath the shade of the small cedars, running towards the largest of several boulders near him. Just as he reached the side of the big rock, and faced about, raising his rifle as he turned, Warren fired. The Mexican dropped his gun, and sank slowly to the ground. As Warren threw another cartridge into the barrel of his rifle, a bullet that had struck a near-by rock, went whining away. Looking over at the edge of the mesa, where the report of the shot had come from, he could see at about 300 yards distant, a man in the act of reloading his gun. As Warren raised his own rifle to his shoulder, the rifle of the Mexican spit out a puff of smoke, and another bullet struck the rock and glanced off, striking one of the saddle horses, who bucked off down the hill.

As Warren's rifle butt came to his shoulder, he raised the barrel until he could see the body of the sky-lighted man in perfect alignment with the bead of the front sight and the notch in the rear sight of his weapon. As he pressed the hair-trigger and felt the recoil of the gun on his shoulder, he lowered it, and peered through the film of smoke at the silhouette of the man on the mesa.

"You hit him," cried Turnbull, who, although he was unarmed, had ridden up to his companion as soon as his frightened bronc had quit pitching.

The Mexican could be plainly seen as he turned and staggered back from the rim of the rocky mesa, still carrying his gun, but making no attempt to reload it.

Warren, Sibley and Turnbull now turned toward the corral, where all the other cowboys but Boudin and Maxson were standing with six-shooters ready, watching the retreating Mexicans on the opposite side of the corral, but they seemed intent only on getting away, made no attempt to renew the fight, and were soon beyong rifle range.

"You better look out for that hombre on the mesa," said Sibley. "You wounded him all right, but he's liable to sneak around and try it again, and there may be more of them over in them cedars, or back where he went. The sheep must be over that way, and there is bound to be more Mexicans with them."

"No, that is all the fighting men out that way," said Hopkins. "We come by the sheep. There was two unarmed boys and two men with rifles with them. One of the men started to follow us as he came down here. It was the one Dan got over in the cedars, but we had better look out for that bunch that ran off the other way. They have Long Tom rifles, and they can pick us off at a long distance, if they can shoot straight enough."

"I think they have got enough," said Sibley, "but that Mexican Dan wounded might come back at us. He has all the best of it if he has sense enough to hide among the rocks on the rim. All we could see would be the smoke of his gun."

"You needn't worry about him," said Warren. I never had a fairer chance at a deer. Nothing but the sky between him and the sight. I couldn't help but make a bull's-eye, but where is Boudin? Did they get him?"

Liscomb had climbed into the corral, where Maxson was bending over Boudin's knee. He had already removed the latter's chaps, and was slitting the cloth so that he could more easily examine a wound from which the blood was flowing freely.

"What was the trouble?" said Liscomb. "What did them fellows jump you about?"

"I don't know," said Maxson, "I was standing by the fire, warming my feet when I heard one of the Mexicans tell the other to get his gun, just as you fellows come in sight. Then I heard Billie and this fellow cursing"—and he touched a dead Mexican who lay near him with the toe of his boot—"and turned around just as the Mexican fired his rifle, I thought, right into Billie's body. Billie had hold of the end of the rifle barrel with one hand, and was pulling his six-shooter with the other. He shot the Mexican, and fell back just as I shot. Then I jumped outside the wall, because the Mexicans were jumping the other way and shooting at Hopkins and me, and I was right between them and Hop."

"What did it start about?" said Liscomb, turning to the wounded man.

"I don't know," said Boudin. "I was squatting down here with my back to this wall, warming my feet, and I saw that gun, the one with the queer looking knob on it, leaning against them kyacks, and picked it up. I wanted to see what kind of a gun it was, but before I had a chance to look at it, that Mexican grabbed it, and tried to twist it around so he could shoot me in the belly. I held onto the barrel and kept the muzzle down so low that when he fired, the shot hit my knee instead of my body."

Warren picked up the Mexican's rifle, and, after examining it a moment, said it was a Hotchkiss bolt action. As none of the others had ever seen a gun of that make before, all took turns in examining it, until Liscomb said, "Fellows, get Billie out of here, and on his horse as quick as you can. We'll take him to Del Rio before his knee gets so sore he can't ride. And look out for those fellows that ran up the lefthand creek. They might circle around in the hills and come back in range again."

When the wounded man was placed on his horse, and the others were mounted, Liscomb turned to Maxson. "Ed," he said, "I reckon you had better come along and help me take Billie to town. Something might happen so he couldn't get all the way in on horseback, and it wouldn't do to leave him alone while I went after some kind of conveyance."

"All right, I'll go," answered Maxson.

"The rest of you fellows better go to camp and wait until I come out, or you hear from me. I'll report this to that galvanized greaser Sheriff, and I expect he'll try to make us all the trouble he can."

"How can he make trouble for us? We didn't start anything. If them Mexicans could have hit anything, and hadn't got so excited, they would have got the whole outfit," said Hopkins.

"Well, go on to camp, and wait there until you get further orders." And Liscomb, Boudin and Maxson rode off in a direction that would take them to the Del Rio trail.

Two days after the fight, Sibley, who had been looking for stage horses, rode into camp with the news that a large party of men, evidently a Coroner's jury, or Sheriff's posse, had passed over the trail toward the sheep camp.

All hands immediately saddled up and struck out to overtake them. When they arrived at the place where the sheep camp had been, they found that Sheriff McGraw, with a posse, and the Coroner with his jury, had finished burying the dead Mexicans. The camp had disappeared, though the sheep were scattered in all directions.

The Coroner said that as it was getting pretty late, they would go to the Barclay place, a deserted cabin about ten miles on the way back to Del Rio, and camp there for the night. He would not take the statements of the cowboys until he had got something to eat and rested up a bit, he said.

As the party rode off in groups, one of the jurors, a man named Martin, rode up beside Warren and signaled him to drop behind. When they were alone, he said, "I don't know how this thing occurred, but I do know that you fellows are going to get the worst of it, if you go on to the Barclay cabin. The Sheriff figures on getting you all to go there without any trouble. When you are there, he will get you separated on some pretext or other, and disarm and arrest you. He has already arrested Liscomb, Maxson and Boudin. Liscomb and Maxson are chained to the floor in the jail. You know the jail is built of adobe, and has no cells, only rings made fast to the floor, where prisoners who are supposed to be desperate, are chained and guarded.

"Boudin was taken home and a guard put over him. You see the Sheriff is half Mexican himself, and was elected by the Mexicans who largely outnumber the American voters in Bonita county. He did not bring any Mexicans in his posse, because he is afraid you might get suspicious and run off and make a fight. He knew from what Liscomb and Maxson said that you fellows would come along quietly if you did not know what he had done to them. He gave us all orders to keep our mouths shut. You had better get in a bunch and ride ahead. Then you can be gone before he knows it."

"What's hurting him?" said Warren. "We only defended ourselves. We didn't know these Mexicans or their sheep were in the country until a few minutes before the fight started. If we had known, we wouldn't have cared. The Indian agent would have attended to them."

"Well," answered Martin, "there have been so many Mexicans killed by Americans lately, they are getting riled up about it, and they say there was something wrong about this fight. Liscomb told the Sheriff there were six Mexicans killed, and Boudin was the only one in your outfit that was hurt. Several Mexicans in Del Rio know the outfit. They saw there was eleven fighting men along with the herders, that they were armed with rifles, and knew how to use them."

"The only reason they didn't get us all," said Warren, was that something started the fight before they were ready. You know how these old Mexicans are. They can carve you into mincemeat with a knife, but they practice so little with guns that they are almost harmless in a gun fight. These Mexicans were so excited that those who were in the corral didn't aim their guns, and their rifles were all single-shot. There was not a magazine rifle or a six-shooter in the bunch. After they fired the first shot, and missed, they were helpless when we got to close quarters with them. I saw one of them trying to put a cartridge in his gun, and he was so excited, it took him too long to do it."

As Warren and Martin rode around a turn in the trail, they overtook Sibley, Hopkins and Turnbull, who had stopped to wait for them.

"Tell these fellows what you have told me," he said to Warren.

Martin then told his story over again as they rode along behind the main party.

"What is the matter with the Sheriff?" said Turnbull. "We didn't start the fight."

"The Sheriff wants to make himself solid with the Mexican voters. There are about three of them to each American voter in the county, and they are rearin' back on their hocks about this killing. They have only heard your side of the case so far. When the Mexicans that were left alive are heard from, they will tell a different story, of course," said Martin.

"Do they think we went to the sheep camp on purpose to attack them?" said Turnbull. "Why, I was riding this bronc that goes loco whenever a shot is fired near him, and didn't take my gun with me. Sibley was bumming cartridges, and only had three in his gun when the fight started. Warren was the only one that had his rifle with him. All the others were left at the camp with the cook. Does it look reasonable we would go up against a bunch of Mexicans like that, in that way?" said Turnbull.

"Well, I have told you what sort of medicine the Sheriff is making for you," said Martin. "You can do as you please, but don't say anything about what I have told you."

It was growing dark when the party arrived at the cabin. A fire was soon built, and in a short time, the cooks of the Sheriff's party yelled for the hungry men to come and in a short time, the cooks of the Sheriff's the Coroner held his court in the cabin. One of the party took down the statements of the cowboys in writing, by the flickering light from the fireplace.

The cowboys had unsaddled, as the other men of the party had done, but had not turned their horses loose to graze. After Warren had told his story, he left the cabin and soon had all his companions' horses saddled and ready. By the time they had all been examined, they were sure Martin had told the truth.

When the Coroner told the last man that that was all, the cowboy slouched out of the cabin and went over where the others were waiting in the darkness beneath a tree. Then Warren called the Sheriff.

The Sheriff stepped outside of the door of the cabin and asked what was wanted.

McGraw said, "Warren, we hear you have got Liscomb and Maxson chained to the jail floor, that you intend to do the same thing with us. You did not believe Liscomb and Maxson, and you don't believe what we have told you tonight. We have told you the truth, and we are not going with you to Del Rio to be chained down by the legs to the floor of your jail."

"But on the first day of the next session of court, we'll be in Del Rio. And, mind, I'll hold you responsible for Liscomb and Maxson and Boudin. If they are safe and all right on that date, I'll surrender to the judge, not to you. But if anything happens to those men, remember I'll hold you responsible. Goodnight."

The cowboys went to their camp that night and got fresh horses and provisions. The evening of the next day, they were far up in the mountains, but near the horse camp of another cow outfit, where they could usually get the news of the country within a month after anything of importance happened.

One day a cowboy from the neighboring

CARE OF THE BODY.

HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N.D.

The Water Cure.

BESIDES diet, there are three great agencies in aiding Nature to restore health—air, sun and water.

These wonderful forces are almost entirely neglected by "regular" practitioners, in favor of drugs and dope that suppress symptoms, but never cure.

The water cure, in its various phases, is especially effective, when accompanied by rational diet, and often accomplishes wonders. In Central Europe almost every family has at hand simple appliances for the application of water treatment. Introduced by plain people, it was taken up by enlightened physicians, and now you may find scores of great establishments, like the "Weisser Hirsch," near Dresden, where many thousands, who had been given up as hopeless, have been restored to health and vigor.

If you take a Turkish bath, and then take a wet pack, you will be astonished at the amount of impurities that come from your body.

Following is contributed by Dr. Carl Schultz of Los Angeles, who specializes in hydrotherapy:

"The reasons why hydrotherapy is not practiced by all physicians are several, mostly selfish ones. I am sorry to add that many naturopathic physicians have abandoned hydrotherapy. Sometimes the physician has not money enough, or thinks he has not money enough, to equip his treatment rooms with the suitable arrangements and appliances. Expensive equipments are not necessary. Father Kneipp for many years used a common sprinkling can, with the sprinkler taken off, and a washtub. An ordinary bathtub, a washtub, a sprinkling can, and a lounge or massage table, blankets and sheets will suffice in many cases, and have served me well for many years. Fine equipment does not make a physician.

"Another reason for not practicing hydrotherapy is that a majority of physicians think it beneath their dignity to use water. As if anything that will help a patient could be beneath the dignity of any physician, no matter what his name or school may be.

"What the leading physicians of the continent of Europe think of hydrotherapy is shown by the fact that it is not only taught in every university, but in most of them special independent chairs of hydrotherapy also have been established. I am sorry that this is not the case in America, where even trained nurses have very little or no training in the use of water. Often I have found it necessary, not only to instruct the nurse in the practical use of water, but also have had to do most of the water treatment myself. All nurses seem to know is, how to administer drugs, give hypodermics and take the pulse temperature—that is, unless one has a nurse who has been trained in a naturopathic institute, or in one of the Battle Creek sanatoria.

"Prof. Wilhelm Winternitz of Vienna, in my opinion, has done more to make hydrotherapy acceptable to the profession than any other writer. His books and writings have convinced the profession that hydrotherapy is a most powerful healing agent, in the hands of a well-trained and honest physician. What Father Kneipp did for the people, Winternitz has done for the profession.

"Father Kneipp, whose books have been translated into thirty-two languages, has surely done more than any man to popularize the water cure. Many a physician has sat at his feet, and has learned from him the first principles of hydrotherapy. I mention this because it seems to be the tendency of many of the profession to belittle the work of this great master. 'Honor to whom honor is due.'

"Some physicians have endeavored to restrict the use of the term 'hydrotherapy' to the employment of cold water alone. This is a mistake that could only be made by those who have not studied the subject thoroughly. Hydrotherapy includes the application of water in any form, from the solid and fluid to vapor; from ice to steam, internally and externally.

"The physical properties of water are, first, the capacity for gathering, absorbing and conducting heat and cold. Water possesses a remarkable capacity for absorbing heat, without being itself much raised in temperature, and giving off heat without losing materially in temperature. The amount of heat sufficient to raise the temperature of two pounds of oil of turpentine, eight pounds of iron, or thirty-five pounds of mercury to thirty-four degrees, will raise only one pound of water to the same degree.

"The temperature conducting capacity of water is twenty-seven times greater than that of air. Water conveys to the skin much stronger thermic impressions than air, a fact easily discovered in exchanging a room with a temperature of 70 degrees for a bath at the same temperature.

"Second, the enormous physical changes which water is capable of exerting, as the result of different temperatures enlarges its value as a flexible thermic agent. At 32 degrees F. water solidifies; at 202 degrees it becomes elastic, increasing 1700 times in volume. In the form of ice it possesses valuable thermic properties, which are impossible in other forms."

With water of various temperatures, in various forms, some may play on the body as a skilled performer plays on the piano.

Night Life.

ALL-NIGHT banks are getting to be common, and an all-night "movie" is to be opened in Chicago. Before long everything will be going in full swing twenty-four hours a day.

All of which means the building of more insane asylums, and more deaths from medically maltreated nervous prostration.

Grins.

WHY must every woman—and many men—be depicted prinning, when their "mugs" appear in the "poipers?"

Even when a woman has lost her family, in a dreadful accident, you are likely to see her depicted with a grin on her face.

This isn't the fault of those who are "took," but of the enterprising photographers.

Cut it out. It's awfully bad form.

Starch and Protein.

FOLLOWING is from the Herald of Health:

"Most dietetic authorities and food chemists adopt the theory that all disease comes from the alimentary tract. Some years ago Metchnikof made the statement that the majority of chronic, organic diseases had their origin in the alimentary tract, due to the putrefaction of proteins and the absorption of slow-acting poisons from this process. Of course, Metchnikof blamed the germs and set about to counteract their effect by the introduction of the Bulgarian bacillus in sour milk cultures. Rational dietitians found it easier to prevent intestinal putrefaction by eliminating from the diet those foods which decompose too readily. These foods were found to be largely meat (including fish, fowl and shellfish,) eggs and some kinds of cheese. Eliminating these and increasing the quantity of those foods which encourage normal peristalsis (if necessary first thoroughly cleansing the alimentary tract by fasting and colon irrigation) will do away with the intestinal toxemia.

"However, some dietetians refuse to go far enough back in looking for causes, and even hesitate about taking away from sick people that which they consider to be their staff of life—dead animal tissues. These diet experts will invariably try to juggle food combinations, so that the least harm is done, without very materially interfering with the patient's likes and dislikes.

"Some dietitians blame all disorders on starch. Starch is a normal food product contained in goodly proportions in the majority of foods nature produces for us. The alimentary tract is provided with the means of converting starch into sugar, and sugar is a normal constituent of the blood. It is used as fuel by the cells. All foods containing starch must be thoroughly masticated, because starch digestion is started in the mouth by the action of the saliva. If too hastily swallowed or eaten in excess of the ability of the alimentary tract to convert it into sugar it undergoes alcoholic and gaseous fermentation. Starch such as found in white flour and other devitalized grain products, lacking the necessary vitamines and enzymes to digest it, forms a pastry mass in the intestines, which inhibits their action and prevents the proper digestion of other foods. It becomes lodged in the folds of the intestinal membranes forming a good medium in which animal foods and excess vegetable proteins can undergo putrefaction. Herein lies its chief danger.

"It is erroneous to say that proteins and starch cannot be digested at the same time and should not be eaten together. Our most wholesome natural foods are combinations of protein and starch. But it is good sound logic to say that animal food and starch should not be eaten together. It would be better to say that animals should never be eaten.

"Undigested starch in the alimentary tract is bad. Rotting animal tissue is worse. Both in combination is deadly. In a curative diet both starch and proten should be eliminated or reduced to a minimum. But this does not solve the problems of diet. It only points out one of our errors and attempts to reduce one source of disease producing toxins. Diet can be used further to cleanse the blood of toxins and accumulated wastes of cell activity, and to rebuild good healthy tissue that has been devitalized by disease."

Blaming the Lord.

GOD is blamed for many things for which He is not responsible.

When a good Christian has pampered his appetite and made a swill barrel of his stomach and dies of Bright's disease, the parson reads over his grave: "The Lord hath given; the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

Piffle! Also blasphemy. It is simply an example of cause and effect—of slow suicide.

Muzzling Dogs.

THhe subject of muzzling dogs was again brought up recently in the Los Angeles City Council.

The hydrophobia scare is encouraged mainly to sustain the profitable Pasteur graft. An eminent French physician is quoted as saying that Pasteur "does not cure hydrophobia, he gives it." The Pasteur treatment is forbidden in England.

In Boston there is an Animal Rescue League. Of 40,000 dogs handled at that institution they have never been able to identify one case of rabies. Each man is bitten, on an average about three times a week. They think nothing of it, and take it as a part of their day's work. Again, Herman Carn, official dog catcher of Denver, recently announced that he had received his two thousandth dog bite. Following his usual custom, he anointed the wound with carbolic acid, and pursued his work.

Writing in the Philosophy of Health, Dr. J. H. Tilden says:

"The victim of the nervous condition called hydrophobia, who is supposed to be suffering from the effects of a morbific virus, which had been inoculated into the victim's blood by the teeth of a dog, is in Unexcelled in Stomach Troubles, Indigestion, Gastritis and Gas, Colitis, Liver Complaints, Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Catarrhal or Mucous Inflammation.

MY TROUBLE JUST SEEMED TO LET GO, SAYS ONE LADY WHO WAS SUFFERING WITH A BAD STOMACH TROUBLE.
Two to Three Doses Relieve Inflammation of the Bladder.
Everyone now knows the importance of treating for inflammation in the cure of every trouble. If an organ is inflamed it ceases to perform its work, poisons gather, and if not relieved there is ulceration or a breaking down of tissue. In internal inflammation and ulceration nothing gives such wonderful relief as these O-M inflammation Tablets.
Because of their neutralizing effect in auto-intoxication (self-poisoning) they insure almost universal relief in neuritis and rheumatism.
How to tell neuritis from rheumatism: "If pain increases with pressure it is rheumatism. If not oversensitive to pressure it is neuritis." In inflammation of any part or organ these Inflammation Tablets are equally successful; often there is noticeable improvement with a few doses. Try the sample and see what they will do in your case.

A TWISTED TRIANGLE

BY HERBERT STANTON MARSHUTZ.

"WELL I never!" exclaimed Mrs. Adrian Levinsky, closing a battered library copy of O. Henry. "He sure does spring things you don't expect at the end. Have some more ice tea?"

Mrs. John McGinnis passed a glass.

"I do believe I will, Martha. Yes, his denouncements are nothing less than marvelous. But I don't—"

"You mean de-noo-may, Nora. It's French—Poe invented it. This tea is good, if I say it myself."

"Now what was the name of that last story, Martha? Oh, the 'Proof of the Pudding'—well I don't think for one minute that them de-no-may's are like everyday life. They ain't real, Martha. We don't get big surprises sprung on us like that. No, sir! In our lives it's just expectin' something, looking forward to it for weeks, maybe months and years—and then it happens and we look back awhile, then forward to another something. Surprises in real life? No, sir! Not in mine!"

"I suppose you knew all the time that John was going to propose to you that evening over on the Drive. And I suppose you knew the other flat would have that fire just when you was—"

"Why them are all tragedies, Martha. Them ain't real surprises. Real surprises is the good things we don't expect and never get. No, sir, tragedies ain't surprises; they're just—tragedies. Now suppose I went home and John handed me a diamond pin!"

The other woman smiled—rather grimly, too.

"Or a pair of silk stockings," Mrs. McGinnis went on, "or some flowers, or a book—them would be surprises, Martha."

Martha sighed. 'Yes, I guess they would be, Nora dear. Now let me have your glass again."

"Well, as I was saying, you know what will happen when I get home."

Mrs. Levinsky thought she knew but was willing to hear the story from headquarters.

"Well, John will come in, throw down a mussed evening paper, flop into a chair and say, 'Ain't it hot, Nora?' And I'll say, 'yes, dear, it sure is. Ain't you goin' to kiss me good-evening, John?' Then he'll grunt and rub his whiskers on my cheek and say, 'Why in the h— ain't supper ready?' And if I even so much as glance at the paper he'll grab it and say he's hungry and we'd better eat.

"Surprise, Martha? Well the only one I ever got was when he kissed me without my asking for it, but I found out why when I read in the paper how a neglected wife jumped into the river. No, sir, them thrilling de-noo-mays ain't in my life. No sir!"

Martha Levnisky caught a tear in time to prevent it from mingling with the ice tea. She stood up.

"I hate to chase you home, but dear, it's ten to 7 and Adrian will be here any minute—"

"Good Lord, Martha! Ten minutes to 7! And John comes home at 6!"

Mrs. Levinsky heard a door slam and before the echo had died between the walls of the room Nora was on the street.

"I haven't even got the potatoes on," Mrs. Levinsky muttered.

—And so ended the meeting of the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street Reading Club, as meetings had terminated last week, the week before, and the week before that.

. . . .

Lifting her skirts as high as she dared, Nora McGinnis dashed up two flights of narrow stairs. Breathless, with face flushed, she hesitated with one hand on the door knob. On the way from Mrs. Levinsky's she had planned what she would say to John. But on the threshold of danger—the words were gone.

Would the truth be sufficient? she wondered. No—John was calloused to the reading club excuse.

Nora reached down, rubbed her hand on the floor and applied the dust to her white skirt at the knees. Quickly she yanked out a few hairpins and loosened several strands of hair. Another dab at the floor, and a smear on her cheek. The made-to-order plan was in action. When she explained to John how she had stumbled and fallen, he would forgive and forget.

Nora turned the knob of the door. It was locked!

"Thank the Lord, he ain't home yet!" Her whole body relaxed with a sigh of gratitude. Then she took out her key. As she walked into the room, the sight of a white collar on the table brought a gasp of astonishment. Nora picked it up! Sixteen-and-a-half! Then John was home! On tip-toe Nora approached the bedroom, but nothing there had been disturbed. She cleared her throat.

"John," she called softly.

"John, dear," she repeated, louder. There was a mocking reply, but it was her own trembling voice.

"Oh John, dear!" Nora stepped to the bureau and at the sight of her reflection gave a shriek of laughter. She wiped the dust from her cheek, then replaced fallen strands of hair. As she reached for a hairpin, her eye fell upon a note on the small Japanese tray.

Mechanically, she brought it within reading distance, and in a frightened monotone read: "Nora—I've stood enough of your foolishness, if you want me you will find me down by the river. John McGinnis."

"River!" she repeated. "River—if you want me, you will find me down-by-the-river!" Nora lingered on the last word. It brought a sudden chill. "You will find me down by the river!" she exclaimed. "And there's his collar. Oh John!" And with a shriek of horror she flew out of the room and down the two flights.

. . . .

With one object Nora McGinnis sped toward the Hudson.

"You will find me down by the river!"—she said it over and over, read it on the shops, on the cars, and the children playing in the streets cried it.

Then it flashed upon her that "river" might mean any one of a hundred places between the Battery and Harlem. But Nora hurried on until there arose ahead of her the low outlines of the ferry slips.

She dodged across the cobblestones of One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and turned toward the stairway that led up to Riverside Drive. Her hair had begun to fall where hairpins were lacking and she replaced the loosened strands as she climbed the steps. If John wasn't at the first place, she would look the second, and if he wasn't there, then she would look the third. . . .

Toward town she hurried as fast as aching feet would allow, watching closely every distant man, staring intently at each couple on bench or turf. In the parkway were hundreds of couples, a score of single girls, but few men. Nora followed the winding walks and bore gradually toward the river.

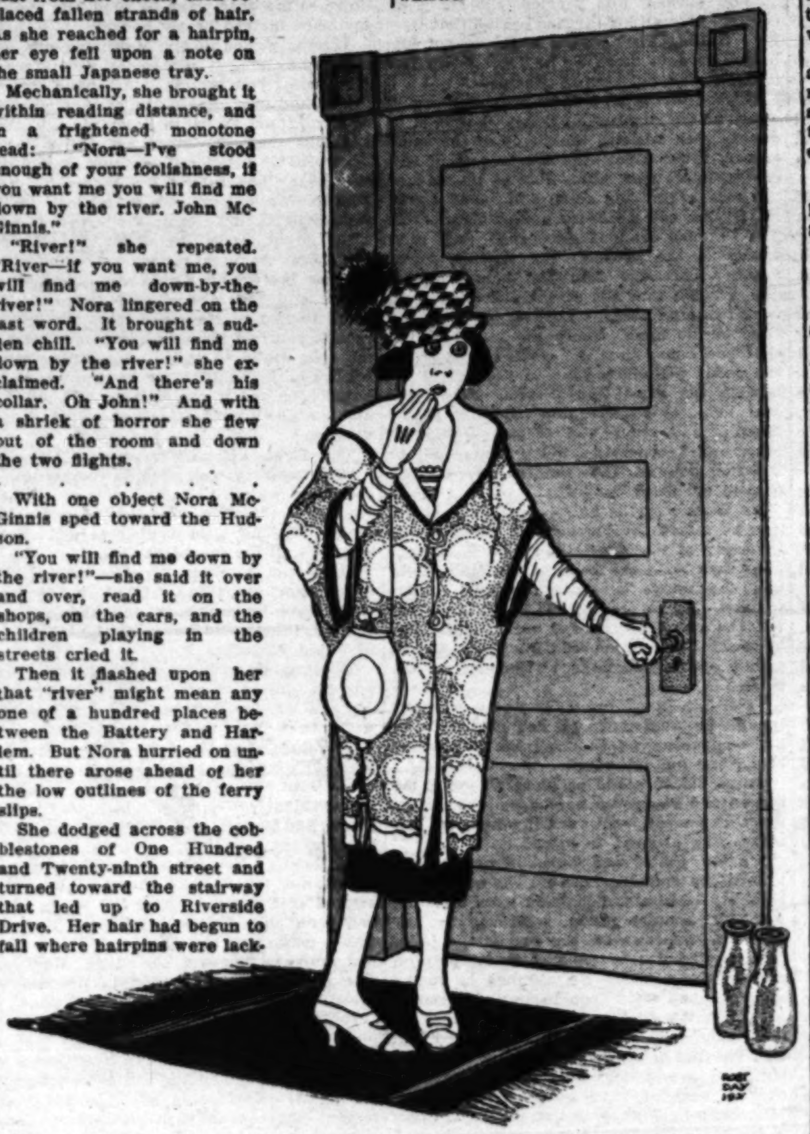
At One Hundred and Tenth street she realized that she was very weary. The sight of an uncrowded bench was unresistible and there was a man that looked like John at the far end. Nora sat down. It was not John after all. But he was staring at her so Nora gazed at the Hudson. There was a snowy moon low in the sky. It cast a trail of silver on the rippling river. A breeze caressed her. A shudder. . . .

"Cold, little one?" asked a soft, alluring voice.

Nora sprang to her feet and sped down the Drive, wondering if John talked to strange girls in the parks. She could not remember having seen him alone on the Drive. But in the subway he was alone—every day, and there were thousands of lonesome girls in the crowded trains.

The stairway—her starting point on Riverside Drive—was before her before Nora realized that she had traveled in a circle. On the street below a score of people were hurrying toward a mutual destination. Nora sped down to the cobblestones and followed. They were running toward the river, toward one of the ferries. She kept pace, even when the pursuit—if so it was—led into a low, dark building. When she hesitated three deafening blasts of a siren brought renewed determination to follow on and find John.

Ahead of her they ran—from the rear they hurried, encouraged to speed by the staccato whistle.



On the way from Mrs. Levinsky's she had planned what she would say to John. But on the threshold of danger—the words were gone.

Through a door to pass a man of authority.

"Am I too late?" Nora panted.

He shook his head, and shouted "ticket?"

An excited man five yards back waved his arms and Nora dashed on.

A long vibrating whistle—then the boat backed slowly into the stream.

. . . .

Every evening that summer the Mandalay carried several hundred more or less temporarily mated couples for a three hour romantic cruise on the Hudson.

There would be a bit of dancing in the ballroom, some drinking in another room, less soft drinking at the fountain, but an unmeasurable amount of sociability on the specially built semi-illuminated decks fore and aft.

The imitation steamer-chairs were huddled in two's as if ready to enter a modern ark. At half past 8 o'clock the Mandalay sailed. At 8:34 seven couples were holding hands. At 8:36 seven were not. The power of suggestion was always observed to increase with the speed of the boat.

At 9 o'clock one Rosie Newman kissed the man beside her—she couldn't remember his name. At 9:01, Hilda, who always had Thursdays off, permitted the clerk from Fraser's drug store to kiss her twice.

Standing apart from its fellows, was one single chair. It contained Nora McGinnis, an unhappy, trembling, tired, linesome, repentent Nora. She had watched the moon settle lower, until it appeared ready to sink in the New Jersey hills at the end of the glittering pathway. Nora had observed the effect of the intoxicating atmosphere until she, too, was caught by its spell. It came over her suddenly—a realization of romantic despair. She hated being alone.

Nora watched the nearest couple. Two heads appeared one silhouette. One chair could have served for two. A sudden move and then a kiss . . . on the other side of her, a similar pantomime with three kisses. She was trembling now. . . . Frightened by her own isolation . . . the Jersey hills had swallowed the moon and were dark. . . .

She turned quickly, startled by a noise at her side. A chair had been moved to a neighborly distance. Nora ignored the stranger and watched a New York Central train speeding toward the city on the eastern shore.

Then the stranger spoke—in a whisper.

"Is this seat taken?" Nora thought she had never heard such a frightened whisper. She gave no reply.

The man sat down.

"Pretty moon, wasn't it?"

Nora agreed silently.

"I've been looking all over the boat for a girl like you. Alone, aren't you?"

Nora was surprised ot hear herself answer "Yes, I'm alone." Her voice, too, seemed to shake strangely. And when the man reached over and in some way found her hand, she knew she should withdraw it, but . . . well, she wasn't any different from the girls she saw all around her! The hand felt nice, too. It was warm, and very human. She wanted to turn and see if he was as she imagined him . . . young, dark, with wonderful eyes. . . .

"It's sure lonesome alone," the voice whispered. "I guess you was lonesome, too—that's why I found you."

Nora was staring straight ahead. She failed to notice when an arm crept around her waist.

"Don't you like it down by the river, little girl?"

Nora's heart gave a leap. "Little girl!" John had always used that name when they had sat together on the Drive.

"Don't you like it down by the river?" the stranger repeated the whispered question.

The last four words brought Nora a picture of a room, a dresser, and a note. He was speaking again.

"I sure do like it down by the river, little girl; it beats Riverside Drive all hollow."

Nora's heart did a complete somersault. She was conscious that he was gripping her hand too tightly—his ring was hurting her. She moved a finger to touch it. That stone!

"You ain't talking to me at all, little girl. I asked you twice already if this boat don't beat Riverside Drive all hollow. Say, whatcha doing to my ring?"

Nora thought her heart was rocking the boat.

"Say that again about Riverside Drive," she whispered. "Say it again, and say that 'little girl' over again, too. Say it over again!"

That heart of hers was going faster than ever.

Japan's Large Cities.

As shown by the recent census Japan has fourteen cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants. The largest is Tokio, the capital, with a population of 2,173,162.

Why Worry?

Worry, which is nearly always born in ignorance and buried in repentence, is more hurting to man than is the thing at which he worries.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

The scramble for "protection" and "government aid" and similar artificial measures to bolster up prices for the benefit of certain classes is regretable from every viewpoint. Such tactics are likely to end only in disappointment, just as are attempts by farmers to "hold wheat for $3" and by cotton-growers to "hold cotton for 30 cents. Because governments used strong-arm methods to control prces during the World War emergencies, the motion has become widespread that the law of supply and demand can be thwarted at any time and all the time by anybody that has a mind to. It can't, as those who try it will learn to their cost in the long run.—[Forbes Magazine (N. Y.)

THE PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT OF FRENCH PEOPLE.

BY C. D. M.

THE Eiffel Tower dominates you in the city and suburbs of Paris—it is a "presence" that never leaves you. You may see it from Fontainebleau forty miles distant, and from the summit of the tower itself you can see towns and villages fifty miles away. It has been built thirty years and yet no building in the world equals its height by 300 feet. It is typical of the spirit of progress which has made Paris a leader in all things modern and progressive.

In navigating the air the French led the way with Bleriot [illegible] to cross the English Channel, Paulhan first in the tryout for all America at Los Angeles, and at Heliopolis, where all Europe made trial, the Frenchmen stood in first, second and third places. There were more classes in aviation in France before the World War than in any other land. In the use of electricity and gas for heat and light, Paris stands next to American cities, which excel all, and in lighting perhaps leads all municipalities. She is indeed the "Ville Lumiere" of Victor Hugo, the city of light. In some of the great places and esplanades, the brilliant lights are on posts, not more than forty feet apart, literally forests of light. The open space of over 4000 acres bordering the Seine in the city's center is a marvel at night. It rivals the heavens above in its countless points of light. "As blossom the lovely stars in the infinite meadows of heaven," so it blossoms with a brilliancy that illumines the sky itself and the glow of light can be seen at night from forty miles away. In modern transportation Paris, like Los Angeles, has every form of it ever invented. At one moment you count fourteen different mechanical vehicles for passengers from the Arch of Triumph, from balloons and airplanes in the air to the rushing Metro carrying its thousands far underground. There are almost no wild birds or animals in the boulevards and parks of Paris—only a few linnets, sparrows and rats in dark and shady places, and the citizens say that flying machines, and underground trains, and rushing surface traffic have driven them away. The rush and swoop of the automobiles, down boulevards, through parks and over bridges and squares, is like the sweep of 10,000 great birds of prey, with raucous voices and swishing flight, that scatters pedestrians like terrified sheep, as they hustle to escape.

The electric house in the Boulevard Poissoniere, where everything is done without human servants by the unseen servant electricity, illustrates the spirit of progress as it was in operation fifteen years ago, and shows what the future will be. As Jules Verne pictured in fancy, nearly fifty years ago, what is now in common use, so Paris has fulfilled in fact and made real in every day life.

The people read the million copies of the newspapers issued daily, as though their lives depended on it—the errand boy reading as he trudges along with his heavy basket, cabbies and chauffeurs, reading in their seats when not on a course, half the passengers on the Metro, absorbed in their journals, and thousands of kiosks and shops which sell papers are busy all day long. You conclude that the French are up-to-date in current events and you find that in literature, music, art, science and philosophy there are innumerable societies. Here is the greatest library in the world—here the highest skill in the culture of flowers and vegetables (as witness the lilac culture at Moutronge, and the forcing of orange blossoms at Charonne) here Pasteur saved more human lives than any man who ever lived; here are the most advanced systems of sewerage, city cleansing, lighting and pure food laws strictly enforced, and all show the same spirit of enlightened progress. The French are not considered up-to-date in modern athletics an doutdoor sports. Yet we saw a Frenchman on the hottest July day ever recorded in Paris, win the twenty-four-mile Marathon race at the Olympic games of 1900, all nations being competitors. It was the greatest endurance test ever known in athletic games.

Probably the most skillful boatmen on the sea are those of the Breton and Normandy coasts and of the Channel Islands where "the toilers of the sea," of whom Victor Hugo wrote, master the forty foot tides and make safe harbors against those most treacherous seas. Ten years ago a hydroplane skimmed the water from Nice to Monte Carlo, twenty kilometers in twenty minutes. An autoboat race is depicted on a bronze medal in the mint in Paris (a prize for the victor) and in the toys of marvelous agility and form that are everywhere for sale, and the vast number of automobiles exported in normal times, and in the multitude of its excellent technical schools Paris is likely again to lead the world.

AN OBSCURE HERO.

BY V. K. YOUNG.

DERRICKS and daffodils, crude oil and violets, sand hills and sunflowers have no logical connection to the uninitiated, but in the little town of Taft, situated in the heart of the oil fields of Kern county, California, they follow each other as a matter of course.

The derricks which dot the hillsides are most useful objects, being indispensable, in fact, in hoisting to the surface of the earth the oil which spells the wealth of the community, but there is little of beauty in their construction.

Spring has brought with it masses of green foliage and brilliant-hued flowers and no effort is spared on the part of the residents to add a touch of beauty to their otherwise crude surroundings. Proving that, while the making of money may be a paramount consideration in living here, the finer things have not been overlooked.

No sooner does an oil worker build his "straight-up-and-down shack" than he looks about for some means of beautifying his necessarily unlovely surroundings—for remember, this is strictly desert country with a good deal of alkali soil and sand. Water is plentiful, but the rates are rather high, as is usually the case in localities of this kind.

Love of growing things being inherent in human nature, there is an immediate attempt on the part of the householder, to cover the crude lines of the roughly constructed dwelling place with vines, flowers and other growing things. It is not always an easy matter to do this, for the soil that produces quantities of rich black crude oil does not easily bring forth flowers and trees in abundance.

Nothing daunted, the courageous gardener enriches the soil by using fertilizer; builds porch boxes; trellises for vines, plants morning glories around the garage, while his wife will nearly always have a patch of geraniums or nasturtiums near the back door.

Sometimes the more ambitious even have a tiny lawn and a few trees, the latter not being productive of much shade for a good many years after they are planted, however. Even so, anxious gardeners may be seen, evening after evening, carrying buckets of water to spindly specimens of the tree family, although in more than one instance this labor, like virtue, is its own and only reward.

To newcomers, not much of beauty can be noted at first sight even in these attempts to aid nature, for the country is barren, the dun-colored sand hills being unrelieved by a touch of green for miles in every direction. But by and by, those who have elected to make their homes in this community, famous for its oil production, learn to cherish any specimen of flowerdom, finding pleasure in caring for even a few growing things in boxes and buckets.

The green foliage and bright colors of the flowers show up to good advantage against the sand hills, which return the compliment by making them seem more brilliant than usual.

All this is pioneer work, of course, for undoubtedly in time to come, the desert will be made to yield its share of growing things and may, indeed, "blossom as the rose." The trees which now are only slim striplings will temper the glare of the sun and grass will be a common thing, instead of something to make the passer-by stop and stare.

Silence.

From chaos depth and evening gloom
A silence falls, it is the night.
For toiling hearts an anchor thrown
To catch the light.
Oh, starry night and astral sea,
What far-voiced planet beckons thee?
Thy echo voiced among the throng
I feel beside me sweeping on
For those who laugh with broken hearts.
A sapphire light proves night withdrawn,
And they who toil as slaves of art
Have gone to greet the coming dawn.
Gray-robed celestial queen, give way!
Thy pale cheeks blush to see the day
My kinsmen go, my voice cries out
To join them on the great highway.

GENERAL'S AUTOMOBILE.

a wide turn. He circled the whole area of the cross roads and came down the street again toward the engineer's prostrate form.

"Taboada, on seeing the automobile returning, had stopped shouting, perhaps in terror, perhaps because he thought the machine was coming back to pick him up.

"At any rate, the shock this time was ruder. The auto leaped into the air as it struck the obstacle at full speed, and I heard one of the breakrods snap as we struck the ground again. We kept on to the avenue, however. Then the general turned and came back again. And up and down, up and down, up and down, over the victim's body! How many times, I do not know. Each time, however, the shock was less violent, and after the second impact there had been no cries at all.

"The next day all the papers had headlines about the terrible accident that had happened to poor Taboada on his way home that night. And there were violent editorials against joy riders speeding in the city streets after dark, without regard to the dangers of innocent passers-by.

"For Gen. Castillejo I wrote an editorial which appeared in our paper, and in which I paid tribute to a distinguished political opponent, who had come to a most unhappy end, a gentleman and a patriot, and a man of talent, in whose passing, despite the unsoundness of his political ideas, the country and science had suffered an irreparable loss.

"That was the end of it. In a few days the whole episode was forgotten. In fact, people had many other things to think of. The election campaign ended in an uprising of the generals. Everybody turned on the President and he was assassinated. I saw what was coming, however, and got across to the United States before the President abandoned the capital. I wanted to see who was going to win before I wrote any more articles.

"Castillejo was taken prisoner and is still in jail. His fellow-generals are prosecuting him for a number of irregularities in office.

"And I'm beginning to get worried. The latest charge against him is the murder of the engineer Taboada. No one takes any stock in the story of the automobile accident. It seems that a great many people living along the street heard the engineer's cries and witnessed what was going on from behind closed shutters. Though they kept quiet for a time, they are now telling all they know to curry favor with the new regime. Of course, it may well be that not more than one of them really saw anything. The others may simply be repeating what they have heard.

"You fellows may think it quite fine of the present generals in power that they intend to bring Castillejo to justice. Nothing in that at all. They won't do anything to him. He will put it all off on me, and, being nothing but a gachupin, what chance will I have? Bet your life, I'm not going back to Mexico!

"Even if they do anything to my former general, it will be not out of love for justice, but in a spirit of jealousy and vengeance. They hate Castillejo because they admire him and are envious of his ingenuity, with the spirit of rivalry a painter feels on seeing a competitor using a new [illegible] for [illegible] light, or a novelist jealous of the inventiveness of another writer's plots.

"The maddening thing to them is that they can't use that automobile trick now. It's an old story, you see. And in Mexico the important thing is to be original. . . ."

FIGHT ON RIO TONTO.

camp came over and told them that court would be in session on the first Tuesday of the following month.

When Tuesday morning came, they were camped a few miles from the county seat. Just before the judge took his seat on the bench, Warren and his partner found the District Attorney and told him they were ready to take whatever medicine they had cooked up for them.

The District Attorney laughed, and said he did not think his medicine would be bad to take. All the Mexicans, he said, who had run off that could be found, had been subpoenaed, and were waiting to go before the grand jury. Their story was almost identical with that told by the cowboys. There could be no doubt, he said, that the Mexicans were expecting trouble with cowmen, and although they had appeared friendly on the arrival of the first three cowboys, they had become suspicious when they saw the others coming, and had been told by their leader to get their guns and get ready. Boudin had just picked up the new kind of gun to examine it, when its owner grabbed it. Boudin had not let go of the gun, and the Mexican had begun cursing and threatening him. As the Mexican twisted the rifle around, with the muzzle toward the American, the latter became alarmed and started to draw his six-shooter, at the same time holding the barrel of the rifle with one hand. When the Mexican saw Boudin was pulling his gun out of his scabbard, he fired, and that started the fight.

He was satisfied, he said, that neither party had willfully intended to attack the other, and he thought the Mexicans were the most to blame. Those who had been found and subpoenaed, acknowledged that the men who were killed had been hired as fighting men, to guard the sheep and herders when they went to cattle ranges. They did not know they were on an Indian reservation, and all the fighting Mexicans who had got away, had left the country, believing they had killed several Americans, and that they would be punished if caught. The Mexican witnesses told their stories to the grand jury, which reported, "No bill." Liscomb and Maxson were released from jail, and the guard was taken from the house where Boudin was being nursed by his sister. He was soon able to ride again, and has long been manager of a large cattle ranch in New Mexico, where sheepmen and cowmen now settle their disputes with the aid of the law and courts, and seldom, if ever, resort to the strenuous ways of bygone days.

THE POTTERS

by J. P. McEvoy

Into Each Life Some Oil Must Fall.

PROLOGUE.

CHO. (recites:) The business lunch as we know it today is a modern institution. . . . In far-off times and far-off places business may have been transacted at business lunches, but now all that is transacted is lunch . . . and not very much of that. When Joe Spearhead invited you to lunch in those days you went to his cave wondering if he intended to lunch with you or off you. . . . Joe Spearhead is dead, but his spirit goes marching on . . . the cost of the business lunch, in other words, does not always appear on the check.

So as we gaze about us and observe Pa Potter committing lunch with a prosperous looking individual we chuck our carapace of poise and arise in our large white cravat and say, "What's that?" . . .

Scene: A Restaurant.

Pa Potter is listening to the honeyed words of Mr. Eagle, who could sell a red woolen union suit to the devil, but who is now engaged in distributing, "only to his friends," a few choice oil leases. Oily to bed and oily to rise, is his motto.

MR. EAGLE (to waiter:)
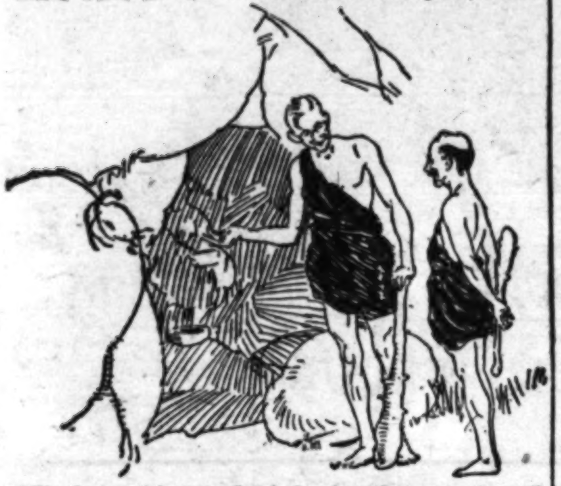
Give us the line of march, I say.
(To Pa:) Whaddye think ye'd like today? . . .
The same old dishes . . . the same old way.
Why don't they get up some new ones . . . eh?

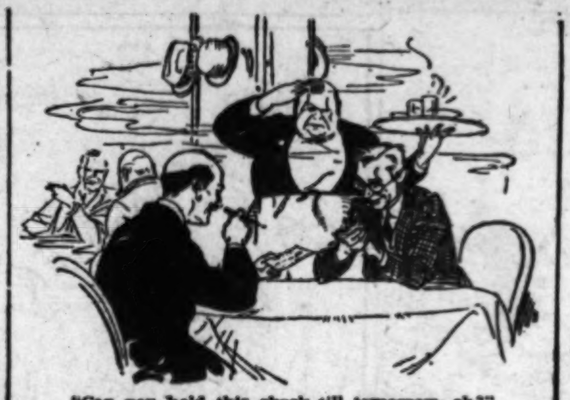
CHO.: Pa has corns on his hip from carrying trays and thinks Carte de Jour is the name of the place, which qualifies him to criticize a real restaurant.



"Wondering if he intended to lunch with you or off you."

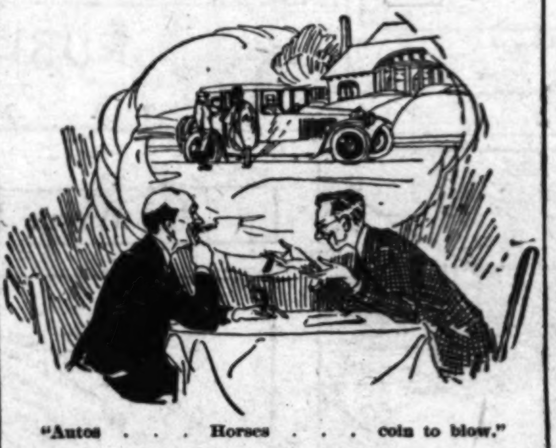
PA: Ain't it the truth? the same old chow . . .
I've got this memorized by now.
Let's see, there's a Vegetarian Dish.
Or whaddye think of that Planked Whitefish?
EAGLE: That "Fillit Mig-nun" isn't bad, y'know—
Say, I heard a good one at Frank Tinney's show . . .
Frank says, "J'ever hear of Jewish coffee?" and
The other guy says, "No, j'you?" and Frank says:
"I did, this morning the waiter comes to me and says,
"Say, 'j'wish coffee this morning?' "
PA: Ha! Ha! . . . ha! ha! That's a nifty crack.
Say, when does that guy of ours come back?
He musta gone away and died! . . .
D'ye want your au gratin potatoes fried?
EAGLE: Whatever you order, old top, is right;.
That Corned Beef and Cabbage is nice and light,
Or Ham Hocks and Spinach . . . that's delicate stuff,
Or Pork Shanks and Sauer Kraut might be enough.
PA: That's nice and light all right, all right;
I'd be falling away to a ton tonight . . .
Say, whaddye think of this story here
About Jack Dempsey and Carpentear?
It says it's a cinch the Frog will win.
That guy must be full of domestic gin . . .
Dempsey will knock him for three ooh-la-la's and a marseilaise.
EAGLE: You tell 'em, Lafayette, we're here yet.
PA: Well, Dempsey ain't solid with me, you bet;
That shipyard record of his is wet;
But just the same I've got a hunch
He'll flatten this baby with one punch . . .

CHO.: You will readily recognize from the above that this is a genuine business lunch . . . but now we will have the food brought in . . . so . . . and we will pass over Pa's profound solutions of all the problems of the world, any of which would be a day's work for an editorial writer or the work of several months for Lloyd George, who is rather slow about such matters, much to Pa's disgust. . . . Pa saw, if he were running things . . . "say, they'd be done different, that's all" . . . they probably would be different, at that . . . but now lunch is drawing to its close and Mr. Eagle is winding up . . . so this looks like business at last.



"Can you hold this check till tomorrow, eh?"

EAGLE: I was talking to Rankin the other day,
And he says you was visiting out his way,
And he told you about the leases he had,
And he said you wanted some awf'lly bad . . .
Of course there ain't none of 'em lyin' 'round . . .
The oil is just bubbling out of the ground . . .
PA: I was a bit interested . . . whaddye you say?
Are they sure to strike oil in that place any day?
EAGLE: Are they sure to strike oil?
Why my boy, it's a pipe.
According to Hoyle
The development's ripe;
It just oozes right out
When you drive in a stake.



"Autos . . . Horses . . . coin to blow."

Do you imagine, ole scout,
That I'd fool with a fake?
PA: No, of course, but you know
They occasionally blow,
And I couldn't afford
To lose very much dough.
(Carelessly)
I wouldn't go broke
On five hundred or so,
But I would like to know
That the thing is a go.
EAGLE: I'm not sure there's any left;
I'm afraid it's all been took.
CHO.: (Business here of painful thinking
As he rummages his book.)
EAGLE: Let me see, now; is there any
I could get by book or crook? . . .
My, I'd like to help you, Potter;
It would please Al Rankin, too,
Not to mention all the money
That will finally come to you.
Let me see . . . five hundred dollars
Ought to net you fifteen thou'.
But the leases all are taken . . .
Darn the luck, that's rotten, now!
PA: I bet if they struck oil down there
I'd make a million bucks or two.
Aw—dig up some leases, please.
Think hard a minute . . . find a few.
EAGLE (thinking hard:)
I think I know . . . now, let me see . . .
No, there's none there . . . I have it . . . whee!
I've thought of some, if we ain't too late.
(Rummages in his pockets.)
Yes, here they are . . . say, ain't that great?
And just five hundred bucks' worth, too . . .
All ready here to slip to you . . .
The choicest land in Tennessee,
Just dropping oil so fast and free
You'll soon be rolling in the dough—
Autos . . . houses . . . coin to blow . . .
Pearls and diamonds for the wiff,
And trips abroad . . . you lucky stiff.
PA (in a daze:)
Are these the leases? Give me the bunch;
I'll give you the money right after lunch.
EAGLE (smoothly:)
Take the blank check here
And fill in your bank.
When your fortune's made
You'll have me to thank.
PA (dutifully filling in:)

"Just dropping oil so fast and free."

Can you hold this check till tomorrow, eh?
Thanks . . . please do . . .
Well, I'm on my way
I may be wealthy a year from today;
They all have to start some time, they say.
(Internally)
I wonder what Ma will say to me, now.
But she don't have to know for a while, anyhow.

CHO.: But when she does find it out! Ha, ha! ho, ho! She has mentally spent that $500 nest egg already many times . . . and now that Pa has shot it away . . . and for oil leases . . . Pa will have to talk fast . . . Poor Pa . . . Poor Pa!

(And that's that.)

English Tributes to Washington.

A race instinctively honors men after its own kind. Count Witte lauded our secret service. Germans have praised our bankers. Four statues of Washington, to be unveiled in England during the summer, reflect the traditional partiality for the splendor of the masculine virtues enthroned in leadership.

The reverence of Englishmen for the character of Washington resembles our own feelings toward Shakespeare. It is natural for men to be as proud of their blood as of their country. The pride Englishmen feel in Washington is the pride of membership in his race. In repelling the aggressiveness of George III the Colonies did the same service as England in repelling the aggressiveness of William II. Not only does our own expansion begin with our Revolution but the expansion of the British Empire also. Thus the English are not sentimental only, but practical, in honoring Washington.

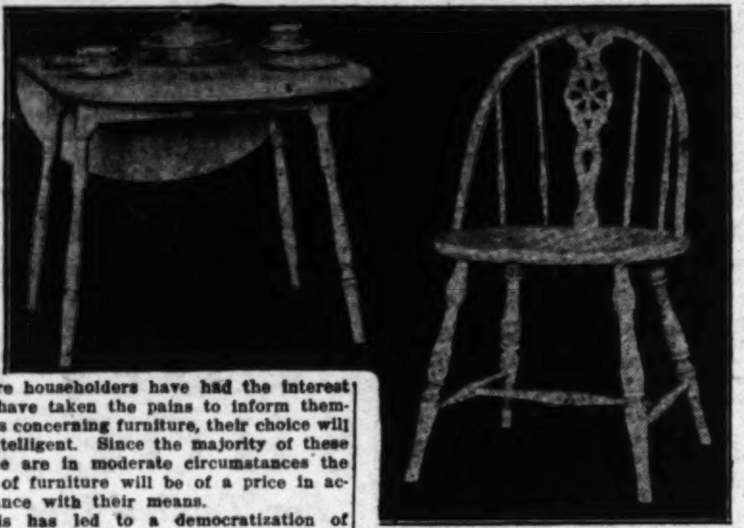
The advocate of peace could justly contend that the final endowment of liberty will have been received when all nations honor the highest types of each. This wider patriotism of the understanding was exhibited in our own recent honor to Bolivar. In honoring Washington the English honor themselves. An adversary in life, he is their compatriot for eternity. No effigy in all their Gothic halls—no eulogy on all their towering tombs—so images the highest conceptions of nobility, and the words of the greatest of Englishmen fit him like a prophecy, for truly it might have been said of him: "The elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up, and say to all the world: This was a man."—[Leslie's.

THE HOW IN HOUSES

HOW TO PLAN HOW TO BUY HOW TO SAVE

THE CHARM OF PAINTED FURNITURE.

THE present time is an important period in the designing and construction of American furniture. In the first place, there is an unusual demand for furniture. Furniture factories are making every effort to keep pace with the demand. Many who have benefited by the high prices and high wages of war-times are turning their thoughts towards furniture. Many of these have hitherto paid little heed to that commodity. Houses are being built that must be furnished. These eager purchasers are going to buy things that are either good or bad. Their houses are going to be either well or ill furnished.



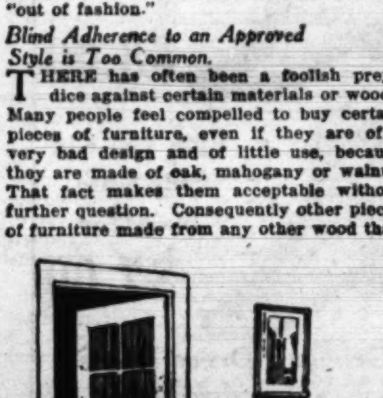
Breakfast Room, Tables and Chairs.

Where householders have had the interest and have taken the pains to inform themselves concerning furniture, their choice will be intelligent. Since the majority of these people are in moderate circumstances the type of furniture will be of a price in accordance with their means.

This has led to a democratization of furniture manufacturing in America, a movement made necessary to prevent fashion from banishing certain types of furniture which are a positive necessity in the furnishing of our homes. Valuable chests, cupboards and cabinets have too often been relegated to the attic because they were "out of fashion."

Blind Adherence to an Approved Style is Too Common.

THERE has often been a foolish prejudice against certain materials or woods. Many people feel compelled to buy certain pieces of furniture, even if they are of a very bad design and of little use, because they are made of oak, mahogany or walnut. That fact makes them acceptable without further question. Consequently other pieces of furniture made from any other wood than one of these has had to be painted and finished to have the appearance of one of these.



Tea Wagon.

It is the advent of painted furniture that has helped greatly in the democratization of American furniture styles.

Painted furniture, as we know it, is essentially an American production, although color has been used as a decoration for furniture for a long while.

As early as 1028 the decorative arts of Venice received an inspiration through the decorating of the Basilica of San Marco, which was being ornamented with mosaics and appropriate furnishings. The inlays in color used here encouraged the use of color inlays in pulpits and pedestals and later in the chairs and tables. These inlays were done in semiprecious materials, but later the same effect was produced by the use of lacquer, enamel or simple paint.

This use of color on furniture was found not only in Italy but in many of the Mediterranean countries. This makes it more appropriate in localities where there are used types of Italian and Spanish architecture.

Excellence of Line, Color and Design in Painted Furniture.

IN OUR modern painted furniture the effects are original, the lines are good and the general effect is admirable. Even so, it is difficult to use it in stately reception-rooms, or formal dining-rooms. It is more appropriate in cottages and bungalows, but may be used in breakfast rooms or nurseries of larger residences.

There are admirable sets of painted furniture, especially breakfast-room sets, on sale in many of our stores. These are original in design and good in color. They include a table, either four or six chairs, standing flower boxes and cabinets of various descriptions. There are especially suitable rugs shown with them. Decorative sets of cottage china are most appropriately used with them.

Separate pieces of unfinished furniture may be bought at several of our large stores as well as in some small shops. These include many designs of plain but attractive tables in both oblong and oval drop-leaf. These may be painted at home.

Certain Rules Must be Observed in Painting Furniture.

IF THE table or chair is to be finally finished in ivory, two coats of flat white paint is first applied and then a third coat of ivory enamel. After this has thoroughly dried the design may be put on in color. After the pattern has been determined upon it may be lightly sketched on with a pencil and then painted free hand or may be put on with a stencil. Regular tube oil paints are used.

A color, possibly gray or blue or putty, is often wanted for the finished color of the whole table. This is best produced by mixing a small quantity of tube paint of the desired color with flat white paint. Only white paint should be used as a base. If ivory is used, the yellow tone of the ivory spoils the color that is to be used. For instance, if a gray-blue is the desired color and this is mixed with the ivory paint a greenish tone is the result. The colors used in the designs on painted furniture indicate that modern tendencies are toward brighter, gayer and more cheerful colors.

Many of our more elaborate and expensive porch rooms are furnished in painted furniture and combined with suitable textiles in harmonious colors. By selecting this type of furniture, the porch of the country residence may be both decorative and useful at every season of the year, and it may be done at a comparatively small expenditure of money.

Even Garden Furniture Requires Careful Selection.

OF RECENT years English porch and garden furniture has become popular. Our manufacturers are finding in it useful suggestions for chairs, tables, benches and trellises suitable for our outdoor life. This white painted furniture is naturally suitable with Colonial types of architecture. In any case it should be of no greatly contrasting color. There should be more harmony between porch and garden furniture and the type of architecture used in the house. Nothing is more offensive to the eye than badly selected and badly placed garden furniture.

If the furniture is used in a pergola or against a house, it should harmonize with it in color and merge into the shadows beyond. Unfortunately much of our good looking garden furniture is not very comfortable to sit on or to lounge about in on a summer's day.

Chinese and Japanese Lacquer Give Inspiration.

THE Orient's gift to our porch and garden furniture consists not only in types of wicker and bamboo furniture but rather in the re-awakened love of rich and splendid colors. The creators of garden furniture are looking for colors and surfaces that will compare with ancient Chinese and Japanese lacquer work for gardens.

These colored designs painted on sets or single pieces of furniture supply strong color accents where they are required for emphasis and enlivenment; afford a variety of color where the furnishing is too much in one hue, and carry color throughout a room. In decorating any room a definite color should not appear in one place alone but should be carried in smaller proportions elsewhere.

Old pieces of furniture that may be found in second-hand stores are good in line but are too ornate with glued-on carvings. These unessential ornaments may be removed and the furniture painted in beautiful tones and good designs. One cabinet that had been spoiled by decorations and varnish was painted a French gray with small festoons of colored flowers. The bed was toned a Venetian blue. Dining-room furniture for cottages may also be painted but rich dark motifs are more appropriate.

Simplicity in Color and Design Gives Beauty.

UNLESS one knows quite a little about decorating it is wise to keep painted furniture very simple; as, for example, a dull blue with orange and black bands, or ivory with black bands and jade knobs, or white with bands of three pale tints.

One bedroom has three pieces of old-fashioned furniture painted in Holland blue enamel with wooden knobs in purple and orange and the inside of the bureau drawers done in orange. White curtains are hung at the windows with thin blue linen at each side and a fiber rug on the floor in natural colors with squares of orange.

There are many smaller articles which may be bought and painted to suit the color schemes of various rooms. In several shops lamps of many styles and designs are made which may be bought unfinished and decorated at home. Most craftsmen are also willing to paint them according to direction in the desired colors.

Wicker and reed furniture may also be painted either in solid colors or else decorated with bands of color. Other articles which may be mentioned are telephone stands, baskets for the fireplace, hearth brooms, card tables and tea wagons.

Side Lights.

NATIONAL ART.

National art is only a slow process of the growth of individuals. Only as individuals learn to separate the beautiful from the trivial and ugly will great art become a national possibility.

BEAUTY IN SCREENS.

Screens are decorative as well as useful. They can be found in designs and materials of great variety. They often are excellent backgrounds for small groups of furniture. Practically every period in furniture manufacture is represented in screens. Besides screens which belong to definite periods, we may find in many of our shops embroideries, textiles, pottery, metalwork, baskets and boxes, each of a distinct period. These may be often used with great decorative advantage.

CORK TILING.

A good material for kitchen floors is cork tiling. It is much softer to walk on than ordinary clay tile. It doesn't stain easily and can be bought with a design. This makes it ornamental as well as useful. Perhaps its greatest advantage is in the fact that it has a cove and base. This curved surface at the floorline is a distinct advantage when it comes to keeping the room sanitary. There are no corners in which dust may collect. Knocks and scars which an ordinary wooden baseboard receives, and which spoil the appearance of the room, do not show on this material.

HOW AND WHERE LOS ANGELES EATS.

BY JANET GORGAN.

IT MAY be designed a pastime, but in reality, it seems one of the most important occupations of Los Angeles people—that of satisfying hunger in public eating-places. When one sees the multitude of these downtown places and then remembers those to be found in every street where there is a small business district, it almost brings the conviction that no one eats at home. Everywhere you go are lunch counters—in drygoods stores, in drug stores, in grocery stores, in bakeries, in the markets, in the railway stations, etc. There are restaurants, dairy restaurants, vegetarian restaurants, serve-yourself restaurants, Spanish, French, Italian, Jewish or Kosher restaurants, Japanese restaurants, English tearooms and Chinese chop houses. There are cafeterias scattered everywhere, and at buttermilk or near-beer counters you can get eats in the shape of sandwiches, pie or doughnuts. Then, of course, there are the hotels and boarding-houses which help to feed the multitude.

In any of these places around the noon hour, you will see people waiting for seats. The cafeterias will have a line extending out upon the street. At the "hole-in-the-wall" counters, opening right upon the street in the busy district between, say, First and Fourth street, and Hill and Main street, you will see men standing behind those seated on the stools, and it is literally "eat and run" at these places.

There is as great a diversity in prices as there is in style of Los Angeles eating-places. In a small place where you can help yourself at the counter and carry your food to a table minus a tablecloth, you can get a sandwich for 7 cents and a mug of coffee for 5 cents, each as good as in the place where the sandwich cost 15 cents and the coffee costs 10 cents—in the latter place you pay for style plus high rent.

There is much to be seen that is interesting and amusing in these places. It is always instructive to watch a crowd, especially when they relax in the pleasurable occupation of satisfying hunger. And, really the people of Los Angeles seem to have wonderful appetites—because of the "ozone" or "dry-zone" or some other zone in the air. It is a surprising thing to watch a cafeteria crowd—to see the loaded trays that people balance so skillfully. You can tell the new-comer by his awkwardness and by the worried look upon his face as he tightly clutches his tray. I never yet have seen anyone drop a tray but I think I may see it happen, sometime, if I keep on going. Los Angeles has the best cafeterias I have seen in any city. It is a pleasure to look down the long counters and see the tempting array of food—and a greater pleasure to sample it. The only drawback is that you want everything you see because it looks so good, and you are made uncomfortable by the inability to choose. We are often warned, in these days, that we eat too much—the people who promulgate this idea, must get an "eyeful" of cafeteria diners. These warnings are especially directed toward elderly people, but it is a noticeable fact that the amount of food upon the tray is in direct ratio to the number of years shown by the holder thereof. The callow youth or the sweet young thing may dine lightly, but the mature frequenter, never!

A very popular form of restaurant there, is the one in which you serve yourself from a counter—but no trays are provided, for these are "quick lunch" affairs for the clerk and business man who has not so much time to spend in eating as has the cafeteria habitue. One day in a place of this kind, I saw two well-dressed young men sit down at the adjoining table, each with a mug of coffee from the counter—rather a light lunch, I thought! To my surprise, they drew forth packages of sandwiches from their pockets—pretty nervy to monopolize a table at the busy noon hour by the purchase of a cup of coffee, only! At another time, I was surprised to see a fat, flashily dressed man munching upon an order of two tiny rolls and taking an occasional sip from a glass of water. But such instances of economy are few and far between, and as I said before, it is surprising to note the average Los Angeles appetite.

The Spanish restaurants are much patronized even by people of other nationality. But it must take a considerable time to acquire a liking for tamales, chili con carne, tortillas and enchiladas, the latter consisting of peppers, onions and cheese rolled up in a tortilla, fried and drenched in a greasy sauce. If the name does not prevent you from sampling it, you may learn that a charupas is a tortilla filled with pieces of fried entrails. The French restaurants are not so popular since they cannot serve wine with their dinners. In these, you will find that "potage aux pois, a la Maintenon," or "Gelee a la ourange, garnie," are much higher priced than "pea soup," or orange jelly, elsewhere, costs more to print the menu in French, perhaps. The English tearooms advertise their "steak and kidney puddings," English "pork pies" and "Scotch shortbread," but no "Irish stew" is mentioned. The Kosher restaurants seem to specialize on rye bread, if you judge from the windows only, but they are strong on roast goose and fish cooked in every imaginable style. There are many who patronize Chinese restaurants for chop suey and Chinese noodles. I'll try anything once—but once was enough for me with these delicacies. But they serve the finest tea in tiny handleless cups of exquisite eggshell china and the rice cakes served with it are delicious. I have had tea and rice cakes in a Japanese tea garden but I have never been able to sample the food in a Japanese restaurant—the smell overpowers me before I can get clear inside. It must be a mistake that attributes the taste for those tidbits, preserved eggs a hundred years old, to the Chinese people—the taste must belong to the Japanese and they keep them for sale in their restaurants.

There is always a crowd around the lunch counters in the markets. Some counters make a specialty of certain filling dishes such as corn beef and cabbage, Spanish stew, beef with noodles, etc. The girl clerks who come here to eat their luncheon are strong on "pie a la mode," it does seem that a spoonful of ice cream topping a piece of pie would not make a very satisfying or digestible luncheon—but this often constitutes her noon-time meal. I overheard, one afternoon, a girl clerk tell another that she was hungry although she had "had a good lunch, pie a la mode, a delicious eclair and an almond tart."

It seems to be a growing fad to name a restaurant after some domestic animal. "The Poodle Dog" used to be the only one so designated but now you may find "The Gingham Dog and Calico Cat," "The Pink Rat" and "The Pig 'n Whistle" restaurants. If this fad keeps on growing, the public should insist that the names selected be more appropriate, as, for instance "The Delectable Chicken," "The Fatted Calf," "The Cornfed Steer," etc.

There is in Los Angeles, I believe, every kind of an eating place you will find in any other American city. But we have, not yet, got anything so handy or economical as an institution in Paris, where you tap a pipe and get a nickle's (or its equivalent in French coin) worth of hot soup, coffee or milk. Nor do we have the Mexican way of vending upon the street, delicacies from trays. When these methods come in vogue here, just think of the open-air dining room effect in Pershing Square. At the present time, there is a little furtiveness about eating a sandwich or doughnut there; but with a fountain of hot coffee on tap and vendors with trays of fried pigsfeet, tamales, hot dogs, etc., meandering up and down the paths, the person who does not indulge in open-air eating, will be looked upon as an interloper. But leaving that condition in abeyance, the present evokes from me these lines:

Oh, eats, eats, eats I see them everywhere,
And their smell, smell, smell permeates the air,
At crowds, crowds, crowds of people I can stare
Who rush, rush, rush to eat most anywhere.

Coming Nearer to an Elixir of Life.

On January 17, 1912, sixteen small fragments of the heart of an embryo chicken were removed by Dr. Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute, New York. Some of these died, but five of them lived on, and continued to divide and grow. Under suitable stimuli these pieces of heart continued to pulsate or "beat" for 104 days, though they were mere fragments of heart, which had been removed from the chick before birth. At the end of 104 days these active beatings or pulsations ceased. But the cells and tissues forming them continued to live on, and they are still alive after more than nine years, and are actively continuing to grow and multiply in an apparently normal fashion!

Many writers have contended that the tissues of the body are inherently immortal and destined to live forever, if disease were avoided and suitable conditions for their continued growth and health were provided. It is indeed not altogether understood why we die at all—seeing that the body is a mechanism which has somehow learned repair and restore itself, and in view of the fact that new material is constantly being supplied to it in the form of food. From this point of view, therefore, the body of a man 80 years old should be as young as that of a baby eight days old, and it is only the ill-understood degenerative changes which take place in the cells which cause aging and death.

Great possibilities are here opened up, and it seems within the realm of possibility that we may, at some future date, discover something very like an "elixir of life" which may have the power of prolonging our bodily existence for very long periods of time.—[Hereward Carrington, Ph.D., in Leslie's.

A LITTLE TALK ON THRIFT.

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

THE vacation period is now at hand, and it suggests certain aspects of thrift that are of importance.

A reasonable amount of diversion and recreation are necessary to good health, effective work and rightful progress. It is within the meaning of the greater thrift—the thrift that is broad, upbuilding and conducive to the advancement of civilization.

To labor continually to the very limit of one's possibilities is not true thrift any more than the miser's practices, judged from correct standards, may be called thrifty.

Throughout the centuries that have marked the history of civilization mankind has with profit encouraged the development of the fine and applied arts, and has laid glorious reward at the foot of genius. Laudable encouragement is today being given to those who make the world more beautiful through the application of their talents and skill.

These finer phases of life are made possible because those who have wealth, and can afford to do so, are spending money in ways that give support to such activities. If everyone saved down to the last possible penny, we would not have the constructive benefits of these ennobling gifts bestowed upon us by the artists and skilled artisan. And we should view the employment of our time from the same sensible standpoint.

It is thrift of health to take a season of rest once a year. If we spend it in such a way that it will replenish our energies, bring rest to fatigued nerves and tone us up for the duties and responsibilities of life, it will be time well invested. But if the vacation period is given over to worrying or dissipation or a too strenuous ambition to have a "good time," it will result in more harm than good.

The manner of spending one's vacation is a problem worthy of careful thought. If rightfully planned it can be made a source of benefit which shall last through all the balance of the year.

LOST ON BROADWAY.

BY V. K. YOUNG

IT WAS the busiest time of day in the midst of the crowded city. The streets were choked with traffic. Bells were clanging, whistles blowing, wheels grinding, and a hundred other indescribable noises smote the ear. Crowds of people thronged the sidewalks, hurrying in and out of the shops or loitering to look in at the windows.

Where the crowd was densest, a plain, middle-aged woman was passing along, laden with bundles, and with a basket on her arm. Trudging along beside her, and almost invisible behind her full skirts, was a small child, holding tight to her mother's dress. Her round eyes were full of wonder and bewilderment as she gazed at the sights about her.

Suddenly, having become entangled for a moment among some passers-by, the child found herself at a standstill, with no skirt to hold to. She clutched at first one dress and then another, but always on looking up she saw a strange, and it seemed to her, unfriendly face, looking down at her. She turned this way and that, frantically seeking the familiar form and the skirt that meant safety. She seemed all alone in a strange world—a world full of terrifying people who looked down at her curiously and asked endless questions. She remained dumb with fear, and as the full realization of her predicament was borne in on her consciousness, her eyes filled, and two large tears rolled down her plump cheeks.

But now a deep, gruff voice was heard, and a giant in a dark blue uniform appeared. She felt herself being lifted up until she could see over the heads of the crowd. For an instant she forgot her fright in wonder at the sight she beheld from her lofty perch. Down the long street a million black heads seemed to be bobbing along. She had never seen so many people before, and for the first time in her life she was dimly aware of the vastness of the world. Then she became conscious once more of her forlorn situation, and unmindful of the reassuring words of the giant, and of the stick of candy which someone had placed in her small fist, she dug her knuckles into her eyes and refused to be comforted.

At last, after what seemed an eternity of waiting and suspense, the giant turned as if to carry her off to some unknown region of terror. At this moment her misery reached its height. It seemed to her that if she left the scene of her misfortune, she would assuredly never again behold the longed-for form of her mother. Her eyes were so blinded with tears that she did not see the anxious woman pushing through the crowd until she heard a familiar voice. Then she stopped suddenly in the midst of a sob and held out her arms, struggling to free herself from the giant.

Once in the embrace of her mother, her troubles seemed to melt away like magic. The giant seemed less fierce, the crowd not quite so bewildering, and the stick of candy suddenly became an object of interest. The world was bright once more.

Weird Result.

THE late Ollie James was one of those who admitted that there would never be such a thing as a perfect tariff. "You can't make a tariff that will work successfully both ways," he once declared, "and half measures even to work little better than no measures at all." Then he laughed.

"It reminds me of a friend of mine who awoke one morning to find the house reeking with the most awful smell. 'James,' he cried to his butler, 'what's this awful smell?'

"'Well, sir,' said the butler, it's this way, sir. Today's a saint's day and the footman, he's 'igh church sir, and is burning hincense, but the cook is low church sir, and she's burning brown paper to hobviate the hincense, sir.'"

GEORGE GOULD was asked what he really thought of commercial conditions in Germany and how soon the German mark would be worth face value again.

"I can't exactly say," he admitted for in a great many ways the German situation today reminds me of an encounter between a mistress and a maid:

"'Mary,' cried the mistress, 'why didn't you wash that window?'"

"'Sure, and I did wash it on the inside, ma'am, so as we could look out of it, but I thought I wouldn't clean the outside so those curious children next door couldn't look in.'"

BILL HART does not bear much of a reputation as a funny man. He and Charley Chaplin have little in common, either on or of the screen, but recently, when asking a really young girl to play a certain part, Bill uncorked a joke that threw the studio into a furore.

"You're an old woman," he accused one girl, and naturally the storm started.

"How dare you call me an old woman?" demanded the girl, all prepared to dive into Bill tooth and nail.

"Well," replied Hart, "if you were walking across the street and you saw a worm, would you pick it up?"

"Certainly not," was the reply.

"Then," adjudged Bill, "you're no chicken."

"WOMAN is an enigma. Man can't solve her, and yet he won't give her up."

DeWolf Hopper was responding—out of a very wide experience—to a toast to the fair sex.

"Two beautiful young women were drinking tea and smoking cigarettes," he continued, "in a sumptuous apartment looking out on Central Park. The telephone bell rang. The hostess took up the telephone. When she put it down again there were angry tears in her eyes.

"'My husband,' she said, 'has just announced, if you please, that he won't be home to dinner.'

"'What brutes men are!' the other young woman cried. 'My husband has stuck round the house every night for nearly a week.'"

The Robber.

TWO Scottish sailors were engaged as deckhands on a cargo steamer. One had a very good character and the other a bad reputation. The captain favored the sailor with the good character, which made the other jealous.

One day the weather was very rough, and the sailor with the good character was walking along the deck with a bucket of water when a huge wave washed both bucket and man overboard.

The sailor with the bad character ran to the bridge and shouted: "Capt'in, capt'in, ye ken the deckhand who ye said had a guid character? He's just gone overboard wi' yer pail?"

Bad to Worse.

"OH, WELL, the Germans are rattled." Samuel Untermeyer, the noted New York lawyer, was talking in Palm Beach about some of the German absurdities that were enunciated at the London conference.

"Lloyd George," he continued, "went at the Germans too hard. They lost their heads before his onslaught. It was like the case of the schoolboy.

"The principal of a school dashed into a schoolroom, shot out his finger towards a fat boy, and yelled:

"'Hi, you there in the corner, do we eat the flesh of the whale?'

"The boy turned white. 'Y-yes, sir,' he stammered.

"'And what,' roared the principal, 'what do we do with the bones?'

"'Why, sir,' said the boy, 'we l-lay them on the sides of our plate.'"

Never Switch.

DR. WILLIAM LYON PHELPS of Yale said at a dinner in Philadelphia:

"The average popular novelist and his audience are very, very—well, it reminds me of a story.

"An old-time music hall artist turned up, after some years of absence, in a certain provincial town where he had once been a great favorite. He went on in his usual make-up—bulbous red nose and so forth—expecting a grand reception, but all his efforts were received in gloomy silence.

"'What's the matter with 'em,' he said afterwards to the stage manager, and he dashed a tear from his eye. 'Have they forgotten old Bill?'

"'No, Bill, they ain't forgotten you,' said the manager in a kindly voice. 'No it ain't that, but you've changed your jokes about. You're tellin' the one about the star boarder ahead of the one about the Limburger, and it upsets 'em.'"

Panting for Breath?

X-SECRETARY LANSING said at a dinner:

"Our taxes are too high. The only way to get them lowered is to protest against them strenuously. This is being done.

"I heard a chap who went to a masquerade ball the other night in a costume that excited a great deal of comment. He wore, in fact, a long-tailed shirt, socks and shoes—but no trousers.

"'George,' said his host rather severely, 'what the dickens do you represent—Venus preparing for the bath?'

"'No,' said George complacently. 'This is an original idea of my own. I represent a taxpayer.'"

Up Against It.

THE story is told by a certain philanthropist in the West, who is a man of big business as well and who is noted for his sympathy for the "down-and-outers." If possible he will give any deserving applicant for work a chance to "make good."

On one occasion it is stated this gentleman was approached by an individual so utterly disreputable in appearance that any but the philanthropist himself would have had him ejected from the office.

"Can't you find any work, at all?" asked the good man, when he had heard the man's recital of his woes.

"I can find work, all right," said the man, "plenty of it, but everybody wants references from my last employer."

"And cannot you get these references from him?"

"No, sir, he's been dead for twenty-five years."

Not Nowadays.

A LITTLE boy, the youngest member of a large family, was taken to see his married sister's new baby.

He seemed more interested in the contents of the baby's basket than in the baby, and after examining several pretty trifles, picked up a powder-puff.

Much surprised at his discovery, and looking rather shocked, he said, "Isn't she rather young for that sort of thing?"

THERE was nobody who could play the violin like Binks, so he was delighted when asked to play at the local concert.

"The instrument I shall use at your concert," he explained to the host, "is over 200 years old."

"Oh, that's all right, old chap. Don't worry about that," replied the host. "I shan't tell and no one will ever know the difference."

Sowing the Seed.

WHAT he said to his wife: If you want a garden this year you had better hire somebody to make it. I'm not going to try it again. I've figured it out; and if I would spend on my busness the time I put on that garden I would make enough money to keep us in vegetables for fifty years. I'm off of it for life.

What he said to his neighbor: I don't think I'll bother with a garden this year. It doesn't pay; I may do a little; but the digging and labor—I'm off that for life.

What he said to his partner—Well, how's the garden coming along? I'm not doing much with mine this year. What? How high did you say? Already? What seed did you use?

What he said to his wife when he got home an hour early that day: Call me when dinner's ready. I've got to get a garden started today or I'll never raise a thing.

The Boomerang.

DURING the after dinner speaking the toastmaster saw Jones, a somewhat shady character, slip two spoons in his vest pocket. When the last orator had finished he rose.

"Gentlemen," he said, "there is nothing to add after all this brilliant speaking, so I will try to entertain you with a little parlor magic. You see, I take two spoons. I slip them in my vest pocket. Presto—and they are in the pocket of Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones, will you please corroborate my statement?"

Jones not to be outdone, rose.

"I'm rather handy at that sort of thing myself," he said. "Presto and they are back in the pocket of the toastmaster. Mr. Toastmaster, if you don't corroborate my statement, I'll have you searched on the spot."

Cut Corners to Fortune.

"A GOOD thing will always succeed."

Charles M. Schwab was talking in Loretto about the remarkable popularity of a new steel.

"Let me tell you," he went on, "a story about a shovel. Just fifty years ag a number of men were digging a line of railway between Birmingham and Manchester. The shovels they were using had square-cornered blades about fifteen inches long.

"The digging was hard and slow, and one of the workmen suggested to the boss that if he would grind off the corners of the shovels they would cut into the earth more easily and the day's output would be bigger.

"The boss ridiculed the idea, but the workman later on persuaded an ironmonger in Sheffield to make him a couple of dozen round-cornered shovels as an experiment. These shovels were submitted to the scoffing boss for trial. The boss reported at the end of the week that his niggers were all turning up ten or fifteen minutes ahead of time in the morning so as to get hold of one of the new round shovels.

"The boss, the ironmonger and the workman-inventor patented the new shovel between them and proceeded to manufacture it in a small way. In a few years they were all millionaires."

Lacked Reputation.

HARVEY MAITLAND WATTS, the Philadelphia art critic, said at a dinner in Rittenhouse square:

"The ignorance of the new rich in art matters is quite incredible. The wife of a new rich profiteer was buyng pictures in a Walnut-street shop the other day. After she had bought a number of costly pictures she said:

"'Now show me something a little cheaper for the back hall. It's dark there.'

"The salesman brought out another picture.

"'This, madam,' he said 'is only a chromo, and we could let you have it for nearly nothing.'

"The new rich lady nodded in a sage way.

"'Yes, of course,' she said, 'Chromo is a struggling and obscure artist, and he can't expect to command good prizes till he makes a popular hit, can he?'"

"WELL, Jimmy," said the visitor, "I understand you have a new baby here."

"Yes," said Jimmy.

"Who does he look like, your father or your mother?" asked the visitor.

"We don't know yet," said Jimmy. "He seems kind of undecided yet."

"They tell me he has your father's nose."

"Yes," said Jimmy. "He has pa's nose and ma's mouth and Aunt Sarah's ears, and between you and me, I'm for giving him grandpa's teeth. He ain't got any of his own, and grandpa has two sets."

OLD MISSIONS OF CALIFORNIA ALONG EL CAMINO REAL.

BY JOHN STEVEN McGROARTY.

All in the golden weather, forth let us ride
today,
You and I together, forth on The King's Highway.
The blue skies above us, and below, the shining sea,
There's many a road to travel, but its this road for me.

AND indeed there is no road in the world like El Camino Real, The King's Highway. From San Diego to San Francisco, it winds around the mountains and dips down to the sea—a perfect satin ribbon running through the glories of California.

Long, long ago the trail was marked by the sandaled feet of the Franciscan padres. It was the first road of any kind in California. It has been trodden by the gentle Friars, and the Indians, galloped over by the gallant gentlemen of Spain, marched along by Fremont's men, and today machines spin over its smooth surface in countless thousands.

All the romance and history and life of California has gathered along the old road. It was in the beginning and still is, the State's most important highway, and the tourist who would know California can do no better than to follow El Camino Real, marked today by quaint sign posts in the form of mission bells in memory of the days when Fra Junipero Serra traveled the length of the State founding his Missions.

They stand today the most picturesque ruins in the country, and the most vitally important from a historical point of view, for they mark the bringing of Christianity to California, the conquest of the savages and the beginning of civilization upon which has been builded our glorious present.

Between Los Angeles and San Diego lie several of the most interesting of the Missions both from an architectural and historic point of view. They have become too familiar to people through the world, and thousands of people visit them each year.

Long ago the Missions each stood in the midst of a community of peaceful, happy people, and in those days they were the hospices of the land. Their great oaken doors swung ever inward with welcome to whomsoever might come. There was no price paid for anything. In the plenty that was on every hand all were welcome to share. In those days the traveler on The King's Highway could make the entire journey of 700 golden miles without a penny in his pocket and never lack for food to eat or a shelter at night.

And today the old Missions with their crumbling walls and clambering roses, their quaint attendants and legendary lore are still the magnets that draw those who seek a glimpse of the grandeur of a former civilization.

Leaving Los Angeles one comes first to San Gabriel to the Mission of San Gabriel, which was known as the Queen of the Missions. It is in a splendid state of preservation, and services are still held regularly in the old church. The doors of the sacristy hang on their original hinges and many rare old vestments and priceless manuscripts are kept in the museum. It was founded in 1771, and an interesting story is told of how the hostile Indians who came to scalp the surveyors, fell on their knees before a painting of the Virgin, and remained to become the first Christian Indians of the Mission, which in its day was one of the most prosperous of them all. It is built of stone, mortar and adobe bricks, and the imposing west side wall is supported by ten heavy buttresses.

The picturesque wall is a continuation of the side wall, pierced by six embrasured bell recesses of differing sizes. This belfry is considered an architectural gem, and its design has been extensively reproduced in modern architecture.

The old stone stairway at the right of the church leading to the choir gallery is one of the most picturesque spots in California. The steps are worn and hollowed by the passing of many feet and many years, and over it all hangs the swaying lacelike branches of a giant pepper tree.

The sleepy little town of San Gabriel seems very Spanish with its dusky-eyed children playing along the road, and the old adobe houses hiding in their bowers of green back from the highway.

And so we speed on through other little towns, while all around and about is spread the glory of California—her hills and her sea and her incomparable glory, and then we come to Capistrano where was founded the Mission San Juan Capistrano in 1775, named for its patron St. John de Capistran, a Franciscan bishop and author of note. Capistrano is a little Mexican village on the coast about fifty-eight miles south of Los Angeles. The Mission was one of the most beautiful and vast and its stately arches are impressive today in their solemn simplicity. It seems almost incredible that they could have been constructed by the Indians—and yet they were, which is a point to remember in making this pilgrimage. The Missions of California were built by Indians for Indians under the guidance of the Franciscans.

And then continuing our journey southward, we come next to San Luis Rey at Oceanside, which was founded in 1798. We are now about eighty-five miles from Los Angeles. The Mission stands upon a slight rolling hill, that gradually slopes to the river and fertile valley on which were pastured many thousand head of cattle and sheep in the early days of the fathers.

This Mission was founded under the most favorable conditions and circumstances and it prospered from the first. As it stands today, in its semi-ruined condition, it still holds its majesty and beautiful proportions.

And so following El Camino Real, we come finally to San Diego, where was planted the bean. Here was founded the first Mission by Fra Junipero Serra. Here died the first martyrs for the faith. Here was the greatest struggle and the greatest victory.

It must have been a glorious sight when on the sixteenth day of July in 1779, Junipero with his little band of sailors and attendants sat up the cross on a rude hut overlooking the bay of San Diego, and celebrated mass. A bell was hung in a tree, and with the sound of muskets as notes of an organ the services were held that dedicated Alta California to God and the King. These happenings took place in what is now called Old Town.

The partial ruins of the Mission are about six miles from the city, beside a more modern building—an industrial school for Indian girls. Before the Mission still stand the two palms that witnessed the trials and glories of the work of the padres.

And so we have followed The King's Highway to its southern end, or beginning would be the more fitting word.

It is a long road and sunny, and the fairest in the world—
There are peaks that rise above it in their snowy mantles curled,
And it leads through the mountains through a hedge of chaparral,
Down to the waters where the sea gulls call,
we will take the road together.

FIRST FOURTH OF JULY IN LOS ANGELES.

BY J. M. SCANLAND.

THE first celebration of the Fourth of July in Los Angeles was in 1847. It was under the auspices of the military occupying the place, and consisted of a parade through the streets, dedication of a fort, raising of the American flag and reading the Declaration of Independence. Col. J. B. Stevenson was in command, and had a force of about 1000 men, consisting of a detachment of his regiment, the First New York Volunteers; and Gen. Kearny's regiment of dragoons. The ceremonies were held on the summit of the hill overlooking the pueblo and which is now known as Fort Hill. The fort, or "field works," as styled in military orders, was finished on the first day of July, and Commander Stevenson concluded that it would be very appropriate to dedicate it on the anniversary day of our independence, and also celebrate that day with the usual ceremonies. Accordingly, he issued a general order commanding the captain of each company to report on that morning half an hour before sunrise with his company, the men wearing their uniforms and carrying their guns and accouterments.

The plans for the construction of the fort were drawn by Lieut. J. W. Davidson, chief topographical engineer of Gen. Kearny's division, and under his direction the soldiers of the post did the work of construction.

In the meantime Col. Stevenson had employed Juan Remirez to get timbers for a flag pole. He wanted one at least 150 feet high, so that the flag could be seen from every point in the pueblo, and beyond. Juan went up into the mountains of San Bernardino, to look for tall timber. He was furnished with carts, oxen, several "friendly" Indians to do the work, and a guard of ten soldiers to protect them against the "savage" Indians. At the headwaters of Mill Creek two of the tallest timbers in the forest were felled. One was ninety feet in length and the other seventy-five feet long. The carts were lashed together, the trunks placed upon the continuity wagon, which was drawn by twenty yoke of oxen. Slowly the combination cart wound its way down the mountain, and, finally up the steep grade of the hill into the fort. The carpenters of the command fashioned the timbers into a flag pole, by splicing them, and it was raised in the center of the fort.

At sunrise a national salute was fired from the four cannon. This awakened the pueblo, and some of the Mexicans thought that the war had broken out again, or perhaps there was a revolution. Some of the Indians took to the foothills, desiring to get out of range and also to let the Americans and the Mexicans fight it out.

At 9 o'clock the soldiers were formed in line and Col. Stevenson's order for the dedication of the fort and the celebration of the day was read by the adjutant of the regiment.

The command then marched down the hill and paraded through the few streets of the pueblo to the northern limits, and countermarched on Alameda street and up the southern slope of the hill to the fort. The plaza was crowded with natives, others on horseback filled the streets, and the more friendly swarmed upon the slopes of the hill, while the Americans and those of other nationalities took positions nearer the scene. The population of the pueblo was about 2500.

At 10 o'clock the men were formed into a hollow square, fronting the flag pole, which was in the center. Col. Stevenson stated that he would now dedicate the field works as the beginning of the ceremonies of the day. The American flag would be raised, and for this purpose he had selected Lieut. J. W. Davidson, chief topographical engineer of the division, and he knew of no one more deserving of that honor, as the work of constructing the fort was due to his skill and energy.

Lieut. Davidson, then stepped forward and saluted the commander, who ordered "present arms," until the flag arose to the top, unfurled to the breeze, and the band continued to play. At this moment the drums rolled, and another national salute was fired. The Americans gave cheer after cheer, and some of the natives joined in the enthusiasm, shouting "Viva, Americana!"

Col. Stevenson then said that he would now name the field work and there was no name more deserving of the honor than that of the late Capt. Benjamin D. Moore, who fell at the battle of San Pasqual in defense of his country. The commanding officer paid a high tribute to the memory of the captain, who was "a perfect specimen of an American officer," whose character for every virtue and accomplishment that adorns a gentleman was only equaled by the reputation that he had acquired on the battlefields for gallantry as an officer and a soldier." He, therefore, would name the fort in honor of the late Capt. Benjamin D. Moore, and it would henceforth be known by that name, unless otherwise ordered by the War Department." The soldiers again presented arms at the conclusion of the dedication, and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The Declaration of Independence was then read by Stephen C. Foster, who held the position of interpreter for Stevenson's regiment. He then interpreted the document in Spanish, as but few of the natives understood English. The band played "Hail Columbia," and this concluded the first celebration of the Fourth of July in Los Angeles. The places of business had been closed by request of the commandant of the garrison, and it was ordered that the saloons be closed under a penalty of the guard house for offenders.

It is not generally known that there were two forts on the hill. The current idea is that a fort was built on the hill during our war with Mexico. This is not exactly correct. The last one—Fort Moore—was constructed after the war—as far as California was concerned. The first was constructed after Los Angeles had been taken by the Americans. After the first conquest of the pueblo, a detachment of about forty men, and two cannon, under Capt. Gillespie, was left to hold the place. The men were quartered in a corral near the corner of Commercial and Los Angeles street. Owing to "blue" orders issued by the "tyrant" Gillespie the Mexicans "pronounced" and drove the garrison to the hill. There, crude breastworks were thrown up, which was commonly called a fort. Finally, Gillespie surrendered, with the proviso that he should be permitted to retreat with the "honors of war" to San Pedro, which was allowed.

When Col. Stevenson took command in May, 1847, he decided to take no chances on another revolution, and ordered a fort to be built. Capt. Davidson was instructed to draw the plans and supervise the work. This fort was built upon the site of the first one, but it was larger.

Nothing remains of the field works. A granite monument, upon which is a bronze tablet at the corner of Moore Place and North Broadway, marks the historic spot where was held the first celebration of the Fourth of July in Los Angeles. The monument was erected by the Eschscholtzia Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

THE GENERAL'S AUTOMOBILE

By

Vincente Blasco Ibanez

The Story of One Night in Mexico. A Chronicle of Romance and Scarlet Adventure.

"NO, I SHALL not be going back to Mexico. Whatever happens to Gen. Castillejo, that is not just the place for me. That affair of the general's automobile has spoiled everything, so far as I am concerned."

Isidro Maltrana had been promising the story of the general's automobile during all that evening, seated with a group of Spanish friends in a small restaurant off lower Broadway in New York. The party had lasted for several hours already, and the room was heavy with cigarette smoke and the smell of unwashed dishes from the kitchen.

Maltrana had been telling the story of his life as an adventurer and wandering journalist in the various republics of South and Central America, chapters in a Comedie Humaine that he had actually lived, and which had been famous in Europe and Spanish-America from the many novels his roving career had inspired.

"The most celebrated canaille in Madrid," he had styled himself once, in summarizing his character as a wielder of a mercenary pen, letting his genius out for hire to the highest bidder, fighting duels for causes he did not believe in, heaping abuse upon men and things which, underneath, he respected, all in consequence of that struggle with poverty and oppression which had been portrayed in a novel called "The Horde."

Eleven years before he had landed on the American continent at Buenos Aires. Essentially a Bohemian, never satisfied with what he had, he was always moving on in search of something better, passing, meanwhile, from failure to failure. In speaking of this part of his life's history Maltrana had compared himself, with some pride, to the old "Conquistadores" such as Capt. Orellana, who one day set out from Peru, coursed down one stream into a larger one, and finally reached the Atlantic at the mouth of the Amazon.

In Argentina he had tried farming, gone bankrupt, and returned to journalism to make a living, going from republic to republic, but always northward.

"I was the friend of several presidents," Maltrana had confided. "Some used me for a buffoon to amuse them; others treated me as a secret councilor of state. I did publicity work for the First Ladies of the Lands, describing their new dresses, imported from Paris, and their dinners and balls, just as I wrote speeches, constitutional amendments and proclamations for their husbands to present to Parliament or to the public. From some of these men I ran away for fear of being shot—I knew too much, you see. Other times they would be assassinated, and I would lose my job."

"Finally," Maltrana had been saying, "I reached Mexico and there I seemed to be making good.

"I had become a sort of secretary and general publicity agent for the generals leading the revolution against Porfirio Diaz. No one was my equal in drawing up 'proclamations to the People of Mexico,' addresses of 'The Commander-in-Chief to his Troops,' strategical analysis of great victories of the 'insurrectionists' over 'federals,' with comparisons with the battles of Napoleon, Caesar, and the great captains of history.

"Every one praised me for my lyric style and my enormous erudition. 'My, how much that Maltrana knows!' 'How much that Maltrana must have read!'

"I passed the regimes of Madero and Huerta with increasing reputation. Under Carranza I had gotten to be the most intimate confidant of Gen. Castillejo, who had promised to make me his general purchasing agent in the United States on a 10 per cent commission the moment he became President of Mexico four years hence. And I really believe that everything would have turned out well had it not been for the recent revolution, which puts an entirely new aspect on that episode of the general's automobile."

"Tell us about that," his friends now insisted. "You started to several times."

"Well," said Maltrana, "as I was saying, Castillejo was an interesting chap. He was only 22 when I first met him, but he was already one of the most intimate and influential friends of Carranza. That was the way with all Carranza's chief assistants. When the old man got his Cabinet and leading advisers together for a conference he looked like a schoolmaster getting ready to examine a class.

"Gen. Castillejo was a short, lean little man, as spry as a squirrel and with lots of muscle for a man of his size. The most striking feature of his milk-chocolate face was his eyes, sharp, sparkling, domineering, when you looked squarely into them. That was not so easy to do, however, for there was always a mobile, fugitive leer on his countenance, as if he were trying to hide some evil thought. His slanting eyes and dark skin were scarcely in harmony, though, with his frank, keen, almost European profile. He was, on the whole, one of those types quite common in our Spanish America, a hybrid of two, if not three, races, Indian, Hispanic and African."

"Did he own the automobile?" asked one of Maltrana's friends impatiently.

"I am coming to that," the journalist replied. "You must know that after I became his secretary, for having described one of his bloodless victories to the disadvantage of Wellington at Waterloo—I don't defend myself, understand; I was simply playing the game—Castillejo took quite a shine to me. In fact, in his very occasional moments of good humor, he would slap me on the back and call me 'Maltranita,' with an affectionate diminutive on my name. I became entirely solid in his favor, though, by my book called the 'History of the Army of the West.' That was the division which Castillejo had commanded in the war against Villa. I don't remember that that particular corps ever did any fighting, but in my book I showed clearly that the triumph of Carranza had been due exclusively to that division. Of course, I also had written a 'History of the Army of the East,' and others for the armies of the North and South, showing the same about each of them. Was I ever caught? Of course not. To begin with, no such armies ever existed. But the books came out under the names of various generals, who were very careful never to let on that I had done the work.

"That was the way with Castillejo. When all the newspapers referred to 'The History of the Army of the West' as the greatest piece of military erudition since Caesar's Commentaries, and the best piece of writing since Cervantes, the general couldn't contain himself for pride. You would have thought the style belonged to him. But, anyhow, he was immensely pleased with me, and attached me more closely than ever to his person.

"Well, I was getting along finely, for once in my life, when the campaign for the Presidential elections came on last year. The government which had issued from the revolution was anxious to do two things—have elections that would seem to be quite legal, and, at the same time, be sure that its own candidate would come out victorious. Meanwhile a number of generals came forward for the office, threatening to start a revolution unless they were elected. They all spoke of legality and respect for the laws. At the same time they kept feeling of their belts to be sure their revolvers were ready. The public, as a whole, weary of ten years of revolution, was hoping that the generals would kill each other off before election, so that it could vote in peace either for the existing government or for the general who would overthrow that government. The only way to be sure of your skin in Mexico is to side with the boss of the moment.

"As I said, my general, Castillejo, was a confidant of the President, and, accordingly, in favor of the candidate the President had put forward. Since the other aspirants to the place all belonged to the army, the government candidate made 'antimilitarism' the issue. Castillejo, and other generals on the President's side, who, in their time, had shot hundreds of people, and burned dozens of towns and villages, and were still living in time of peace with all the violence of war, itself, began to make speeches everywhere—I wrote most of them myself—singing the bliss of a country governed by civilians and the need of doing away with militarism once and for all.

"Those were busy days for me. At the orders of Castillejo I wrote articles, speeches and proclamations by the volume. Of course it was easier for me to write like that in Mexico than it would have been anywhere else. All you have to do is to work variations on a single theme—'American intervention.' To get an editorial in defense of the government you describe the opposition as a bunch of 'traitors bent on producing anarchy and provoking an American intervention to restore order.'

"If you're writing against the government you may say that the graft and cruelties practiced by the regime in power make intervention from the United States inevitable—unless the people make a change, long overdue, in their rulers. Without the phantom of American intervention there would be no literature in Mexico. Of course, if you get actually tired of that theme you can accuse your antagonists of having sold out to 'filthy American gold.' According to the papers, somebody sells out to the United States every day in Mexico. Add up all the money that is daily spent by the Americans in buying up writers in Mexico and you get a pile that would run Uncle Sam clean broke."

"But when are you going to tell us about the automobile?" Maltrana's companions again interrupted.

"I'm nearer to that than you think," the exile replied. "I must tell you that, as the campaign went on my general got gloomier and gloomier every day. And the surprising thing was that he didn't seem to be worrying at all about the army men who were threatening revolution. He was giving his entire attention to something quite different. There was a young fellow of about the general's age who was an engineer educated in some technical school of the United States. His name was Taboada.

"Now this Taboada was always harping on the question of American democracy, insisting that the American democratic system, with political contests carried on under law and respect for conflicting opinions, should be introduced into Mexico. Not merely this. Taboada, who was an agreeable and a clever chap, at the instance of some friends of his, had even come forward as a candidate for the Presidency, insisting, moreover, that he was the 'only truly civilian candidate' in the field.

"When the general told me that the engineer was running I rubbed my eyes in astonishment. 'Is the fellow crazy?' I asked. 'He will do well if he gets his own vote. However,' I went on, 'if you are worried about what he is doing and saying, why, of course, I'll demolish him with an article. It's easy, you see. We'll simply say that he has sold out to the United States and that's why he wants to introduce the American method of holding elections. I'll assert pointblank that he got two millions straight from Washington to make his campaign with. If you think two millions too low, I'll make it five. The amount won't matter so much, because, of course, I'll say I saw him get the money with my own eyes. To tell the truth, my pride as a writer was at stake in telling a good lie. More than once I had found myself outstripped by the writers of the other side, who had a perfectly discouraging facility for making slanders up out of whole cloth.

"Now, don't get nervous. . . . I'm coming to the automobile. . . . Some of the colleagues of my general, Castillejo, went much farther than I would ever have gone. 'See here, general,' they would say, 'if that fool engineer is too much on your mind you just say the word. Nothing simpler. . . .' Idiots! As though my general didn't know that already! As though he hadn't thought of it a hundred times himself. And, in fact, he replied to all such propositions: 'Nonsense! The other side would put Taboada's murder up to the government, make a martyr of him, and get us in a hole. No, let's not bother with the fellow at all!'

"But I knew the general had something else in view, though I couldn't understand quite why he worried so over that poor insignificant engineer, who didn't have the ghost of a show to get anywhere in the elections.

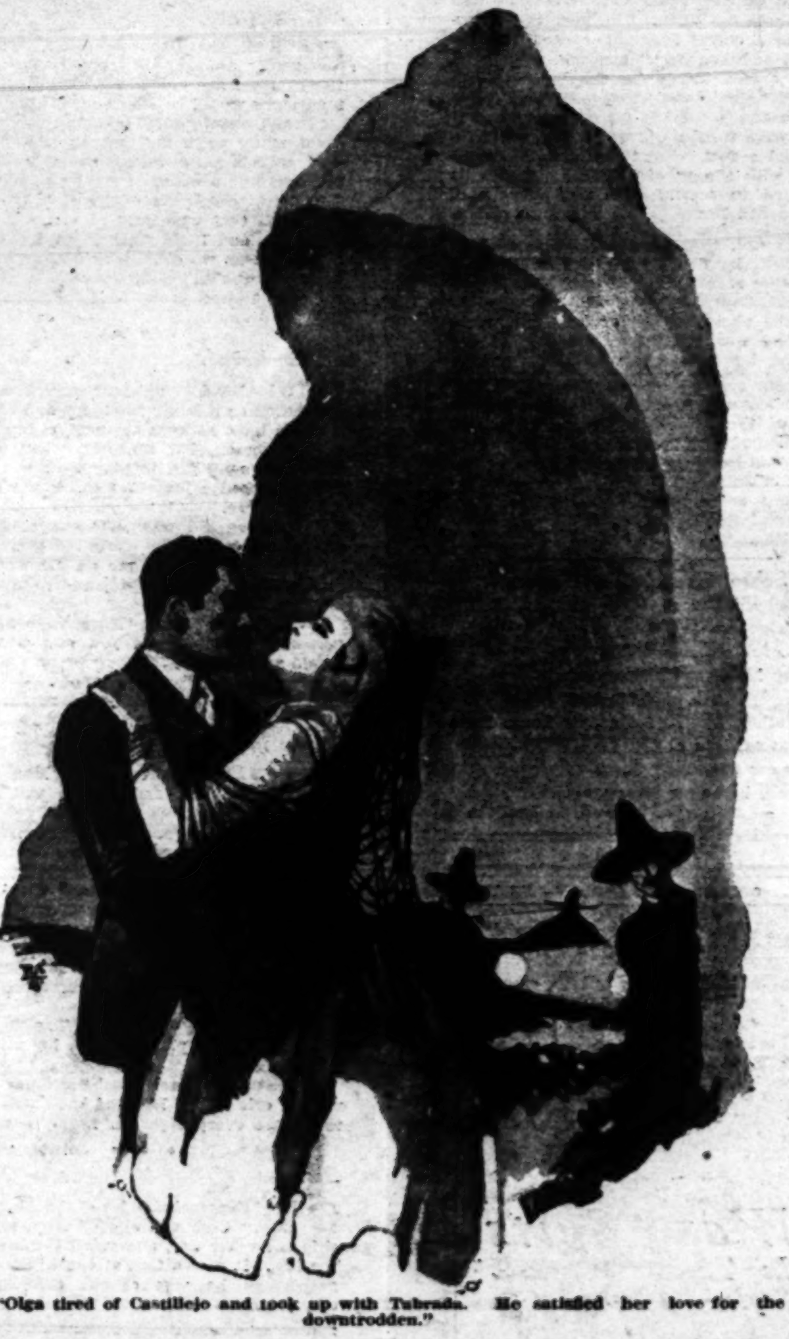
"But one of his intimate friends let me in on the secret one night when I was out on a time with him.

"'What's worrying the general so?' I asked. 'Doesn't seem to be himself.'

"The friend smiled knowingly: 'Oh, the general. Huh, huh! He's jealous, that's all. He's tearing around as if he had the toothache. That girl of his, Olga del Monte, seems to be in love with the engineer Taboada.'

"You probably don't know that Olga del Monte was the Aspasia of the Mexican revolution. The daughter of a good family in Mexico City, her imaginative and notorious escapades had quite disgraced her very respectable relatives. She had dyed her hair blonde in a country where most of the natives are very dark brunettes. She had lived a while in Paris, and the cultivation and charm she had taken on in that period of her education had an irresistible fascination for the young centaurs of the revolution who had never been outside of Mexico. She could play the piano and the harp very well. She had a fair voice as a singer, and was quite nifty in composing music and writing poetry. All that was enough to drive these young generals wild. But, in addition, her social position was what influenced their passion most. In spite of all the speeches the generals made against class distinctions, they liked Olga because she was a born aristocrat. It flattered their vanity immensely to think of themselves as friends, protectors of a girl from one of the best families in the republic. A few years before, you see, they had been peons on estates in the country or vagrants wandering from town to town.

"The most expensive gifts began to pour in on Olga from the various generals competing for her hand and favor. The conquerors showed the generosity that bandits always have when it comes to spending the booty they have amassed without much effort. At times Olga would go to the trouble of remodeling the precious ornaments. Then again she would wear bracelets, combs or necklaces, just as they had been given to her; and people would point to her diamonds, her emeralds or her pearls, and whisper the names of their real owners, ladies high up in the society of the old government that had been overthrown and who were then in exile abroad.



"Olga tired of Castillejo and took up with Tabrada. He satisfied her love for the downtrodden."

"It happened that in this spendthrift competition for Olga's favor, my general, thanks to a specially romantic strain in his character, had won out. For that matter, his gifts to the young lady had been astounding. On entering Mexico City at the head of the 'Army of the West' he had transferred all the booty in his possession—and he was no mean collector when it came to plundering a town—directly to the beauty's house. With the result that at the time I am speaking of he could justly consider himself the proprietor of the very desirable creature.

"However, the romantic Olga eventually, through one of those caprices in her variable temperament, got tired somehow of conquerors, and began to show marked preference for the poor and the persecuted. Variety, after all, is just as necessary to life as magnificence. The military men were wealthy, bad-mannered braggarts, far below the intellectual level of Olga del Monte; not her style at all, either, in manners or cultivation. For a person who had enjoyed untold splendor, a man without money, without boastfulness or pretensions, might easily acquire a charm of romance, as you can see.

"At any rate, Olga tired of Castillejo and took up with Taboada, the engineer. He was a frail, delicate individual, well-mannered, gentle of disposition, hostile to the generals, and devoted to the regeneration of his country by the advent of the poorer classes to power. The generals, moreover, had not been slow in letting Olga know that the attentions she was receiving from the young scientist were highly displeasing to them. They talked of wringing that bantam's neck if he didn't let her alone. Could anything make a man more interesting than to be in immediate danger of his life, all the time, and for her sake? Taboada satisfied an idealistic impulse in Olga's nature—her sentimental love for the downtrodden and the unfortunate.

"Well, Castillejo did everything he could to get Olga out of the engineer's reach. He got the President to promise her a lucrative position in New York, and then in Paris. She was to go abroad with a magnificent outfit of Mexican hats and costumes, and give recitals of Mexican songs and dances, at a salary of $50,000 a year. She would be classed as an agent of the government doing Mexican propaganda abroad. History, doubtless, would come to refer to her as a great benefactor of the country. Unfortunately, Olga always declined. She preferred her engineer, and refused to accept other appointments no less honorable and remunerative.

"The advisers of Castillejo would occasionally come back to their original point; 'One word from you, general, and we'll arrange. . . .' But Castillejo always repelled such suggestions with a goodness of heart that made you shiver. When my general brought his uprightness and rectitude into play I always felt my hair begin to stand on end. 'Let no one lay a finger on that boy. Any harm done to him would be laid at the feet of the government. I declare the man's person sacred.' I remember that at the time when I heard him say that I said to myself that if he ever declared my person sacred in that tone of voice I would take the next train for Laredo, if I could make it. . . .

"As the election campaign dragged on, the general seemed to forget all about Olga. But he couldn't forget the engineer. That poor deluded idealist, followed by a dozen or more innocents, as unconscious of the danger they were in as he was, went around making speeches against the government and defending Taboada's candidacy against the aspersions of the general. He, said they, was the only civilian candidate able to set up a truly democratic regime. Of course, nobody ever went to hear him speak. If he did get a crowd sometimes, it was a crowd of big sombreros, who would interrupt what he was saying to call him 'Yankee,' 'gringo,' 'gachupin,' 'traitor' and other compliments of the kind.

"And now, my friends, if you listen, you'll begin soon to hear the toof-toof of the general's automobile.

"Castillejo's auto was of a famous American make—the auto, I mean, that I'm going to talk about. As a matter of fact, he had any number of cars, a garage full. There isn't a Mexican general who hasn't quite an assortment—nor counting the parlor car they each own for their trips by rail. During the revolution all you had to do to get a car was to be a general, and then go into a garage with your revolver and take your pick.

"But Castillejo didn't want anybody to mistake his automobile for that of an ordinary general. He had one imported from the United States, and used to point to it as evidence that he was a man of progressive ideas. He admired the United States for two things: its firearms and its automobiles. That may not seem much, but it is something. A Mexican general doesn't have to know anything about Emerson, or Poe, or Longfellow. 'Did you ever notice,' he would say to me, 'what dinky little cars those gringos turn out?'

"And his, in truth, was a beauty—light, with stylish lines and an engine that was a devil for speed—the biggest, most expensive, most fashionable machine the Americans make. I confess that I admired it as much as my general.

"Many nights, as I would be leaving the office of Castillejo's paper, he would come and get me and take me for a drive about the principal streets of Mexico—or, to be exact, along the only avenue, which, under different names, and with different breadths, stretches several miles in length from the National Palace to the Park of Chapultepec.

"You all know, of course, that the streets of Mexico are the best lighted of any city in the world, though all that illumination does few people any good, because there's rarely anybody on the streets at night. As you ride along you think you are in one of those enchanted cities of the 'Thousand and One Nights' where everybody has been put to sleep and the place is really dead. In early revolutionary days things were a bit more lively. Then you could see officers speeding along occasionally in taxis and shooting revolvers from the windows at passing carriages—just for fun. But during the election season everything was quiet. People kept indoors, feeling a revolution in the air.

"However, on our drives, the general would take me from Chapultepec to the Plaza del Gobierno to Chapultepec: The way we made time, you would have thought we were on important business and that the general had to get somewhere. 'There goes Castillejo,' a chance passerby would remark with veneration and with fear. 'Wonder where he's going now.' Sometimes insults would be shouted at us; but they were always for me, the gachupin Maltrana who was always in the seat of honor in the general's automobile.

"Castillejo invariably sat in front with the chauffeur, leaving me on the back seat. Sometimes he would take the wheel himself, but the chauffeur did most of the driving. And the way he could make that engine hum! You'd have thought the automobile dated from the time of Montezuma.

"My faith in presentiments dates from one evening when I declined the general's invitation to go to drive, on the pretext that I had work to do. I felt something was going to happen, somehow. The truth was, Castillejo seemed to be in a terrible mood when he came into the office. I had not recognized him at first. He had goggles on, and an automobile cap was pulled down over his ears. Then he was wearing a big overcoat that reached to his heels and completely hid his uniform. There was a fierce glow in his eyes and an expression of determination on his face. One thing that impressed me particularly was the smell of alcohol on his breath; for the general was a sober man.

"My excuse, nevertheless, did not work. Castillejo sat down, and said he would wait till I had finished my article. As a matter of fact, I had finished it long before. Finally, seeing there was no help for it, I told him I was ready.

"When we reached the sidewalk the general said: 'Get in, in the back seat.' For all the world his tone of voice was the one he gave commands in to the famous 'Army of the West.' When I was in my place Castillejo took his usual seat in front beside the chauffeur.

"I feel some pride, to tell you the truth, as I think of how accurately I foresaw what was going to happen. As I lay back there on the cushions I kept asking myself what in the devil the general was up to, and suddenly I thought of the engineer; and then I thought of Olga. And the shivers began to run up and down my back. 'He's going out to shoot that man,' I thought. 'But why does he take me along? I might squeal on him!' And then the goose pimples on my body got an inch or two higher. 'Of course,' I concluded, with my hair on end. 'Of course. He'll say I did it.' I began to wish I had never met my protecting general, that I had never seen Mexico; and I began to wonder how long it would take me to get to the American border, if anything did happen. At the same time I kept noting, with pride in my own cleverness, the accuracy with which I had been predicting the general's movements to myself.

"Just as I had foreseen, the automobile turned off the main avenue at the street leading toward Olga del Monte's residence, and we drove along, for some time, between rows of newly built houses, where there were no signs of a light or of people about. He stopped at a corner, just beyond which the lady's mansion was located. Here the street lamps were far apart, and some beautiful tall and thickly grown trees shaded the broad sidewalks. In fact, the darkness was absolute except in three strips of faint twilight, one down the middle of the street, where the trees did not quite come together, and the other two along the houses on either side, to which the branches did not quite reach.

"As the auto stopped, the chauffeur turned out the lights. It was like a ship coming to anchor and darkening its lanterns in order not to be seen.

"Two men, in big straw hats, stepped up to us out of the darkness. They were tough looking individuals, whom I had never seen before. But I guessed their identity pretty well. They were some of the men the general's friends referred to as waiting for 'one little word, and things would be arranged. . . .' Without any doubt whatever, they had come to assassinate the engineer. And I thought of poor Taboada, who at that moment was probably in Olga's house, talking of his hopes and dreams, without the least idea that death was waiting for him at her door.

"'Remember, his person is sacred,' I heard the general whisper to the two men. 'Of course, if he should try to escape. . . .'

"All the structure of speculation I had been exacting in my mind, meanwhile, collapsed at these words. So those men were not to kill the engineer. Well, what was going to happen then?

"I peered out of the auto in the direction of Olga's door, but I could not see the house on account of the trees.

"The chauffeur left the wheel and exchanged places with the general! Castillejo seemed to have more confidence in his own ability, whatever he had in mind. Nevertheless, the pair began to talk in a low voice, testing the spark and the clutches, racing and slowing down the engine. I don't know anything about automobiles, but I could understand from their expressions of satisfaction that everything was in good running order. Moreover, I could hear the barely audible purr of the engine, which the slightest touch on the accelerator set driving with tremendous speed.

"'You're going to see something interesting tonight, Maltranita,' said my general, in a low but good natured voice and without turning his head.

"'But why in the devil should he be dragging me into it?' I reflected with the little brains my fright had left me to think with.

"Five minutes may have passed. Perhaps it was an hour. I don't know. In such circumstances one pays no attention to the flight of time.

"All I know is that, suddenly, I heard two men begin to quarrel in loud drunken voices. I looked out. Just this side of Olga's house the two men in the sombreros had begun to strike at each other with their fists and make a racket.

"Just beyond them I saw a slight, slender figure stop, hesitate, and then finally start across the street toward the other sidewalk.

"In one of those instantaneous flashes of intuition I saw what had happened. Olga's door had opened and let the engineer out, and then closed quickly behind him.

"The engineer had gone down the steps and turned our way along the sidewalk. But then the two ruffians had started their quarrel, and he would have to pass them if he went on.

"Taboada had drawn his revolver, but had thought a moment, and decided not to risk the encounter. Instead of keeping on, he would cross to the other sidewalk and pass them on the other side of the street.

"I did not have time to think any further. I felt myself thrown back against the cushions behind me.

"The automobile had started ahead at full speed, almost throwing me into the air with its mighty bound.

"From that moment I lost all normal perception of what was going on, and I did not get full control over my nerves again for many days. As I look back upon the scene it seems to me something crazy, wild, impossible, the mad raving of a dream.

"The automobile darted out of the shadow into the streak of light in the middle of the road. The engineer saw the machine coming and stepped back. The auto turned slightly toward him. Taboada changed his mind and started ahead again. Again the auto turned and dashed directly at him. It was all the matter of fractions of a second, though it seems like hours now as I think of it. I remember a frantic leap by the engineer with his arms in the air; then the thud of the automobile as it struck him, then a bump under the forward springs as the front wheels passed over his body, and another lunge as he was struck by the hind wheels. I remember, also, that the machine took the shock very easily because of its excellent springs.

"Instinctively I looked out of the auto after we had passed, I saw a formless mass lying on the ground, writhing in anguish, like a snake cut in two, and from that human package, from which a pair of arms was reaching out and clawing into the ground with the fingers of the hands, a cry was rising:

"'Brute, you've killed me.'

"Our machine was at the end of the street, going at full speed. It rounded the corner with a sharp turn that nearly threw me from my seat. But the general was only making
